To encourage expedited review, the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] shall provide clear guidance to permit applicants concerning requirements for a complete application. In particular, the guidance must help applicants prepare adequate operating and reclamation plans. While the legislature recognizes plan requirements may vary with the site and characteristics of the proposed operation, the department shall attempt to guide the applicant in a manner that minimizes applicant costs while also meeting metal mine reclamation requirements.

Finally, [section 4 of this act] [see compiler's comment to 82-4-335] exempts an existing cyanide ore-processing facility if the operator registers the facility by January 1, 1990. In order to provide ample notice to existing operators, the legislature intends that the department shall prepare the form and notify affected small miners of the form's availability and purpose as soon as possible by mail or publication, or both."

Applicability Date: Section 4, Ch. 346, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] applies to any placer or dredge mining operation for which a small-miner exemption has not been obtained before July 1, 1989."

1985 Amendment: In (2) substituted language providing requirements to obtain or continue an exemption for small-miner exemptions obtained after September 30, 1985, for former text that read: "Failure to comply with the regulations stipulated in this section will constitute a misdemeanor, and this offense will subject the owners or operators of said project to a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100, payable to the department of revenue of the state of Montana or any board, commission, or person authorized to collect said fine."

2003 Amendment: Chapter 365 inserted (4)(o) requiring application to include assessment of potential for postmining use of mine-related facilities for other industrial purposes; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2003.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 365, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, metal mine operators typically construct ancillary industrial facilities in conjunction with the operation of metal mines; and

WHEREAS, facilities may include office buildings, shop buildings, electrical transmission lines, electrical power substations, electronic communication lines and facilities, water lines, water treatment plants, septic systems, roads, parking lots, fencing, security stations, and environmental monitoring sites; and

WHEREAS, these facilities may have significant value when the operator discontinues the mining operations; and

WHEREAS, the continued availability of these facilities may provide economic development opportunities for the residents of the county where the facilities are located and to the people of Montana generally; and

WHEREAS, the metal mine reclamation laws do not include provisions that encourage or require the Department of Environmental Quality or the mine operator to consider the feasibility of a postmining use of these facilities for other industrial purposes instead of simply removing the facilities; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature believes that future beneficial use provisions could be provided for in the metal mine reclamation laws without significantly increasing the cost to the state or to the operator of obtaining and maintaining a mine operating permit.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds that it is beneficial and appropriate to create these provisions."

2001 Amendment: Chapter 488 in (3) at end of first sentence increased basic permit fee from $25 to $500; in (8)(a) near beginning after "that person's failure" inserted "or the failure of any firm or business association of which that person was a principal or controlling member" and at end after "this part has resulted in" substituted "either the receipt of bond proceeds by the department or the completion of reclamation by the person's surety or by the department" for "the forfeiture of a bond"; in (8)(c) at end after "bond required by 82-4-305" deleted "unless the department has certified that the area for which the bond should have been posted has been reclaimed by that person or reclaimed by the department and the person has reimbursed the department for the cost of the reclamation"; and made minor changes in style. 1993 Amendment: Chapter 598 inserted (8)(b) through (8)(d) adding additional exceptions to the operating permit provisions for persons who have not paid a penalty, posted a reclamation bond, or complied with an abatement order; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 227 in (6) changed subsection reference to 90-6-302. Amendment effective March 29, 1991.

Chapter 403 in (3)(f), after "addresses of the", substituted remainder of subsection relating to owners of record and purchasers under contract for deed of the surface of the land for "surface and mineral owners of all lands within the mining area, to the extent known to the applicant"; inserted (3)(g) concerning owners of record and purchasers under contract for deed of minerals; inserted (3)(h) concerning source of applicant's legal right to mine; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 637 in (3) inserted last five sentences authorizing Department to charge additional fee for permit not to exceed normal departmental operating expenses, including environmental review, authorizing Department to define expenses by rule, requiring Department to notify applicant and provide itemized expense estimate if fee will exceed $5,000, allowing applicant opportunity to review estimated expenses, and authorizing applicant to indicate duplicative or excessive expenses; at beginning of (4) inserted "The person"; in (4)(a), after "its", deleted "principal" and after "officers" inserted "directors, owners of 10% or more of any class of voting stock"; in (5) changed subsection reference; inserted (9) prohibiting issuance of permit unless certain current information is provided; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 637, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill to provide guidance to the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] concerning the adoption of rules to define the types of department expenses that applicants for hard-rock mine operating permits will be required to pay through increased permit application fees. Section 82-4-335(3) of the bill allows the department to increase the permit application review fee to fund expenses that are beyond the department's normal operating expenses and that are reasonably necessary in order for the department to provide a timely and adequate review, including any environmental review that is conducted pursuant to the requirements of the Montana Environmental Policy Act. The department's rules should authorize the use of the money collected from increased permit application fees for expenses, such as the hiring of temporary employees and contracted consultants and data collection and analysis when, due to workload considerations and statutory deadlines, the department cannot otherwise perform an adequate review."

1989 Amendments: Chapter 93 inserted (7) disallowing issuance of an operating permit to certain persons unless the provisions of 82-4-360 are met; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective October 1, 1989.

Chapter 347 near middle of (1), after "hard-rock mill", inserted "use cyanide ore-processing reagents"; inserted (2) requiring an operating permit for cyanide ore-processing reagent operations; in (4) corrected internal reference; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 93, L. 1989, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it delegates rulemaking authority to the board of land commissioners [functions now transferred to board of environmental review]. Under the provisions of this bill, the board of land commissioners [functions now transferred to board of environmental review], shall adopt rules to implement and administer a procedure for waiver of a minor violation from the civil penalty provisions provided in [section 5] [82-4-361]."

It is the intent of the legislature that the waiver be allowed only if a violation does not represent potential harm to the public health, public safety, or the environment and does not otherwise impair administration of the provisions of Title 84, chapter 4, part 3."

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 347, L. 1989, provided: "A statement of intent is provided for this bill to elaborate on the type and extent of review that the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] shall give to a small-miner application for an operating permit for a cyanide ore-processing facility. Moreover, the legislature anticipates that implementation of this bill will require rulemaking by the board of land commissioners [functions now transferred to board of environmental review]."

While an operating permit is required for these operations, the legislature intends that, because of the size and limited scope of the operation, the application requirements in general may be substantially less rigorous than the requirements for larger proposed mine operations not under the small-miner exclusion. The department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] shall also attempt to review these applications in a shorter timeframe than currently needed to review operating permit applications for larger mines.

To encourage expedited review, the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] shall provide clear guidance to permit applicants concerning requirements for a complete application. In particular, the guidance must help applicants prepare adequate operating and reclamation plans. While the legislature recognizes plan requirements may vary with the site and characteristics of the proposed operation, the department shall attempt to guide the applicant in a manner that minimizes applicant costs while also meeting metal mine reclamation requirements.

Finally, [section 4 of this act] [see compiler's comment to 82-4-335] exempts an existing cyanide ore-processing facility if the operator registers the facility by January 1, 1990. In order to provide ample notice to existing operators, the legislature intends that the department shall prepare the form and notify affected small miners of the form's availability and purpose as soon as possible by mail or publication, or both."

Registration of Cyanide Ore-Processing Operations — Temporary Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 347, L. 1989, provided: "An existing facility that uses a cyanide ore-processing reagent and was not, prior to July 1, 1989, required to obtain an operating permit for the facility or to include the facility in an operating permit is not subject to [this act] if the facility is registered by January 1, 1990, by the owner or operator, on a form provided by the department." See statement of intent to Ch. 347, L. 1989.

1987 Amendment: In (2), in two places in first sentence, substituted reference to approval of impact plan under 90-6-307 for reference to approval by the Hard-Rock Mining Impact Board.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 345 inserted (1)(h) referring to ground and surface water hydrologic data; inserted (1)(i) referring to tailings impoundments and water reservoirs; inserted (1)(j) referring to control and mitigation of discharges to surface or ground water; and inserted (1)(k) referring to expected life and expansion of tailings impoundment or waste site.

Chapter 453 in (1) near beginning, after "engage in mining", inserted "ore processing, or reprocessing of tailings or waste material or construct or operate a hard-rock mill" and after "anticipation of", substituted "those activities" for "mining"; at end of second sentence of (1) substituted "complex" for "mine complex"; at end of (1)(d) substituted "operations" for "mining"; in (1)(g) after "plan" deleted "of mining" and after "completion of", substituted "the operation" for "mining and associated land disturbances".

Chapter 582 in (2) changed "subsection (3)" to "subsection (4)"; and inserted (3) referring to compliance with hard-rock mining impact review and implementation requirements by a permittee who becomes a large-scale mineral developer.

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (2), substituted "activities under the permit" for "mining".

1981 Amendment: Inserted (2) referring to permit for large-scale mineral development; and inserted (3) exempting small samples from impact plan requirement.

Severability: Section 15, Ch. 617, L. 1981, was a severability section.

Case Notes

Deficient Application for Permit — Effect: Because the application for permit was deficient under the hard-rock mining law, the present mining operations on the 500 acres covered by Permit 41A cannot be continued until an adequate application is made and a valid permit pursuant to the hard-rock mining law is issued. Kadillak v. The Anaconda Co., 184 M 127, 602 P2d 147 (1979).

Environmental Impact Statement Not Required: An environmental impact statement (EIS) was not required before granting a permit under the hard-rock mining law because the 60-day period was a woefully inadequate period for the preparation of a proper EIS, the same reason that an EIS was not required in Flint Ridge Dev. Co. v. Scenic Rivers Ass'n, 426 US 776 (1976). Furthermore, the statutory requirement of an EIS was not given constitutional status by the enactment of Art. II, sec. 3, and Art. IX, sec. 1, Mont. Const., subsequent to the Montana Environmental Policy Act and the hard-rock mining law. Kadillak v. The Anaconda Co., 184 M 127, 602 P2d 147 (1979).

Amendment effective April 21, 2003.

The amendment to this section made by Ch. 247, L. 2003, was rendered void by sec. 2, Ch. 247, L. 2003, a coordination section.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 365, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, metal mine operators typically construct ancillary industrial facilities in conjunction with the operation of metal mines; and

WHEREAS, facilities may include office buildings, shop buildings, electrical transmission lines, electrical power substations, electronic communication lines and facilities, water lines, water treatment plants, septic systems, roads, parking lots, fencing, security stations, and environmental monitoring sites; and

WHEREAS, these facilities may have significant value when the operator discontinues the mining operations; and

WHEREAS, the continued availability of these facilities may provide economic development opportunities for the residents of the county where the facilities are located and to the people of Montana generally; and

WHEREAS, the metal mine reclamation laws do not include provisions that encourage or require the Department of Environmental Quality or the mine operator to consider the feasibility of a postmining use of these facilities for other industrial purposes instead of simply removing the facilities; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature believes that future beneficial use provisions could be provided for in the metal mine reclamation laws without significantly increasing the cost to the state or to the operator of obtaining and maintaining a mine operating permit.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds that it is beneficial and appropriate to create these provisions."

Severability: Section 2, Ch. 459, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 459, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to permits and permit amendments approved by the department of environmental quality after September 30, 1995."

2000 Amendment: Chapter 7 inserted (1) concerning site-specific conditions and circumstances; at end of (5) substituted "development area to the extent that it serves as a host or breeding ground for mosquitoes or other disease-bearing or noxious insect life" for "mined area"; in (7)(a) after "covering" substituted "the faces" for "to a depth of 2 feet or more" and at end inserted "in order to mitigate the generation of objectionable effluents"; in (9)(a) at beginning inserted "With regard to disturbed land other than open pits and rock faces", after "disturbed land" deleted "Proposed reclamation must provide for the reclamation of disturbed land", and at end deleted "except for open pits and rock faces that may not be feasible to reclaim in the same fashion as other disturbed lands"; in (9)(b)(ii) after "affords" inserted "some" and at end substituted "or the environment" for "and the surrounding natural system to the extent feasible"; substituted (9)(b)(iii) concerning mitigation of visual contrasts for "blends with the appearance of the surrounding area to the extent feasible"; inserted (9)(c) concerning backfilling; at end of (11) substituted "requirements and standards set forth in this section" for "activities specified in this section"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 18, 2000.

Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 7, Sp. L. May 2000, provided: "(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), [this act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to permits and permit amendments approved by the department after September 30, 1995."

(2) Section 82-4-336(9)(b)(ii) and (9)(b)(iii) do not apply to any reclamation plan approved by the department for a mine at which mining operations have permanently ceased on [the effective date of this act] [effective May 18, 2000].

(3) Section 82-4-336(9)(c) does not alter or abrogate any backfilling requirement imposed or approved by the department prior to [the effective date of this act]. Effective May 18, 2000.

1995 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 418 in (1), (4), (5)(b), (5)(c), (5)(e), (8), and (9) substituted "department" for "board"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995. The amendment in (8) was rendered void by Ch. 464.

Chapter 464 in (3), after "in the mined area", deleted "which may serve as a host or breeding ground for mosquitoes or other disease-bearing or noxious insect life"; in (7), at end of first sentence, inserted "in the same fashion as other disturbed lands" and substituted "In the case of open pits and rock faces, the reclamation plan must provide for reclamation to a condition" for "In such excepted cases"; inserted (7)(a) through (7)(c) regarding conditions for reclamation; in (8) substituted "The reclamation plan must provide" for "the board shall require"; and made minor changes in style.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 464, L. 1995, provided: "In this bill, the legislature is implementing, with regard to open pits and rock faces that are the result of metal mining, the duty imposed upon it by Article IX, section 2(1), of the Montana constitution, which provides that "All lands disturbed by the taking of natural resources shall be reclaimed. The legislature shall provide effective requirements and standards for the reclamation of lands disturbed."

The drafters of this provision of the constitution expressly decided not to impose a constitutional requirement for a specified level of reclamation for all disturbed lands in all locations under all circumstances. Rather, they delegated to the legislature the duty to more specifically define reclamation in the public interest.

The legislature expects, and this bill requires, that miners will prepare and submit to the state reclamation plans for open pits and rock faces. This bill requires that these plans must, at a minimum, provide for return of these lands to structural stability and that the plans must be protective of air and water quality as provided elsewhere in the metal mine reclamation laws. These requirements and standards will prevent risks to public health and safety and the environment and will thereby adequately protect the environmental life support system from degradation.

In order to prevent unreasonable depletion and degradation of natural resources, the legislature finds that further reclamation of open pits and rock faces to provide functional uses and to blend with surrounding areas should be accomplished whenever feasible.

In determining feasibility of further reclamation, the legislature directs the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] to consider and give effect to each of the following objectives:

2004 Annotations to the MCA

- (1) to encourage mining as an activity beneficial to the economy of our state;
- (2) to encourage the production of minerals to meet the needs of society and the economic demands of the marketplace;
- (3) to encourage reclamation to a condition that is aesthetically unobtrusive;
- (4) to encourage reclamation to functional use;
- (5) to discourage requirements that may foreclose future access to mineral resources not fully developed by current mining operations;
- (6) to discourage requirements that will generate undesirable offsite environmental impacts.

The legislature finds that functional postreclamation uses include but are not limited to livestock grazing, agriculture, timber, recreation, wildlife habitat or other wildlife use, or other industrial use, including remining.

The legislature finds that when reclamation has been accomplished in accordance with an approved reclamation plan, the economic and social benefits of mining outweigh the scenic and other impacts associated with open-pit mining."

1985 Amendments: Chapter 345 in (6) inserted second sentence referring to noxious weed control standards; in (7) substituted "shall provide for the reclamation of disturbed land to comparable utility and stability as that of adjacent areas, except for open pits and rock faces which may not be feasible to reclaim. In such excepted cases, the board shall require sufficient measures to insure public safety and to prevent the pollution of air or water and the degradation of adjacent lands" for "need not reclaim the areas to a better condition or different use than that which existed prior to development or mining"; and inserted (9) referring to landscaping and contouring and postmining ground water discharges.

Chapter 453 throughout (1) substituted "the operation" for "mining"; at end of first sentence of (1), after "disturbance", deleted "by the mining operation"; and in middle of first sentence and at end of (1), substituted "the complex" for "mine complex".

2003 Amendment: Chapter 287 inserted (4) providing that the modification of an operating permit may be a major or minor amendment or a revision, referencing the procedures for processing a modification, and providing that a mine reclamation bond may not be increased until permit modification is complete; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 11, 2003.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 287, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to permits and permit amendments that were approved by the department of environmental quality after September 30, 1995."

2001 Amendment: Chapter 299 in (1)(b), (1)(d)(ii), (1)(d)(iii) at beginning, and (7) at beginning of second sentence inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Applicability: Section 16, Ch. 299, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies to environmental reviews that are begun after [the effective date of this act]." Effective October 1, 2001.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 42 in (1)(c)(iii) substituted "82-4-341(7)" for "82-4-341(6)". Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 204 inserted (1)(d)(ii) authorizing the Department to negotiate to extend analysis time by up to 75 days and authorizing applicant to extend time period by written waiver; in (1)(d)(iii) inserted last sentence authorizing written waiver; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 418 in (1)(a), in two places, (1)(b), in two places, (1)(d)(v), (2), and (3) substituted "department" for "board"; in (3), before "after timely notice", deleted "department"; and in (6), in third sentence, substituted "board" for "department". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1993 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 472 in (1)(a), in first sentence before "30 days", inserted "60 days of receipt of the initial application and within" and at end, after "receipt", inserted "of responses to notices of deficiencies", inserted second and third sentences relating to deficiency issues, and in last sentence, at end, substituted "the appropriate review period" for "30 days of receipt"; inserted (1)(d)(iii) concerning contract to prepare EIS; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

Chapter 598 in (1)(a), in first sentence before "30 days", inserted "60 days of receipt of the initial application and within" and at end, after "receipt", inserted "of responses to notices of deficiencies" and in last sentence, at end, substituted "the appropriate review period" for "30 days of receipt"; inserted (4) through (7) regarding amendment or revision of operating permits; and made minor changes in style.

A style change in (1)(b) was slightly different in the two chapters. The codifier chose the more appropriate of the two.

Saving Clause: Section 8, Ch. 472, L. 1993, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 9, Ch. 472, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

1991 Amendment: In (1)(b), at end of second sentence after "82-4-338", inserted "and pursuant to the requirements of subsection (1)(c)"; inserted (1)(c)(ii) prohibiting issuance of permit until information and certification have been submitted pursuant to 82-4-335(9); inserted (1)(c)(iii) prohibiting issuance of permit until Department has found issuance not prohibited by 82-4-335(8) or 82-4-341(6); and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1985 Amendment: In (1)(b) in two places, substituted "plan of operation" for "plan of mining"; in (2) after "period required to", substituted "complete the operation" for "mine the land covered by the plan" and after "until the", substituted "operation" for "surface or underground mining".

Case Notes

Mandate Proper Remedy: Writ of Mandate is a proper remedy for return of a mining application and voidance of permit because the Department of State Lands (functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality) had a clear legal duty to return the permit application as incomplete and inadequate. Because the application was not returned, Permit 41A was void, and the Anaconda Company may not continue mining activities on the Permit 41A area until a valid permit is granted by the Department. Kadillak v. The Anaconda Co., 184 M 127, 602 P2d 147 (1979).

Specific Statute to Control: The well-settled principle of statutory construction that a specific statute will control a general one requires that the 60-day period in 82-4-337 controls the general provisions of 75-1-201(2)(c). Kadillak v. The Anaconda Co., 184 M 127, 602 P2d 147 (1979).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, Article II, section 3, of the Montana Constitution enumerates certain inalienable individual rights, including the right to a clean and healthful environment, the right of pursuing life's basic necessities, the right of enjoying and defending an individual's life and liberty, the right of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and the right of seeking individual safety, health, and happiness in all lawful ways; and

WHEREAS, the constitutionally enumerated rights are by their very nature bound to result in competing interests in specific fact situations; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 1, of the Montana Constitution provides that the state and each person shall maintain and improve a clean and healthful environment in Montana for present and future generations and directs the Legislature to provide for the administration and enforcement of this duty and also directs the Legislature to provide adequate remedies for the protection of the environmental life support system from degradation and to provide adequate remedies to prevent unreasonable depletion and degradation of natural resources; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has reviewed the intent of the framers of the 1972 Montana Constitution as evidenced in the verbatim transcripts of the constitutional convention; and

WHEREAS, there is no indication that one enumerated inalienable right is intended to supersede other inalienable rights, including the right to use property in all lawful means; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, mindful of its constitutional obligation to provide for the administration and enforcement of the constitution, has enacted a comprehensive set of laws to accomplish the goals of the constitution, including the Montana Clean Indoor Air Act of 1979, Title 50, chapter 40, part 1, MCA; the Montana Environmental Policy Act, Title 75, chapter 1, parts 1 through 3, MCA; the Clean Air Act of Montana, Title 75, chapter 2, parts 1 through 4, MCA; water quality laws, Title 75, chapter 5, MCA; The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975, Title 75, chapter 7, part 1, MCA; The Montana Solid Waste Management Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 2, MCA; The Montana Hazardous Waste Act, Title

75, chapter 10, part 4, MCA; the Comprehensive Environmental Cleanup and Responsibility Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 7, MCA; the Montana Megalandfill Siting Act, sections 75-10-901 through 75-10-945, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Installer and Inspector Licensing and Permitting Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 2, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 5, MCA; the Montana Major Facility Siting Act, Title 75, chapter 20, MCA; the Open-Space Land and Voluntary Conservation Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 6, MCA; the Environmental Control Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 7, MCA; The Strip and Underground Mine Siting Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 1, MCA; The Montana Strip and Underground Mine Reclamation Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 2, MCA; The Opencut Mining Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 4, MCA; and The Nongame and Endangered Species Conservation Act, Title 87, chapter 5, part 1, MCA."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 637, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill to provide guidance to the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] concerning the adoption of rules to define the types of department expenses that applicants for hard-rock mine operating permits will be required to pay through increased permit application fees. Section 82-4-335(3) of the bill allows the department to increase the permit application review fee to fund expenses that are beyond the department's normal operating expenses and that are reasonably necessary in order for the department to provide a timely and adequate review, including any environmental review that is conducted pursuant to the requirements of the Montana Environmental Policy Act. The department's rules should authorize the use of the money collected from increased permit application fees for expenses, such as the hiring of temporary employees and contracted consultants and data collection and analysis when, due to workload considerations and statutory deadlines, the department cannot otherwise perform an adequate review."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 79, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, certain environmental statutes administered by the Montana Department of Environmental Quality provide that a person aggrieved by a decision of the Department may appeal that decision to the Director of the Department; and

WHEREAS, the possibility of an appeal prevents the Director from becoming involved in certain Department decisions that are subject to appeal to the Director; and

WHEREAS, section 82-4-427, MCA, states that a contested case hearing requested under The Opencut Mining Act must be held within 30 days after the hearing is requested; and

WHEREAS, it is difficult for the Department to conduct a contested case hearing under that Act within 30 days after the hearing is requested; and

WHEREAS, certain revisions to statutes administered by the Department are necessary for clarity and consistency and to conform the statutes to current drafting style."

Saving Clause: Section 18, Ch. 79, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

1997 Amendments: Chapter 271 in (1)(a), at beginning, substituted "The department may assess an administrative" for "Except as provided in subsections (1)(b) and (2), a", after "additional" inserted "administrative", near end, after "continues and", inserted "may bring an action for", and after "violation" deleted "may be imposed"; inserted (2) setting out factors to be considered prior to instituting a civil penalty action; deleted (2)(b) that read: "(b) The civil penalties provided for in this section may be waived for a minor violation if it is determined that the violation does not represent potential harm to public health, public safety, or the environment and does not impair the administration of this part. The board shall adopt rules to implement and administer a procedure for waiver of a penalty under this subsection"; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 273 in (4), in fourth and fifth sentences, substituted "department" for "board". Amendment effective April 16, 1997.

Chapter 535 inserted (5) relating to the district in which actions must be brought.

Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 271, L. 1997, provided: "[This act] applies to proceedings begun on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 16, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 6, Ch. 273, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 204 substituted (1)(a) and (1)(b) regarding civil penalties for each violation, for continuing violations, and for violations creating imminent danger to health or safety and authorizing injunctions for former language that read: "A person who violates any of the provisions of this part, the rules or orders adopted under this part (except 82-4-339), the provisions of any license or permit, or the conditions of a small minor exemption shall pay a civil penalty of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 for the violations and an additional civil penalty of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 for each day during which a violation continues and may be enjoined from continuing such violations as provided in this section. These penalties are recoverable in any action brought in the name of the state of Montana by the attorney general in the district court of the first judicial district of this state in and for the county of Lewis and Clark or in the district court having jurisdiction of the defendant"; at beginning of (2)(a) substituted language authorizing the Department to bring an action for restraining order for former language requiring the Attorney General, upon request of the Department, to initiate suit for recovery of penalties; inserted (3) providing procedures for hearing and appeals; and made minor changes in style.

Policy Provision of Act Relevant to Determination of Extent of Board's Contracting Authority: A policy section is relevant not only to the question of legislative intent concerning an act's overall purpose but also to the scope of administrative agency authority under the act. Thus, 82-4-402, the policy section of The Opencut Mining Act, is properly considered in determining the extent of the Board of Land Commissioners' (functions now transferred to Board of Environmental Review) authority under this Act to require reclamation contract commitments in addition to those mandated under 82-4-434. 40 A.G. Op. 47 (1984).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, Article II, section 3, of the Montana Constitution enumerates certain inalienable individual rights, including the right to a clean and healthful environment, the right of pursuing life's basic necessities, the right of enjoying and defending an individual's life and liberty, the right of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and the right of seeking individual safety, health, and happiness in all lawful ways; and

WHEREAS, the constitutionally enumerated rights are by their very nature bound to result in competing interests in specific fact situations; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 1, of the Montana Constitution provides that the state and each person shall maintain and improve a clean and healthful environment in Montana for present and future generations and directs the Legislature to provide for the administration and enforcement of this duty and also directs the Legislature to provide adequate remedies for the protection of the environmental life support system from degradation and to provide adequate remedies to prevent unreasonable depletion and degradation of natural resources; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has reviewed the intent of the framers of the 1972 Montana Constitution as evidenced in the verbatim transcripts of the constitutional convention; and

WHEREAS, there is no indication that one enumerated inalienable right is intended to supersede other inalienable rights, including the right to use property in all lawful means; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, mindful of its constitutional obligation to provide for the administration and enforcement of the constitution, has enacted a comprehensive set of laws to accomplish the goals of the constitution, including the Montana Clean Indoor Air Act of 1979, Title 50, chapter 40, part 1, MCA; the Montana Environmental Policy Act, Title 75, chapter 1, parts 1 through 3, MCA; the Clean Air Act of Montana, Title 75, chapter 2, parts 1 through 4, MCA; water quality laws, Title 75, chapter 5, MCA; The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975, Title 75, chapter 7, part 1, MCA; The Montana Solid Waste Management Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 2, MCA; The Montana Hazardous Waste Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 4, MCA; the Comprehensive Environmental Cleanup and Responsibility Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 7, MCA; the Montana Megalandfill Siting Act, sections 75-10-901 through 75-10-945, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Installer and Inspector Licensing and Permitting Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 2, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 5, MCA; the Montana Major Facility Siting Act, Title 75, chapter 20, MCA; the Open-Space Land and Voluntary Conservation Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 6, MCA; the Environmental Control Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 7, MCA; The Strip and Underground Mine Siting Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 1, MCA; The Montana Strip and Underground Mine Reclamation Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 2, MCA; The Opencut Mining Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 4, MCA; and The Nongame and Endangered Species Conservation Act, Title 87, chapter 5, part 1, MCA."

Severability: Section 39, Ch. 361, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 41, Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to actions for judicial review or other causes of action challenging the issuance of a permit, petition for review, amendment, license, arbitration, action, certificate, or inspection that are pending but not yet decided on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 16, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 325 at beginning inserted introductory phrase concerning economy of state; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 507 in two places substituted "opencut materials" for "opencut mineral"; near end of second sentence after "property" inserted "through reclamation"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 1999.

Severability: Section 21, Ch. 507, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1987 Amendment: In two places substituted "mineral mining" for "bentonite, clay, scoria, phosphate rock, sand, or gravel mining".

Attorney General's Opinions

Section Properly Considered in Determining Extent of Board's Contracting Authority Under Act: A policy section is relevant not only to the question of legislative intent concerning an act's overall purpose but also to the scope of administrative agency authority under the act. Thus, this section is properly considered in determining the extent of the Board of Land Commissioners' (functions now transferred to Board of Environmental Review) authority under the Opencut Mining Act to require reclamation contract commitments in addition to those mandated under 82-4-434. 40 A.G. Op. 47 (1984).

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 507 in definitions of affected land, opencut mining, and overburden substituted "material" or "materials" for "mineral" or "minerals"; deleted former definition of contract that read: "'Contract' means a mined land reclamation contract prepared by the board to meet the requirements of this part"; in definition of landowner substituted "subjected to" for "directly affected by"; substituted materials for minerals as defined term and in definition of materials substituted "peat" for "phosphate rock" and after "sand" inserted "soil materials"; in definition of opencut mining deleted former (c) that read: "(c) removing overburden for the purpose of determining the location, quality, or quantity of any natural deposit of minerals"; in definition of progress report after "report" substituted language regarding form and maps provided by department and outlining map requirements for former language that read: "showing the land that the operator has affected by opencut mining during the year. The report must show the number of acres of affected land and all reclamation accomplished"; deleted former definition of public notice that read: "'Public notice' means notice given by publication in a newspaper in the general area where the affected land is located. The notice must be given once a week for 3 successive weeks"; in definition of reclamation plan inserted "meets the requirements of 82-4-434"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 1999.

Applicability: Section 23(1), Ch. 507, L. 1999, provided: "[Section 1(8)] [82-4-303(8)] and [section 9(6)] [82-4-403(6)] apply to operations conducted after July 31, 1999, except that the department of environmental quality may accept small miner exclusions and issue licenses and permits to implement these provisions at any time after [the effective date of this act] [effective April 28, 1999]. [Section 1(8)] [82-4-303(8)] and [section 9(6)] [82-4-403(6)] apply to those operations upon filing of the exclusion or issuance of the license or permit."

Section 23(3)(b), Ch. 507, L. 1999, provided that for purposes of the amendments in [section 9], amending 82-4-403, "relating to changing opencut mining "contracts" to "permits", contracts issued before [the effective date of this act] [effective April 28, 1999] are permits. The department of environmental quality shall issue permit documents to the contract holders within a reasonable time after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 28, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in definition of Board substituted "board of environmental review provided for in 2-15-3502" for "state board of land commissioners"; inserted definition of Department; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1987 Amendment: Substituted "'Affected land" means the area of land and land covered by water that is disturbed by opencut mining operations, including the area from which overburden or mineral is to be or has been removed and upon which the overburden is to be or has been deposited, roads constructed to gain access to the mineral, areas of processing facilities on or contiguous to the opencut mine, treatment and sedimentation ponds, and mineral stockpile areas on or contiguous to the opencut mine" for former definition that read: "'Affected land" means the area of land from which overburden is to be or has been removed and upon which the overburden is to be or has been deposited"; deleted former (5) that read: "'Highwall" means that side of the pit adjacent to unmined land"; inserted definition of minerals; in definition of opencut mining, in introductory clause, and in (7)(c) and definition of overburden substituted "minerals" for "bentonite, clay, scoria, phosphate rock, sand, or gravel"; in definition of opencut mining inserted language referring to mining directly from natural deposits of minerals; in (7)(c), at beginning, substituted "removing" for "including the removal of"; in definition of operator substituted "or" for "and"; and inserted definition of processing facilities.

Retroactive: After July 1, 1975, the State of Montana and its subdivisions need not comply with any fee or bonding requirements of The Opencut Mining Act. 36 A.G. Op. 31 (1975).

82-4-406. Exemption — operations on federal lands.Attorney General's Opinions

Applicability of Opencut Mining Act: The Opencut Mining Act does not apply to federal agencies conducting opencut mining operations on private or federal land absent congressional authorization. But the Act does apply to private contractors mining on private land, and unless conflicting federal legislation applies, the Act also applies to private contractors mining on federal land. Any private contractor to whom the Act applies is required to enter into a contract pursuant to 82-4-431. 37 A.G. Op. 164 (1978).

Board of County Commissioners Compelled to Follow Clear Statutory Language and Allow Gravel Pit in Nonresidential Area: Plaintiff owned agricultural property adjacent to a school and sought to develop a gravel pit on the property. Plaintiff applied for the appropriate special review with the Board of County Commissioners. The Board determined that a gravel pit would interfere with surrounding property uses and would violate the rights of people who lived and attended school nearby to a clean and healthful environment, citing 82-4-432 and this section as authority for the Board's right to deny the special review. Plaintiff argued that under 76-1-113 and 76-2-209, local planning boards may not prevent the operation of a gravel pit in a nonresidential area. The District Court concluded that plaintiff accurately construed the statutes and that the Board could not deny a gravel pit in a nonresidential area. The Supreme Court affirmed. The Board ruled as if either 76-2-209 did not exist or the statute unconstitutionally deprived residents of a clean and healthful environment, but as an Executive Branch agency, the Board violated the separation of powers doctrine by ruling on the constitutionality of the statute. The statutory language was clear and unambiguous, and the Board was compelled to follow the legal mandate and allow the gravel pit. Further, because the statutes were clear, the District Court was not required to reach the constitutional question and did not err in failing to address the constitutionality of the statute. *Merlin Myers Revocable Trust v. Applicability of Opencut Mining Act: The Opencut Mining Act does not apply to federal agencies conducting opencut mining operations on private or federal land absent congressional authorization. But the Act does apply to private contractors mining on private land, and unless conflicting federal legislation applies, the Act also applies to private contractors mining on federal land. Any private contractor to whom the Act applies is required to enter into a contract pursuant to 82-4-431. 37 A.G. Op. 164 (1978).

Board Empowered to Require Contract Terms in Addition to Those in This Section: A policy section is relevant not only to the question of legislative intent concerning an act's overall purpose but also to the scope of administrative agency authority under the act. Thus, 82-4-402, the policy section of The Opencut Mining Act, is properly considered in determining the extent of the Board of Land Commissioners' [functions now transferred to Board of Environmental Review] authority under this Act to require reclamation contract commitments in addition to those mandated under this section. 40 A.G. Op. 47 (1984).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 361 inserted (6) relating to venue; and inserted (7) relating to judicial challenges to an amendment. Amendment effective April 16, 2003.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, Article II, section 3, of the Montana Constitution enumerates certain inalienable individual rights, including the right to a clean and healthful environment, the right of pursuing life's basic necessities, the right of enjoying and defending an individual's life and liberty, the right of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and the right of seeking individual safety, health, and happiness in all lawful ways; and

WHEREAS, the constitutionally enumerated rights are by their very nature bound to result in competing interests in specific fact situations; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 1, of the Montana Constitution provides that the state and each person shall maintain and improve a clean and healthful environment in Montana for present and future generations and directs the Legislature to provide for the administration and enforcement of this duty and also directs the Legislature to provide adequate remedies for the protection of the environmental life support system from degradation and to provide adequate remedies to prevent unreasonable depletion and degradation of natural resources; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has reviewed the intent of the framers of the 1972 Montana Constitution as evidenced in the verbatim transcripts of the constitutional convention; and

WHEREAS, there is no indication that one enumerated inalienable right is intended to supersede other inalienable rights, including the right to use property in all lawful means; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, mindful of its constitutional obligation to provide for the administration and enforcement of the constitution, has enacted a comprehensive set of laws to accomplish the goals of the constitution, including the Montana Clean Indoor Air Act of 1979, Title 50, chapter 40, part 1, MCA; the Montana Environmental Policy Act, Title 75, chapter 1, parts 1 through 3, MCA; the Clean Air Act of Montana, Title 75, chapter 2, parts 1 through 4, MCA; water quality laws, Title 75, chapter 5, MCA; The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975, Title 75, chapter 7, part 1, MCA; The Montana Solid Waste Management Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 2, MCA; The Montana Hazardous Waste Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 4, MCA; the Comprehensive Environmental Cleanup and Responsibility Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 7, MCA; the Montana Megalandfill Siting Act, sections 75-10-901 through 75-10-945, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Installer and Inspector Licensing and Permitting Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 2, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 5, MCA; the Montana Major Facility Siting Act, Title 75, chapter 20, MCA; the Open-Space Land and Voluntary Conservation Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 6, MCA; the Environmental Control Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 7, MCA; The Strip and Underground Mine Siting Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 1, MCA; The Montana Strip and Underground Mine Reclamation Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 2, MCA; The Opencut Mining Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 4, MCA; and The Nongame and Endangered Species Conservation Act, Title 87, chapter 5, part 1, MCA."

Severability: Section 39, Ch. 361, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 41, Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to actions for judicial review or other causes of action challenging the issuance of a permit, petition for review, amendment, license, arbitration, action, certificate, or inspection that are pending but not yet decided on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 16, 2003.

Effective Date: This section is effective October 1, 2001.

82-4-441. Penalty — enforcement.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 79 in (3) deleted former second sentence that read: "The person or operator is entitled, by filing a written request within 20 days of receipt of the notice of violation, to a hearing on the issues of whether the alleged violation has occurred and whether the penalty proposed to be imposed is proper", in second sentence after "10 days after" inserted "issuing the", in third sentence after "hearing" substituted "provided for in 82-4-427, the board" for "or after the time for requesting a hearing has expired, the department" and after "violation and" inserted "if the board finds that the violation occurred", and inserted fourth sentence regarding department action if the time for requesting a hearing expires; in (4) near middle after "permit" inserted "issued"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 20, 2001.

Chapter 325 at end of (2)(b) inserted "within the past 3 years"; at end of (2)(e) inserted "to decrease the amount of penalty"; in (3) near middle of second sentence inserted "including the penalty calculation that identifies and describes the factors considered pursuant to subsection (2)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 79, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, certain environmental statutes administered by the Montana Department of Environmental Quality provide that a person aggrieved by a decision of the Department may appeal that decision to the Director of the Department; and

WHEREAS, the possibility of an appeal prevents the Director from becoming involved in certain Department decisions that are subject to appeal to the Director; and

WHEREAS, section 82-4-427, MCA, states that a contested case hearing requested under The Opencut Mining Act must be held within 30 days after the hearing is requested; and

WHEREAS, it is difficult for the Department to conduct a contested case hearing under that Act within 30 days after the hearing is requested; and

WHEREAS, certain revisions to statutes administered by the Department are necessary for clarity and consistency and to conform the statutes to current drafting style."

Saving Clause: Section 18, Ch. 79, L. 2001, was a saving clause.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 507 in (1) substituted "a reclamation permit" for "a contract for reclamation"; and in (4) substituted "a permit pursuant" for "a contract made pursuant". Amendment effective April 28, 1999.

Saving Clause: Section 20, Ch. 507, L. 1999, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 21, Ch. 507, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

The department of environmental quality shall issue permit documents to the contract holders within a reasonable time after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 28, 1999.

1997 Amendments: Chapter 271 in (1), at beginning, inserted "The department may assess against"; in (1)(a) and (1)(b), at beginning, deleted "shall pay"; deleted (1)(c) that read: "(c) may be enjoined from continuing the violation as provided in this section"; substituted (2) setting out factors to be considered prior to instituting a civil penalty action for former (2) that read: "The civil penalties provided for in this section may be waived for a minor violation if it is determined that the violation does not represent potential harm to public health, public safety, or the environment and does not impair the administration of this part. The board shall adopt rules to implement and administer a procedure for waiver of a penalty under this subsection"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 1997.

Chapter 273 in (3), near middle of fourth sentence, substituted "department" for "board". Amendment effective April 16, 1997.

Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 271, L. 1997, provided: "[This act] applies to proceedings begun on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 16, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 6, Ch. 273, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 at beginning of (3), after "department", deleted "of state lands"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendment: In (1), at end, deleted "These penalties are recoverable in an action brought in the name of the state of Montana by the attorney general in the district court having jurisdiction of the defendant or by mutual agreement of the parties involved, in the district court of the first judicial district. Penalty money shall be credited to the general fund"; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) The attorney general shall, upon the request of the department, sue for the recovery of the penalties provided for in this section and bring an action for a restraining order or a temporary or permanent injunction against an operator or other person violating or threatening to violate an order adopted under this part"; inserted (3) providing administrative procedures in case of a violation; and inserted (4) authorizing Department to bring an action to enjoin violations.

1987 Amendment: In (1), near beginning of first sentence after "rules adopted thereunder", inserted "or provisions of a contract for reclamation"; and inserted (3) providing for waiver of civil penalties in certain cases.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 280, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill to provide guidelines on rules that must be adopted by the board of land commissioners [functions now transferred to board of environmental review] under the provisions of section 7, which amends 82-4-441. Currently, 82-4-441 requires the imposition of a penalty regardless of the seriousness of a violation. A waiver of penalty provision would allow the department of state lands [functions now transferred to department of environmental quality] to serve a notice of noncompliance, informing the operator of violations of the act or contract, without imposing a fine for minor violation.

It is anticipated that the rules would set forth those instances where a violation would not result in a fine. Under the amendment to 82-4-441, a fine may be waived if the violation does not represent potential harm to public health, public safety, or the environment and does not impair the administration of the Opencut Mining Act. The adopted rules will set forth a mechanism through which the department may exercise its discretion in waiving a penalty. Also, the rules will set forth, within the guidelines of the statute, those violations that do not warrant the imposition of a fine. In establishing these rules, the department shall consider:

(1) whether the violation is inadvertent or unavoidable or results from an emergency situation;

(2) whether the violation will significantly alter or hinder reclamation or the approved reclaimed use;

(3) whether there has been a history of violations by the operator;

(4) whether the operator has shown good faith in rectifying the violation; and

(5) other pertinent factors relating to the seriousness of the violation."

1981 Title: The title to Ch. 113, L. 1981 (HB 277), read: "An act to provide for civil penalties for violation and enforcement by the attorney general of the Open Cut Mining Act; repealing section 82-4-435, MCA."

CHAPTER 10 OIL AND GAS — GENERAL PROVISIONS

Chapter Case Notes

Oil and Gas Leases in Deep Creek of Bob Marshall: Federal agencies violated the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 by issuing oil and gas leases without preparation of an environmental impact statement and without adequate consideration of a no-action alternative. They violated the Endangered Species Act of 1973 by issuing leases without preparation of a comprehensive biological opinion assessing effects on threatened and endangered species in the area. Bob Marshall Alliance v. Hodel, 852 F2d 1223 (9th Cir. 1988).

Gas Pipeline on Tribal Land: A 50-year term for natural gas pipeline rights-of-way, consented to by the tribe, was valid. Blackfeet Indian Tribe v. Mont. Power Co., 838 F2d 1055 (9th Cir. 1988).

Oil and Gas Leases on National Forest Lands: Issuance of leases without "no surface occupancy" stipulations required filing of an environmental impact statement. Connor v. Burford, 836 F2d 1521 (9th Cir. 1988).

Ambiguity in Reservation — Summary Judgment Improper: In a 1944 deed, the grantor reserved "six percent of all royalties received for oil and gas removed from the above-described property". In 1968, the mineral owners leased the property subject to a one-eighth landowner's royalty (12 ½% of oil and gas produced). In a subsequent suit, the royalty owners claimed they were entitled to 6% of production and the mineral owners claimed that the royalty owners were entitled to 6% of the landowner's royalty of 12 ½% of production. The District Court granted summary judgment for the mineral owners. The Supreme Court reversed on the grounds that the reservation language is ambiguous and the true intent of the parties is discernible only with reference to extrinsic evidence, not from the deed alone; therefore, summary judgment was inappropriate. Proctor v. Werk, 220 M 246, 714 P2d 171, 43 St. Rep. 333 (1986).

Ambiguity in Reservation — Course of Conduct: Plaintiffs initiated an action to determine their rights under a reservation in an assignment of an oil and gas lease. The 1926 lease assigned reserved the right to take and use gas "for the purpose of extracting, making, or manufacturing casing-head gasoline or by-products or carbon black". The course of conduct and expert testimony both showed that the language was meant to be nonrestrictive. Souders v. Mont. Power Co., 203 M 483, 662 P2d 289, 40 St. Rep. 583 (1983).

Part 1

Royalty Interests

Part Case Notes

No Adverse Possession of Royalty Interest by Color of Title Found — Estoppel Applied: Defendants in an action to quiet title to a royalty interest argued that they held color of title to the interest by virtue of an invalid tax deed and subsequent conveyances. However, defendants also argued that the reservation of a royalty interest by Rosebud County, their ultimate grantor, was invalid. Citing Russell v. Texas Co., 238 F2d 636 (1956), the Supreme Court held that the defendants could not attack a royalty reservation in a title under and through which defendants claimed adverse possession by color of title. The court held that defendants were estopped from attacking Rosebud County's royalty reservation and that because defendants' grant expressly subjects them to the county's reservation of a royalty interest, defendants had no color of title to their royalty. Stanford v. Rosebud County, 251 M 128, 822 P2d 1074, 48 St. Rep. 1124 (1991).

No Adverse Possession of Royalty Interest by Use and Occupancy Found — Burden of Proof Unmet: Defendants in an action to quiet title to certain royalty interests argued that they established adverse possession. Citing Burlingame v. Marjerrison, 204 M 464, 665 P2d 1136 (1983), the Supreme Court noted that adverse possession must rely upon possession that is actual, visible, exclusive, hostile, and continuous for the required statutory period. Because the defendants failed to produce evidence that they possessed or had taken any of the proceeds from the royalty, which was held by the clerk of court, the Supreme Court held that adverse possession did not apply. Stanford v. Rosebud County, 251 M 128, 822 P2d 1074, 48 St. Rep. 1124 (1991).

Royalty Interest Not Derived From Mineral Interest — Owner of Mineral and Surface Interests Not Entitled to Royalty Interest: Defendants in an action to quiet title to mineral interests in oil and gas argued that because a royalty interest can be derived only from a mineral interest of which they owned 75% and because they invested in and were in control of the mineral interest, they were entitled to all royalties except those burdened by the production lease. Citing McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981), the Supreme Court held that the distinction between a mineral interest and a royalty interest must be recognized. A mineral interest is a right to develop or lease for development and to keep the proceeds of the lease, whereas a royalty interest is the right to a share in production while remaining free from the costs of production. Defendants' argument that they can spend time and money on production yet have a royalty interest blurs this distinction and is contradictory to the definition of a royalty interest. The court refused to recognize such a basis for a royalty interest and awarded the royalty interest to plaintiffs. Stanford v. Rosebud County, 251 M 128, 822 P2d 1074, 48 St. Rep. 1124 (1991).

Unresolved Issues Regarding Royalty Interests — Summary Judgment Precluded: Prior to 1955, McDonald & Eide, Inc. (M&E) owned the entire working interest in a lease on a producing oil well. On July 12, 1955, M&E assigned 100% of its interest in the south half and 50% of its interest in the north half to H. W. McDonald, but this assignment was not recorded until 1963. After M&E's corporate charter was repealed for failure to pay taxes, corporate officers of M&E purported to assign M&E's total working interest to V. Eide and J. Von DeLinde in 1961, but this assignment conflicted with the one previously made to McDonald, who filed a quiet title action. Thereafter, all three entered an agreement with Continental Oil Company (Continental) assigning to the company an undivided one-half interest in the lease. While the quiet title action was pending, McDonald assigned undivided interests to G. Huntley, D. Iverson, and A. Larson with the intent to convey to each the respective share "held in suspense by Continental". In 1964, final judgment quieted title in McDonald subject to the agreement with Continental. In 1965,

M&E stockholders appointed F. Gunnip as receiver, and he sued M&E corporate officers to recover the lease and other property. A 1970 judgment voided the 1961 agreement, and in 1976, final judgment provided that Gunnip owned one-half interest in the north half of the lease while Eide, Von DeLinde, and Continental were held to have no interest. Shell Oil Company, responsible for disbursing the lease proceeds, continued to pay Continental one-half of the proceeds under the agreement with McDonald, and although Gunnip was owner of a 50% interest, he received only a 25% share of proceeds. In 1981, Gunnip assigned a 3.75% interest in the north half to Huntley and a 2.5% interest in the north half to R. Schwinn. Huntley became aware that Gunnip was not receiving his full share, so Gunnip, Huntley, and Schwinn sued Continental, requesting an additional one-eighth of the proceeds. The District Court granted summary judgment to Continental in 1985, but the Supreme Court reversed on appeal, holding that: (1) unresolved issues of material fact remained regarding Continental's interest; (2) a trial must be had to assess Continental's interest considering potential application of adverse possession, waiver, and estoppel; and (3) Continental's asserted 50% interest in the north half of the lease must be tested against the interest of McDonald's assignees and successors in interest. The case was remanded for further proceedings. Gunnip v. Cont. Oil Co., 223 M 141, 727 P2d 1315, 43 St. Rep. 1605 (1986). On remand, the District Court neglected to assess Continental's interest as directed. On later appeal, the Supreme Court granted supervisory control and determined that: (1) plaintiffs failed to present substantial evidence to support a theory of adverse possession, waiver, or estoppel against Continental; (2) Continental owned an undivided one-half interest in the working interest in the north half of the lease; and (3) Gunnip and his assigns owned the remaining half of the working interest in the north half. Cont. Oil Co. v. Elks Nat'l Foundation, 235 M 438, 767 P2d 1324, 46 St. Rep. 121 (1989).

Assignment of Oil and Gas Lease Working Interest to Trust Valid Grant: In 1954, Fitzpatrick and three other parties entered into an operating agreement concerning the working interest in an oil and gas lease. The agreement included a clause giving each party a preferential right to purchase the working interest of any other party. In 1969, Fitzpatrick divided his interest into three parts. He assigned one-third to his wife, reserved one-third in himself, and assigned one-third in four equal parts to four trusts which he had created for his four children. In 1972, Fitzpatrick signed a quitclaim assignment of whatever working interest he had to Youngblood, successor in interest to one of the four parties to the 1954 agreement. Youngblood had acquired similar quitclaim assignments from the other two parties to the original agreement. Believing that he owned 100% of the working interest in the lease, Youngblood began development of oil and gas wells on the land. The land became productive in 1972. In 1975, Youngblood, concerned about whether or not he had acquired all of Fitzpatrick's interest, had Fitzpatrick and his wife sign letters to ratify that Youngblood had acquired all their working interest in 1972. The Fitzpatrick children, as beneficiaries of the trusts, refused to sign similar letters. Youngblood then filed an action to quiet title to the working interest in him. The District Court found for Youngblood, ruling that the 1969 assignment was invalid for failure of delivery, failure of acceptance, and for retention of dominion and control over the working interest by Fitzpatrick. The Supreme Court reversed. The court ruled that Fitzpatrick's intent in making the 1969 assignment was to transfer income from oil and gas production to his wife and four children and that delivery was therefore complete. Acceptance of the assignment may be presumed because the net effect of the assignment was beneficial to the trusts. The court further ruled that there was not sufficient evidence that Fitzpatrick retained dominion and control over the working interests after the 1969 assignment. Finally, the court ruled that the parties did not intend the preferential purchase clause to apply to a transfer without consideration between family members, so Youngblood was not entitled to enforce that clause. Exeter Exploration Co. v. Fitzpatrick, 202 M 209, 661 P2d 1255, 40 St. Rep. 38 (1983).

Deed Reserving Mineral Interest to County — No Mutual Mistake: A 1944 deed reserved a mineral interest to the county. The deed did not on its face indicate mutual mistake, the parties agreed in 1977 that the 1944 deed reserved a royalty, and not one of the interested parties claimed mutual mistake. Plaintiff did not overcome the presumption that the 1944 deed contained the final agreement of the parties. McSweyn v. Musselshell County, 193 M 525, 632 P2d 1095, 38 St. Rep. 1260 (1981).

Case Notes

Procedures for Determining Market Price of Gas: In an appeal from a declaratory judgment action, petitioner Montana Power Company requested the Supreme Court to determine whether the procedures adopted on remand from a previous case by the District Court for determining market price are consistent with the Supreme Court's instruction for remand. The Supreme Court held that the District Court's action on remand was proper, which action set the market price of gas at a certain level, and required the parties to attempt to renegotiate the market price if market conditions materially change, the court retaining jurisdiction if the parties cannot agree as to price. *Mont. 82-10-504. Surface damage and disruption payments — penalty for late payment.

Compiler's Comments

1985 Amendment — Subsection Enactment: In (1)(c) substituted "receive annual damage payments" for "be paid damages in annual installments".

Subsection (2) concerning penalty for late payment by an oil and gas developer or operator was enacted as a separate section by Ch. 497, L. 1985, but is codified with this section for convenience.

CHAPTER 11

OIL AND GAS CONSERVATION

Chapter Administrative Rules

Title 36, chapter 22, ARM Board of Oil and Gas Conservation.

Chapter Case Notes

Reasonable Notice Required Before Duty to Drill Offset Well Arises: Clarifying its opinion in U.V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979), the Supreme Court held that before a lessee's duty to drill an offset well arises, the lessee must have reasonable notice of the necessity to protect the leasehold. Notice "can either be express, from the lessor, or constructive, gained from the surrounding circumstances". This rule is only applicable in cases when a lessor is seeking relief in the form of damages. If he is seeking other forms of relief, such as forfeiture of the lease, he must give written notice in order to give the lessor a chance to cure the breach. Sundheim v. Reef Oil Corp., 247 M 244, 806 P2d 503, 48 St. Rep. 181 (1991).

Forfeiture of Gas and Oil Lease — Common-Law Offset Drilling Rule: Where an oil and gas lease provided that no change in ownership of the land was to be binding upon the lessees until after lessee had been given a copy of any such transfer, lessor's grantees' right to damages for failure to drill an offset well under the common-law offset drilling rule could not be defeated by a failure to give the required notice, as the purpose of the notice is to prevent the lessee's forfeiture of the lease for failure to pay delay rentals to the proper party. Such required notice has nothing to do with implied covenants. U. V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979).

Notice or Demand to Drill Under Common-Law Offset Drilling Rule: Where plaintiffs' well was being drained by an adjoining well in which defendants (plaintiffs' lessees under a gas and oil lease) also had an interest, there was no requirement that plaintiffs must serve written notice or demand to drill an offset well under the common-law offset drilling rule, as those defendants were presumed to know that plaintiffs' well was being drained. However, as to those defendants who did not own an interest in the well causing the plaintiffs' well to drain, the plaintiffs must give notice to drill. U. V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979).

Common-Law Offset Drilling Rule — Implied Covenant Not Altered by Enactment of Statutes: Where the parties entered into a mineral lease for the production of oil underlying plaintiffs property, there was by common law implied in this and every oil and gas lease a covenant on the part of the lessee to protect the premises of his lessor from drainage by an adjacent producing well by drilling an offset well. The implied covenant was not per se eliminated by the enactment of the 1953 oil and gas conservation law, and an oil and gas lessee still has a duty under the implied covenant to protect his premises from drainage by drilling an offset well, if doing so would not be in violation of the statutes or of a valid rule or order of the Oil and Gas Conservation Board. U. V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 379 deleted definition of gas that read: "'Gas' means all natural gases and all other fluid hydrocarbons as produced at the wellhead and not defined as oil in subsection (10) of this section"; deleted definition of oil that read: "'Oil' means crude petroleum oil and other hydrocarbons regardless of gravity which are produced at the wellhead in liquid form by ordinary production methods and which are not the result of condensation of gas before or after it leaves the reservoir"; in definition of waste inserted (b) excluding from definition loss of gas to atmosphere during coal mining; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: In definition of responsible person inserted "disposal well, water source well, drill site", after "hole" inserted "or other area where oil and gas drilling and production operations were conducted", and deleted former (a) and (b) requiring responsible person to be either a corporation, association, partnership, or other business organization with assets in excess of $250,000 or, if the business organization does not have assets in excess of $250,000, to be a natural person with primary ownership in the business organization; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Amendment: Inserted definition of responsible person. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1987 Amendment: Inserted definitions of administrator, class II injection well, fluid, pollution, and state waters; and in definition of gas changed reference to subsection (7) to reference to subsection (10).

1983 Amendment: In definition of gas, substituted reference to "(7)" for "(6)".

Severability Clause: Section 8, Ch. 19, L. 1979, read: "If a part of this act is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of this act is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications."

82-11-111. Powers and duties of board.Compiler's Comments

1989 Amendment: Inserted (6) requiring Board to determine, for purposes of using account, when person cannot be identified or located or does not have sufficient resources to plug well, sump, or hole or when previously abandoned well, sump, or hole is cause of problems and no responsible party can be identified or located or, if identified or located, does not have resources to correct problem. Amendment effective July 1, 1989.

1987 Amendment: In (2)(a) substituted "disposal or injection of water and disposal of oil field wastes" for "disposal of salt water and oil field wastes"; in (2)(b), after "gas wells", inserted "or class II injection wells"; and inserted (5) referring to jurisdiction over class II injection wells.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 503, L. 1987, provided: "It is the intent of the legislature that the board of oil and gas conservation adopt rules necessary to regulate class II injection wells under the provisions of this act. These rules must establish an enforceable program meeting the requirements of the environmental protection agency for state administration of an underground injection control program and ensuring compliance with state water quality laws."

1983 Amendment: In (2)(a), referring to prevention of contamination of or damage to surrounding land or underground strata, inserted all of subsection except "regulating the disposal of salt water and oil field wastes".

Section Not Codified: Section 60-127(2)(e), R.C.M. 1947, a clause requiring the Board to promulgate rules no later than Nov. 1, 1974, was not codified in the MCA. This clause has not been repealed and is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 4, Ch. 288, L. 1953, as amended by sec. 1, Ch. 222, L. 1975.

Case Notes

Common-Law Rule Not Superseded by Authority of Board:

In an action by plaintiffs (lessor's grantees) for damages resulting from defendant lessees' failure under an oil and gas lease to protect the plaintiffs' interests by drilling an offset well, the common-law offset drilling rule, under which plaintiffs seek damages, has not been superseded by the administrative powers of the Board of Oil and Gas Conservation, as the powers of the Board do not include the authority to adjudicate private rights. As held in the case of Pattie v. Oil & Gas Conserv. Comm'n, 145 M 531, 402 P2d 596 (1965), the Legislature gave the Board the duty to consider correlative rights in making orders, but adjudication of those rights must be by civil action in the District Courts. U. V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979).

Under 82-11-201, the Oil and Gas Conservation Commission had authority to consider correlative rights and private interests in making regulatory orders establishing spacing units with respect to fringe owners, but it does not have authority to adjudicate disputes involving those rights. Pattie v. Oil & Gas Conserv. Comm'n, 145 M 531, 402 P2d 596 (1965).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 451 in (1) substituted "15-36-303" for "15-23-601 or 15-36-101". Amendment effective January 1, 1996.

Applicability: Section 55, Ch. 451, L. 1995, provided: "(1) [This act] applies to oil and natural gas produced and sold on or after January 1, 1996.

(2) (a) [Sections 21 through 26] [7-1-2111, 7-7-2101, 7-7-2203, 7-14-2524, 7-14-2525, and 7-16-2327] apply to county fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1996.

(b) [Sections 38 through 46] [20-9-104, 20-9-141, 20-9-161, 20-9-331, 20-9-333, 20-9-501, 20-9-507, 20-10-144, and 20-10-146] apply to school fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1996.

(3) (a) An operator is subject to provisions of Title 15, chapter 23, parts 1 and 6 [part 6 now repealed]; Title 15, chapter 36; Title 15, chapter 38; and Title 82, chapter 11, part 1, as those laws read on December 31, 1995, for all oil and natural gas produced and sold by the operator before January 1, 1996. [On December 31, 1995, Title 15, ch. 36, contained only part 1, now repealed. Part 3 of that chapter became effective January 1, 1996.]

(b) Except as provided in subsection (3)(c), the payment, collection, and distribution of taxes on oil and natural gas production occurring before January 1, 1996, must be made according to the provisions of the laws referred to in subsection (3)(a) governing the tax in effect on the last day of the tax period in which the activity, enterprise, or product being taxed was engaged in, took place, or was produced and sold.

(c) [Section 19] [15-36-325, now repealed] applies to the payment, collection, and distribution of the local government severance tax for oil and natural gas produced and sold after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1996.

(d) All taxes collected pursuant to audit or collected after the date the tax is payable under the laws referred to in subsection (3)(a) must be distributed according to the statute governing allocation of the tax in effect on the date when the tax liability was incurred."

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the board of oil and gas conservation is authorized to approve and certify production decline rates for the purpose of determining incremental production from enhanced recovery projects as provided in this bill.

The department of revenue has adopted rules for determining incremental production from tertiary production based on production decline rates. It is the intent of this legislation that the determination of incremental production is more appropriately a function of the board of oil and gas conservation because the board already has comprehensive statutory authority over oil and gas exploration and development activities in Montana.

The legislature intends that the board of oil and gas conservation shall, in consultation with the department of revenue, adopt rules setting forth the methodology by which the board may approve new or expanded secondary and tertiary recovery projects. The rules must include the method for establishing the rate of decline in production in the existing level of development in a project area. For a secondary or tertiary recovery project for which initial approval is sought, the rules must include the method for establishing the rate of decline in production from existing primary or secondary recovery operations in a proposed project area. In addition, the rules must include the method for determining the level of production from existing wells in a project area in order to establish the level of incremental production that qualifies for the tax incentive rates provided in this bill.

The board of oil and gas conservation is required to establish by rule a fee schedule to defray the expenses associated with reviewing applications for enhanced recovery projects. The fee schedule adopted by the board must take into account the complexity of processing the application.

A statement of intent is also required for this bill because the department of revenue is granted rulemaking authority for determining the allocation of incremental production from enhanced recovery projects to production that is subject to net proceeds taxation and to production that is subject to the local government severance tax. The allocation must be based on the ratio of production from wells drilled before July 1, 1985, in a project area that qualifies for a reduced tax rate on incremental production to production from wells drilled after June 30, 1985, in the project area that qualifies for a reduced tax rate on incremental production."

Report Required: Section 21, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "The board of oil and gas conservation shall report at least once a year to the revenue oversight committee [now revenue and transportation interim committee] regarding the implementation of [this act]. The reports must include but are not limited to information regarding:

- (1) the methods used to determine production decline rates;
- (2) rules adopted to implement [this act];
- (3) the number of enhanced recovery projects completed or anticipated to be completed in a year; and
- (4) the number of horizontal wells completed or anticipated to be completed in a year and the method of recovery from the horizontal wells."

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, was a severability clause.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 24, Ch. 9, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved December 17, 1993] and applies to oil production from new or expanded enhanced recovery projects and to tax years that begin after December 31, 1993."

1987 Amendment: In (2), near end after "tax paid", inserted "under 15-23-607" and at end, after "another", deleted "under 15-23-607".

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (2), after "shall" substituted phrase relating to the Administrative Procedure Act for "by order, without prior notice or hearing"; after "may from time to time" deleted "without prior notice or hearing"; after "increase the amount thereof as" deleted "in its judgment"; and inserted (3) referring to collection of privilege and license tax assessment.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 148 (Ch. 93, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for Senate Bill 148 because it grants the Board of Oil and Gas Conservation authority to fix an assessment against each barrel of crude petroleum originally produced.

The Legislature intends that the amount assessed be sufficient to provide funds to defray the expenses of enforcing the oil and gas laws and the operations of the board. The assessment shall not be so high as to generate revenue in excess of expenses."

Case Notes

State Taxation of Indian Trust Properties Valid — No Repeal by Implication Found: Where the plaintiff Indian tribe sought declaratory and injunctive relief against the levy and collection of certain taxes by the state and several counties on the production of oil and gas owned by the United States in trust for the plaintiff by non-Indian lessees within the boundaries of the plaintiff's reservation, the court held that the provisions of 25 U.S.C. §398 specifically authorized state taxation of oil and gas on tribal lands and that the provisions of the statute had not been impliedly repealed by 25 U.S.C. §396. The sovereign right asserted by the plaintiff to be free from state taxation has been controlled by Congress, and the plaintiff has not shown that there is such a repugnancy between the two federal statutes as to satisfy their burden of proving a congressional intent to repeal the former by enactment of the latter or that there is an ambiguity in the law which should be construed in favor of the plaintiff. *Blackfeet Tribe v. 2004 Annotations to the MCA

82-11-135. Money earmarked for board expenses.Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 522 in first sentence substituted "15-36-331" for "15-36-324". Amendment effective April 26, 2003.

Saving Clause: Section 19, Ch. 522, L. 2003, was a saving clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 21, Ch. 522, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax revenue derived from oil and natural gas production occurring after December 31, 2002."

2001 Amendment: Chapter 306 in first sentence near middle after "money" substituted "distributed to the board under 15-36-324 and collected" for "collected under 15-36-324(8)(b), (9), and (10)(b) and"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 2001.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 6, Ch. 306, L. 2001, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to distributions made after June 30, 2000."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 466 in first sentence substituted "15-36-324(8)(b), (9), (10)(b)" for "15-36-324(7)(b)". Amendment effective April 30, 1997.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 451 in first sentence inserted "under 15-36-324(7)(b) and"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1996.

Applicability: Section 55, Ch. 451, L. 1995, provided: "(1) [This act] applies to oil and natural gas produced and sold on or after January 1, 1996.

(2) (a) [Sections 21 through 26] [7-1-2111, 7-7-2101, 7-7-2203, 7-14-2524, 7-14-2525, and 7-16-2327] apply to county fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1996.

(b) [Sections 38 through 46] [20-9-104, 20-9-141, 20-9-161, 20-9-331, 20-9-501, 20-9-507, 20-10-144, and 20-10-146] apply to school fiscal years beginning after June 30, 1996.

(3) (a) An operator is subject to provisions of Title 15, chapter 23, parts 1 and 6 [now repealed]; Title 15, chapter 36; Title 15, chapter 38; and Title 82, chapter 11, part 1, as those laws read on December 31, 1995, for all oil and natural gas produced and sold by the operator before January 1, 1996. [On December 31, 1995, Title 15, ch. 36, contained only part 1, now repealed. Part 3 of that chapter became effective January 1, 1996.]

(b) Except as provided in subsection (3)(c), the payment, collection, and distribution of taxes on oil and natural gas production occurring before January 1, 1996, must be made according to the provisions of the laws referred to in subsection (3)(a) governing the tax in effect on the last day of the tax period in which the activity, enterprise, or product being taxed was engaged in, took place, or was produced and sold.

(c) [Section 19] [15-36-325, now repealed] applies to the payment, collection, and distribution of the local government severance tax for oil and natural gas produced and sold after December 31, 1994, and before January 1, 1996.

(d) All taxes collected pursuant to audit or collected after the date the tax is payable under the laws referred to in subsection (3)(a) must be distributed according to the statute governing allocation of the tax in effect on the date when the tax liability was incurred."

Effective Date: Section 38, Ch. 15, Sp. L. July 1992, provided that this act is effective on passage and approval. The act became effective pursuant to Article VI, sec. 10, of the Montana Constitution due to the passage of 25 days after delivery without gubernatorial action on the bill. Effective August 14, 1992.

Applicability — Termination: Section 39(6), Ch. 15, Sp. L. July 1992, provided that this section applies to the tax year beginning after December 31, 1992, and ending before January 1, 1994. This section terminates upon receipt of taxes for tax year 1993.

1987 Amendment: In second sentence, before "biennial", deleted "the approval of the department of administration and".

1983 Amendment: Substituted references to state special revenue fund for references to earmarked revenue fund.

82-11-136. Expenditure of funds from bonds for plugging wells.Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 422 deleted second sentence that read: "These funds are statutorily appropriated as provided in 17-7-502." Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 265, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is provided for this bill in order to describe the need for a statutory appropriation and deletion of current reporting requirements. In the absence of a statutory appropriation authorizing the board of oil and gas conservation to accept and expend funds received from bonds for the proper plugging of abandoned or dry wells, the board must receive separate authorization for this purpose each biennium through the appropriation process. As a result, the board is unable to correct problems resulting from improperly plugged wells for up to 2 years or until it receives authorization to expend the necessary funds received from forfeited bonds.

The board of oil and gas conservation is removed from receiving statements of crude petroleum and natural gas produced and marketed in the state in order to avoid duplicative reporting requirements.

The department of revenue is authorized to adopt administrative rules concerning the administration and collection of the privilege and license tax, including the time for payment and the period covered by payment. The administration and collection of the tax should be similar to the administration and collection of the oil and gas severance tax."

Case Notes

Injunction Not Exclusive Board Remedy in Nonemergency Situations: The Board of Oil and Gas Conservation ordered that Hawley's oil production be terminated because of Hawley's failure to bring wells into substantial compliance. Hawley filed suit against the Board to enjoin enforcement of the Board's order, alleging that absent an emergency action under 82-11-151, the Board had no statutory authority to order termination of production and that the Board's sole remedy was to petition the District Court for an injunction under subsection (1)(a) of this section. The Supreme Court found that Hawley's contention that subsection (1)(a) of this section establishes the Board's exclusive remedy for nonemergency situations rang hollow in light of the provisions of subsection (1)(b) of this section, which clearly grant the Board express authority to issue an order requiring compliance with a prior Board order. Further, under 82-11-149, pursuance of a civil penalty does not bar enforcement by injunction "or other appropriate remedy". Thus, injunction through judicial enforcement is not the exclusive remedy available to the Board in nonemergency situations, and the District Court's vacation of the Board's termination order on those grounds was reversible error. Hawley v. Bd. of Oil & Gas Conserv., 2000 MT 2, 297 M 467, 993 P2d 677, 57 St. Rep. 5 (2000).

1997 Amendment: Chapter 34 deleted former (3)(b) that read: "(b) all fees received by the board from owners of producing wells pursuant to 82-11-162"; in (4), near end of first and second sentences after "restore the well", inserted "sump, hole"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 24, 1997.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 349 at beginning of (2) deleted "On July 1, 1991, and" and after "each" deleted "succeeding"; deleted (6) that read: "(6) The board shall, as provided in 5-11-210, submit to the legislature a complete financial report on the oil and gas production damage mitigation account, including a description of all expenditures made since the preceding report"; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 112 near beginning of (6) inserted reference to 5-11-210 and after "legislature" deleted "at the beginning of each regular session". Amendment effective March 20, 1991.

Chapter 734 in (4), in first sentence after "well", inserted "and either reclaiming or restoring, or both, a drill site or other drilling or producing area damaged by oil and gas operations", after "hole" inserted "drill site, or drilling or producing area", and after "person" substituted "fails or refuses to properly plug, reclaim, or restore the well, drill site, or drilling or producing area within a reasonable time after demand by the board" for "does not have sufficient funds to pay the costs" and near end of second sentence, after "plug", inserted "reclaim, or restore", after "well" inserted "drill site, or drilling or producing area", and after "damage" substituted "for which he is responsible" for "caused by the well"; and made minor changes in style.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 530, L. 1989, provided: "It is the intent of the legislature to create an oil and gas production damage mitigation account to be administered by the board of oil and gas conservation for the purpose of properly plugging and abandoning oil and gas wells when a responsible person cannot be found or when the responsible person does not have sufficient financial resources. The board shall adopt rules to help it define "sufficient financial resources", shall require a responsible person to pay the costs of plugging and abandoning to the extent of his available resources, and shall pursue full cost recovery for funds spent from the account through the procedures provided in [section 9] [82-11-164] or other lawful means. The board may adopt rules to administer instituting a lien on the person's personal and real property to cover the cost of plugging and abandoning.

The legislature intends that the board use the account for reclamation related to land, water, or wildlife resources disturbed by abandoned oil and gas wells, injection wells, sumps, and seismographic shot holes.

It is also the intent to remove producing wells completed after June 30, 1989, from drilling bonds and to limit the liability of the bond or its equivalent to the period between issuance of the bond and either proper plugging and abandoning of a dry hole or completion of a producing well. The board shall adopt forms for the producer to indicate that a well has been completed and shall, upon receipt of the information and payment required under [section 7] [82-11-162, now repealed], release and absolve the owner of the well from the bond required under 82-11-123.

ARM 36.22.703 Horizontal wells.

Case Notes

Coordination of Habendum and Pugh Clauses in Oil and Gas Lease — Shut-In Gas Well Considered Producing Well for Lease Purposes — Lease Extended on Section With Producing Well, Terminated on Undeveloped Sections for Lack of Timely Rental Payments: Plaintiffs oil and gas leases had habendum clauses, which provided that the primary leases would be extended as long as oil or gas was produced or drilling operations continued on any of the leased property, and Pugh clauses, which provided that production would not serve to extend the primary term of a lease unless the lessee paid an annual per-acre rental fee prior to the end of the primary term. By the end of the primary term, plaintiff had only one shut-in well developed on the leasehold. Depending on the habendum clauses, plaintiff concluded that there was not a producing well on the leasehold, so the Pugh clauses did not take effect and rental payments were not required. Depending on the Pugh clauses, defendants concluded that because there were no producing wells on the leasehold and because the rental fee on the shut-in well was 2 days late, all of plaintiff's leases were canceled. In reconciling the clauses, the District Court correctly found that: (1) the Pugh clauses required that rental payments be paid on or before the expiration of the primary term in order to extend leases on undeveloped sections; and (2) because time is of the essence in oil and gas leases and plaintiff did not pay timely rental, the leases expired by their own terms on all sections except the section containing the shut-in well, which was considered a producing well, and that lease would continue under the habendum clause as long as plaintiff used reasonable diligence in marketing the gas. Sandtana, Inc. v. Wallin Ranch Co., 2003 MT 329, 318 M 369, 80 P3d 1224 (2003).

Oil Lease Construed to Make All Provisions Effective: Texaco argued that the one productive well it had drilled was sufficient to extend the lease on all lands covered by the lease for as long as the well produced. The Supreme Court held that the general duration clause in the lease relied on by Texaco was modified by a subsequent provision that limited the lease extension to the 320-acre spacing unit on which the producing well was located. Fed. Land Bank of Spokane v. Texaco, Inc., 250 M 471, 820 P2d 1269, 48 St. Rep. 998 (1991).

Common-Law Offset Drilling Rule—Implied Covenant Not Altered by Enactment of Statutes: Where the parties entered into a mineral lease for the production of oil underlying plaintiff's property, there was by common law implied in this and every oil and gas lease a covenant on the part of the lessee to protect the premises of his lessor from drainage by an adjacent producing well by drilling an offset well. The implied covenant was not per se eliminated by the enactment of the 1953 oil and gas conservation law, and an oil and gas lessee still has a duty under the implied covenant to protect his premises from drainage by drilling an offset well, if doing so would not be in violation of the statutes or of a valid rule or order of the Oil and Gas Conservation Board. U. V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979).

Common-Law Rule Not Superseded by Authority of Board: In an action by plaintiffs (lessor's grantees) for damages resulting from defendant lessees' failure under an oil and gas lease to protect the plaintiffs' interests by drilling an offset well, the common-law offset drilling rule, under which plaintiffs seek damages, has not been superseded by the administrative powers of the Board of Oil and Gas Conservation, as the powers of the Board do not include the authority to adjudicate private rights. As held in the case of Pattie v. Oil & Gas Conserv. Comm'n, 145 M 531, 402 P2d 596 (1965), the Legislature gave the Board the duty to consider correlative rights in making orders, but adjudication of those rights must be by civil action in the District Courts. U. V. Indus., Inc. v. Danielson, 184 M 203, 602 P2d 571 (1979).

Limiting Production of an Exception Location Well: Under 82-11-201, authorizing the Commission to grant exceptions to field spacing rules, the Commission must hear evidence on the issue of injury to correlative rights of adjoining landowners and determine if there are grounds for exercise of its authority to limit production of an exception location well, even in the absence of a showing of waste. Chevron Oil Co. v. Oil & Gas Conserv. Comm'n, 150 M 351, 435 P2d 781 (1968).

Adjudication of Private Rights by Board of Oil and Gas Conservation: Section 82-11-201(3) (now (4)) was sufficiently broad to permit the Oil and Gas Conservation Commission to consider private rights in making orders. Pattie v. Oil & Gas Conserv. Comm'n, 145 M 531, 402 P2d 596 (1965).

Granting of Exception Allowed: Under 82-11-201(3) (now (4)), where property lies on the projected edge of a petroleum reservoir, an exception may be granted if requiring the well to be drilled at the authorized location on the spacing units would be inequitable or unreasonable. Pattie v. Oil & Gas Conserv. Comm'n, 145 M 531, 402 P2d 596 (1965).

Compiler's Comments

1993 Amendment: Chapter 313 near middle of (1)(a), after "within a", inserted "temporary or permanent"; at beginning of first sentence of (1)(b) deleted "In the absence of voluntary pooling within the spacing unit", near middle, before "spacing", inserted "permanent", and at end inserted "of the permanent spacing unit and the allocation of production if the applicant has made an unsuccessful, good faith attempt to voluntarily pool the interests within the permanent spacing unit", inserted second sentence requiring that the applicant own an interest in the oil or gas, and in third, fourth, and fifth sentences, before "spacing", inserted "permanent"; deleted former first sentence of (2)(a) that read: "The pooling order shall provide for the drilling and operating of a well on the spacing unit and for the payment of the cost thereof, which cost may include a reasonable charge for supervision, handling, and storage", near beginning of first sentence, after "costs of", substituted "development or other operations referred to in subsection (1)" for "drilling and operating the well" and near middle, before "spacing", inserted "permanent", inserted second sentence providing for drilling and payment of costs when a well has not been drilled prior to hearing on the application, in third sentence, before "order", inserted "subsequent" and after "order" inserted "after notice and hearing", and in last sentence, before "spacing", inserted "permanent"; substituted (2)(b) regarding costs included in the order for former language that read: "If an owner refuses to pay his share of the costs of drilling and operating the well, the order must include as cost"; inserted (2)(e) providing for payment of costs when an owner of an interest in a temporary spacing unit refuses to pay drilling and operating costs; inserted (3) clarifying when an owner is presumed to have refused to pay costs; and made minor changes in style.

1985 Amendment: In (2)(a), near end of second sentence, inserted "and excluding the royalty provided for in subsection (2)(c) of this section"; inserted (2)(b) providing for percentage of costs to be assessed against refusing owner; inserted (2)(c) referring to refusing owner's landowner royalty interest; and inserted (2)(d) referring to accounting due from operator to refusing owner.

Unitization of Reservoir Containing Multilease Lands: Under 82-11-202, an application by an oil and gas lessee to the Oil and Gas Conservation Commission for unitization of a reservoir did not constitute breach of a one-well pooling provision in the lease since such unitization of an extensive reservoir containing multilease lands, multiproducing wells, multipools, and multispaceing or drilling units was different from a lease provision relating to pooling. Armstrong v. High Crest Oil, Inc., 164 M 187, 520 P2d 1081 (1974).

Creation of Unit an Exercise of Police Power: Oil and gas conservation laws and rules have the effect of modifying provisions of existing leases, and statutory and administrative action creating a gas unit is an exercise of police power, and the fact that in some instances an oil and gas lease may have been procured prior to legislative or administrative pronouncement is immaterial. Armstrong v. High Crest Oil, Inc., 164 M 187, 520 P2d 1081 (1974).

Indian Lands: Under 82-11-202, the matter in controversy in a suit by Indian tribes for an injunction to restrain the Oil and Gas Conservation Commission from enforcing an order "pooling" tribes' lands with lands of another to form a "spacing unit" was not the lands or royalties but the regulation and right to be free from it. Since the tribes failed to show the jurisdictional amount in controversy, the suit was not properly brought in Federal Court. Yoder v. Assiniboine & Sioux Tribes of Fort Peck Indian Reservation, 339 F2d 360 (1964).

Case Notes

Unitization of Entire Reservoir: Application by oil and gas lessee to the Commission for unitization of a reservoir did not constitute a breach of one-well pooling provision in lease; unitization of an entire reservoir under this section is entirely different from one-well pooling pursuant to 82-11-202. *Armstrong v. Interstate Compact Extended: The original interstate compact to conserve oil and gas, which was to expire September 1, 1937, has been extended from time to time by the various states with the approval of Congress. It had been extended to 1947 at the time Montana ratified the compact. The latest extension was granted on May 2, 1979, by Senate Joint Resolution 72, which provides for the approval by Congress effective from January 1, 1979, "until Congress withdraws such consent".

All the states mentioned in Article I, except California, have ratified the compact. Additional states which have ratified the compact are Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 54 in second sentence in (3) substituted "within 60 days of the licensee's anniversary date" for "before March 1 of each year in which the vehicle tank, meter, or measuring device is in use". Amendment effective March 15, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 366 in (2) inserted second sentence regarding payment of fees by credit card and discounting of fees; in (3), at end of first sentence, substituted "the anniversary date established by rule by the board of review established in 30-16-302" for "December 31 of each year"; and in (4)(b)(i), after "expire on", substituted "the anniversary date of that year, as provided in subsection (3)" for "December 31 of that year".

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 366, L. 1997, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 1] [30-16-104] grants rulemaking authority to the board of review established in 30-16-302 for the purpose of implementing a one-stop business licensing pilot project required by the 54th Legislature."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 498 substituted (2) requiring Department to adopt rules establishing licensing fees based upon the measuring devices used by dealers and requiring fees to be deposited in special revenue account for administering and enforcing this part for former (2) that read: "The fee for this license is determined as follows and depends upon the number of devices utilized by the dealer:

- (a) each gasoline pump, diesel pump, or fuel oil pump measuring device—$7;
- (b) each petroleum vehicle tank meter or bulk petroleum meter of 2 inches (5.08 centimeters) and under—$20;
- (c) each bulk petroleum meter over 2 inches (5.08 centimeters)—$25;
- (d) each liquefied petroleum liquid meter—$30;
- (e) each vapor meter—$4;
- (f) each petroleum and liquefied petroleum vehicle tank up to and including 2,000 gallons (7,570 liters)—$25;
- (g) each petroleum and liquefied petroleum vehicle tank over 2,000 gallons (7,570 liters)—$25 plus $5 for each additional 1,000 gallons (3,785 liters)"; at end of (4)(b)(ii) deleted "prescribed in subsection (2)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1994.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 498, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to provide the department of commerce the authority to establish by rule license fees for petroleum dealers and liquefied petroleum dealers. The fees must be set in an amount necessary to cover costs of the department to administer and enforce the provisions of Title 82, chapter 15, part 1."

Implementation: Section 2, Ch. 498, L. 1993, provided: "The department of commerce may adopt rules implementing [this act] to be in place on January 1, 1994." Effective April 24, 1993.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section (3)(1), Ch. 498, L. 1993, provided: "[Section 1] [82-15-105] is effective January 1, 1994, and applies to license fees beginning after December 31, 1993."

1991 Amendment: In (2)(a) increased fee from $5 to $7; in (2)(b) increased fee from $15 to $20; in (2)(c) increased fee from $20 to $25; in (2)(d) increased fee from $25 to $30; in (2)(e) increased fee from $3 to $4; in (2)(f) increased fee from $20 to $25; in (2)(g) increased fee from $20 plus $4 to $25 plus $5; in first sentence of (3), after "annual", deleted "and nontransferable as to person or location"; inserted (4) clarifying status of licenses upon change of ownership of measuring devices; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1992.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 56, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] is effective January 1, 1992, and applies to licenses and fees for years beginning after December 31, 1991."

1983 Amendment: Increased the fee in (2)(a) from $3 to $5, in (2)(b) from $10 to $15, in (2)(c) from $15 to $20, and in (2)(d) from $15 to $25.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 436 inserted definition of tribal government; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 18 in definition of cost of works, in (e) after "legal", substituted "services" for "expenses"; near end of definition of renewable resource grant and loan program state special revenue account substituted reference to renewable resource grant and loan program for reference to water development program; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 418 deleted definition of Board that read: "'Board" means the board of natural resources and conservation provided for in 2-15-3302"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 478 inserted definitions of renewable resource grant and loan program state special revenue account and renewable resource loan debt service fund; deleted water development account as defined term and applied former definition to renewable resource loan proceeds account and substituted "renewable resource grant and loan program" for "water development program"; deleted definition of water development debt service fund that read: "'Water development debt service fund" means a separate fund created by 85-1-603 within the debt service fund type of the state treasury to be used as provided in 85-1-619"; in definition of water development project inserted (b) providing that for purposes of renewable resource grant and loan program, water development activities must be included; deleted definition of water development state special revenue account that read: "'Water development state special revenue account" means a separate account created by 85-1-604 within the state special revenue fund of the state treasury for the purposes of the water development program as set forth in 85-1-604"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

1989 Amendment: In definition of water development account, after "recipients", inserted "and to purchase liens and operate property, as provided in 85-1-615"; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 11, 1989.

1987 Amendment: Inserted definitions of administrative costs and cost of operation and maintenance; in (4), after "cost of construction", inserted "including any rehabilitation or alteration of the project"; and in (13) changed reference to subsection (6) to subsection (8).

1983 Amendment: In definition of water development account, near beginning before "account" deleted "clearance", and substituted "state special revenue fund" for "bond proceeds and insurance clearance fund"; and in definition of water development state special revenue account substituted "state special revenue account" for "earmarked account" and "state special revenue fund" for "earmarked revenue fund"; in definition of water development debt service fund substituted references to debt service fund for references to sinking account and sinking fund.

1981 Amendment: Inserted (5) defining private person; and inserted (7) through (12) defining public benefits, water development clearance account, water development activity, water development earmarked account, water development project, and water development sinking account.

85-1-111. Public ways.Case Notes

Public Right to Use Beaverhead River for Recreational Purposes: Following the decision in Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984), the Supreme Court held that: (1) the Beaverhead River is navigable for recreational purposes and the public has a right to use its bed and banks up to the ordinary high-water mark with limited right to portage across private property in order to bypass barriers in the water; (2) determination of navigability for title is not necessary; (3) the public does not have the right to trespass over private property in order to reach the state-owned waters; and (4) plaintiff's action did not constitute inverse condemnation because public use of waters, rather than title, was determined. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Hildreth, 211 M 29, 684 P2d 1088, 41 St. Rep. 1192 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Navigability for Title Purposes — Federal Test — Dearborn River Navigable: Federal law controlled the issue of whether the Dearborn River was, at the time Montana became a state navigable for the purpose of determining title to its bed. Under federal law, rivers are navigable in law if they are navigable in fact, and they are navigable in fact if they were used or capable of being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce over which trade and travel were or could be conducted in the customary modes of trade and travel on the water at the time of the state's admission to the Union. Navigability in fact can be determined by using the log-floating test. That test was satisfied by evidence that in 1887, 2 years before Montana became a state, the Dearborn was used to float about 100,000 railroad ties and that in 1888 or 1889, one or two log drives a year were floated down the river, one of them containing 700,000 board feet. Title to the riverbed was thus in the federal government when Montana became a state in 1889 and was transferred to the State upon its admission to the Union. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Public Recreational Use of Dearborn River — No Inverse Condemnation: Landowner along Dearborn River was sued by parties seeking a determination of the public's right to use the river for recreational uses. Landowner counterclaimed for inverse condemnation, basing the counterclaim on his claim to ownership of the riverbed. The Supreme Court held that the question of title to the bed was irrelevant to determining navigability for use by the public; that landowner had no claim to the waters; that since there was no claim to the waters, nothing was taken and thus there was no ground for an inverse condemnation claim; and that, consequently, the District Court did not err in dismissing the counterclaim. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Public Recreational Use Rights on Dearborn River — Limits: Navigability for public use is governed by state law and is separate from the question of navigability under federal law for title purposes. The question is whether waters owned by the State under Art. IX, sec. 3(3), Mont. Const., are susceptible to recreational use by the public. The capability of use of the waters for recreational purposes determines the availability of the waters for recreational use by the public. Whether or not a private party owns the bed beneath the waters is irrelevant. The constitution and the Public Trust Doctrine bar a private party from interfering with the public's right to use of the surface of the waters owned by the State, and any surface waters that are capable of recreational use may be so used by the public without regard to streambed ownership or navigability for nonrecreational purposes. The public's recreational use right extends to the point of the high-water marks. The public does not have the right to cross over private property to reach waters upon which they have a recreational use right, though they may portage around barriers in the water in the least intrusive way possible, avoiding damage to any private property holder's rights. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Federal Commerce Clause Navigability Immaterial: In action for determination of the public's right to use the Dearborn River, whether Montana has adopted the log-floating test of commercial navigability and whether the Dearborn is navigable under the federal commercial use test were immaterial because the question was one of recreational use or navigability, not commercial navigability. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note:

Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Subject Matter Jurisdiction Found: Landowner along the Dearborn River claimed the District Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over action for determination of the public's right to use the river, basing his claim on the presumption that he held title to the riverbed and that the State had no power to strip him of that title under the guise of determining navigability of the waters over the riverbed. The claim lacked merit because the State holds title to the riverbed and the water flowing over it, so that there was no question of the District Court's subject matter jurisdiction. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

(Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Navigability for Title Purposes — Summary Judgment — Dearborn River: The District Court properly granted the coalition for stream access and two state departments summary judgment on the issue of navigability of the Dearborn River in 1889 for title purposes. The affidavits and depositions of plaintiffs' two competent historians were admissible because the historians were qualified experts who provided evidence of the history of the river, their affidavits and depositions disclosed circumstantial guarantees of trustworthiness, and the facts and data they relied on were of a type reasonably relied on by experts in their field; the facts and data did not themselves have to be admissible. The affidavits of defendant landowner's witnesses were worthless, were not admissible, and did not create any genuine issue of material fact concerning the navigability of the river at the time Montana became a state in 1889. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). Title to and Public Recreation on Dearborn River — Ex Post Facto, Contract Clause, and Irrevocable Privileged Considerations: The Supreme Court held that the State, not the landowner along the Dearborn River, held title to the bed of the river under the federal test of navigability for purposes of determining title to the riverbed. The court also held that landowner had no right to exclude the public from recreational use of the waters of the Dearborn. Because of these holdings, landowner's questions relating to ex post facto laws, violation of the contract clause of the constitution, and irrevocable rights and privileges were not germane to the case. *Mont. Attorney General's Opinions

Access to Rivers and Streams Via County Road Right-of-Way and Bridges: Given that the public has the right to use public highways in any manner and for any purpose consistent with or reasonably incidental to public travel, this right includes the use of public rights-of-way created 2004 Annotations to the MCA by county roads to gain access to rivers and streams. Using a county road right-of-way as an access point to a river or stream right-of-way is consistent with and reasonably incidental to the public's right to travel on county roads. Further, a bridge and its abutments, as part of a public highway, offer the same access to rivers and streams for recreational use as the highway to which they are attached. However, the public's right of access is not unlimited and is subject to the following limitations: (1) the recreating public must stay within the county road and bridge right-of-way, which is assumed to be 60 feet unless otherwise stated by petition or dedication; (2) access may be limited by the reasonable exercise of a governing body's police power to control the use of roads for purposes such as safety and parking; and (3) use of a public highway may be limited by the manner in which it was created, such as a road created by prescriptive easement, which is limited both in size and usage to the original use during the prescriptive period and may include access for hunting, fishing, and recreation. 48 A.G. Federal Court Without Jurisdiction of Action Against Board — Under Section 89-101, R.C.M. 1947: The Montana Water Conservation Board, precursor to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, is a mere arm of the state; hence, an action by a nonresident corporation against the Board and its members to enjoin interference with corporation's water rights was in effect an action against the state, so that federal District Court was without jurisdiction to entertain it. Compiler's Comments

1985 Amendment: In first sentence, after "distribution for", substituted "any beneficial use" for "industrial and other uses" and at end deleted "except as provided in subsection (2)"; and deleted former (2) that read: "Until a final decree has been issued pursuant to 85-2-234 concerning the waters in a federal reservoir, the department may sell, rent, or distribute such water only after a permit has been issued to an applicant for purchase, rent, or distribution of water in accordance with part 3 of this chapter."

Temporary Changes Made Permanent: Section 7, Ch. 706, L. 1983, provided that the amendments made by Ch. 706 were to terminate on July 1, 1985. Section 23, Ch. 573, L. 1985, amended sec. 7, Ch. 706, L. 1983, to provide that only one section (Ch. 706, sec. 4), that established the Select Committee on Water Marketing, would terminate on July 1, 1985. Thus the amendments to this section made by Ch. 706, L. 1983 (set forth below in the 1983 amendment note), are now permanent, except insofar as the section was further amended in 1985.

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), after "acquire water" inserted "or water storage"; after "federal government from" substituted "any federal reservoir" for "the Fort Peck Reservoir"; at end of first sentence of (1), after "industrial" deleted "use" and inserted "and other uses"; at end of (1) added "except as provided in subsection (2)"; and inserted (2) authorizing the Department to sell, rent, or distribute water in a federal reservoir until a final decree is issued only after an applicant has been issued a permit for purchase, rent, or distribution of water.

Affirmative Duty to Maintain Bridges: The State Water Conservation Board (precursor to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) built bridges over its irrigation ditch where the ditch intersected city streets. Concomitant with the duty to construct bridges so as to restore streets to their former usefulness is a duty to maintain the bridges. Although this section is silent regarding the duty to maintain, such a duty can be implied from reading all the sections of the Water Conservation Act (section 89-101, et seq., R.C.M. 1947, now partially contained in Title 85, ch. 1) together. *State ex rel. - (xi) Vigilante canal; and
- (xii) West Bench canal.

(b) The department may dispose of a canal project by sale, transfer to a water users' association, abandonment, or other legal conveyance. If there is an existing water users' association on the canal project, the provisions of 85-6-109 must be complied with in the disposal of the canal project. The department shall give preference to existing water users' associations operating and maintaining the canal project.

(c) Upon the sale or transfer of a canal project, the department shall either cancel or write off from the accounts receivable carried on the books of the department a sum not to exceed any previous 1-year cost of operating and maintaining the canal project or make a payment not to exceed any previous 1-year cost of operating and maintaining the canal project. For a canal project not disposed of by June 30, 1995, the water users of the canal project are responsible for the department's administrative costs and the actual costs of operation and maintenance of the canal project"; in (6) in first sentence in two places before "project" deleted "canal"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 19, 1999.

1995 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 301 at beginning of first sentence of (5) deleted "Subject to the approval of the board under 85-1-202" and after "abandon" inserted "lease or rent" and at beginning of second sentence inserted exception clause; in (6)(b) deleted reference to subsection (5) of 85-6-109; and made minor changes in style. Case Notes

Issuance of Revenue Bonds in Aid of Emergency Relief Act: Issuance of revenue bonds by the Water Conservation Board, formed pursuant to prior law, to aid in the construction of a dam and reservoir under sec. 1, Ch. 85, L. 1937 (omitted), to the extent of agreeing to take up relief warrants issued by the county sponsoring the project with the proceeds, the bonds to be secured by revenue obtained from the members of a water users' association using the stored water, is not a lending of the credit of the state or any of its subdivisions to the association, within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const., or a violation of Art. XIII, sec. 4, 1889 Mont. Const., prohibiting the state from assuming the debt of a county or municipal corporation. Kraus v. Riley, 107 M 116, 80 P2d 864 (1938).

Power of Board to Issue Revenue Bonds to Be Retired by Funds Obtained From Water Users: Contention that the Water Conservation Board, formed pursuant to prior law, was without power to issue revenue bonds to be retired by funds obtained from water users was erroneous since such power is expressly conferred by sections 89-109, R.C.M. 1947 (85-1-301), and 89-111, R.C.M. 1947 (85-1-307). Kraus v. Riley, 107 M 116, 80 P2d 864 (1938).

Bonds Issued Not State Indebtedness — Under 1889 Constitution: Issuance of bonds by the Water Conservation Board, formed pursuant to prior law, does not create a debt of the state in excess of the constitutional limit prescribed by Art. XIII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (revised by Art. VIII, sec. 8, 1972 Mont. Const.), since section 89-109, R.C.M. 1947 (85-1-302), provides that all bonds shall contain a statement that they do not constitute a state debt or liability and the bonds are made payable only from revenue of the works to be constructed. *State ex rel. Part 5Power Generation at Projects*Part Compiler's Comments

1981 Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 503, L. 1981 (SB 229), provided: "WHEREAS, the availability of energy from traditional sources is diminishing; and

WHEREAS, the demand for energy from the state's citizens is increasing, due to population growth and economic expansion; and

WHEREAS, because of newly developing technology and increasing energy costs, small-scale hydroelectric power generation is becoming an economically feasible additional source of energy; and

WHEREAS, the state of Montana currently owns and controls many water projects which may have potential capacity for the small-scale generation of hydroelectric energy; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the people of Montana to utilize Montana's water resources to the fullest extent possible."

Part Case Notes

Private Appropriations — Control by State Required: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. Section 2 of Ch. 705, L. 1983, authorized the creation of state debt for development of hydroelectric power at three state-owned dams. Under Title 85, ch. 1, part 5, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation and Board of Natural Resources and Conservation (functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) are mandated to make the completed projects available for lease to utilities, electric cooperatives, or a state corporation proposing to use a substantial portion of the generated power. Plaintiff contended that this scheme violated Art. V, sec. 11, Mont. Const., by benefiting the public utilities, electric cooperatives, or a private corporation. The court stated that as long as the provisions relating to the expenditure of the funds derived from the proceeds of the bonds are under the control of the State, the constitutional mandate is satisfied. In this case, the proceeds of the coal severance tax bonds will be expended by a state agency under the control of the State for construction of hydroelectric projects. The appropriations therefore are made for an agency of the State. The fact that the State may afterwards lease the projects to a private association or corporation is no more offensive constitutionally than is the power of the State to lease its state-held lands to private parties. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).

Delegation of Legislative Authority — Contingent Authorization Allowed: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. Plaintiff contended that Ch. 705, L. 1983, granted the Board of Natural Resources and Conservation (BNRC) (now abolished) the power and authority to determine the feasibility of various water conservation projects and make recommendations on the projects to the Board of Examiners. Plaintiff contended the delegation was unconstitutional in that it failed to set forth adequate standards or to place limits on the discretion of the BNRC. The court found standards imposed with reasonable clarity in 85-1-501 and 85-1-502. Under these statutes, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) is required to study the economic and environmental feasibility of constructing and operating power generating facilities on water projects. Once DNRC has reached its determination, it is the BNRC's duty to determine feasibility and public interest. The court found the legislative enactments complete and sufficiently clear, definite, and certain to enable the agencies to know their respective rights and obligations. The court found that determinations of economic and environmental feasibility are more appropriate in the administrative than the legislative sector. The court found nothing improper in the Legislature's making its authorizations contingent upon administrative decisions properly made in the executive side of state government. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).

Part 6

Water Development Program

Part Compiler's Comments

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 478, L. 1993, provided: "This bill is introduced as a result of a legislative request to combine the water development and renewable resource development programs. These grant and loan programs have been administered as essentially one program for the past 4 bienniums. The renewable resource grant and loan program keeps the critical elements of both the water development and renewable resource development programs and does not expand either eligible projects or eligible applicants.

The long-range planning subcommittee of the appropriations and finance and claims committees stated its intent to establish minimum funding levels for these grant programs in House Bill No. 6 (Chapter 551, Laws of 1991) and House Bill No. 8 (Chapter 552, Laws of 1991) passed by the 1991 legislature. Over the past several bienniums grant funding has decreased. At the same time, revenues allocated to the water development, renewable resource development, and reclamation and development accounts have increased. Appropriations to natural resource agencies have made up the difference and have increased at a rate surpassing the growth in resource indemnity trust (RIT) interest income. This bill establishes minimum funding levels for the renewable resource grant and loan program, the reclamation and development grants program, and the water storage account.

In order to reflect the combining of the water development and renewable resource development programs, the allocation of interest earnings from the RIT is changed. Currently, 30% and 8%, respectively, of the RIT interest earnings are allocated to water development and the renewable resource development state special revenue accounts. This bill would eliminate these accounts. In their place, the renewable resource grant and loan program state special revenue account would be established and 38% of the RIT interest earnings would be allocated to this account.

Resource indemnity tax proceeds are allocated to the renewable resource grant and loan program and the reclamation and development grants state special revenue accounts. This will ensure funding for the operation of state natural resource agencies."

Severability: Section 18, Ch. 613, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Study of Recreational User Fees — 1992 Report: Section 5, Ch. 659, L. 1991, provided for a study by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, in cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, of the feasibility of charging recreational beneficiaries of water storage projects fees to assist in the repayment of a portion of those project costs. A written report must be submitted to the Water Policy Committee by July 1, 1992.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 491, L. 1989, provided: "This bill would allow the department of natural resources and conservation to use funds in the water development special revenue account and water development general obligation bond proceeds to protect loans made under the water development private loan program.

The program has made approximately 55 loans totalling [sic] $4 million to private individuals, primarily for irrigation projects. In the event that any lien holder or the department would have to foreclose on any of these loans, the department would need to be in a position to protect its security interests. These loans are primarily secured with real estate mortgages. In those instances where the department is not in first lien position and a foreclosure is necessary, the department would need funds to buy out the first lien holder to gain control of the property. The property would then be resold to recoup the funds used to buy out the first lien as well as the department's initial loan funds.

This bill would also allow the department to use these funds to operate a project if a loan should go into default. If the loan recipient should walk away from a project, the department may need to temporarily operate the project to secure its interests until foreclosure proceedings are complete. An example would be a hydropower project that requires continual attention to guard against breakdown or damage.

This bill is intended to give the department access to funds that would be used to protect its security interests when other loan collection efforts have not worked. It is the intent of the legislature that every effort be made to avoid forced loan collections. It is further the intent of the legislature that any property acquired in the manner provided for in HB 367 be resold as expeditiously as possible to recover funds used under 85-1-65 [sic, 85-1-605] and funds loaned to the borrower."

Part Case Notes

Special Legislation — Permissible When General Act Cannot Be Provided: Plaintiff filed a complaint for declaratory judgment in the Supreme Court seeking to determine the validity of several acts of the Legislature allowing the issuance of state revenue bonds. The bonds would be financed by coal severance taxes to provide proceeds for development of state water resources. Plaintiff contended that the appropriation of funds for favorable loans to a score of small municipalities, water districts, and portions of counties constituted special legislation and was unconstitutional. The court noted that Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const., is not absolutely prohibitory. The court noted that the Legislature can not draft a general act of statewide application providing for the issuance and sale of revenue bonds and at the same time keep a handle on the way the proceeds are to be spent or loaned except through its direct authorization of projects. The court held that the passage of Ch. 705, L. 1983, was an implementation of Title 85, ch. 1, part 6, and excluded no class of governmental entity. Therefore, those enactments were "general" legislation within the meaning of Art. V, sec. 12, Mont. Const. The court also held sections 5 and 6 of Ch. 705, L. 1983, were valid in any event because even though local in effect, these were provisions for which a general act could not be provided. Grossman v. St., 209 M 427, 682 P2d 1319, 41 St. Rep. 804 (1984).

The initiative was declared invalid February 24, 1999.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 478 in (1), (2), and (3) substituted "renewable resource bonds" for "water development bonds"; in (1), at end of first sentence, substituted "renewable resource grant and loan program" for "water development loan program"; in (2), near beginning, substituted "department" for "board of natural resources and conservation"; near middle of (3) substituted "renewable resource loan debt service" for "water development debt service"; in (5) substituted "renewable resource loan proceeds account" for "water development account"; near beginning of (6) substituted "renewable resource loan proceeds account" for "water development account", in two places, before "debt service", substituted "renewable resource loan" for "water development", near end of first sentence substituted "renewable resource loan loss reserve fund" for "water development loan loss reserve fund", and near end of second sentence, after "board", inserted "of examiners"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

1989 Amendment: In (6) inserted reference to the water development loan loss reserve fund. Amendment effective April 11, 1989.

1986 Amendment: In (6) at end of first sentence substituted "debt service fund pursuant to 85-1-603" for "state special revenue account pursuant to 85-1-604".

1985 Amendment: At end of (2) inserted reference to 17-5-731; in (4) inserted reference to notes after each occurrence of "bonds"; near beginning of (6) inserted "or notes" after "proceeds of bonds".

1983 Amendments — Composite: House Bill 533 (Ch. 298, L. 1983) was entitled in part: "AN ACT TO GENERALLY REVISE LANGUAGE IN CODE SECTIONS DEALING WITH THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS IN ORDER THAT REFERENCES TO THE TREASURY FUND STRUCTURE CONFORM TO CHAPTER 28, LAWS OF 1981." Section 42 of Ch. 298, at end of first sentence of 85-1-617(6) after "deposited in the", substituted "water development debt service fund" for "water development sinking account". Chapter 149, in the same subsection of 85-1-617, substituted "water development earmarked account pursuant to 85-1-604" for "water development sinking account and must be applied to the payment, redemption premiums, and interest on the particular bond issue from whose proceeds the loan was made". The Code Commissioner determined that the change made by Ch. 149 took precedence over that made by Ch. 298 because Ch. 149 made a substantive change whereas Ch. 298 substituted one term for its equivalent in the former treasury fund structure. Under the authority of sec. 55 of Ch. 298, the Code Commissioner then changed "water development earmarked account" to "water development state special revenue account" as that account was renamed by sec. 36 of Ch. 298.

Further changes made by Ch. 298 are as follows: in (3) and (6), substituted "water development debt service fund" for "water development sinking account"; in (5), substituted "water development account within the state special revenue fund" for "water development clearance account within the bond proceeds and insurance clearance fund"; and in (6), substituted "water development account" for "water development clearance account".

special revenue account. This bill is introduced as a result of and should be interpreted consistently with the 1990 state water plan section on water storage. It is the legislature's intent that money may not be expended from the water storage state special revenue account during fiscal years 1992 and 1993. Rather, money deposited in the account is to accumulate for expenditure during fiscal years 1994 and 1995. Deposits to the account are to be placed in short-term investments and accrue interest, which is also to be deposited in the water storage state special revenue account.

Rules are to be adopted and implemented that govern the process of application, administrative application review and ranking, and conditions for the disbursal of grants and loans as soon as possible after this bill is enacted. Applications for grants and loans from the account are to be accepted by May 1992. These application and administrative recommendations will be considered during the 1993 legislative session, and that legislature may appropriate money accumulated in the account for expenditure during fiscal years 1994 and 1995.

It is also the legislature's intent that rules governing the allocation of money from the water storage state special revenue account do not limit the amount that may be provided to any one applicant. Also, private entities, as well as public entities, are to be eligible for grants and loans from the account."

This bill is introduced as a result of and should be interpreted consistently with the 1990 state water plan section on water storage. It is the legislature's intent that money may not be expended from the water storage state special revenue account during fiscal years 1992 and 1993. Rather, money deposited in the account is to accumulate for expenditure during fiscal years 1994 and 1995. Deposits to the account are to be placed in short-term investments and accrue interest, which is also to be deposited in the water storage state special revenue account.

Rules are to be adopted and implemented that govern the process of application, administrative application review and ranking, and conditions for the disbursal of grants and loans as soon as possible after this bill is enacted. Applications for grants and loans from the account are to be accepted by May 1992. These application and administrative recommendations will be considered during the 1993 legislative session, and that legislature may appropriate money accumulated in the account for expenditure during fiscal years 1994 and 1995.

It is also the legislature's intent that rules governing the allocation of money from the water storage state special revenue account do not limit the amount that may be provided to any one applicant. Also, private entities, as well as public entities, are to be eligible for grants and loans from the account."

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 497, L. 1997, provided: "WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit Nos. 66459-76L, Ciotti; 64988-g76L, Starner; and Application for Change of Appropriation Water Right No. G15152-s761, Pope, which was decided August 22, 1996, held that an applicant for a permit or change of use authorization on the Flathead Indian Reservation may not as a matter of law meet the applicant's burden of proof to establish that the proposed use will not interfere unreasonably with planned uses or developments for which water has been reserved until the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes' federal reserved water rights are quantified; and

WHEREAS, in 1973, Montana enacted comprehensive legislation referred to as the Montana Water Use Act of 1973, codified in Title 85, chapter 2, to implement Article IX, section 3(4), of the Montana Constitution, which requires that the Legislature provide for the administration, control, and regulation of water rights and establish a system of centralized records of all water rights, and to implement Article IX making the water of the state subject to appropriation for beneficial use by its citizens; and

WHEREAS, Title 85, chapter 2, as amended, provides for the comprehensive adjudication of water rights and the continued development of Montana's water resources through a permit and change authorization process; and

WHEREAS, historically in Montana, water has been developed, water use rights acquired, and changes in water use completed in the absence of the adjudication of water rights in a source of supply; and

WHEREAS, since July 1, 1973, it has been the intent of the Legislature that provisional permits and change authorizations be issued pursuant to statutory standards in the absence of a completed adjudication in a source of supply; and

WHEREAS, the dissent filed with the Montana Supreme Court decision raises a concern that the majority decision may be interpreted to apply statewide, but that interpretation does not reflect the intent of the Legislature to allow for the continued wise and efficient use of Montana's water resources and Montana's growing economy as required under Title 85, chapter 2."

Chapter Case Notes

Water Right Held Through Pre-1973 Mesne Conveyances — Summary Judgment Incorrectly Granted — Abandonment of Right Factually Dependent: Duncan, who lived on a tract of land in Madison County, used water from a spring located on property (the large parcel) now owned separately from the parcel (the small parcel) lived on by Duncan. In 1950, Duncan conveyed all the property in what is now the large and small parcels to Baker. In 1951, Baker divided the property, conveying the large parcel and all appurtenances to Halse and reserving the small parcel for herself. Baker made no express reservation of water rights with the reserved property, and the deed to Halse conveying the large parcel made no express grant of water rights. For the next 10 years, Baker made no use of the house located on the small parcel. In 1961, Baker conveyed the small parcel to the Hunts, expressly conveying water rights on the property. In 1963, Halse filed a declaration of vested ground water rights for the "total flow of all springs" located on the large parcel. Fosseco, who acquired the large parcel from Halse, conveyed it, through mesne conveyances, to M.S. Consulting. The Hunts conveyed the small parcel, through mesne conveyances, to the Axtells. All uses of the water were for livestock and domestic use. In 1993, the Axtells filed a notice of water rights with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. M.S. Consulting subsequently served the Axtells with notice that their water rights would be cut off in 45 days, and the Axtells brought an action to enjoin the discontinuance of their water supply. The District Court granted summary judgment for the Axtells, and M.S. Consulting appealed. The Supreme Court reviewed the background of the prior appropriation law in Montana, noting that because the current statutes recognize existing water rights, the law before the 1973 statutes were enacted is still the law with regard to water rights acquired before 1973. The Supreme Court reviewed the pre-1973 law and concluded that the water rights appurtenant to all the property passed to Baker but that there was a factual issue whether, as a result of Baker's nonuse of the property and its water rights for over 10 years, Baker had abandoned the water rights conveyed to her by Duncan. If the abandonment occurred, there was no reservation of conveyance and no right to use of the water after that period of nonuse. The issue of abandonment, the Supreme Court noted, depended in turn upon several other issues, such as whether Baker intended to abandon her water right. The Supreme Court also agreed with M.S. Consulting that several other issues of fact raised by the company may also exist, although it noted that these other issues were only material if the District Court ruled a particular way on the question of abandonment. Because there were genuine issues of material fact, the Supreme Court held that the District Court erred in granting summary judgment to the Axtells. Axtell v. M.S. Consulting, 1998 MT 64, 288 M 150, 955 P2d 1362, 55 St. Rep. 276 (1998).

EPA Regulations Granting "Treatment as State" Status to Develop Water Standards Within Flathead Indian Reservation Upheld: In 1987, Congress added section 518(e) to the Clean Water Act, which authorized the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to permit Indian tribes "to be treated as a state" (TAS) for purposes of promulgating water quality standards. In 1992, the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes (tribes) applied for TAS status for all surface waters within the Flathead Indian Reservation. Montana opposed the EPA's grant of TAS status to the tribes because it would extend to lands and surface water within reservation boundaries owned in fee by nontribal members. After the EPA Director, upon determining that the tribes possessed inherent authority over nonmembers on fee land, approved the tribes' TAS application, Montana filed suit, arguing that the EPA's regulations granting TAS status to all sources of pollutant emissions within the boundaries of the Flathead Indian Reservation permitted the tribes to exercise broader authority over nonmembers than the inherent tribal powers recognized as necessary to self-governance. The District Court granted summary judgment to the EPA and tribes. In affirming the District Court decision, the Ninth Circuit Court, citing its previous holdings in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544 (1981), and Strate v. A-1 Contractors, 520 US 438, 137 L Ed 2d 661, 117 S Ct 1404 (1997), ruled that based upon the finding that the activities of the nonmembers posed such a serious and substantial threat to tribal health and welfare, the EPA's decision to grant the tribes TAS authority was valid and reflected the appropriate application of inherent tribal regulatory authority over nonconsenting nonmembers. Mont. v. U.S. Env'tl. Protection Agency, 137 F3d 1135 (9th Cir. 1998), certiorari denied, 142 L Ed 2d 227, 119 S Ct 275 (1998).

Abandonment of Water Right by Nonuse Distinguished From Abandonment of Easement or Ditch Right: After hearing, the Water Court determined that three water rights held by appellants Pitsch had been abandoned because of nonuse over approximately 40 years. The Supreme Court held that the Water Court did not err in holding that the case was not governed by E.E. Eggebrecht, Inc. v. Waters, 217 M 291, 704 P2d 422 (1985), and that there was no conflict between Eggebrecht and 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215 (1983). Eggebrecht concerns the abandonment of easements by grant, more analogous to a ditch right by grant than a water right, while 79 Ranch concerns abandonment of a water right. There is no reason why Montana law on abandonment of those interests should be identical. In re Adjudication of Musselshell River Rights, 255 M 43, 840 P2d 577, 49 St. Rep. 866 (1992).

State Water Court — Jurisdiction to Adjudicate Indian Reserved Water Rights: In an original proceeding to determine jurisdiction over controversies involving federal water rights of the Water Court over Indian tribes and water flowing through state reservations, the Supreme Court held that Article I of the Montana Constitution does not bar state jurisdiction to adjudicate

Indian reserved water rights. With the 1952 McCarran amendment, the U.S. Congress diminished the scope of absolute federal jurisdiction over controversies involving federal water rights by allowing state courts concurrent jurisdiction to adjudicate federal water rights. In Colo. River Water Conserv. District v. U.S., 424 US 800 (1976), the U.S. Supreme Court held that the McCarran amendment applied to Indian water rights. The state Legislature's enactment of the Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) pursuant to Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., constitutes a valid and binding consent of the people of Montana to Congress' grant of state jurisdiction over Indian reserved water rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

Water Use Act — Adjudication of Federal and Indian Reserved Water Rights:

The Montana Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) is adequate on its face to adjudicate federal reserved water rights. Although federal reserved rights differ from state appropriative rights in origin, determination of priority date, and quantification standards, the Water Use Act recognizes the distinction between federal reserved rights and state-created appropriative rights. As the Act permits each different class of water rights to be treated differently, the Act is adequate to allow for adjudication of federal reserved rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

The Montana Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) is adequate on its face to adjudicate Indian reserved water rights. Although state appropriative water rights and Indian reserved water rights differ in origin and definition, the Water Use Act, as amended, permits the Water Court to treat Indian reserved water rights differently from state appropriative rights. The Water Use Act does not state explicitly that the Water Court shall apply federal law in adjudicating Indian reserved rights; however, state courts are required to follow federal law with regard to those water rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

Forty Years of Nonuse as Raising Rebuttable Presumption of Intent to Abandon: In litigation to establish plaintiff's and defendant's respective priorities to water appropriated from Big Coulee Creek, the evidence showed that neither had used previously appropriated water for a period of at least 40 years. Thus, the District Court did not err in holding that under section 89-802, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the appropriation rights of both parties had been abandoned for lack of use of the water. While abandonment of a water right is a question of fact, nonuse for a period of at least 40 years raises, in effect, a rebuttable presumption of abandonment. A claim that the predecessors of the parties could not afford to use the water by irrigating their land did not excuse the failure to use the water or rebut the presumption of abandonment since economics could excuse nearly every otherwise abandoned water right. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983), followed in In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992), in which nonuse for 23-plus years was sufficient to constitute a presumption of abandonment despite the fact that the water right was carried as an asset on the county's books during the period of nonuse. See also Axtell v. M.S. Consulting, 1998 MT 64, 288 M 150, 955 P2d 1362, 55 St. Rep. 276 (1998).

Lack of Reasonable Diligence Shown in Three-Year and Three-Month Delay in Diversion: Where the evidence, in litigation between the plaintiff and defendant to establish their relative rights to appropriated water, showed that the defendant's predecessor in interest filed a notice of appropriation for 30 cfs of water on May 30, 1973, but failed to divert the water to a sprinkler irrigation system until 3 years and 3 months later, the District Court did not err in holding that the defendant's predecessor failed to exercise reasonable diligence in diversion of the water. Under the rationale of Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation v. Intake Water Co., 171 M 416, 558 P2d 1110 (1976), the defendant was required to show there had been an ongoing effort to divert the water. The lack of parts for the sprinkler system notwithstanding, the record showed no ongoing effort to proceed to completion of the sprinkler system and the diversion. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983).

Priority of Senior Main Stem Water Rights Over Junior Tributary Water Rights: Appellant owns water rights in Clear Creek dating to 1910. Petitioners have water rights in Rock Creek dating to 1896. Clear Creek is a tributary of Rock Creek. In 1970, appellant obtained a court order directing the Rock Creek Water Commissioner to "carry out" the Clear Creek water rights of appellant. Following the District Court order, the Water Commissioner honored in full the requests of appellant for water without regard to any priority in the relationship of the creeks' water rights. As a result, at times of water shortage, senior Rock Creek decreed waters are cut off. In 1977, petitioners filed this action to rescind the 1970 order and to direct the Water Commissioner to subject the Clear Creek water rights to the priorities of Rock Creek water rights. The District Court ruled that the 1970 court order, applied by the Water Commissioner to fulfill junior appropriations ahead of prior decreed rights, was improper. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's order and further stated that the order did not violate due process. The Supreme Court reasoned that the only rights affected by the District Court order were the rights of the parties before the court. Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983).

Chapter's Application to Rights Perfected Prior to Its Effective Date: Except where it indicates a contrary intent, this chapter applies to water rights perfected prior to the effective date of this chapter; and failure to comply with the terms of this chapter does not render a conveyance or reservation void but suspends ability to use the right until the statutorily mandated permission is granted by the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. Castillo v. Kunnemann, 197 M 190, 642 P2d 1019, 39 St. Rep. 460 (1982), modifying, on rehearing, 38 St. Rep. 1618 (1981).

ARM 36.16.101 Policy and purpose of water reservation rules.

Case Notes

Issuance of Permits for Ground Water on Indian Reservations Precluded Until Tribes' Federally Reserved Water Rights Defined and Quantified: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) granted a permit for the use of ground water on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Despite prior holdings in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073 (1996), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244 (1999), that the state does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights, DNRC contended that this case was distinguishable because the tribes' federally reserved water right concerning ground water is legally uncertain. However, the only federal authority cited by either party, Tweedy v. Tex. Co., 286 F. Supp. 383 (D.C. Mont. 1968), supported the conclusion that there is no distinction between surface water and ground water for purposes of determining what water rights are reserved because those rights are necessary to the purpose of an Indian reservation. Further, neither of the prior state cases excluded ground water. The tribes contended that as a sovereign nation, they should not be required to defend their water rights in piecemeal fashion before a hostile forum and that pursuant to 85-2-311 and the prior case law, the ground water permit was illegal. The Supreme Court agreed with the tribes and vacated the permit, finding no reason to limit the scope of the prior holdings by excluding ground water from the tribes' federally reserved water rights in this case. Two statutory methods for comprehensively adjudicating Indian reserved water rights already exist—a general inter sese adjudication or negotiations with the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission. Therefore, the tribes should not be required to defend their water rights by participating in the DNRC hearings process. Thus, DNRC cannot determine whether water is available on the Flathead Reservation, whether surface water or ground water, because DNRC cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' preeminent water rights are defined and quantified. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Stults, 2002 MT 280, 312 M 420, 59 P3d 1093 (2002).

Quantification of Tribal Water Rights Required — 1997 Amendment Unconstitutional: In an effort to avoid the result created by In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996), the 1997 Legislature passed Senate Bill No. 97, which substantively eliminated the former protection of Indian reserved water rights provided by 85-2-311. The state conceded that the protection of existing water rights in Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., includes water rights reserved for Indian reservations and contended that those rights were not affected by Senate Bill No. 97, but rather that those rights would be considered in that part of the analysis requiring that water be legally available. The state also pointed out the provisional nature of any water use permit and alleged that there were some uses that would not diminish instream flow and that use permits could thus be issued without affecting reserved Indian water rights, regardless of the quantification of those rights. However, under State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), it was found that Indian reserved water rights are owned by the Indians, and because that ownership interest exists under federal law and does not depend on the use of the water, the Supreme Court was not persuaded that the state's permitting process might allow uses of Indian reserved water that in the long term might not diminish instream flows. The provisional nature of permits was not determinative either because use of water that may have been reserved by federal law for the tribes was no less impermissible simply because it was temporary and subject to termination following final quantification of the tribes' rights by adjudication or negotiation. Under the 1997 amendments, permits are still limited to water that is "legally available", but that phrase is not defined. Construing the phrase in a manner that sustains its constitutional validity, the Supreme Court interpreted "legally available" to mean that there is water available that, among other things, has not been federally reserved for Indian tribes. Therefore, as in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, the state cannot determine whether water is legally available on the Flathead Reservation because it cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' rights are quantified by a compact negotiation under 85-2-702 or by a general inter sese water rights adjudication. To allow the issuance of water use permits on the reservation prior to quantification of the tribes' pervasive reserved right would require use of water that might belong to the tribes, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., which protects existing water rights whether adjudicated or not. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244, 56 St. Rep. 1356 (1999).

No Implied Severance of Water From School Trust Lands: Neither 77-6-115, nor the principles of the Water Use Act set forth in 85-2-101, nor the prior appropriation doctrine gives rise to an implied severance of water from land in the school trust land leases or estops the state from claiming title to the water rights on school trust land. Dept. of State Lands v. Pettibone, 216 M 361, 702 P2d 948, 42 St. Rep. 869 (1985).

Navigability for Title Purposes — Federal Test — Dearborn River Navigable: Federal law controlled the issue of whether the Dearborn River was, at the time Montana became a state, navigable for the purpose of determining title to its bed. Under federal law, rivers are navigable in law if they are navigable in fact, and they are navigable in fact if they were used or capable of being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce over which trade and travel were or could be conducted in the customary modes of trade and travel on the water at the time of the state's admission to the Union. Navigability in fact can be determined by using the log-floating test. That test was satisfied by evidence that in 1887, 2 years before Montana became a state, the Dearborn was used to float about 100,000 railroad ties and that in 1888 or 1889, one or two log drives a year were floated down the river, one of them containing 700,000 board feet. Title to the riverbed was thus in the federal government when Montana became a state in 1889 and was transferred to the State upon its admission to the Union. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Public Recreational Use Rights on Dearborn River — Limits: Navigability for public use is governed by state law and is separate from the question of navigability under federal law for title purposes. The question is whether waters owned by the State under Art. IX, sec. 3(3), Mont. Const., are susceptible to recreational use by the public. The capability of use of the waters for recreational purposes determines the availability of the waters for recreational use by the public. Whether or not a private party owns the bed beneath the waters is irrelevant. The constitution and the Public Trust Doctrine bar a private party from interfering with the public's right to use of the surface of the waters owned by the State, and any surface waters that are capable of recreational use may be so used by the public without regard to streambed ownership or navigability for nonrecreational purposes. The public's recreational use right extends to the point of the high-water marks. The public does not have the right to cross over private property to reach waters upon which they have a recreational use right, though they may portage around barriers in the water in the least intrusive way possible, avoiding damage to any private property holder's rights. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapters 429, 556, and 599, L. 1985, pertained to recreational use of waterways and related issues.)

Public Use — Irrigation — Eminent Domain: Pursuant to Title 69, ch. 4, part 4, an agricultural landowner may request a utility to relocate an overhead utility line for the purpose of installing an improved irrigation system. The use of water in the irrigation of farmland is a public use for which the right of eminent domain will lie. McTaggart v. Mont. Power Co., 184 M 329, 602 P2d 992, 36 St. Rep. 2079 (1979).

"All Existing Rights": The right to acquire water rights is a valuable right, and its value often depends on its priority; hence, to deprive plaintiff of his priority by dismissal because petition was filed under former law is to deprive him of an existing and valuable water right. Gen. Agriculture Corp. v. Moore, 166 M 510, 534 P2d 859 (1975).

Beneficial Impoundment: Counterclaim against petition of irrigation district for additional appropriation of water was properly denied where evidence was uncontradicted that water was going to waste and that impoundment would be beneficial. Sunset Irrigation District v. Ailport, 166 M 11, 531 P2d 1349 (1974).

Private Beneficial Use a Public Use: Because Art. III, sec. 15, Mont. Const., declares a private beneficial use of water to be a public use, individuals who have put water to a beneficial use should not have their rights arbitrarily diluted, under claim of sovereign rights or otherwise. Paradise Rainbow v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 148 M 412, 421 P2d 717 (1966).

2001 Amendment: Chapter 78 inserted definition of developed spring; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 20, 2001.

Extension of Termination Date: Sections 5 through 7, Ch. 123, L. 1999, amended sec. 11, Ch. 658, L. 1989, and secs. 4 and 7, Ch. 740, L. 1991, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 658, L. 1989, and Ch. 740, L. 1991, to June 30, 2009. Effective March 19, 1999. Section 14, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided a termination date of June 30, 2005, for one version of this section; however, the 1995 termination date was not extended by Ch. 123, L. 1999.

1997 Amendment: (All three versions) Chapter 497 in definition of existing right inserted "or "existing water right"" and inserted second sentence concerning water rights reserved under federal law and water rights created under state law; inserted definition of state water reservation; in definition of watercourse, near end, substituted "constructed" for "manmade"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 22, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 418 deleted definition of Board that read: "'Board" means the board of natural resources and conservation provided for in 2-15-3302"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

(Temporary version) Chapter 487 in definition of appropriate inserted (d) to include the maintenance and enhancement of streamflows in the Upper Clark Fork basin; in definition of beneficial use inserted (d) to include the maintenance and enhancement of streamflows in the upper Clark Fork basin; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 14, 1995, and terminates June 30, 2005.

(Version effective July 1, 1999) In definition of appropriate inserted (c) to include the maintenance and enhancement of streamflows in the Upper Clark Fork basin; in definition of beneficial use inserted (c) to include the maintenance and enhancement of streamflows in the Upper Clark Fork basin; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999, and terminates June 30, 2005.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 11, Ch. 487, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all applications for changes in appropriation rights, permits, and water reservations received by the department of natural resources and conservation after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 14, 1995.

1993 Amendments: Chapter 370 inserted definitions of correct and complete and substantial credible information; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Chapter 629 inserted definition of late claim. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution provides that all existing rights to the use of any waters for any useful or beneficial purpose are recognized and confirmed; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution requires the Legislature to provide for the administration, control, and regulation of water rights and to establish a system of centralized records for such rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature established a procedure for the general adjudication of existing rights to the use of water and provided in section 85-2-226, MCA, that the failure to file a claim of existing right on or before the deadline established under section 85-2-221, MCA, would establish a conclusive abandonment of the right; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Adjudication of the Water Rights Within the Yellowstone River, 253 Mont. 167, 832 P.2d 1210 (1992), has determined that the failure to file a statement of claim to an existing right to the use of water on or before April 30, 1982, resulted in the forfeiture of that right; and

WHEREAS, it has come to the attention of the Legislature that the forfeiture of water rights for failure to timely file a claim has in some instances caused hardship, and the Legislature accordingly desires to provide water rights claimants with one more opportunity to file a water rights claim in the general adjudication; and

WHEREAS, in so doing, the Legislature recognizes that the adjudication process will not be completed for many years but that a substantial amount of progress has already occurred in the adjudication, specifically in the area of water rights compacts with Indian tribes and the federal government and in decrees and stipulations involving individual claimants, and thus the Legislature believes that it is necessary to ensure that parties who have been recognized as having filed claims on or before April 30, 1982, and holders of federal reserved water rights are not adversely affected by the inclusion of new parties in the adjudication by subjecting the right to file those claims in remission to certain terms and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide protection for timely filed claimants from incurring additional costs or from being adversely affected by justifiable reliance on the presumption of abandonment; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide a conclusive adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature recognizes that according a privilege to file additional statements of claim presents a potential for abuse by those who may attempt to refile previously adjudicated claims, and the Legislature thus believes that the courts should deal harshly with any abuses by such measures as, without limitation, the imposition of sanctions under Rule 11, Montana Rules of Civil Procedure; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature determines that the deadline for filing water right claims as provided in this bill appropriately balances the interests at stake in the adjudication.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds it is appropriate to make the following amendments to sections 85-2-102, 85-2-211 [now repealed], 85-2-213, 85-2-221, 85-2-225, 85-2-226, 85-2-234, 85-2-237, and 85-2-306, MCA, in order to provide for the acceptance of late claims to the use of water under the conditions set forth in this bill. Additionally, the Legislature directs the Water Policy Committee, in coordination with the Department of Justice, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, and the Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, to conduct an interim study regarding certain late claim issues."

Severability: Section 11, Ch. 370, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

Saving Clause: Section 11, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] does not affect proceedings that were begun before [passage and approval of this act] [approved May 11, 1993] in which relief for damages have been sought based upon the diversion, impoundment, or withdrawal of water without a water right established under state law."

Severability — Partial Nonseverability: Section 12, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) If a part of [this act] is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of [this act] is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications."

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon [section 4], which amends 85-2-221, and that if one part of [section 4], except subsection (3)(f)(ii), is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts of [this act] are invalid."

1991 Amendments — Name Change: Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1991, directed the Code Commissioner to change the name of the Fish and Game Commission to the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission wherever the name appears in the MCA. Accordingly, the name was changed in this section as directed.

Chapter 308 inserted definition of salvage.

Chapter 543 inserted definition of watercourse.

Chapter 805 in definition of ground water, after "water", substituted "that is beneath the ground surface" for "beneath the land surface or beneath the bed of a stream, lake, reservoir, or other body of surface water, and which is not part of that surface water". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 308, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to provide guidance to the department of natural resources and conservation concerning the adoption of rules to allow the appropriation, use, and change of use of salvaged water. The legislature directs the department of natural resources and conservation to adopt rules that promote the conservation and efficient use of water by implementing the provisions of this bill."

Saving Clause: Section 5, Ch. 308, L. 1991, was a saving clause.

1989 Amendment: In definition of appropriate inserted (c) regarding water leasing; in definition of beneficial use inserted (c) regarding water use pursuant to lease; inserted definition of Commission; and made minor changes in phraseology and form. Amendment effective May 11, 1989, and terminates June 30, 1993.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2)(b) expanding the definition of beneficial use to include water leasing; inserted definition of change in appropriation right; and deleted former (12) that read: "'Slurry" means a mixture of water and insoluble material."

Case Notes

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

Post-1973 Evidence Unpersuasive as to Adjudication of Existing Water Right: The purpose of statewide water rights adjudication is to adjudicate those rights as they existed on July 1, 1973, the effective date of the Montana Water Use Act. Therefore, the Water Court did not err in refusing to consider evidence pertaining to a water right claimant's actions taken after 1973 as showing a lack of intent to abandon the water right. In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992).

"Beneficial Use": No matter how a water right is expressed in the decrees of the Water Court, that expression of amount is not the final determining factor. Beneficial use is the basis, the measure, and the limit of all rights to the use of water. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

"Water" — Diffuse Surface Water: In light of the common-law rules pertaining to appropriation of diffuse surface water and the 1977 amendment of the definition of "water" so as to include diffuse surface water, it was reasonable for the appellant to believe that diffuse surface water was not subject to the provisions of the Water Use Act in 1975. State ex rel. Wilson v. Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation, 199 M 189, 648 P2d 766, 39 St. Rep. 1294 (1982).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Existing Right to Appropriate Distinguished From Valid Appropriation: When a corporation posted and filed notices of appropriation as required by section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), it acquired an "existing right" to appropriate water. However, this "existing right" was not synonymous with a valid appropriation and would not ripen into such an appropriation until the remaining requirements under section 89-811, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), were met. Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation v. Intake Water Co., 171 M 416, 558 P2d 1110 (1976).

Slough — Natural Watercourse: A slough naturally followed a channel which was cut down in gravel and rock, and was fed by natural springs, seepage, surface drainage and wastewater from a canal. Such a slough constituted a natural watercourse and was subject to appropriation. Meine v. Ferris, 126 M 210, 247 P2d 195 (1952).

Diffused Surface Water Defined — Not Subject to Appropriation: The essential characteristics of diffused surface waters are that their flows are short-lived and that the waters are spread over the ground and not concentrated or confined in flows of legal watercourses or bodies of water conforming to the definition of lakes or ponds. Diffused surface waters in a gulch on land above where a natural channel has developed are not subject to appropriation. Doney v. Beatty, 124 M 41, 220 P2d 77 (1950).

"Watercourse" Defined:

A "watercourse", within the meaning of the water right laws, from which an appropriation for purposes of irrigation may be made, may consist of a well-defined channel into which water from a slough fed by irrigation of adjoining lands through seepage or through a ditch constructed by the owners of such lands for draining purposes finds its way, and which water through years of so flowing has acquired a permanent character as the natural drainage of the particular watershed. W. Side Ditch Co. v. Bennett, 106 M 422, 78 P2d 78 (1938). (See 1991 amendment.)

Where waters flowing in a channel with regularity from year to year were made to do so through the instrumentality of man and have through years of so flowing acquired a permanent character as the natural drainage of the watershed or where they come from springs formed from seepage or percolation or surface water collecting in a canyon or from wells accidentally developed while drilling for oil, etc., they constitute a watercourse. Popham v. Holloron, 84 M 442, 275 P 1099 (1929), distinguished in McGowan v. U.S., 206 F. Supp. 439 (D.C. Mont. 1962). (See 1991 amendment.)

Beneficial Use — Swimming Pool or Fishpond: Diversion of water to maintain a swimming pool or fishpond may have been for a beneficial use and hence the basis of a valid appropriation. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Appropriation on Private Land: An appropriation of water is not confined to waters flowing in streams upon public land but may be made from a stream flowing through privately owned land by invoking the aid of eminent domain proceedings, if necessary. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

Beneficial Use — Immediate Use Unnecessary: While the appropriation must be for some useful or beneficial purposes, the use to which the water is to be applied need not be immediate but may be prospective or contemplated. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909); Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Beneficial Use — Intent of Claimant: This section requires that, at the time of taking the initial steps, the claimant must have an intention to apply the water to a useful or beneficial purpose. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909); Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900); Power v. Switzer, 21 M 523, 55 P 32 (1898).

Beneficial Use — Irrigation: Where a successor in interest of an appropriator of water greatly increased the amount of grass for pasture by irrigation, such use of the water was a useful and beneficial one within the meaning of the statute. Sayre v. Johnson, 33 M 15, 81 P 389 (1905).

Case Notes

New Trial to Lift Injunction on Water Use Properly Denied: As a result of defendant's negligent operation of an irrigation ditch and the risk associated with high volume flow in the ditch, the District Court enjoined defendant from a flow of more than 400 miner's inches through the ditch until defendant could prove that the ditch could safely transport more. Defendant sought a new trial to lift the injunction on grounds that new evidence stemming from the successful operation of the ditch since the trial could not have been presented earlier. The motion for a new trial was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. Although the evidence was new, the fact remained that varying flows when combined with other variables could still produce damaging results, so the evidence was insufficient to warrant a new trial. Graveley Simmental Ranch Co. v. Quigley, 2003 MT 34, 314 M 226, 65 P3d 225 (2003).

Water Right Limited to Carrying Capacity of Irrigation Ditch: Through the years, Quigley was granted three water rights for irrigation from Ophir Creek for 25, 100, and 800 miner's inches, for a total of 925 inches. However, Quigley's own 1928 survey and a 1930 District Court decision established that the carrying capacity of the irrigation ditch was 800 miner's inches, and that amount was confirmed by the District Court in the present case. Quigley appealed, claiming the right to transport the full 925 inches through the ditch at one time. The Supreme Court disagreed. Because it is elementary that a ditch cannot carry more water than its smallest dimensions allow, it was held that although Quigley had the right to divert 925 miner's inches, that right was subject to the ditch description stating that the ditch had a carrying capacity of 800 miner's inches. Since 1930, the description was unchallenged and relied on by Quigley to his benefit, and under res judicata, Quigley could not now complain of its inaccuracy. Graveley Simmental Ranch Co. v. Quigley, 2003 MT 34, 314 M 226, 65 P3d 225 (2003). See also Quigley v. McIntosh, 88 M 103, 290 P 266 (1930), and Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

"Beneficial Use": No matter how a water right is expressed in the decrees of the Water Court, that expression of amount is not the final determining factor. Beneficial use is the basis, the measure, and the limit of all rights to the use of water. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Expression of Water Rights in Volume Rather than Flow Rate — Not Unconstitutional: Even though almost every irrigation water right prior to the 1973 water use law was expressed in flow rate, the requirement of 85-2-234(5)(b) that the final decree state "the amount of water, rate, and volume, included in the right" is not unconstitutional under Article IX, sec. 3(1) of the Montana Constitution. The amount, rate, and volume are at all times subject to the requirement of beneficial use. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Supreme Court Original Jurisdiction Over Declaratory Action Concerning Statewide Water Adjudication: The Supreme Court had power to determine an action for declaratory judgment involving the constitutionality of the requirement in 85-2-234 that final water decrees state "the amount of water, rate, and volume, included in the right". The issue affects all rights in the statewide adjudication process. Determination of the issue by the Supreme Court: (1) will provide guidance to the water court; (2) is in the interests of judicial economy; and (3) would serve the public policy of the state by expediting the determination of existing water rights. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Measurement of Water in Reservoir: Devices for measuring the water in a storage reservoir should be such that at a glance anyone may tell the exact number of acre-feet therein at any time, thus obviating the necessity of calling in engineers or others to measure it. The details of operation, presenting a practical or engineering problem rather than a judicial one, should properly be left to the parties interested; and if the court's intervention or assistance is required in that regard, a motion for modification of the decree should suffice. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

One Miner's Inch Per Acre — Not Rule of Thumb: The trial court awarded a 3-acre-foot water right to be used over a 4-month irrigation season. This was the equivalent of one-half miner's inch continuous flow. Although the courts of this state have generally observed the rule of thumb of 1 miner's inch per acre, there is no law in Montana to this effect. The better rule is that the requirements of the lands in a particular locality for adaptable crops should fix the amount of a water right. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

Water Right Decrees: For many years the courts in water right decrees have followed the custom of expressing water rights in terms of flow per unit of time without stating during how many hours or days the water could be taken or defining the volume of water which could be used. This may not be taken as an adjudication that appropriations were of an absolutely uninterrupted flow, thereby removing the established limitation of the appropriator's right to water actually taken and beneficially applied. Nor should this fact be interpreted as a right to expand appropriations to the detriment of subsequent appropriators. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Measurement of Water for Irrigation: In the absence of a statute regulating the amount of water reasonably necessary for irrigation, the rule has generally been observed by the court to allow 1 inch an acre in fixing the amount required for economical use unless the evidence discloses that a greater or less amount is required. Further, the system of irrigation in common use in the locality, if reasonable and proper under existing conditions, is to be taken as the standard. However, an appropriator cannot be compelled to divert the water according to the most scientific method known. Worden v. Alexander, 108 M 208, 90 P2d 160 (1939).

85-2-105. Environmental quality council — water policy duties.Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 275 inserted (2)(c) requiring environmental quality council to assist with interagency coordination related to Montana's water resources; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 275, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana's river and stream corridors and associated riparian areas play a critical role in supporting beneficial uses of water, agricultural production, fish and wildlife values, recreation opportunities, and related economic and aesthetic benefits; and

WHEREAS, Montana's river and stream corridors are experiencing tremendous pressure from increased use and development; and

WHEREAS, owners of land along Montana's rivers and streams, water users, and recreationists recognize the importance of maintaining and conserving these corridors and would increase their efforts to do so if they had information on relevant and affordable voluntary best management practices (BMPs); and

WHEREAS, although there are a variety of efforts at the federal, state, local, and watershed levels to address river and stream corridor issues, there is a continuing need to pool scarce resources, increase effectiveness through improved coordination of policies, data, and implementation, and provide a greater opportunity for innovative solutions such as voluntary BMPs; and

WHEREAS, Montana is fortunate to have a successful BMP and streamside management policy model that was developed by Montana's forestry community, with the assistance of the Environmental Quality Council, that can serve as an example for other river and streamside land uses; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Legislature's bipartisan Environmental Quality Council has a 28-year history of helping Montanans constructively solve complex and divisive natural resource issues and has the capability and the unique perspective to facilitate the compilation and dissemination of BMP information for river and streamside land uses and to assist with interagency coordination."

Streamside Corridor and Riparian Management: Section 2, Ch. 275, L. 1999, provided: "Streamside corridor and riparian management — coordination and dissemination of best management practice information. Consistent with its authorities set forth in Titles 75 and 85, the environmental quality council, in cooperation with affected and interested stakeholders, shall:

(1) review and summarize state, federal, and local policies and programs related to streamside corridor and riparian management in Montana and identify overlapping or conflicting goals or implementation mechanisms;

(2) coordinate with existing groups to evaluate existing streamside and riparian best management practices and existing educational and informational programs regarding the dissemination of information regarding voluntary BMPs, to ensure coordination in water quality protection efforts and consistency with 75-5-702 and 75-5-703; and

(3) coordinate with others to develop cost-effective mechanisms to compile and disseminate the conclusions from activities conducted pursuant to subsections (1) and (2) and in doing so, maximize the likely implementation of the practices."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 45 in (3)(d), at end, substituted "water information system maintained by the natural resource information system under 90-15-305" for "water resources data management system maintained by the department under 85-2-112".

1995 Amendments: Chapter 418 in (2)(b), after "department", deleted "of natural resources and conservation"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Chapter 545 in (1) deleted former first four sentences that read: "There is a permanent water policy committee of the legislature. The committee consists of eight members. The senate committee on committees and the speaker of the house of representatives shall each appoint four members on a bipartisan basis. The committee shall elect its chairman and vice-chairman"; at beginning of first sentence of (1), in (2), in introductory clause, and in (3), in introductory clause, substituted "environmental quality council" for "committee"; substituted (4) regarding staff assistance for former language that read: "The environmental quality council shall provide staff assistance to the committee. The committee may contract with experts and consultants, in addition to receiving assistance from the environmental quality council, in carrying out its duties under this section"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

2004 Annotations to the MCA

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995]."

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

1985 Amendment: In (2)(a) near middle, after "environmental quality council", inserted "of the state library"; and in (2)(b) near beginning, substituted "state library" for "department of administration", and near end substituted "library's" for "department's".

1993 Amendment: Chapter 478 in (3)(b) substituted "renewable resource grant and loan program" for "water development program". Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Late Claim Interim Study — Water Policy Committee: Section 10, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) The water policy committee, in coordination with the department of justice, the department of natural resources and conservation, and the reserved water rights compact commission, shall conduct an interim study analyzing the need for and desirability and impacts of allowing the remission of forfeited water rights in addition to the remissions authorized under the provisions of [this act] [Ch. 629, L. 1993]. The study must analyze the impacts of additional forfeiture remission on:

(a) the general stream adjudication process, including but not limited to the issues of adequacy and Montana's and the federal government's concurrent water rights adjudication jurisdiction;

(b) the federal government and Indian tribes regarding existing and future negotiated water rights compacts, including but not limited to the issues of equal protection;

(c) timely claimants' water use;

(d) timely claimants' legal rights, including but not limited to constitutional requirements regarding the taking of property;

(e) the potential reduction in agricultural production resulting from not granting additional forfeiture remissions and the associated social and economic impacts;

(f) the issue of fairness to both late and timely claimants;

(g) the potential increased costs to the state and to late and timely claimants;

(h) potential losses in revenue to the state resulting from the state's failure to file claims to existing water rights on or before April 30, 1982;

(i) implications involving the state's trust responsibilities;

(j) potential litigation against the state by private parties; and

(k) impacts on municipal and county governments resulting from late claims.

(2) The study must include an analysis of the potential for identifying individuals or classes of individuals whose additional forfeiture remission could be authorized in a manner that would have an acceptable impact on those issues identified under subsection (1). The classes of late claimants include but are not limited to previously decreed water rights holders and classes established according to filing date.

(3) The study must be completed in consultation with other relevant state and federal agencies, relevant groups and organizations, and other interested and affected citizens.

(4) The water policy committee shall report the results of the study to the 54th legislature by October 1, 1994. The report must include any legislative or other policy options recommended by the water policy committee."

1991 Amendment: In (3)(e) substituted "as provided in 5-11-210" for "not less than once every biennium". Amendment effective March 20, 1991.

Study of Dam Safety and Water Reservation Laws — 1991: Section 7, Ch. 659, L. 1991, provided for a study of dam safety and water reservation laws and regulations by the Water Policy Committee, with the cooperation of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 573, L. 1985, provided: "WHEREAS, the Select Committee on Water Marketing was commissioned by the 1983 Legislature to undertake a study of the advantages and disadvantages of water marketing; and

WHEREAS, the Select Committee in completing its study determined that Montana needs to address broader questions of water policy in order to secure Montana's interests in allocation and management of state waters; and

WHEREAS, the Select Committee has presented a comprehensive package of recommendations that must be considered as a whole; and

WHEREAS, these recommendations serve to revise Montana's water policy in order to maximize Montana's authority over management of state waters and other natural resources and to conserve water for existing and future beneficial uses by Montanans.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana finds that this legislation and other recommendations of the Select Committee on Water Marketing constitute an appropriate revision of state water policy necessary to secure Montana's interests for present and future benefit to Montanans."

1997 Amendment: Chapter 45 deleted former (4) that read: "(4) in cooperation with other state agencies, institutions, colleges, and universities, establish and maintain a centralized and efficient water resources data management system sufficient to make available and readily accessible, in a usable format, to state agencies and other interested persons, information on the state's water resources, out-of-state water resources that affect the state, existing and potential uses, and existing and potential demand. All other state agencies, institutions, and colleges and universities shall cooperate with the department in the development and maintenance of this system"; and made minor changes in style.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (1), after "adopted", deleted "by the board". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (4) requiring the Department to establish and maintain a centralized water resources data management system.

1983 Amendment: Deleted "declarations" before "claims" twice in (2) and once in (3); in (5) after "filing" deleted "declarations with the department or"; and inserted (6) requiring the Department to adopt rules necessary to reject, modify, or condition permit applications in highly appropriated basins or subbasins.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 370 (Ch. 448, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it delegates rulemaking authority to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation in sections 1 and 17.

The intent is to provide the Department with the authority to adopt rules necessary to reject, modify, or condition water use permit applications in highly appropriated basins or subbasins. A rule may only be adopted under this section upon a petition signed by a certain percentage of water users in the source of supply or by direction of the Legislature. The petition must allege certain facts showing the need for the adoption of a rule. The Department must act on the petition within 60 days by: denying the petition and providing reasons to the petitioners; informing the petitioners that additional study of the allegations is necessary before denying or proceeding with the petition; or initiating the rulemaking proceeding. The rulemaking procedure must follow the notice requirements of the Montana Administrative Procedure Act, and in addition the Department must publish notice of the rulemaking hearing once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in which the source is located and also serve an individual copy of the notice on any known water right holder in the source of supply according to the Department's records.

This bill also delegates rulemaking authority to the Board of Natural Resources and Conservation [functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation] in section 2.

The intent is to provide the Board with the authority to adopt, through rules, fees to be paid by applicants, petitioners, and others for services provided. Fees could be adopted for: rulemaking hearings to reject, modify, or condition water use permit applications in highly appropriated basins or subbasins; administrative hearings conducted by the Department to settle objections to permit or change applications; costs incurred during the field investigation of a complaint against a permittee and related revocation proceedings; and for costs incurred in the field verification of issued and completed permits and change approvals."

1981 Amendment: Added "subject to the powers and duties of the supreme court under 3-7-204" to (1).

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (1), (2), (2)(b), (3), (4)(a), in two places, and (4)(b) substituted "department" for "board"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 543 inserted (4) concerning controls on chronically dewatered watercourse.

Chapter 805 at end of (2)(b) substituted "the limitation contained in 85-2-306(1)" for "100 gallons a minute". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 543, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required to provide guidance to the board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] in adopting rules to implement the provisions of [this act]. The legislature understands that many Montana watercourses or portions of watercourses suffer chronic dewatering. The legislature further understands that this dewatering severely impairs important beneficial uses of those watercourses, including but not limited to fisheries and agricultural, industrial, municipal, and recreational uses. It is the intent of the legislature, where reasonable and practical, to identify those watercourses or portions of watercourses where chronic dewatering significantly impairs these beneficial uses. It is also the intent of the legislature to require measuring devices on diversions in chronically dewatered watercourses or portions of watercourses to ensure that appropriators withdraw only the amounts they are entitled to withdraw under valid appropriative rights and water use permits."

1985 Statement of Intent — Section Numbering: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 573, L. 1985, provided: "A statement of intent is needed for House Bill 680 [Ch. 573, L. 1985] because section 21 [section 22] extends the authority of the board [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] and the department of natural resources and conservation to adopt rules relating to the provisions of the bill. Such extension of authority would include the authority to adopt rules relating to the implementation of water reservations on the Missouri River basin under section 15 [section 16, 85-2-331] and relating to the leasing of water under section 12 [section 13, 85-2-141]."

In their implementation of this bill, the long-range goal of the board and the department must be to conserve and protect the water resources of Montana for the use of all Montanans. Since agricultural uses of water constitute the largest uses by far, and a healthy economy of the state depends upon agriculture, the agricultural uses of water in Montana must be particularly conserved and protected.

In developing rules implementing this bill, and in entering into lease agreements with potential water users under section 12 [section 13, 85-2-141], it is the intent of the legislature that the department establish leasing rates which are commercially reasonable and take into account the financial abilities of a particular sector of the economy to lease water at various rates. Accordingly, it is contemplated that leasing rates for agricultural uses of water will be considerably lower than rates for industrial uses, as an example.

It is also the intent of the legislature that water be made available through the leasing program at minimal cost to potential users who may wish to benefit from a water use project of a third party. An example would be an irrigation district or a municipality in Montana that may desire to tap into a pipeline conveying water out of state. Provision for such incidental beneficial uses is authorized under section 12(8) [section 13(8), 85-2-141(8)] of the bill.

In entering into a lease of water, the department shall include a provision in the lease that other existing or planned uses of water in Montana will be fully protected during a low-water year. All of the criteria listed in 85-2-311 must be applied and considered by the department before it decides to enter into a lease of water.

In the implementation of water reservations in the Missouri River basin, it is the intent of the legislature that applicants for agricultural reservations be given equal treatment and opportunity to reserve water as that afforded applicants for instream uses. To the extent possible, equal treatment and opportunity includes the provision of financial resources and technical assistance to such applicants.

If an application for a slurry pipeline is received by the department of natural resources and conservation under the Montana Major Facility Siting Act, it is the intent of the legislature that the department and board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] shall consider and document the potential adverse economic impacts, if any, on railroads and railroad employment as required by 75-20-301(3) and 75-20-503 [now repealed]. The board shall also, to the extent feasible, require mitigation of these adverse impacts."

In the course of its passage through the Legislature, Ch. 573, L. 1985, was amended and consequently certain sections were renumbered. The statement of intent attached to the bill was not amended to reflect the renumbering. For clarity, the annotator has inserted in brackets, following each section number reference, the proper section number. If a section was codified, the annotator has also included the Montana Code Annotated number assigned to that section.

1983 Amendment: Substituted (1), authorizing Board of Natural Resources and Conservation to prescribe public service fees or charges, for the former text, which read: "The board may prescribe fees or service charges for any public service rendered by the department under this chapter, including fees for the filing of applications or for the issuance of permits and certificates. There shall be no fees for the filing of declarations or for any action taken by the department at the request of the water judge or for the issuance of certificates of existing rights."; in (2)(b) after "maximum" substituted "appropriation" for "yield".

Case Notes

Previous Judgment Conclusive: After the Supreme Court reversed the District Court order and reinstated the DNRC order, appellants petitioned the District Court for an award of attorney fees in their favor, contending that they, rather than the Monfortons, were the "prevailing party" under 85-2-125 since Monfortons' claim for attorney fees was denied in Mont. Power Co. v. Carey, 211 M 91, 685 P2d 336, 41 St. Rep. 1233 (1984). The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's denial of appellants' petition, holding that the question regarding attorney fees had been fully considered, determined, and adjudged in the earlier appeal. With that action, every issue, including the question of award of attorney fees, was determined, and that judgment is conclusive. Mont. Power Co. v. Carey, 216 M 275, 700 P2d 989, 42 St. Rep. 803 (1985).

Rules of Procedure: The rules of procedure for the Water Courts for the state of Montana are set forth in full under 85-2-231.

Pre-1973 Law Applicable to "Existing Rights": The Montana Water Use Act, Ch. 452, L. 1973, preserves "existing rights", and thus future determinations and adjudications will require reference to sections repealed by the 1973 law. The text of repealed sections 89-121 through 89-123, 89-803, 89-804, 89-808, 89-809, 89-811, 89-814 through 89-816, 89-835 through 89-838, 89-840, 89-841, 89-844, 89-845, 89-850, 89-852, 89-857 through 89-864, 89-2913(a), and 89-2919 through 89-2924 may be found in the bound R.C.M. Volume 6, part 1. The text of repealed sections 89-801, 89-801.1, 89-801.2, 89-802, 89-807, 89-810 through 89-813, 89-829, 89-831, 89-832, 89-834, 89-839, 89-842, 89-847 through 89-849, 89-851, 89-853, 89-854, 89-2912, 89-2913, and 89-2925 of the R.C.M. 1947, which sections pertain specifically to appropriation and adjudication of water rights, is set out below. Immediately following this material are casenotes pertaining to many of the repealed sections.

89-801. What waters may be appropriated. (1) The right to the use of the unappropriated water of any river, stream, ravine, coulee, spring, lake, or other natural source of supply may be acquired by appropriation, and an appropriator may impound flood, seepage, and waste waters in a reservoir and thereby appropriate the same.

(2) But the unappropriated waters of the streams and portions of streams hereafter named shall be subject to appropriation by the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] of the state of Montana in such amounts only as may be necessary to maintain stream flows necessary for the preservation of fish and wildlife habitat. Such uses shall have a priority of right over other uses until the district court in which lies the major portions of such stream or streams shall determine that such waters are needed for a use determined by said court to be more beneficial to the public. The unappropriated water of other streams and rivers not named herein may be set aside in the future for appropriation by the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] upon consideration and recommendation of the water resources board, fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission], state soil conservation committee, the state board of health and approval of the legislature.

89-801.1. Established rights of use unaffected. Nothing herein contained shall in any way affect or diminish any rights to the use of the waters of such streams or portions of streams heretofore established nor any legal or statutory rights given in connection with such established uses.

History: En. Sec. 2, Ch. 345, L. 1969.

89-801.2. Notice of appropriation. The appropriation hereby authorized shall be made by filing a written notice of appropriation in the office of the county clerk and recorder of each county through which flows the river on which the appropriation is made, and by filing a copy of such notice with the director of the Montana water resources board. The notice shall state the quantity of water claimed, measured as provided in Title 89, R.C.M. 1947, the purpose for which it is claimed, the name of the appropriator, and the date of appropriation.

History: En. Sec. 3, Ch. 345, L. 1969.

89-802. Appropriation must be for a useful purpose — abandonment. The appropriation must be for some useful or beneficial purpose, and when the appropriator or his successor in interest abandons and ceases to use the water for such purpose, the right ceases; but questions of abandonment shall be questions of fact, and shall be determined as other questions of fact.

History: En. Sec. 2, p. 131, L. 1885; re-en. Sec. 1251, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887; re-en. Sec. 1881, Civ. C. 1895; re-en. Sec. 4841, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7094, R.C.M. 1921. Cal. Civ. C. Sec. 1411.

89-807. First in time, first in right. As between appropriators the one first in time is first in right.

History: En. Sec. 5, p. 131, L. 1885; re-en. Sec. 1254, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887; re-en. Sec. 1885, Civ. C. 1895; re-en. Sec. 4845, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7098, R.C.M. 1921. Cal. Civ. C. Sec. 1414.

89-810. Notice of appropriation. Any person hereafter desiring to appropriate the waters of a river, or stream, ravine, coulee, spring, lake, or other natural source of supply concerning which there has not been an adjudication of the right to use the waters, or some part thereof, must post a notice in writing in a conspicuous place at the point of intended diversion, stating therein:

1. The quantity of water claimed, measured as hereinafter provided;
2. The purpose for which it is claimed and place of intended use;

3. The means of diversion, with size of flume, ditch, pipe, or aqueduct, by which he intends to divert it;
4. The date of appropriation;
5. The name of the appropriator.

Within twenty days after the date of appropriation the appropriator shall file with the county clerk of the county in which such appropriation is made a notice of appropriation, which, in addition to the facts required to be stated in the posted notice, as hereinbefore prescribed, shall contain the name of the stream from which the diversion is made, if such stream have a name, and if it have not, such a description of the stream as will identify it, and an accurate description of the point of diversion of such stream, with reference to some natural object or permanent monument. The notice shall be verified by the affidavit of the appropriator or someone in his behalf, which affidavit must state that the matters and facts contained in the notice are true.

History: En. Sec. 6, p. 131, L. 1885; re-en. Sec. 1255, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887; re-en. Sec. 1886, Civ. C. 1895; re-en. Sec. 4847, Rev. C. 1907; amd. Sec. 3, Ch. 228, L. 1921; re-en. Sec. 7100, R.C.M. 1921. Cal. Civ. C. Sec. 1415.

89-811. Diligence in appropriating. Within forty days after posting such notice, the appropriator must proceed to prosecute the excavation or construction of the work by which the water appropriated is to be diverted, and must prosecute the same with reasonable diligence to completion. If the ditch or flume, when constructed, is inadequate to convey the amount of water claimed in the notice aforesaid, the excess claimed above the capacity of the ditch or flume shall be subject to appropriation by any other person, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

History: En. Sec. 7, p. 132, L. 1885; re-en. Sec. 1256, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887; re-en. Sec. 1887, Civ. C. 1895; re-en. Sec. 4848, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7101, R.C.M. 1921. Cal. Civ. C. Sec. 1416.

89-812. Effect of failure. A failure to comply with the provisions of this chapter deprives the appropriator of the right to the use of water as against a subsequent claimant who complies therewith, but by complying with the provisions of this chapter the right to the use of the water shall relate back to the date of posting the notice.

History: En. Sec. 8, p. 132, L. 1885; re-en. Sec. 1257, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887; re-en. Sec. 1888, Civ. C. 1895; re-en. Sec. 4849, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7102, R.C.M. 1921. Cal. Civ. C. Sec. 1419.

89-813. Record of declaration. Persons who have heretofore acquired rights to the use of water shall, within six (6) months after the publication of this chapter, file in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the water right is situated, a declaration in writing, except notice be already given of record as required by this chapter, or a declaration in writing be already filed as required by this section, containing the same facts as required in the notice provided for record in section 89-810 of this chapter, and verified as required in said last-mentioned section, in cases of notice of appropriation of water; provided, that a failure to comply with the requirements of this section shall in nowise work a forfeiture of such heretofore acquired rights, or prevent any such claimant from establishing such rights in the courts. From and after July 1, 1967, the county clerk and recorder shall forward to the water resources board a copy of any instrument of water appropriation or instrument transferring any water appropriation which is filed as provided in this section.

History: En. Sec. 9, p. 132, L. 1885; re-en. Sec. 1258, 5th Div. Comp. Stat. 1887; re-en. Sec. 1889, Civ. C. 1895; re-en. Sec. 4850, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7103, R.C.M. 1921; amd. Sec. 6, Ch. 158, L. 1967.

89-829. Procedure for appropriating waters of adjudicated streams. (1) Any person hereafter desiring to appropriate the waters of a river, or stream, ravine, coulee, spring, lake, or other natural source of supply concerning which there has been an adjudication of rights between appropriators or claimants, as contemplated in section 89-839, shall:

(a) employ a competent engineer to make a survey of the ditch, or aqueduct, whereby the water is to be conveyed from the source of supply, or the dam or other work whereby the water is to be impounded, or both; or

(b) cause to be prepared an aerial photograph with a drawing thereon showing the course of the proposed ditch or aqueduct, or the location of the proposed dam or other work, or both, together with a description of the course of said ditch or the location of said dam attached thereto; and the appropriators shall file with the clerk of the court in the county in which the water is appropriated a petition giving the amount of water sought to be appropriated, a description by name or otherwise of the watercourse or body from which he intends to appropriate the water, and a general description of the ditch or aqueduct, stating its size, length, and capacity, showing the proposed means of appropriation and use of the water, and also the place of use thereof. If the means of appropriation be a reservoir by which the water is to be impounded, the petition shall state the location and size thereof, together with the contemplated manner of its construction and the means of conveying the water to the place of contemplated use, and the contemplated use.

(2) There shall be filed with the petition a map or aerial photograph as hereinbefore provided showing the point of, and means of diversion, and the course of the ditch or aqueduct to its terminus, and if a reservoir, the contour line thereof, the height and width of the dam, the point and means of discharge therefrom, and the spillway. If the appropriator shall intend to mingle the waters appropriated from one stream with another, or shall intend to deposit the waters impounded in a reservoir into a stream, he shall so state.

(3) The appropriator shall declare in his petition that the water rights sought by him shall be subject to, and that in the use thereof he shall be bound by the terms of any decree theretofore rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction adjudicating the waters of such river, stream, ravine, coulee, spring, lake, or other natural source of supply, or, any body of water to which the same may be tributary, provided that water stored in a reservoir pursuant to an appropriation hereunder which is subsequent to an adjudication of waters in a flowing stream when so released from storage shall not be considered as a part of the natural flow of said adjudicated stream.

(4) The appropriator shall, as near as may be, give the names of all appropriators or claimants who have, or appear to have, rights in the source of supply, from which the appropriation is sought, and whose rights may be in anywise affected by the appropriation, and in the petition the petitioner shall be named as plaintiff, and all other parties as defendants.

History: En. Sec. 4, Ch. 228, L. 1921; re-en. Sec. 7119, R.C.M. 1921; amd. Sec. 1, Ch. 179, L. 1957.

89-831. Appearance — default — decree. If any defendant shall not appear within twenty days after the service of summons upon him, it shall be deemed by the court that he has no objection to the court granting the appropriation sought by the plaintiff, and the defendant so failing to appear shall be deemed in default. Any defendant may appear by motion, demurrer, or answer, as in civil action. The procedure in civil actions shall be followed in all proceedings under the terms of this act; provided, that when the pleadings are settled the court shall summarily proceed to try and determine the case. Evidence may be offered by the parties as in civil actions. At the conclusion of the trial, the court may enter an interlocutory or permanent decree allowing the appropriation sought, either in whole or in part, subject to all prior rights as adjudicated, and subject to the terms of all prior decrees, or may make any other order deemed proper in the premises. If no objections are filed the court shall enter such decree as the facts warrant.

History: En. Sec. 6, Ch. 228, L. 1921; re-en. Sec. 7121, R.C.M. 1921.

89-832. Decree subject to prior adjudicated rights. If the defendants, or any of them, do not appear, their adjudicated rights which are prior in time to plaintiff's right shall in nowise be affected by the court's order. The court shall in every case, if an appropriation be awarded plaintiff, provide that the same shall be subject to all adjudicated rights which are prior in time to plaintiff's rights, and the plaintiff shall be bound by the terms of all prior decrees with respect to water rights in the proper order of his priority as if he had been a party to the decree originally.

History: En. Sec. 7, Ch. 228, L. 1921; re-en. Sec. 7122, R.C.M. 1921; amd. Sec. 1, Ch. 38, L. 1927.

89-834. Decree to govern conditions of performance of work. The court may provide by interlocutory decree awarding the appropriation, the condition under which the ditch, aqueduct, dam, or other work, necessary to the complete appropriation, shall be done and the time within which the same shall be completed until the conditions imposed are complied with. Upon a full compliance with the terms prescribed by the court, it shall enter its order and decree establishing the appropriation and fixing the date thereof, which, if the appropriator shall have been diligent in complying with the court order, shall be the date of the filing of the petition. The court may fix a later date if the facts warrant.

History: En. Sec. 9, Ch. 228, L. 1921; re-en. Sec. 7124, R.C.M. 1921.

89-839. Effect of decree upon subsequent appropriations. Whenever there shall have been an adjudication of the rights between appropriators or claimants to any stream or any other water supply in this state, in any district court of the state, or the United States court, in an action prosecuted in good faith between such appropriators or claimants to determine their respective rights to the use of such waters, and which decree is based upon evidence introduced, and not upon stipulations or admissions of the parties, such adjudication and decree, or certified copies thereof, shall, as against all persons appropriating or diverting any of the waters of the said stream or other water supply, after the date of such decree, in an action relating to such waters, be prima facie evidence of the facts therein found, determined, and decreed, respecting the rights of parties to said action to the use of the waters of said stream or other water supply.

History: En. Sec. 1, Ch. 95, L. 1905; re-en. Sec. 4867, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7128, R.C.M. 1921.

89-842. Appropriations pending litigation subject to decree. At such time as there may be legal proceedings instituted by the owner or owners of any water right or water rights in any stream, spring, creek, canyon, river, or ravine, before any court of competent jurisdiction, all subsequent appropriations made in any such streams, creeks, springs, canyons, rivers, or ravines will be subject to such suit as may be instituted and shall not date prior to the date of the beginning of said suit, and will be subject to the rulings and decisions thereunder.

History: En. Sec. 3, Ch. 185, L. 1907; re-en. Sec. 4870, Rev. C. 1907; re-en. Sec. 7131, R.C.M. 1921.

89-847. Declaration of policy as to adjudication of waters of the state. It is hereby declared to be the policy of this state and necessary for the welfare of the state and its citizens, that the waters of this state and especially interstate streams arising out of the state be investigated and adjudicated as soon as possible in order to protect the rights of water users in this state and negotiate interstate compacts in relation thereto, and that the state water conservation board make investigations to secure necessary information and initiate and carry on actions therefor.

History: En. Sec. 1, Ch. 185, L. 1939; amd. Sec. 6, Ch. 280, L. 1965.

89-848. Water conservation board may bring action to adjudicate waters. The state water conservation board is hereby authorized to bring action to adjudicate the waters of any stream or of any stream and its tributaries in any county traversed by said stream.

History: En. Sec. 2, Ch. 185, L. 1939; amd. Sec. 7, Ch. 280, L. 1965.

89-849. Appointment of referee to take testimony. In said actions the state water conservation board, or in any action pending for the adjudication of a water right, any party thereto, may make application to the court for the appointment of some competent person or persons to act as a referee or referees in said cause and to take testimony therein, and the court may appoint a referee or referees who shall proceed as herein set forth. In said order of reference the court may submit to said referee or referees any or all issues of fact in said cause.

History: En. Sec. 3, Ch. 185, L. 1939; amd. Sec. 8, Ch. 280, L. 1965.

89-851. Duties of water conservation board — scope of examination of streams — surveys, reports, maps and plats may be introduced as evidence. The state water conservation board shall either before or after the bringing of such action do all things, make all surveys, and perform all services required by said board in the securing of all necessary information and making same available to persons who may be interested therein including the courts of this state. The state water conservation board or some qualified employee may proceed to make an examination of any stream or streams as required by said board and the works diverting therefrom, said examination to include the measurement of the discharge of said stream and of the carrying capacity of the various ditches and canals, and examination of the irrigated lands and an approximate measurement of the lands irrigated from the various ditches and canals, and to take such other steps and gather such other data and information as may be essential to the proper understanding of the relative rights of the parties interested, which said observation and measurement shall be reduced to writing and made a matter of record, and it shall be the duty of the state water conservation board to make or cause to be made such maps or plats thereof as deemed necessary or shall be required. Any or all such surveys, reports, maps and plats may be furnished to the judge of said court or the referee or referees mentioned herein and may be introduced as evidence in such proceedings; provided that the costs and expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this section shall be paid by the state water conservation board.

History: En. Sec. 5, Ch. 185, L. 1939; amd. Sec. 9, Ch. 280, L. 1965.

89-853. Report of referee — recognition of decreed water rights. The report of the said referee or referees shall contain findings of fact upon the issues submitted but shall not contain conclusions of law. All evidence before said referee shall be transcribed and submitted to the court with the findings of such referees. In proceedings described herein, all vested and decreed water rights shall be herein recognized.

History: En. Sec. 7, Ch. 185, L. 1939.

89-854. District court procedure. After the conclusion of the taking of such testimony the said referee or referees shall file their findings of fact with the clerk of the district court wherein said action is pending which findings of fact shall remain on file and subject to investigation by parties interested therein. The clerk of court shall notify the parties or their attorneys by mail upon the filing of such findings of fact by the referee or referees. The parties shall have thirty days from the mailing of such notices during which time any party to said action may file in said court objections or exceptions to any such findings of fact. As to any findings to which no exceptions are filed, same may be adopted by the court as findings of said court. As to any findings to which objections are filed, the court shall consider such proposed findings together with the evidence in relation thereto and may adopt, reject, or modify such findings. The court may upon request or of its own motion make additional findings in said cause. All conclusions of law shall be determined by the court in the same manner as conclusions of law are determined by the court in any action to be tried before the court.

History: En. Sec. 8, Ch. 185, L. 1939.

89-2912. Rights to use. Rights to surface water where the date of appropriation precedes January 1, 1962, shall take priority over all prior or subsequent ground water rights. The application of ground water to a beneficial use prior to January 1, 1962 is hereby recognized as a water right. Beneficial use shall be the extent and limit of the appropriative right. As to appropriations of ground water completed on and after January 1, 1962, any and all rights must be based upon the filing provisions hereinafter set forth, and as between all appropriators of surface or ground water on and after January 1, 1962, the first in time is first in right. The right to use ground water may be obtained without a well, as by subirrigation and other natural processes, and appropriations by such means are provided for under section 89-2913. Appropriative rights shall relate only to quantities of water for beneficial uses and not to water levels, means of use, or ease of withdrawal; and appropriative rights shall not apply to minimal household use as provided in section 89-2915.

History: En. Sec. 2, Ch. 237, L. 1961.

89-2913. Filing — notice of appropriation — notice of completion. (a) The administrator shall prepare and publish forms for the filing by appropriators with the county clerks. They shall be known as a "notice of appropriation" and a "notice of completion," respectively. The notice of appropriation shall require, and provide space for, answers to such questions as: (1) the name and address of the appropriator; (2) the beneficial use for which the appropriation is made, including a description of the lands to be benefited if for irrigation; (3) the rate of use in gallons per minute of ground water claimed; (4) the annual period (inclusive dates) of intended use; (5) the probable or intended date of first beneficial use; (6) the probable or intended date of commencement and completion of the well or wells; (7) the location, type, size and depth of the well or wells contemplated; (8) the probable or estimated depth of the water table or artesian aquifer; (9) the name, address and license number (if any) of the driller engaged; and (10) such other similar information as may be useful in carrying out the policy of this act.

The notice of completion shall require answers to the same sort of questions as required for the notice of appropriation, except that for the most part it shall inquire as to accomplished facts concerning the well or means of withdrawal, including information as to the static level of water in the casing or the shut-in pressure if the well flows naturally; the capacity of the well in gallons per minute by pumping or by natural flow; the approximate draw down or pumping level of the well; the approximate surface elevation at the well head; the casing record of the well; the drilling log showing the character and thickness of all formations penetrated; the depth to which the well is drilled; and similar information.

For the benefit of persons obtaining (or desiring to obtain) ground water without a well (as by subirrigation and other natural processes) a specially prepared "notice of completion" shall be provided, enabling such persons to describe the means of using ground water and to estimate the amount of water so used, and requiring such other similar information as shall be pertinent to this particular class of user. The administrator shall distribute said forms to the county clerks.

(b) On and after January 1, 1962, any person desiring to appropriate ground water may complete a notice of appropriation and file it with the county clerk of the county in which the appropriation is located.

(c) Upon the filing of a notice of appropriation, the county clerk shall transmit a copy thereof to the administrator, and to the Montana bureau of mines and geology, retaining the original on file locally.

(d) After filing a notice of appropriation, in order to acquire a right based thereon, the person must, within ninety (90) days, commence actual excavation and diligently prosecute construction of a well and, upon its completion, file a notice of completion with the county clerk of the county in which the appropriation is located. The county clerk shall handle and transmit such filed notices as in the case of a filed notice of appropriation.

(e) A failure to file a notice of appropriation deprives the appropriator of his right to relate his date of appropriation back, and results in the dating of his appropriation as of when he files a notice of completion. Until a notice of completion is filed with respect to any use of ground water instituted after January 1, 1962, no right to that use of water shall be recognized. However, in the case of uses instituted prior to January 1, 1962 and diligently prosecuted to completion on or after that date, the date of appropriation shall relate back to the date of commencement of construction, upon the filing of a notice of completion.

(f) Persons required to file well logs and other information under the laws governing the conservation of oil and gas and who do so in compliance therewith, shall be deemed to have complied with all of the filing requirements of this act in so far as it applies to such particular oil and gas wells, salt water disposal wells, and injection wells. The date of appropriation in such cases shall be the date that written notice of intention to drill is given to the oil and gas conservation commission of the state of Montana.

(g) It shall be the responsibility of the driller of each well to fill out the notice of completion for the appropriator, and the latter shall be responsible for its filing.

(h) Persons who had put ground water to a beneficial use, including subirrigation or other natural process, prior to January 1, 1962 had a four (4) year period after January 1, 1962 to file a "declaration of vested ground water rights" in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the claimed right was situated. The right to file a "declaration of vested ground water rights" expired on January 1, 1966; therefore, any person desiring to file on ground water put to beneficial use prior to January 1, 1962, but not filed on by December 31, 1965 may file a "notice of completion." The appropriator's right will commence on the date the notice is filed, except as hereinafter provided.

The county clerk shall transmit copies to the office of the administrator and the bureau of mines and geology. The administrator shall attend to filing copies in any other counties affected by the appropriation.

The "declaration of vested ground water rights" as provided for, to be filed on from January 1, 1962 to January 1, 1966 shall be taken and received in all courts of this state as prima facie evidence of the statements therein contained.

Failure to comply with this requirement shall in no wise work a forfeiture of such rights, or prevent any such claimant from establishing such rights in the courts, but he must maintain the burden of proving such unrecorded rights. Provided, however, that persons who have filed the water well log form, provided for in sections 1 and 2 of chapter 58, session laws of Montana, 1957, shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of this section. These latter forms may be returned to the county clerks by the administrator for the purpose of correction or for the entry of material facts necessary to fully complete the filing.

89-2925. Appropriation must be for a useful purpose — abandonment. The appropriation must be for some beneficial purpose and when the appropriator or his successor in interest abandons and ceases to use the water for such purpose, the right ceases; but questions of abandonment shall be questions of fact and shall be determined as other questions of fact.

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

New Trial to Lift Injunction on Water Use Properly Denied: As a result of defendant's negligent operation of an irrigation ditch and the risk associated with high volume flow in the ditch, the District Court enjoined defendant from a flow of more than 400 miner's inches through the ditch until defendant could prove that the ditch could safely transport more. Defendant sought a new trial to lift the injunction on grounds that new evidence stemming from the successful operation of the ditch since the trial could not have been presented earlier. The motion for a new trial was denied, and on appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. Although the evidence was new, the fact remained that varying flows when combined with other variables could still produce damaging results, so the evidence was insufficient to warrant a new trial. Graveley Simmental Ranch Co. v. Quigley, 2003 MT 34, 314 M 226, 65 P3d 225 (2003).

Water Right Limited to Carrying Capacity of Irrigation Ditch: Through the years, Quigley was granted three water rights for irrigation from Ophir Creek for 25, 100, and 800 miner's inches, for a total of 925 inches. However, Quigley's own 1928 survey and a 1930 District Court decision established that the carrying capacity of the irrigation ditch was 800 miner's inches, and that amount was confirmed by the District Court in the present case. Quigley appealed, claiming the right to transport the full 925 inches through the ditch at one time. The Supreme Court disagreed. Because it is elementary that a ditch cannot carry more water than its smallest dimensions allow, it was held that although Quigley had the right to divert 925 miner's inches, that right was subject to the ditch description stating that the ditch had a carrying capacity of 800 miner's inches. Since 1930, the description was unchallenged and relied on by Quigley to his benefit, and under res judicata, Quigley could not now complain of its inaccuracy. Graveley Simmental Ranch Co. v. Quigley, 2003 MT 34, 314 M 226, 65 P3d 225 (2003). See also Quigley v. McIntosh, 88 M 103, 290 P 266 (1930), and Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

No Right of Appeal Except From Final Judgment: There is no right of appeal granted to a water right claimant under the state water rights adjudication process except from a final decree entered under 85-2-234. In re Adjudication of Sage Creek Water Rights, 234 M 243, 763 P2d 644, 45 St. Rep. 1876 (1988).

State Water Court — Jurisdiction to Adjudicate Indian Reserved Water Rights: In an original proceeding to determine jurisdiction over controversies involving federal water rights of the Water Court over Indian tribes and water flowing through state reservations, the Supreme Court held that Article I of the Montana Constitution does not bar state jurisdiction to adjudicate Indian reserved water rights. With the 1952 McCarran amendment, the U.S. Congress diminished the scope of absolute federal jurisdiction over controversies involving federal water rights by allowing state courts concurrent jurisdiction to adjudicate federal water rights. In Colorado River Water Conserv. District v. U.S., 424 US 800 (1976), the U.S. Supreme Court held that the McCarran amendment applied to Indian water rights. The state Legislature's enactment of the Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) pursuant to Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., constitutes a valid and binding consent of the people of Montana to Congress' grant of state jurisdiction over Indian reserved water rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

Water Use Act — Adjudication of Federal and Indian Reserved Water Rights:

The Montana Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) is adequate on its face to adjudicate federal reserved water rights. Although federal reserved rights differ from state appropriative rights in origin, determination of priority date, and quantification standards, the Water Use Act recognizes the distinction between federal reserved rights and state-created appropriative rights. As the Act permits each different class of water rights to be treated differently, the Act is adequate to allow for adjudication of federal reserved rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

The Montana Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) is adequate on its face to adjudicate Indian reserved water rights. Although state appropriative water rights and Indian reserved water rights differ in origin and definition, the Water Use Act, as amended, permits the Water Court to treat Indian reserved water rights differently from state appropriative rights. The Water Use Act does not state explicitly that the Water Court shall apply federal law in adjudicating Indian reserved rights; however, state courts are required to follow federal law with regard to those water rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

State Court Jurisdiction Over Federal and Indian Water Rights: The McCarran Amendment, 43 U.S.C. §666, granting state courts jurisdiction over the United States in litigation involving a comprehensive adjudication of water rights, removed "whatever limitations the enabling acts or federal policy may have originally placed on state court jurisdiction" over the adjudication of Indian water rights in actions brought by the United States on behalf of an Indian tribe as well as in actions brought by an Indian tribe itself. Assuming that the state adjudication procedure is adequate and complies with state law, dismissal of adjudication actions filed in federal District Court out of deference to state adjudication proceedings was proper. Ariz. v. San Carlos Apache Tribe, 463 US 545, 77 L Ed 2d 837, 103 S Ct 3201 (1983), reversing N. Cheyenne Tribe v. Adsit, 668 F2d 1080 (9th Cir. 1982); followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-801, R.C.M. 1947 WHAT WATERS MAY BE APPROPRIATED

Water Rights by Prescription — Hostile Use Required: Where the plaintiffs brought an action against the decedent's estate, claiming a prescriptive right to water diverted by the decedent's descendants, the District Court did not err in holding that the requirement of hostile use of the water would be applied to determine whether the water had been acquired by prescription. Without such a requirement, the holder of a water right could be deprived of that right without notice. In the case before the court, use of the water could not be said to be hostile unless the defendants were deprived of the water in question at a time when they actually had need of it. Language in the opinion in Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), appearing to abrogate the requirement of hostile use, is expressly disapproved. Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85, 40 St. Rep. 1585 (1983).

Waters of Tributary: The waters of a tributary belong to the stream into which the tributary flows to the extent of prior appropriations. Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983).

Valid Water Right Not Affected by Release of Surplus to Junior User: Defendants' predecessor in interest began using water in the amount of 110 gallons a minute from Mahle Spring in 1917 for domestic, stock, and irrigation purposes. Mahle Spring flows into Ashley Creek. In 1958, defendants completed construction of a dam whose purpose was to stabilize their water supply only, not to increase the amount of water appropriated. In April 1973, defendants filed notice of completion of ground water appropriation without well, claiming 110 gallons a minute. In 1957, plaintiffs' predecessor in interest began using water from Ashley Creek. At times, when Ashley Creek dried up, defendants agreed to release water from the dam. In 1978, plaintiff obtained a water use permit for Ashley Creek. Subsequently, defendants refused to release any water from the dam. Plaintiff filed an action to adjudicate the parties' water rights and to enjoin defendants from interfering with the flow of Ashley Creek. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the District Court's ruling that defendants are entitled to 110 gallons a minute with a priority date of 1917 and that plaintiff is entitled only to the excess over that. The court denied plaintiff's claim that defendants were estopped from asserting a superior claim, reasoning that the release of the water did not cause plaintiff's predecessor in interest to change her position for the worse because the defendants had already established a valid claim to the water and thus the release was either a mere gratuity or a release of surplus water. In the absence of evidence that defendant was not simply releasing surplus water, the court also denied plaintiff's claim of laches. Finally, the court denied plaintiff's claim that the release from the dam was evidence that defendants were not making beneficial use of all the water since the District Court findings indicated that the defendants' total claim was fully justified. Bagnell v. Lemery, 202 M 238, 657 P2d 608, 40 St. Rep. 58 (1983).

Adverse Use — Expansion of Water Right: Plaintiff had title by conveyance to 132/142 part of a water right, with defendant having the remaining part. Because the defendant insisted on and did use one-half of the water right against plaintiff's wishes for 15 years and because plaintiff stated he needed all the water during that time, the defendant established a claim to half of the water through adverse possession. Firestone v. Bradshaw, 157 M 181, 483 P2d 716 (1971).

Adverse Use — Elements — Burden of Proof: In order to acquire a water right by adverse use or by prescription (prior to 1953), the proof must show all the following elements: that the use has been continuous for 10 years, exclusive, open, under a claim of right, hostile, and an invasion of another's rights, which the latter had a chance to prevent. The burden of proving an adverse use rests upon the party alleging it. Smith v. Krutar, 153 M 325, 457 P2d 459 (1969); King v. Schultz, 141 M 94, 375 P2d 108 (1962); Havre Irrigation Co. v. Majerus, 132 M 410, 318 P2d 1076 (1957); Lamping v. Diehl, 126 M 193, 246 P2d 230 (1952); Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Adverse Use — Not Peaceable and Uninterrupted: During the period of defendant's asserted adverse use, the plaintiff attempted to prevent defendant's use of water by destroying pipes and headgates placed on a ditch by the defendant. Therefore, the defendant's use was not peaceable or uninterrupted as required for a claim of adverse use. Smith v. Krutar, 153 M 325, 457 P2d 459 (1969).

Adverse Use — Prerequisites: There are three basic prerequisites for establishing adverse use: (1) that the claimant use water at a time when plaintiff needs it; (2) that the claimant use water in such a substantial manner as to notify plaintiff that he is being deprived of water to which he is entitled; and (3) that during all of that period, plaintiff could have maintained an action against him for so using the water. Smith v. Krutar, 153 M 325, 457 P2d 459 (1969); King v. Schultz, 141 M 94, 375 P2d 108 (1962); Havre Irrigation Co. v. Majerus, 132 M 410, 318 P2d 1076 (1957).

Adverse Use — Prior Decree as Res Judicata: Because the criteria for the doctrine of res judicata were met, a water right by adverse use could not be established based on a period prior to the entry of a water rights decree. Smith v. Krutar, 153 M 325, 457 P2d 459 (1969).

Adverse Use — Diversion System as Evidence: Evidence of a water line and diversion system on defendant's land to divert water on defendant's land to plaintiff's land amply supported a conclusion that plaintiff was the owner of a water right by reason of title by prescription. O'Connor v. Brodie, 153 M 129, 454 P2d 920 (1969).

Appropriation on Private Land:

Without the permission of the defendant, the plaintiff constructed a ditch over land of the defendant. The plaintiff's trespass did not give rise to a right to an easement over the defendant's land or to water from the spring. Jones v. Hanson, 133 M 115, 320 P2d 1007 (1958).

An appropriation of water is not confined to waters flowing in streams upon public land but may be made from a stream flowing through privately owned land by invoking the aid of eminent domain proceedings, if necessary. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

Sections 89-801 through 89-805, 89-807 through 89-828, and 89-839 through 89-844, R.C.M. 1947, do not and cannot authorize a person to go upon the private property of another for the purpose of making an appropriation, except by condemnation proceedings. Prentice v. McKay, 38 M 114, 98 P 1081 (1909), explained in Connolly v. Harrel, 102 M 295, 57 P2d 781 (1936).

The mere fact that water has its source on land owned by a plaintiff does not of itself give him the exclusive right therein so as to prevent others from acquiring rights to it under the laws of the state. Quinlan v. Calvert, 31 M 115, 77 P 428 (1904).

A trespasser on riparian land cannot lawfully exercise any right to water on such land or acquire any right therein by virtue of the provisions of this chapter. Smith v. Denniff, 24 M 20, 60 P 398 (1900), distinguished in Dept. of State Lands v. Pettibone, 216 M 361, 702 P2d 948, 42 St. Rep. 869 (1985).

Adverse Use — Parties to the Action: In order to acquire title to a water right by adverse possession, those claiming to be the legal owners of the water right must be made parties. Forrester v. Rock Island Oil Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

Limitation on Rights: The rights of an appropriator of water are limited to the natural condition of the stream at the time the appropriation is made. Jones v. Hanson, 133 M 115, 320 P2d 1007 (1958).

Adverse Use — Not Adverse: The defendant used water from a stream during periods of spring runoff in years of above average rainfall, believed the water so used would percolate back into the stream, and used the water on isolated land, making discovery of irrigation difficult. Such use was insufficient to establish a water right by adverse possession because it lacked the most vital element, namely, adverse use. Havre Irrigation Co. v. Majerus, 132 M 410, 318 P2d 1076 (1957).

Impounding Floodwater and Wastewater: Where plaintiff had over the years constructed a series of dikes in order to spread water over his land that would flow down a dry gully after the melting of snow or a heavy rainfall, he had a prior right to the extent that his project was finished. He who first diverts the water to a beneficial use has the prior right thereto where the right is based upon the custom and practice of the early settlers and where there was no compliance with the statute. Midkiff v. Kincheloe, 127 M 324, 263 P2d 976 (1953). (See, however, the dissenting opinion in the case in which it was contended that the waters were floodwaters and wastewaters that the defendant had a right to impound in a stock reservoir, 127 M 324, 263 P2d 976 (1953).)

Slough — Natural Watercourse: A slough naturally followed a channel which was cut down in gravel and rock, and was fed by natural springs, seepage, surface drainage and wastewater from a canal. Such a slough constituted a natural watercourse and was subject to appropriation. Meine v. Ferris, 126 M 210, 247 P2d 195 (1952).

Diffused Surface Water Defined — Not Subject to Appropriation: The essential characteristics of diffused surface waters are that their flows are short-lived and that the waters are spread over the ground and not concentrated or confined in flows of legal watercourses or bodies of water conforming to the definition of lakes or ponds. Diffused surface waters in a gulch on land above where a natural channel has developed are not subject to appropriation. Doney v. Beatty, 124 M 41, 220 P2d 77 (1950).

Ownership of Land Where Water Has Source: Seepage water that has its rise along the bed of a stream and forms a natural accretion thereto belongs to that stream as part of its source of supply, and the ownership of land where water has its source does not necessarily give the exclusive right to use such water to the landowner so as to prevent others from acquiring rights therein. Woodward v. Perkins, 116 M 46, 147 P2d 1016 (1944), distinguished in Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

Seepage and Wastewaters:

Although seepage water that has its rise along the bed of a stream and forms a natural accretion thereto belongs to the stream as a part of its source of supply, the same as do feeder springs, and an appropriator of water on such stream has the right to all such tributary flow even as against the owner of the land, the conducting of water from upper reaches of a tributary to "potholes" and "reservoirs" and then capturing the seepage therefrom in ditches is insufficient proof of creating a new supply for an additional water right. Woodward v. Perkins, 116 M 46, 147 P2d 1016 (1944), distinguished in Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

Where water seeping from irrigated lands finds its way into a drain ditch and is collected there, it is subject to appropriation. Wills v. Morris, 100 M 514, 50 P2d 862 (1935), distinguished in McGowan v. U.S., 206 F. Supp. 439 (D.C. Mont. 1962).

While wastewaters are subject to appropriation, the owner of the land from which such water flows has the right to use his land as he pleases and may therefore change the flow to suit his purpose, provided the changes are not made maliciously or arbitrarily to the detriment of the appropriator in the enjoyment of his right. Newton v. Weiler, 87 M 164, 286 P 133 (1930).

Prior to the amendment of this section (Ch. 228, L. 1921), there was no statutory provision for the appropriation of flood, seepage, and wastewaters and therefore no right could be acquired as to such vagrant or fugitive waters as against the owner who sought to recapture them. But where such waters had passed beyond the control of the owner, they became abandoned personality that could be taken up and used by the person first in the field. Popham v. Holloron, 84 M 442, 275 P 1099 (1929), distinguished in McGowan v. U.S., 206 F. Supp. 439 (D.C. Mont. 1962).

Interference With Prior Rights — Burden: Primary rights to the use of water in a stream are those of appropriators of its natural flow, and the burden is upon a subsequent storage claimant (in the instant case, defendant State Water Conservation Board, precursor to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) or upon one who uses a watercourse as part of his distribution system of developed or alien waters to affirmatively disprove interference with prior rights in a suit to enjoin such interference. Allendale Irrigation Co. v. St. Water Conservation Bd., 113 M 436, 127 P2d 227 (1942).

Storage and Use of Floodwater or Wastewater: Under Art. III, sec. 15, 1889 Mont. Const., the sites for reservoirs for collecting and storing water constitute a public use intended to conserve rather than waste water so that the arid lands of the state may be made productive. The appropriation of water in a reservoir to conserve water flowing in an otherwise dry coulee, only at heavy rains or spring runoff, entitles the owner to fill the reservoir to its full capacity to the extent of his appropriation, only once a year. The state laws that apply to acquisition of running water apply to storage and use of floodwater or wastewater—first in time, first in right. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

Adverse Use — Open and Notorious But Not Adverse: Although the defendant used water rightfully subject to the plaintiff's prior right, he failed to tell anyone of his adverse claim or show possession so as to give the plaintiff notice of his adverse claim. Use may be open and notorious yet still not adverse. Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), distinguished and overruled in Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85 (1983).

Appropriation on Indian Lands:

Defendant's contention that an appropriation of a water right was made on Indian lands prior to opening for settlement and therefore initiated by trespass and hence void could not be sustained because the provision of the Crow Indian treaty of 1868 that white men should be excluded from Indian lands is directory and not mandatory. Whites could be excluded if inimical to Indian welfare, it being discretionary with those charged with protecting Indian rights to take action against whites invading without the consent of the tribe. The Indian land became public domain subject to squatter's rights after ratification of agreement for settlement in 1891. Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), distinguished and overruled on other grounds in Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85 (1983).

By the treaty of May 7, 1868, between the United States and the Crow Indians, establishing the Crow Indian Reservation, the federal government impliedly reserved to itself the waters thereon for irrigation and other purposes for use by the Indians, hence they were not subject to appropriation by others. The right to use water appurtenant to lands on an Indian reservation and held by Indians under trust patents is property of the United States, and state courts are without jurisdiction to enter a decree affecting such right, but when an Indian becomes seized of a fee simple title after removal of a trust patent, the conveyance of land transfers the right to use the water appurtenant to the land. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938).

Water Right to Be Personal Property When Considered Independently of Land: While a water right partakes of the nature of real estate, it is not land in any sense, and when considered alone for the purpose of taxation and independently of the land to which it is appurtenant, it is personal property. Brady Irrigation Co. v. Teton County, 107 M 330, 85 P2d 350 (1938); Verwolf v. Low Line Irrigation Co., 70 M 570, 227 P 68 (1924).

Adverse Use — Permissive Use: The claim of adverse use of a water right cannot be initiated until the owner of the superior right is deprived of the benefit of its use in such a substantial manner as to notify him that his rights are being invaded; mere use of the water during the statutory period alone is not sufficient, but it must appear that during such entire period an action could have been maintained against the claimant by the party against whom it is made. Permissive use negates the possibility of adverse use. Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Tributary of Stream: Evidence in a water right suit that water flowed in a creek only in times of flood and that except at such times, the water therein never reached the point where it joined another creek, supported a finding that the former was not a tributary of the latter. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938).

Right to Use Increased Supply: Where one claims to have increased the flow of water in a stream and therefore claims he is entitled to use such increase, he must show that the increase was occasioned through his exertions and not through any accessions to the stream brought about through the process of nature, as by percolating or seepage waters that would have found their way to the stream in any event. W. Side Ditch Co. v. Bennett, 106 M 422, 78 P2d 78 (1938).

"Watercourse" Defined:

A "watercourse", within the meaning of the water right laws, from which an appropriation for purposes of irrigation may be made, may consist of a well-defined channel into which water from a slough fed by irrigation of adjoining lands through seepage or through a ditch constructed by the owners of such lands for draining purposes finds its way, and which through years of so flowing has acquired a permanent character as the natural drainage of the particular watershed. W. Side Ditch Co. v. Bennett, 106 M 422, 78 P2d 78 (1938).

Where waters flowing in a channel with regularity from year to year were made to do so through the instrumentality of man and have through years of so flowing acquired a permanent character as the natural drainage of the watershed, or where they come from springs formed from seepage or percolation, from surface water collecting in a canyon, or from wells accidentally developed while drilling for oil, etc., they constitute a watercourse. Popham v. Holloron, 84 M 442, 275 P 1099 (1929), distinguished in McGowan v. U.S., 206 F. Supp. 439 (D.C. Mont. 1962).

Rules and Customs Prior to 1885:

Prior to the adoption of the first water right statutes in 1885, appropriations of water were made pursuant to the rules and customs of the early California settlers, and under them the essential elements of an appropriation made in 1871 were a completed ditch and the application of the water through it to a beneficial use. Missoula Light & Water Co. v. Hughes, 106 M 355, 77 P2d 1041 (1938).

The essential features of an appropriation of water made prior to L. 1885, p. 130, were a completed ditch and the application of water to a beneficial use. Maynard v. Watkins, 55 M 54, 173 P 551 (1918).

Appropriation Made on Public Domain by Settler: A settler on lands that were a part of the public domain could make a valid appropriation of water thereon. Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937).

Appropriator Not Owner of Water — Sale of Water: An appropriator of water does not become the owner of the water but only of the right to use it. He may not sell the water to another to be used by the purchaser when not in use by the appropriator. Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937).

Conveyance of Right as Appurtenance: When land is conveyed, including the appurtenances, any water rights theretofore enjoyed are transferred. When the grantor later purports to convey the water right only, the latter deed does not constitute severance of the water right, as it adds nothing to the conveyance theretofore made. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Prescription — Adverse Use — Burden of Proof: To establish acquisition of a water right by adverse use or prescription, the claimant has the burden of showing that his use of the water deprived the prior appropriator of water at times when the latter actually needed it. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Property Right — After Perfection: Where a water right has once been fully perfected, i.e., where there was a diversion of the water and its application to a beneficial use, it becomes a property right of which the owner may be divested only in some legal manner. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Rights of Licensee: Where one goes upon land of another with the latter's verbal consent for the purpose of making an appropriation of water, posts his notice of appropriation, diverts the water through the landowner's ditch, and applies it to a beneficial use on his own land, he becomes a licensee, not a trespasser, and revocation of a license to construct a ditch does not necessarily affect the licensee's right to the water carried by the ditch. Connolly v. Harrel, 102 M 295, 57 P2d 781 (1936).

Water Rights and Ditches Separate Rights: Water rights and ditch rights are separate and distinct property rights, i.e., one may own a water right without a ditch right or a ditch right without a water right. Connolly v. Harrel, 102 M 295, 57 P2d 781 (1936).

Adverse Use — Irrigation Company's Distribution: For more than 10 years before the commencement of an action an irrigation company asserted that the water right acquired by the plaintiff's deed was not superior to the water right acquired by a holder of the company's capital stock. Upon this theory the irrigation company made a pro rata distribution of available water to its shareholders and the plaintiff, the plaintiff accepting the water distribution with full knowledge of the irrigation company's position. The irrigation company's possession of the water was thereby open, notorious, continuous, exclusive, adverse, and hostile with respect to the plaintiff's claim of right. Verwolf v. Low Line Irrigation Co., 70 M 570, 227 P 68 (1924).

Adverse Use — Payment of Taxes on Land Not Required: One is not required to pay all the taxes for the period of prescription upon the land to which a water right is appurtenant in order to acquire title to a water right by adverse possession. Verwolf v. Low Line Irrigation Co., 70 M 570, 227 P 68 (1924).

Source of Right: An appropriator of water derives his right from the state and not from the national government, the use of waters flowing in natural streams in Montana being subject to state regulation and control. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

Land Qualifications Unnecessary for Appropriation: An appropriator of water need not be either an owner or in possession of land to make a valid appropriation for irrigation purposes. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Denniff, 24 M 20, 60 P 398 (1900), distinguished in Dept. of State Lands v. Pettibone, 216 M 361, 702 P2d 948, 42 St. Rep. 869 (1985); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Method of Procedure: Sections 89-810 and 89-811, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), provide all the steps necessary to be taken by one seeking to make an appropriation of water, and one who proceeds under them, instead of under the rules and customs of the early settlers, has a completed appropriation when the work on his ditch or canal is finished and before the water is actually applied to its intended use. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912).

Public Service Corporation: A public service corporation, organized for the purpose of constructing an irrigation system and selling or renting water to reclaim arid lands, has a completed appropriation of water when its distributing system is finished and when the corporation is ready to deliver water to users upon demand and offers to do so. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912).

Statute to Apply Only to Public Lands: Sections 89-801 through 89-805, 89-807 through 89-828, and 89-839 through 89-844, R.C.M. 1947 (in part since repealed and in part contained in Title 85, ch. 2), apply only to appropriations made on the public lands of the United States or of the state and to such as are made by individuals who have riparian rights, either as owners of riparian lands or through grants from such owners. Prentice v. McKay, 38 M 114, 98 P 1081 (1909). See Alaska Juneau Gold Min. Co. v. Ebner Gold Min. Co., 239 F 638 (9th Cir. 1917).

Title Obtained by Appropriation: Title cannot be acquired to the corpus of waters flowing in a stream but only to the use thereof. Norman v. Corbley, 32 M 195, 79 P 1059 (1905).

Adverse Use — Contract to Use Water: A controversy between a mill and a mining company over water in a creek was settled by a contract in which the mining company had a right to a specified amount plus a further amount that was over and above that necessary for the mill. The mill went out of business, and the mining company used all the water from the creek. Because the mining company had a right under the contract to the water not used by the mill, it could not be said that the mining company was acting adversely with respect to the mill's water right. Smith v. Hope, 18 M 432, 45 P 632 (1882).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-802, R.C.M. 1947 APPROPRIATION FOR USEFUL PURPOSE — ABANDONMENT

Forty Years of Nonuse as Raising Rebuttable Presumption of Intent to Abandon: In litigation to establish plaintiff's and defendant's respective priorities to water appropriated from Big Coulee Creek, the evidence showed that neither had used previously appropriated water for a period of at least 40 years. Thus, the District Court did not err in holding that under section 89-802, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the appropriation rights of both parties had been abandoned for lack of use of the water. While abandonment of a water right is a question of fact, nonuse for a period of at least 40 years raises, in effect, a rebuttable presumption of abandonment. A claim that the predecessors of the parties could not afford to use the water by irrigating their land did not excuse the failure to use the water or rebut the presumption of abandonment since economics could excuse nearly every otherwise abandoned water right. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983), followed in In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992), in which nonuse for 23-plus years was sufficient to constitute a presumption of abandonment despite the fact that the water right was carried as an asset on the county's books during the period of nonuse, and In re Adjudication of Existing Rights to Use of All Water, Both Surface & Underground, Within Clark Fork River Drainage Above Blackfoot River, 274 M 340, 908 P2d 1353, 52 St. Rep. 1264 (1995), in which continuous nonuse of water for a mining claim for over 50 years raised a rebuttable presumption of abandonment, despite claimant's contention that the cyclical nature of the mining industry and its uncertain economics were reason enough to explain the long period of nonuse. See also Axtell v. M.S. Consulting, 1998 MT 64, 288 M 150, 955 P2d 1362, 55 St. Rep. 276 (1998).

Abandonment by Nonuse: Under section 89-802, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), 75 years of nonuse is sufficient to provide "clear evidence" of abandonment of the unused portion of a water right. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Intent to Abandon — Nonuse of Ditch: Mere nonuse of a ditch appurtenant to a water right is not sufficient to establish abandonment. There must be concurrent intent to abandon. Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964), followed in Rieman v. Anderson, 282 M 139, 935 P2d 1122, 54 St. Rep. 286 (1997).

Beneficial Use — Measurement of Water:

For many years the courts in water right decrees have followed the custom of expressing water rights in terms of flow per unit of time without stating during how many hours or days the water could be taken or defining the volume of water which could be used. This may not be taken as an adjudication that appropriations were of an absolutely uninterrupted flow, thereby removing the established limitation of the appropriator's right to water actually taken and beneficially applied. Nor should this fact be interpreted as a right to expand appropriations to the detriment of subsequent appropriators. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

In the absence of a statute regulating the amount of water reasonably necessary for irrigation, the rule has generally been observed by the courts to allow 1 inch an acre in fixing the amount required for economical use, unless the evidence discloses that a greater or lesser amount is required. Further, the system of irrigation in common use in the locality, if reasonable and proper under existing conditions, is to be taken as the standard. But an appropriator cannot be compelled to divert the water according to the most scientific method known. Worden v. Alexander, 108 M 208, 90 P2d 160 (1939).

The rights of appropriators of water may not be measured entirely by what they claimed in their notices of appropriation but must be measured by their beneficial use thereof over reasonable periods. Consideration must be given to the extent and manner of their use, the character of the land upon which used, and the general necessities of the case, as well as whether streams were furnished by usual rains or snows, extraordinary rain or snowfall, or by springs or seepage. Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938), followed in 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983).

Neither the appropriator of water nor one to whom a right is decreed owns the corpus of any part of the flow of a stream. He is entitled only to the beneficial use of the amount of water called for by his appropriation or the decree when he has need therefor, provided his distributing system has a sufficient capacity to carry that amount; if incapable of carrying that amount, his right is measured by the capacity of his system of distribution regardless of his needs. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926).

"Abandonment" Defined: Before it may be said that the owner of a water right has abandoned it, there must be the necessary concurrence of act and intent to abandon. He must have relinquished it because he no longer desired to possess it. Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Beneficial Use — Swimming Pool or Fishpond: Diversion of water to maintain a swimming pool or fishpond may have been for a beneficial use and hence the basis of a valid appropriation. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Abandonment — Essential Elements: Abandonment of a water right is a voluntary act, and to constitute it there must be a concurrence of act and intent. Neither the relinquishment of possession or the intent not to resume it for a beneficial use is alone sufficient to bring about its abandonment. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936); Thomas v. Ball, 66 M 161, 213 P 597 (1923); Tucker v. Jones, 8 M 225, 19 P 571 (1888).

Abandonment — Trespassers: Plaintiff's predecessors in interest for 13 years used a water right acquired by a desert land entryman after the entry had been canceled and thus were trespassers upon the public domain. That fact did not deprive the plaintiff from resuming the use of the water upon acquiring possession, unaffected by any junior rights which came into being in the meantime, since there is no law enforcing abandonment of a vested water right as a penalty for exercising it as a trespasser. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Abandonment — Resumption: Where use of water is abandoned and resumed, use vests from the date of resumption. Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); O'Shea v. Doty, 68 M 316, 218 P 658 (1923).

Abandonment — Burden of Proof — Nonuse: One who claims an abandonment of a water right has the burden of proving it by a preponderance of clear and definite evidence. Where the only evidence was nonuse for 7 years, whereupon its use was resumed by the owner and the water right later sold to another, the resumption and sale were evidence that abandonment was not intended. Thomas v. Ball, 66 M 161, 213 P 597 (1923).

Beneficial Use — Irrigation:

Respecting the use of water for purposes of irrigation, the ultimate question in every case is how much will supply the actual needs of the prior claimant under existing conditions. Conrow v. Huffine, 48 M 437, 138 P 1094 (1914).

Where a successor in interest of an appropriator of water greatly increased the amount of grass for pasture by irrigation, such use of the water was a useful and beneficial one within the meaning of this section. Sayre v. Johnson, 33 M 15, 81 P 389 (1905).

Beneficial Use — Immediate Use Unnecessary: While the appropriation must be for some useful or beneficial purposes, the use to which the water is to be applied need not be immediate but may be prospective or contemplated. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909); Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Beneficial Use — Intent of Claimant:

This section requires that, at the time of taking the initial steps, the claimant must have an intention to apply the water to a useful or beneficial purpose. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909); Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900); Power v. Switzer, 21 M 523, 55 P 32 (1898).

As every appropriation must be made for a beneficial or useful purpose, it becomes the duty of the courts to try the question of the claimant's intent by his acts and the circumstances surrounding his possession of the water, its actual or contemplated use, and the purposes thereof. Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909); Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Unused Excess Not Appropriated: The diversion of water for domestic purposes in excess of what is required and allowing such excess to overflow lands without any intention of irrigating and without any intention of using such excess for any useful purpose does not constitute an appropriation of the excess. Power v. Switzer, 21 M 523, 55 P 32 (1898).

Abandonment of Ditch — No Effect on Water Right: An appropriation was made from a creek, turned into a ditch, and eventually used at placer mines. Years later the appropriator abandoned the ditch, returned the water to the creek, and recaptured it for irrigation use. The abandonment of the ditch was not an abandonment of the entire water right. Meagher v. Hardenbrook, 11 M 385, 28 P 451 (1891).

Abandonment — Insufficient Supply: Defendant's appropriation for placer mining was not abandoned by his failure to use the appropriation for 5 years, as there was not enough water to work the mines during those years. McCauley v. McKeig, 8 M 389, 21 P 22 (1889).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-803, R.C.M. 1947 CHANGE OF POINT OF DIVERSION — CHANGE OF USE

Change in Place of Diversion — Water Exchange Prevented: The defendants, upstream subsequent appropriators with respect to the plaintiff, diverted all the waters of a creek. Further downstream but still above the plaintiff, the defendants replenished the creek with water from a canal. The plaintiff could not change his diversion to a point upstream of the defendants because of the injury resulting to the defendants. Thompson v. Harvey, 164 M 133, 519 P2d 963 (1974).

Change in Use — Appurtenant to Land:

After purchasing an adjoining tract of land with an appurtenant water right, a farmer proceeded to irrigate all of his land with the newly purchased water right. This change in use resulted in the water right becoming appurtenant to all of the land. Spaeth v. Emmett, 142 M 231, 383 P2d 812 (1963).

Neither a change in the place of diversion of water nor a change in its use from mining to agriculture, or vice versa, affects its appropriation. Thomas v. Ball, 66 M 161, 213 P 597 (1923). See also Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); Whitcomb v. Murphy, 94 M 562, 23 P2d 980 (1933); Thrasher v. Mannix & Wilson, 95 M 273, 26 P2d 370 (1933); Loyning v. Rankin, 118 M 235, 165 P2d 1006 (1946).

Actual diversion of water and its beneficial use existing, prospective, or in contemplation constitute an appropriation, which is not affected by a change in the point of diversion or place of use. Wheat v. Cameron, 64 M 494, 210 P 761 (1922).

Under section 89-803, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the location of a flume maintained over the land of another, as well as the use of the water flowing through it, may be changed, provided the change adds no new burdens to the servient estate or causes additional damage thereto. Pioneer Min. Co. v. Bannack Gold Min. Co., 60 M 254, 198 P 748 (1921).

Burden of Proof of Injury:

For a period of more than 50 years the defendant accumulated water rights and used them wherever and whenever needed to irrigate 34,000 acres of land. The burden was on the plaintiffs to show that they had been injured or prejudiced by such changing use. Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

The party who claims to have been injured by another's change in place of diversion of water right has the burden of alleging and proving the injury. Thrasher v. Mannix & Wilson, 95 M 273, 26 P2d 370 (1933); Lokowich v. Helena, 46 M 575, 129 P 1063 (1913); Hansen v. Larsen, 44 M 350, 120 P 229 (1911).

Change in Place of Use — Decree Not Detailed:

A water rights decree failed to describe the particular acreage to be irrigated and expressed the water rights in terms of flow per unit of time without stating during how many such units of time water could be taken. Adjudicated owners could not expand the use of water to additional lands or in length of time to the injury of subsequent appropriators. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940), followed in Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984).

The conclusiveness of a judgment as res judicata in a water right suit between the same parties or their successors in interest in a prior action is not impaired by the alleged fact that in authorizing a change of place of use or point of diversion, the judgment violated the provisions of section 89-803, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed). Brennan v. Jones, 101 M 550, 55 P2d 697 (1936).

Extent of Use in Terms of Flow Per Unit of Time: The fact that for many years the courts in water right decrees have followed the custom of expressing water rights in terms of flow per unit of time without stating during how many hours or days the water could be taken or defining the volume of water which could be used may not be taken as an adjudication that appropriations were of an absolutely uninterrupted flow, thereby removing the established limitation of the appropriator's right to water actually taken and beneficially applied, or to expand appropriations to the detriment of subsequent appropriators. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Change of Use — Sale: Appropriations not originally made for the purpose of sale may have their use changed to that purpose if subsequent appropriators are not thereby injured. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

Change in Use — Outside of Watershed: Pursuant to an earlier water rights decree, the defendant irrigated land outside the watershed of the source. When the defendant brought additional lands outside the watershed under irrigation with this water right, the plaintiffs could not claim they were injured by this change in use. Their lands were either within the watershed of the source or higher than the defendant's irrigated land and would not benefit from percolating waters from his land. Thrasher v. Mannix & Wilson, 95 M 273, 26 P2d 370 (1933).

Change in Use — Sale of Water Not in Use: An appropriator of a water right for placer mining purposes attempted to convey to another a right to use the waters when not being used for mining. Although an appropriator may change the use of his appropriation, he may not sell it in the interim when the water is not being used. Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); Creek v. Bozeman Water Works Co., 15 M 121, 38 P 459 (1894).

Use of Any of Several Ditches: Where an owner of a water right had several ditches for the irrigation of his lands, he had a right to use any of them at which he had a headgate so long as other users were not injured thereby. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926).

Change in Place of Diversion or Use — Who May Complain: Only a subsequent appropriator being injured may complain that a prior appropriator's change in place of diversion or use is affecting subsequent rights. Carlson v. Helena, 43 M 1, 114 P 110 (1911).

Change in Place of Diversion and Use — Placer Mining: The successors of an appropriation of water appropriated for placer mining purposes cannot so change its use as to deprive lower appropriators of their rights, already acquired, in the use of the water for irrigating purposes. Head v. Hale, 38 M 302, 100 P 222 (1909).

Change in Place of Use — Deprivation of Subsequent Right: After the defendant used his water right for placer mining purposes the water was turned into a gulch, whereupon the plaintiff appropriated it for irrigation purposes. The defendant then changed the place of use of his water right, resulting in the water no longer being returned to the gulch. Such change in use was unlawful as it absolutely deprived the plaintiff of his subsequent right. Gassert v. Noyes, 18 M 216, 44 P 959 (1896).

Change in Use — Mining to Irrigation: A water right was abandoned for mining purposes, the water returned to its original channel, and then recaptured by the original owner to be used for irrigation purposes. This change in use was lawful. Meagher v. Hardenbrook, 11 M 385, 28 P 451 (1891).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-804, R.C.M. 1947 CHANNELING APPROPRIATED WATER TO ANOTHER STREAM RECLAIMING WATER

Canal Water Turned Into Slough — Amount That May Be Reclaimed: The defendant permitted waters from a canal and spring to run in a slough and then used the slough as a waterway. The defendant could reclaim from the slough only that amount of water equal to what he put in. Meine v. Ferris, 126 M 210, 247 P2d 195 (1952).

Seepage Water Potholed and Recaptured: Since seepage water which has its rise along the bed of a stream and forms a natural accretion thereto belongs to the stream as a part of its source of supply, the same as do feeder springs, and an appropriator of water on such stream has the right to all such tributary flow even as against the owner of the land, the conducting of water from upper reaches of a tributary to "potholes" and "reservoirs" and then capturing the seepage therefrom in ditches is insufficient proof of creating a new supply for an additional water right. Woodward v. Perkins, 116 M 46, 147 P2d 1016 (1944), distinguished in Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

Percolation From Irrigation on Adjacent Lands: While under section 89-804, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), one may employ the natural channel of a stream for the conveyance of water which he has developed and reclaim it if the rights of prior appropriators are not thereby diminished in quantity or deteriorated in quality, the rule has no application where an increase in the flow of the stream results solely by percolation from irrigation on adjacent lands. West Side Ditch Co. v. Bennett, 106 M 422, 78 P2d 78 (1938); State ex rel. Mungas v. District Court, 102 M 533, 59 P2d 71 (1936); Rock Creek Ditch & Flume Co. v. Miller, 93 M 248, 17 P2d 1074, 89 ALR 200 (1933); Beaverhead Canal Co. v. Dillon Elec. Power & Light Co., 34 M 135, 85 P 880 (1906).

Deterioration in Quality Prohibited: While section 89-804, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), authorizes an appropriator to turn water into the channel of a stream other than the one from which he appropriates, he may do so only if the waters in the stream the channel of which he thus uses are not deteriorated in quality to the detriment of a prior appropriator thereof. Missoula Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bitter Root Irrigation District, 80 M 64, 257 P 1038 (1927).

Developed Water Supply — Burden of Proof as to Amount: One who claims to have developed a water supply has the burden of proving the amount developed, especially when it is mingled with a water supply to which another is entitled. Spaulding v. Stone, 46 M 483, 129 P 327 (1912); Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909).

Drainage Ditch — Interception of Stream's Source: In order to catch seepage water from irrigated land, the defendant constructed a drainage ditch that paralleled and intersected a stream. Because the ditch intercepted seepage water that was a source of supply for the stream, the defendant did not develop a new water supply to which he was entitled. Spaulding v. Stone, 46 M 483, 129 P 327 (1912).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-807, R.C.M. 1947 FIRST IN TIME, FIRST IN RIGHT

Priority of Senior Main Stem Water Rights Over Junior Tributary Water Rights: Appellant owns water rights in Clear Creek dating to 1910. Petitioners have water rights in Rock Creek dating to 1896. Clear Creek is a tributary of Rock Creek. In 1970, appellant obtained a court order directing the Rock Creek Water Commissioner to "carry out" the Clear Creek water rights of appellant. Following the District Court order, the Water Commissioner honored in full the requests of appellant for water without regard to any priority in the relationship of the creeks' water rights. As a result, at times of water shortage, senior Rock Creek decreed waters are cut off. In 1977, petitioners filed this action to rescind the 1970 order and to direct the Water Commissioner to subject the Clear Creek water rights to the priorities of Rock Creek water rights. The District Court ruled that the 1970 court order, applied by the Water Commissioner to fulfill junior appropriations ahead of prior decreed rights, was improper. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's order and further stated that the order did not violate due process. The Supreme Court reasoned that the only rights affected by the District Court order were the rights of the parties before the court. Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983).

Prior Rights: Where plaintiff had over the years constructed a series of dikes in order to spread over his land the water which would flow down a dry gully after the melting of snow or a heavy rainfall, he had a prior right to the extent that his project was finished. He who first diverts the water to a beneficial use has the prior right thereto where the right is based upon the custom and practice of the early settlers and where there was no compliance with the statutes. Midkiff v. Kincheloe, 127 M 324, 263 P2d 976 (1953). (See, however, the dissenting opinion in the case in which it was contended that the waters were floodwaters and wastewaters which the defendant had a right to impound in a stock reservoir, 127 M 324, 263 P2d 976 (1953).)

Temporary Suspension of Prior Right: When the one holding the prior right does not need the water, such prior right is temporarily suspended and the next right in the order of priority may use the water until such time as the prior appropriator's needs justify his demanding that the junior appropriator give way to his superior claim. Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), distinguished and overruled on other grounds in Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85 (1983).

Contractual Relation or Privity: The doctrine that where the possessor of a water right claims the right as of the date on which it was initiated by another person, he must show some contractual relation or privity between himself and such other person was not modified to the extent of holding that the possessor of the land may be presumed to be the owner of the right by the decision in Wills v. Morris, 100 M 514, 50 P2d 862 (1935). Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Abandonment — Resumption: Where use of water is abandoned and resumed, use vests from the date of resumption. Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); O'Shea v. Doty, 68 M 316, 218 P 658 (1923).

Priority of Appropriation: Priority of appropriation of water confers superiority of right, without reference to the character of the use, whether natural or artificial. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921); Meine v. Ferris, 126 M 210, 247 P2d 195 (1952).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-808, R.C.M. 1947 APPROPRIATION BY UNITED STATES

Method of Procedure: The United States must proceed, in making appropriations of water from nonnavigable streams of this state, as a corporation or individual. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912). See U.S. v. Burley, 172 F 615 (9th Cir. 1909); Burley v. U.S., 179 F 1 (9th Cir. 1910). See also Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 NOTICE OF APPROPRIATION

Insufficient Notice of Appropriation Not Prima Facie Evidence:

Deeds do not qualify as notices of appropriation under section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed). Even if deeds were to be considered as notices, the deeds in question are fatally defective and inadmissible as evidence of an appropriation because they were executed with unsworn acknowledgments, rather than with verified affidavits as required by section 89-810. The Supreme Court reaffirmed that it has strictly construed the provisions of section 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and that any nonconformance with section 89-810 renders the notice of appropriation inadmissible as evidence. Olsen v. McQueary, 212 M 173, 687 P2d 712, 41 St. Rep. 1669 (1984).

In enacting section 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the Legislature established a reward for those parties who comply with section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), by considering a notice of appropriation as prima facie evidence of a claimed water right. However, the former section is to be construed strictly. If the notice does not comply with section 89-810 it is of no evidentiary value. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980). See also Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964); Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937); Peck v. Simon, 101 M 12, 52 P2d 164 (1935).

Extent of Right Measured by Beneficial Use: The rights of the parties are not to be measured entirely by what they claimed in their appropriation notices. They are to be measured by their beneficial use over a reasonable period of time. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980); Irion v. Hyde 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Defective Notice of Appropriation: Where a notice of appropriation was dated 1886, referred to acts taking place in 1886, and was recorded in 1886, but the notary's certificate was dated 1885, it is obvious from the instrument itself that the date in the notary's certificate was a clerical error, and the notice may be received as prima facie evidence of a right dating from 1886. Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964).

Rebuttal of Prima Facie Evidence: A notice of appropriation meeting the requirements of section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and filed in 1886 was admissible in evidence and entitled to be treated as prima facie evidence under section 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), but was not sufficient in itself to establish a water right from that date when its efficacy was destroyed by the claimant's own statement that he first used the water in 1961. Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964).

Insufficient Notice: When a water rights notice was made 16 years before the enactment of section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), when the notice stated a point of diversion different from that claimed by the plaintiff and when it failed to state where or when the water was to be used, the notice was insufficient to establish a water right. Stearns v. Benedick, 126 M 272, 247 P2d 656 (1952).

Date of Appropriation Where Statute Not Complied With: When a ditch was not constructed within a reasonable time after the date of the notice of appropriation, the date of appropriation would not relate back to the date of the notice but would date from the time the water was actually used. Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949).

Record of Notice — Prima Facie Evidence: The record of notice of appropriation of water conforming to the provisions of section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and filed as provided therein is prima facie evidence of its contents. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938). See Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935).

Compliance With Statute Not Required for Valid Appropriation: A valid appropriation of water may be acquired even where there has been no compliance with the statute regulating appropriations by record, if the water has actually been diverted and applied to a beneficial use. Compliance with section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), is important only with regard to the doctrine of "relation back". Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935). See also Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980); Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949); Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Fixing Date in Decree: There is no valid objection to the fixing of an arbitrary date of appropriation in a decree unless another appropriator can show that his right precedes the date fixed, instead of being subsequent to it as shown by the decree. Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935), followed in 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983).

Lack of Recorded Notice — Oral Testimony: To sustain a water right based on oral testimony, as against a recorded notice, the testimony should be clear, unambiguous, and convincing. Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935).

Date of Appropriation When Notice Defective: Appropriators of water were denied the right to relate back the life of their appropriation to the date of posting their notice of appropriation because their recorded notice was rendered ineffective by a fatally defective verification. Since the evidence showed that they put water on their land for a beneficial purpose on or about a certain time, their right bore the date as of such time. Musselshell Valley Farming & Livestock Co. v. Cooley, 86 M 276, 283 P 213 (1929).

Verification of Notice:

A water right, when acquired by appropriation, amounts to a grant by the United States or the state, and the appropriator is in position of a grantee. The affidavit required by statute to be attached to a notice of appropriation serves the same purpose as and is of equal dignity with an acknowledgment. Where an appropriation was made by a firm composed of two brothers and the affidavit accompanying the notice of appropriation was verified by one of them, a grantee, as notary public, the verification was void and the notice was not entitled to record. Musselshell Valley Farming & Livestock Co. v. Cooley, 86 M 276, 283 P 213 (1929).

A notice of location of a water right is fatally defective unless it is verified in conformity with this section. Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Essentials to Complete Appropriation Under Old Rule Prior to Act of 1885: The essential features of an appropriation of water made prior to L. 1885, p. 130, were a completed ditch and the application of water to a beneficial use. Maynard v. Watkins, 55 M 54, 173 P 551 (1918).

Essentials to Complete Appropriation by Statutory Method: To secure a completed appropriation of water under section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), notice must be posted and filed as herein required; and under section 89-811, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), work must be commenced within 40 days after the notice is posted, and it must be prosecuted with reasonable diligence and be actually completed. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912).

Two Methods of Appropriating Water: Since 1885, two distinct methods of appropriating water are prescribed: one, by complying with the rules and customs of the early settlers; the other, by complying with the terms of the statute. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912).

Delay in Recording Appropriation: Where an appropriation of the waters of a stream for irrigating purposes was actually made by the plaintiff in the year 1880 and the water used continuously ever since but no record of the appropriation was made until 1891, such water right is superior to the one acquired and recorded by the defendant in 1889. Salazar v. Smart, 12 M 395, 30 P 676 (1892).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-811, R.C.M. 1947 DILIGENCE IN APPROPRIATING

Lack of Reasonable Diligence Shown in Three-Year and Three-Month Delay in Diversion: In litigation between the plaintiff and defendant to establish their relative rights to appropriated water, the evidence showed that the defendant's predecessor in interest filed a notice of appropriation for 30 cfs of water on May 30, 1973, but failed to divert the water to a sprinkler irrigation system until 3 years and 3 months later. The District Court did not err in holding that the defendant's predecessor failed to exercise reasonable diligence in diversion of the water. Under the rationale of Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation v. Intake Water Co., 171 M 416, 558 P2d 1110 (1976), the defendant was required to show there had been an ongoing effort to divert the water. The lack of parts for the sprinkler system notwithstanding, the record showed no ongoing effort to proceed to completion of the sprinkler system and the diversion. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983), followed in In re Adjudication of Musselshell River Rights, 255 M 43, 840 P2d 577, 49 St. Rep. 866 (1992).

Diligence in Appropriating Following Notice of Appropriation Under Former Law: The requirement found in section 89-811, R.C.M. 1947, repealed in 1973, that the claimant within 40 days "proceed to prosecute the excavation or construction . . . with reasonable diligence" is not confined to the commencement of actual onsite work, but it requires steady ongoing effort in good faith to prosecute the construction of the project. Diligence is a question of fact to be determined on a case-by-case basis. In this case, making surveys and geologic investigations, completing plans, entering into cooperative agreements, soil testing, core drilling, land and easement acquisition, obtaining financing, and entering into a contract for construction were sufficient. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980). See also Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation v. Intake Water Co., 171 M 416, 558 P2d 1110 (1976).

Date of Appropriation Where Statute Is Not Complied With: When a ditch was not constructed within a reasonable time after the date of notice of an appropriation, the date of appropriation would not relate back to the date of the notice but rather would date from the time the water was actually used. Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949).

Completion of Appropriation: The steps necessary to be taken to make a completed appropriation of water are: posting notice, filing it with the County Clerk, commencing construction of a ditch within 40 days after posting notice, prosecuting such work with reasonable diligence, and actual completion of the work of construction. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938).

Completion of Ditch — Reasonable Diligence: An appropriator of water filed a proper notice of appropriation on November 20, 1894, and shortly thereafter commenced construction of a ditch but had to suspend operations because of freezing weather. He did not work continuously on the ditch during the year 1895. Irrigation from the ditch began in the spring of 1896. In view of the length and size of the ditch, a finding that he did not proceed with reasonable diligence was unwarranted. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-812, R.C.M. 1947 EFFECT OF FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH STATUTORY LAW

Date of Appropriation Where Statute Is Not Complied With:

When a ditch was not constructed within a reasonable time after the date of notice of an appropriation, the date of appropriation would not relate back to the date of the notice but rather would date from the time the water was actually used. Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949).

A prior appropriator may acquire a valid water right by a completed ditch, actual diversion of the water, and its application to a beneficial use without complying with the statute. This appropriation is good against everyone except an appropriator who complies with the appropriation statute before the first claimant has applied the water to a beneficial use. Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935). See also Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980); Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949); Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Appropriators of water were denied the right to relate back the life of their appropriation to the date of posting their notice of appropriation because their recorded notice was rendered ineffective by a fatally defective verification. Since the evidence showed that they put water on their land for a beneficial purpose on or about a certain time, their right bore the date as of such time. Musselshell Valley Farming & Livestock Co. v. Cooley, 86 M 276, 283 P 213 (1929).

Of two claimants of water, neither of whom had complied with the statute, he who first completes his ditch and puts it to a beneficial use has the prior right, although he began to build his ditch after the ditch of the other claimant had been commenced. Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Delay in Recording Notice: Notices of appropriation of water not recorded within the time provided in the saving clause found in the original recording act (L. 1885, p. 131), while prima facie evidence of the extent of the rights where the statute was complied with, are of no evidentiary value in proving the amount and date of an appropriation. Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937).

Doctrine of "Relation Back":

Before the doctrine of relation applies, a completed appropriation must have been effected. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912).

One who complies with the statutes regulating the appropriation of water acquires a right which relates back to the date of the posting of his notice of location. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Under the doctrine of "relation back", as between two persons digging ditches at the same time and prosecuting work thereon with reasonable diligence to completion, the one who first began work had the prior right, even though the other had completed his first. Wright v. Cruse, 37 M 177, 95 P 370 (1908); but see Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Purpose of Act: The purpose and object of the Legislature was merely to define the conditions upon which the appropriator of water could have the advantage of the doctrine of relation back. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

"Appropriator": The word "appropriator" is not susceptible of any greater or narrower force than the word "claimant", as used in the California Civil Code relating to water rights. Therefore, no distinction can be drawn between the California Water Right Act and that of Montana. Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-813, R.C.M. 1947 RECORD OF DECLARATION

Delay in Recording Appropriation: Where an appropriation of the waters of a stream for irrigating purposes was actually made by the plaintiff in the year 1880 and the water used continuously ever since but no record of the appropriation was made until 1891, plaintiff's water right is superior to one acquired and recorded by the defendant in 1889. Salazar v. Smart, 12 M 395, 30 P 676 (1892).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 RECORD PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE

Insufficient Notice of Appropriation Not Prima Facie Evidence:

Deeds do not qualify as notices of appropriation under section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed). Even if deeds were to be considered as notices, the deeds in question are fatally defective and inadmissible as evidence of an appropriation because they were executed with unsworn acknowledgments, rather than with verified affidavits as required by section 89-810. The Supreme Court reaffirmed that it has strictly construed the provisions of section 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and that any nonconformance with section 89-810 renders the notice of appropriation inadmissible as evidence. Olsen v. McQueary, 212 M 173, 687 P2d 712, 41 St. Rep. 1669 (1984).

In enacting section 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the Legislature established a reward for those parties who comply with section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), by considering a notice of appropriation as prima facie evidence of a claimed water right. However, 89-814 is to be construed strictly. If the notice does not comply with section 89-810, it is of no evidentiary value. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980). See also Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964); Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937); Peck v. Simon, 101 M 12, 52 P2d 164 (1935).

Additional Burden of Proof Beyond Prima Facie Showing: The defendant's introduction into evidence of three notices of appropriation established a prima facie case but did not completely discharge his burden of proof. The defendant still had the burden of showing that all water claimed had been put to a beneficial use within a reasonable period of time. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Contents of Record: The record of notice of appropriation of water conforming to the provisions of section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and filed as provided in that section, is prima facie evidence of its contents. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938); Wills v. Morris, 100 M 514, 50 P2d 862 (1935).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 RIGHTS SETTLED IN ONE ACTION

Sufficiency of Decree: A water rights decree entered by the District Court was not insufficient because it failed to specify the exact acreage to which the water rights were appurtenant, the seasonal and hourly limitations on the water rights, and the exact points of diversion.

Designation of the owners of the water rights, their priority dates, the amount of the awards in miner's inches, and the source of the water was sufficient. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Quieting Title: An action under Montana law to determine relative rights and priorities of parties claiming interests in waters of a stream, while in personam, is in effect one to quiet title to real property. Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 84 F2d 126 (9th Cir. 1936).

Appeal Lying From Part of Judgment: Where two or more parties are awarded a water right under the terms of the decree, each of them recovers a judgment against the other or others; such a judgment is divisible into parts, and therefore an appeal lies from a part thereof. Wills v. Morris, 100 M 504, 50 P2d 858 (1935).

Damages for Wrongful Diversion of Water:

Where several parties have diverted water so as to injure the crops of another, they cannot be held jointly liable for the acts of each other nor can they be sued in one action for the entire damage, with or without an apportionment of the damage. Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913).

Section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), does not apply to an action at law for damages for the wrongful diversion of water, where there is no allegation in the complaint that would authorize the court to grant equitable relief and there is no evidence to show that the plaintiff is entitled to such relief. Miles v. Du Bey, 15 M 340, 39 P 313 (1895). See Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913).

Rights of Parties Defendant:

The first provision of section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), is permissive only. Thus, there was no presumption that the respective interests of joint owners in an undivided water right had been adjudicated among themselves in a suit in which their predecessors were codefendants, in the absence of a showing to that effect upon the face of the decree or the judgment roll. Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

The Legislature, in enacting section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not state that it intended to compel parties, made defendants to a water right suit pursuant to its provisions, to litigate their respective titles as between themselves. Further, it is doubtful that the Legislature has the power to coerce them to do so. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908). See Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

Equitable Actions: Section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), contemplates equitable actions only, in which relative priorities and conflicting rights of all parties may be settled and where the damages claimed are a mere incident. Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913); Miles v. Du Bey, 15 M 340, 39 P 313 (1895).

Pleadings:

The District Court may settle the relative priorities and rights of all the parties to a water right suit in one judgment only when pleadings have been framed so as to justify such settlement. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), distinguished and followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

The provision of section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), is permissive and not mandatory. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), distinguished and followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

All Parties Antagonists: In an action to settle the relative priorities and rights of the parties to the use of the waters of a stream, every party to the suit is an antagonist of every other party. McNinch v. Crawford, 30 M 297, 76 P 698 (1904). See Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908); Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

Injunction: Property owners having the right to divert the waters of a creek for irrigation purposes may join in a suit to restrain a third person from diminishing the volume of water to the use of which they are entitled. Beach v. Spokane Ranch & Water Co., 25 M 379, 65 P 111 (1901).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-829, R.C.M. 1947 PROCEDURE FOR APPROPRIATING WATERS OF ADJUDICATED STREAMS

Exclusive Method: The method prescribed by sections 89-829 through 89-838, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), for making an appropriation of the waters of an adjudicated stream is exclusive as to appropriations made after the passage of that act. Hanson v. So. Side Canal Users Assoc., 167 M 210, 537 P2d 325 (1975); Donich v. Johnson, 77 M 229, 250 P 963 (1926); Anaconda Nat'l Bank v. Johnson, 75 M 401, 244 P 141 (1926).

Filing of Petition — "Existing Right": On November 30, 1972, the plaintiff filed a petition to appropriate water from an adjudicated stream pursuant to section 89-829, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed). This filing was the first step leading to "use" and was thereby preserved under Art. IX, sec. 3, 1972 Mont. Const., as an "existing right". Gen. Agriculture Corp. v. Moore, 166 M 510, 534 P2d 859 (1975).

Diversion Into Fishpond Without Outlet Constituting Unauthorized New Appropriation: After the appointment of a Water Commissioner, there never was more than enough water in an adjudicated stream to supply the needs of the parties under their adjudicated rights. Thus, a diversion of water from the stream by one of them into a fishpond that had no outlet constituted an attempted new appropriation under this section. In the absence of a decree establishing a new use, the diversion was unauthorized and therefore properly prohibited by an order of court in a proceeding under section 89-1015, R.C.M. 1947 (85-5-301). Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Extent of Rights:

When a water right is allowed under the provisions of section 89-829, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and sections 89-830 through 89-838, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), it is governed by all the provisions of the decree by which the waters in the stream were adjudicated, just as if the new appropriator had been a party to that decree. The new appropriator has the right to use the waters in the order of his juniority and divert them as of the date of his appropriation when he does not interfere with the superior rights of others. Quigley v. McIntosh, 88 M 103, 290 P 266 (1930).

Where there is an appropriator of water from an adjudicated stream who is simply a junior appropriator who may use the water subject to the superior rights of others, the decree should contain provisions respecting the use of the water as between senior and junior appropriators consistent with those contained in the original decree. The decree should also contain restrictions, such as that the new appropriator should cease to divert water when the volume of water flowing in the stream is equal to or less than that of the prior decreed rights. Quigley v. McIntosh, 88 M 103, 290 P 266 (1930).

Purpose: One seeking to appropriate water from an adjudicated stream under section 89-829, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and sections 89-830 through 89-838, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), may do so upon compliance with the conditions prescribed without regard to whether the water sought to be appropriated is a part of the normal flow or excess or surplus water, i.e., water flowing in the stream in addition to adjudicated waters. The purpose of the act is to provide security for those whose rights have theretofore been adjudicated and to compel the new appropriator to take his water right subject to the prior rights fixed, after litigation, by the decree of a competent court. Quigley v. McIntosh, 88 M 103, 290 P 266 (1930).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-835, R.C.M. 1947 ADJUDICATING RIGHTS OF PERSONS NOT PARTY TO DECREE

"May" Not Mandatory: The provision of section 89-835, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), declaring that a claimant may petition the District Court for an order making him a party to the decree and establishing his right thereunder, is not mandatory in the sense that if such party fails to take advantage of the permission granted, he will be barred from thereafter complaining. State ex rel. McKnight v. District Court, 111 M 520, 111 P2d 292 (1941).

Trial Court Ignoring Predecessor's Claim: In a water right suit plaintiff relied upon the decree entered in a former action involving the same right as res judicata, in which defendants' predecessor had appeared and answered making claim to a certain right. However, the trial court had failed to make disposition of the claim and apparently ignored it. Thus, defendants were not barred by the former decree from having their right adjudicated. Missoula Light & Water Co. v. Hughes, 106 M 355, 77 P2d 1041 (1938).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-839, R.C.M. 1947 EFFECT OF DECREE UPON SUBSEQUENT APPROPRIATIONS

Stipulation of Parties:

This section could not relate to water rights acquired prior to its passage and approval and does not attempt to make decrees binding upon subsequent appropriators but merely makes them "prima facie evidence of the facts therein found". It is applicable only to decrees in actions "prosecuted in good faith" and "based upon evidence introduced and not upon stipulations or admissions of the parties". State ex rel. McKnight v. District Court, 111 M 520, 111 P2d 292 (1941).

Under this section the court in water right suits is not bound by a stipulation of the parties as to the general character and quality of the soil of their respective lands or the amount of water required for their successful and economical irrigation. Allen v. Petrick, 69 M 373, 222 P 451 (1924).

Decrees Showing Anticipation of Future Needs: When the intention is made manifest, the court must take into consideration prospective or future needs in entering a water right decree, and mere description of lands does not justify the extended use of water in the absence of recitals in the pleadings and decree and proof in the record that appropriation is made in anticipation of future needs. In reviewing the acts of the Water Commissioner in distributing water, in a proceeding under section 89-1015, R.C.M. 1947 (85-5-301), reasonable diligence must be shown to have been exercised since entry of the decree in developing such needs. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Inapplicable in Contempt Proceeding to Enforce Original Decree: A plaintiff instituted a contempt proceeding to enforce a 1914 water rights decree against a successor in interest of a party to the decree. As the contempt proceeding was not being brought against persons appropriating water subsequent to the decree, this section was inapplicable. Delmoe v. District Court, 100 M 131, 46 P2d 39 (1935).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-840, R.C.M. 1947 APPROPRIATIONS OF WATER SUBJECT TO PRIOR DECREES ADJUDICATING RIGHTS

Appropriations From Adjudicated Streams: This section, regulating the method by which appropriations of water from adjudicated streams could be made, was not exclusive, but sections 89-829 through 89-838, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), amendatory thereof, were exclusive. Donich v. Johnson, 77 M 229, 250 P 963 (1926).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER SECTION 89-844, R.C.M. 1947 EFFECT OF DECREE

Presumption of Correctness When Relied Upon: Where, in a suit for damage to crops resulting from wrongful diversion of water, the judgment in a former suit between the same parties was relied on in aid of the plea of res judicata, the disputable presumption is that the proceedings in the previous suit were regular under section 93-1301-7, R.C.M. 1947 (26-1-602). Cocanougher v. Mont. Life Ins. Co., 103 M 536, 64 P2d 845 (1936).

85-2-212. Order by supreme court.Compiler's Comments

Water Rights Order and Extension: Pursuant to Montana Supreme Court Order No. 14833 (July 13, 1979), every person asserting a claim to an existing right for the use of water prior to July 1, 1973, was ordered to file a statement of claim for the right with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation no later than January 1, 1982. Failure to file a claim will result in a conclusive presumption that the water right or claimed water right has been abandoned. See In re Water Rights Order, 36 St. Rep. 1228 (1979) (apparently not reported in Montana Reports). The filing deadline was extended to April 30, 1982, with the court stating that no more extensions would be granted. See Supreme Court Order 14833 (Dec. 7, 1981).

Case Notes

Post-1973 Evidence Unpersuasive as to Adjudication of Existing Water Right: The purpose of statewide water rights adjudication is to adjudicate those rights as they existed on July 1, 1973, the effective date of the Montana Water Use Act. Therefore, the Water Court did not err in refusing to consider evidence pertaining to a water right claimant's actions taken after 1973 as showing a lack of intent to abandon the water right. In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992).

85-2-213. Notice of order.Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 389 deleted former (1)(c) that read: "(c) It shall provide a sufficient number of copies of the order to the county treasurers before October 15, 1979, 1980, 1981, and 1982, and the county treasurers shall enclose a copy of the order with each statement of property taxes mailed in 1979, 1980, 1981, and 1982. In the implementation of this subsection, the department shall provide reimbursement to each county treasurer for the reasonable additional costs incurred by the treasurer arising from the inclusion of the order required by this section. The department shall be reimbursed for such costs from the water right adjudication account created by 85-2-241"; deleted former (2) and (3) that read: "(2) (a) To ensure that all persons who failed to file a claim of existing right under 85-2-221(1) are provided notice of the opportunity to file a claim on or before July 1, 1996, as provided in 85-2-221(3), the department shall provide notice as follows:

(i) It shall, in October 1993, April and October 1994, April and October 1995, and April 1996, cause a notice of the right to file a claim in accordance with 85-2-221(3) to be published in all daily newspapers in the state and in at least one newspaper in each county in the state.

(ii) It shall, in October 1993, April and October 1994, April and October 1995, and April 1996, provide copies of the notice, in writing, to the press services with offices located in Helena.

(iii) It shall, by October 1993, provide copies of the notice to the United States attorney general and to all Indian tribes in Montana.

(iv) It shall cause copies of the notice to be posted in a conspicuous location in each county courthouse and department field office in the state and to be maintained in that location through July 1, 1996.

(v) It may also, in its discretion, provide notice in any other manner that will effectuate the purposes of 85-2-221(3).

(b) The water court shall include notice of 85-2-221(3) in all notices, decrees, or orders issued pursuant to 85-2-231 or 85-2-232 after July 1, 1993, until July 1, 1996.

(3) Notice given in accordance with subsection (2) must at a minimum indicate that any claim of existing right not filed with the department before April 30, 1982, may be filed by physically filing it with the department on or before July 1, 1996, or sending it by United States mail, postmarked on or before July 1, 1996. Additionally, the notice must indicate that under 85-2-226, a failure to file or mail the claim results in the forfeiture for all time of any existing rights to the use of water that are not claimed in accordance with the provisions of 85-2-221"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 629 inserted (2) and (3) regarding notice requirements applicable to additional filing period. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution provides that all existing rights to the use of any waters for any useful or beneficial purpose are recognized and confirmed; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution requires the Legislature to provide for the administration, control, and regulation of water rights and to establish a system of centralized records for such rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature established a procedure for the general adjudication of existing rights to the use of water and provided in section 85-2-226, MCA, that the failure to file a claim of existing right on or before the deadline established under section 85-2-221, MCA, would establish a conclusive abandonment of the right; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Adjudication of the Water Rights Within the Yellowstone River, 253 Mont. 167, 832 P.2d 1210 (1992), has determined that the failure to file a statement of claim to an existing right to the use of water on or before April 30, 1982, resulted in the forfeiture of that right; and

WHEREAS, it has come to the attention of the Legislature that the forfeiture of water rights for failure to timely file a claim has in some instances caused hardship, and the Legislature accordingly desires to provide water rights claimants with one more opportunity to file a water rights claim in the general adjudication; and

WHEREAS, in so doing, the Legislature recognizes that the adjudication process will not be completed for many years but that a substantial amount of progress has already occurred in the adjudication, specifically in the area of water rights compacts with Indian tribes and the federal government and in decrees and stipulations involving individual claimants, and thus the Legislature believes that it is necessary to ensure that parties who have been recognized as having filed claims on or before April 30, 1982, and holders of federal reserved water rights are not adversely affected by the inclusion of new parties in the adjudication by subjecting the right to file those claims in remission to certain terms and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide protection for timely filed claimants from incurring additional costs or from being adversely affected by justifiable reliance on the presumption of abandonment; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide a conclusive adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature recognizes that according a privilege to file additional statements of claim presents a potential for abuse by those who may attempt to refile previously adjudicated claims, and the Legislature thus believes that the courts should deal harshly with any abuses by such measures as, without limitation, the imposition of sanctions under Rule 11, Montana Rules of Civil Procedure; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature determines that the deadline for filing water right claims as provided in this bill appropriately balances the interests at stake in the adjudication.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds it is appropriate to make the following amendments to sections 85-2-102, 85-2-211 [now repealed], 85-2-213, 85-2-221, 85-2-225, 85-2-226, 85-2-234, 85-2-237, and 85-2-306, MCA, in order to provide for the acceptance of late claims to the use of water under the conditions set forth in this bill. Additionally, the Legislature directs the Water Policy Committee, in coordination with the Department of Justice, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, and the Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, to conduct an interim study regarding certain late claim issues."

Saving Clause: Section 11, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] does not affect proceedings that were begun before [passage and approval of this act] [approved May 11, 1993] in which relief for damages have been sought based upon the diversion, impoundment, or withdrawal of water without a water right established under state law."

Severability — Partial Nonseverability: Section 12, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) If a part of [this act] is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of [this act] is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications.

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon [section 4], which amends 85-2-221, and that if one part of [section 4], except subsection (3)(f)(ii), is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts of [this act] are invalid."

85-2-215. Consolidation of matters.

Case Notes

"May" Not Mandatory: The provision of section 89-835, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), declaring that a claimant may petition the District Court for an order making him a party to the decree and establishing his right thereunder, is not mandatory in the sense that if such party fails to take advantage of the permission granted, he will be barred thereafter from complaining. State ex rel. McKnight v. District Court, 111 M 520, 111 P2d 292 (1941).

Trial Court Ignoring Predecessor's Claim: The plaintiff relied, in a water right suit, upon the decree entered in a former action involving the same right as res judicata, in which defendants' predecessor had appeared and answered making claim to a certain right. However, the trial court had failed to make disposition of the claim and apparently had ignored it. Thus, defendants were not barred by the former decree from having their right adjudicated. Missoula Light & Water Co. v. Hughes, 106 M 355, 77 P2d 1041 (1938).

Quieting Title: Action under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), to determine relative rights and priorities of parties claiming interests in waters of a stream, while in personam, is in effect one to quiet title to real property. Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 84 F2d 126 (9th Cir. 1936).

Appeal From Part of Judgment: Under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), where two or more parties are awarded a water right under the terms of the decree, each of them recovers a judgment against the other or others; such a judgment is divisible into parts, and therefore an appeal lies from a part thereof. Wills v. Morris, 100 M 504, 50 P2d 858 (1935).

Damages for Wrongful Diversion of Water:

Under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), where several parties have diverted water so as to injure the crops of another, they cannot be held jointly liable for the acts of each other nor can they be sued in one action for the entire damage, with or without an apportionment of the damage. Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913).

Section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not apply to an action at law for damages for the wrongful diversion of water where there is no allegation in the complaint that would authorize the court to grant equitable relief and where there is no evidence to show that the plaintiff is entitled to such relief. Miles v. Du Bey, 15 M 340, 39 P 313 (1895). See Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913).

Equitable Actions: Section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), contemplates equitable actions only, in which relative priorities and conflicting rights of all parties may be settled and where the damages claimed are a mere incident. Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913); Miles v. Du Bey, 15 M 340, 39 P 313 (1895).

Rights of Parties Defendant:

The first provision of section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), is permissive only. Thus, there was no presumption that the respective interests of joint owners in an undivided water right had been adjudicated among themselves in a suit in which their predecessors were codefendants, in the absence of a showing to that effect upon the face of the decree or the judgment roll. Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

The Legislature, in enacting section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not state that it intended to compel parties, made defendants to a water right suit pursuant to its provisions, to litigate their respective titles as between themselves. Further, it is doubtful that the Legislature has the power to coerce them to do so. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

Pleadings:

Under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the District Court may settle the relative priorities and rights of all the parties to a water right suit in one judgment only when pleadings have been framed so as to justify such settlement. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), distinguished and followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

The provision of section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), is permissive and not mandatory. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), distinguished and followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

All Parties Antagonists: Under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), every party in an action to settle the relative priorities and rights of the parties to the use of the waters of a stream is an antagonist to every other party. McNinch v. Crawford, 30 M 297, 76 P 698 (1904). See Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908); Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

Injunction: Under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), property owners having the right to divert the waters of a creek for irrigation purposes may join in a suit to restrain a third person from diminishing the volume of water to the use of which they are entitled. Beach v. Spokane Ranch & Water Co., 25 M 379, 65 P 111 (1901).

85-2-217. Suspension of adjudication.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 103 in third and fourth sentences extended period from July 1, 2005, until July 1, 2009. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

1997 Amendments: Chapter 44 in third sentence, in two places, substituted "July 1, 2005" for "July 1, 1999"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

Chapter 497 in second and sixth sentences, near middle, inserted "federal non-Indian and Indian"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 22, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

1991 Amendment: In two places substituted July 1, 1999, for July 1, 1993; and made minor change in style. Amendment effective May 17, 1991.

1987 Amendment: Extended suspension period by substituting "1993" for "1987" in two places.

1985 Amendment: Changed 1985 to 1987 in two places.

Select Committee Bill: Chapter 667, L. 1985, was introduced at the request of the Select Committee on Indian Affairs (now Law and Justice Interim Committee). See Committee report published December 1984 by the Montana Legislative Council.

1981 Amendment: Deleted "From the time of filing the petition required in 85-2-211 until July 1, 1982, and" from the beginning of the section; substituted "proceedings" for "actions" before "to generally adjudicate" in the first sentence; substituted "and federal reserved water rights of those tribes and federal agencies which are negotiating" for "from a source of water in question under this part" in the first sentence; deleted "unless an action is commenced or is pending by or on behalf of an Indian tribe to adjudicate water from that source other than as provided for in Title 85, chapter 2. In such case, the suspension is maintained only if the action is dismissed or if the parties to the action stipulate to the suspension during compact negotiations of all further proceedings in the action except the determination of jurisdictional issues and an order is so issued" after "are suspended" in the first sentence; added the last five sentences describing procedures to terminate suspension of state water rights adjudication proceedings if no compact on reserved water rights is approved by the state and tribes or federal agencies by July 1, 1985.

Case Notes

Supreme Court Jurisdiction Over Water Court — Not Barred by Suspension Provision: After the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Ariz. v. San Carlos Apache Tribe, 463 US 545, 77 L Ed 2d 837, 103 S Ct 3201 (1983), that the McCarran amendment, 43 U.S.C. §666, removed "whatever limitations the enabling acts or federal policy may have originally placed on state court jurisdiction" over the adjudication of Indian water rights, the state requested that the Montana Supreme Court exercise its powers of supervisory control over the state Water Court concerning the adjudication of federal reserved water rights. In assuming jurisdiction, the Supreme Court ruled that the request for supervisory control is not barred by the suspension provisions of this section, as the present proceeding will not generally adjudicate any Indian reserved water rights or any federal reserved water rights. This proceeding will consider the following issues: (1) is the state Water Court prohibited from exercising jurisdiction over Indian reserved water rights based on the disclaimer clause of Art. I of the Montana Constitution or otherwise; (2) is the Montana Water Use Act, Title 85, ch. 2, adequate to adjudicate Indian reserved water rights; and (3) is the Montana Water Use Act adequate to adjudicate federal reserved water rights held, on its own behalf, by the United States or any of its agencies. State ex rel. Greely v. Water Court, 214 M 143, 691 P2d 833, 41 St. Rep. 2373 (1984).

State Court Jurisdiction Over Federal and Indian Water Rights: The McCarran amendment, 43 U.S.C. §666, granting state courts jurisdiction over the United States in litigation involving a comprehensive adjudication of water rights, removed "whatever limitations the enabling acts or federal policy may have originally placed on state court jurisdiction" over the adjudication of Indian water rights in actions brought by the United States on behalf of an Indian tribe as well as in actions brought by an Indian tribe itself. Assuming that the state adjudication procedure is adequate and complies with state law, dismissal of adjudication actions filed in federal District Court out of deference to state adjudication proceedings was proper. Ariz. v. San Carlos Apache Tribe, 463 US 545, 77 L Ed 2d 837, 103 S Ct 3201 (1983), reversing N. Cheyenne Tribe v. Adsit, 668 F2d 1080 (9th Cir. 1982); followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

85-2-218. Process and criteria for designating priority basins or subbasins.

Compiler's Comments

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 651, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is provided for this bill because the legislature desires to indicate to the Montana water courts and the department of natural resources and conservation the basins that should receive priority adjudication efforts."

The legislature finds and determines the basins described in I through IX below to be priority basins. The basins are selected according to the criteria in section 10 [85-2-218] of this bill and the priority provided for the Milk River basin in 85-2-321. They are listed by geographical areas because it is assumed priority basins are needed in each area to ensure efficient use of water court and department staff. The legislature recognizes that deviations from the order of priority provided may be necessary to ensure efficiency in the adjudication process, that the water judge may vary efforts from area to area based on available resources, and that additional priority basins may be added upon petition to and determination by the water judge.

I. Basins in the Billings area:

Yellowstone River from Bridger Creek to the Clark's Fork of the Yellowstone River (43QJ)

Yellowstone River above and including Bridger Creek (43B)

Sweet Grass Creek (43BV)

Stillwater River (43C)

Boulder River tributary of Yellowstone River (43BJ)

The legislature intends by the amendment to 85-2-243 in section 8 of this bill that it be interpreted to restrict the department to utilize funds that have been appropriated for the adjudication program. The department's funding level in adjudicating water claims for the 1987-89 biennium is as specifically set forth in House Bill No. 2."

85-2-221. Filing of claim of existing water right — filing late claim.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 629 inserted (3) and (4) establishing a procedure for filing of late claims. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution provides that all existing rights to the use of any waters for any useful or beneficial purpose are recognized and confirmed; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution requires the Legislature to provide for the administration, control, and regulation of water rights and to establish a system of centralized records for such rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature established a procedure for the general adjudication of existing rights to the use of water and provided in section 85-2-226, MCA, that the failure to file a claim of existing right on or before the deadline established under section 85-2-221, MCA, would establish a conclusive abandonment of the right; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Adjudication of the Water Rights Within the Yellowstone River, 253 Mont. 167, 832 P.2d 1210 (1992), has determined that the failure to file a statement of claim to an existing right to the use of water on or before April 30, 1982, resulted in the forfeiture of that right; and

WHEREAS, it has come to the attention of the Legislature that the forfeiture of water rights for failure to timely file a claim has in some instances caused hardship, and the Legislature accordingly desires to provide water rights claimants with one more opportunity to file a water rights claim in the general adjudication; and

WHEREAS, in so doing, the Legislature recognizes that the adjudication process will not be completed for many years but that a substantial amount of progress has already occurred in the adjudication, specifically in the area of water rights compacts with Indian tribes and the federal government and in decrees and stipulations involving individual claimants, and thus the Legislature believes that it is necessary to ensure that parties who have been recognized as having filed claims on or before April 30, 1982, and holders of federal reserved water rights are not adversely affected by the inclusion of new parties in the adjudication by subjecting the right to file those claims in remission to certain terms and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide protection for timely filed claimants from incurring additional costs or from being adversely affected by justifiable reliance on the presumption of abandonment; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide a conclusive adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature recognizes that according a privilege to file additional statements of claim presents a potential for abuse by those who may attempt to refile previously adjudicated claims, and the Legislature thus believes that the courts should deal harshly with any abuses by such measures as, without limitation, the imposition of sanctions under Rule 11, Montana Rules of Civil Procedure; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature determines that the deadline for filing water right claims as provided in this bill appropriately balances the interests at stake in the adjudication.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds it is appropriate to make the following amendments to sections 85-2-102, 85-2-211 [now repealed], 85-2-213, 85-2-221, 85-2-225, 85-2-226, 85-2-234, 85-2-237, and 85-2-306, MCA, in order to provide for the acceptance of late claims to the use of water under the conditions set forth in this bill. Additionally, the Legislature directs the Water Policy Committee, in coordination with the Department of Justice, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, and the Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, to conduct an interim study regarding certain late claim issues."

Late Claim Interim Study — Water Policy Committee: Section 10, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) The water policy committee, in coordination with the department of justice, the department of natural resources and conservation, and the reserved water rights compact commission, shall conduct an interim study analyzing the need for and desirability and impacts of allowing the remission of forfeited water rights in addition to the remissions authorized under the provisions of [this act] [Ch. 629, L. 1993]. The study must analyze the impacts of additional forfeiture remission on:

(a) the general stream adjudication process, including but not limited to the issues of adequacy and Montana's and the federal government's concurrent water rights adjudication jurisdiction;

(b) the federal government and Indian tribes regarding existing and future negotiated water rights compacts, including but not limited to the issues of equal protection;

(c) timely claimants' water use;

(d) timely claimants' legal rights, including but not limited to constitutional requirements regarding the taking of property;

(e) the potential reduction in agricultural production resulting from not granting additional forfeiture remissions and the associated social and economic impacts;

(f) the issue of fairness to both late and timely claimants;

(g) the potential increased costs to the state and to late and timely claimants;

(h) potential losses in revenue to the state resulting from the state's failure to file claims to existing water rights on or before April 30, 1982;

(i) implications involving the state's trust responsibilities;

(j) potential litigation against the state by private parties; and

(k) impacts on municipal and county governments resulting from late claims.

(2) The study must include an analysis of the potential for identifying individuals or classes of individuals whose additional forfeiture remission could be authorized in a manner that would have an acceptable impact on those issues identified under subsection (1). The classes of late claimants include but are not limited to previously decreed water rights holders and classes established according to filing date.

(3) The study must be completed in consultation with other relevant state and federal agencies, relevant groups and organizations, and other interested and affected citizens.

(4) The water policy committee shall report the results of the study to the 54th legislature by October 1, 1994. The report must include any legislative or other policy options recommended by the water policy committee."

Saving Clause: Section 11, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] does not affect proceedings that were begun before [passage and approval of this act] [approved May 11, 1993] in which relief for damages have been sought based upon the diversion, impoundment, or withdrawal of water without a water right established under state law."

Severability — Partial Nonseverability: Section 12, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) If a part of [this act] is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of [this act] is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications.

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon [section 4], which amends 85-2-221, and that if one part of [section 4], except subsection (3)(f)(ii), is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts of [this act] are invalid."

Water Rights Order and Extension: Pursuant to Montana Supreme Court Order No. 14833 (July 13, 1979), every person asserting a claim to an existing right for the use of water prior to July 1, 1973, was ordered to file a statement of claim for the right with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation no later than January 1, 1982. Failure to file a claim will result in a conclusive presumption that the water right or claimed water right has been abandoned. See In re Water Rights Order, 36 St. Rep. 1228 (1979) (apparently not reported in Montana Reports). The filing deadline was extended to April 30, 1982, with the court stating that no more extensions would be granted. See Supreme Court Order 14833 (Dec. 7, 1981).

85-2-222. Exemptions.Case Notes

Water Right Held Through Pre-1973 Mesne Conveyances — Summary Judgment Incorrectly Granted — Abandonment of Right Factually Dependent: Duncan, who lived on a tract of land in Madison County, used water from a spring located on property (the large parcel) now owned separately from the parcel (the small parcel) lived on by Duncan. In 1950, Duncan conveyed all the property in what is now the large and small parcels to Baker. In 1951, Baker divided the property, conveying the large parcel and all appurtenances to Halse and reserving the small parcel for herself. Baker made no express reservation of water rights with the reserved property, and the deed to Halse conveying the large parcel made no express grant of water rights. For the next 10 years, Baker made no use of the house located on the small parcel. In 1961, Baker conveyed the small parcel to the Hunts, expressly conveying water rights on the property. In 1963, Halse filed a declaration of vested ground water rights for the "total flow of all springs" located on the large parcel. Fossec, who acquired the large parcel from Halse, conveyed it, through mesne conveyances, to M.S. Consulting. The Hunts conveyed the small parcel, through mesne conveyances, to the Axtells. All uses of the water were for livestock and domestic use. In 1993, the Axtells filed a notice of water rights with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. M.S. Consulting subsequently served the Axtells with notice that their water rights would be cut off in 45 days, and the Axtells brought an action to enjoin the discontinuance of their water supply. The District Court granted summary judgment for the Axtells, and M.S. Consulting appealed. The Supreme Court reviewed the background of the prior appropriation law in Montana, noting that because the current statutes recognize existing water rights, the law before the 1973 statutes were enacted is still the law with regard to water rights acquired before 1973. The Supreme Court reviewed the pre-1973 law and concluded that the water rights appurtenant to all the property passed to Baker but that there was a factual issue whether, as a result of Baker's nonuse of the property and its water rights for over 10 years, Baker had abandoned the water rights conveyed to her by Duncan. If the abandonment occurred, there was no reservation of conveyance and no right to use of the water after that period of nonuse. The issue of abandonment, the Supreme Court noted, depended in turn upon several other issues, such as whether Baker intended to abandon her water right. The Supreme Court also agreed with M.S. Consulting that several other issues of fact raised by the company may also exist, although it noted that these other issues were only material if the District Court ruled a particular way on the question of abandonment. Because there were genuine issues of material fact, the Supreme Court held that the District Court erred in granting summary judgment to the Axtells. Axtell v. M.S. Consulting, 1998 MT 64, 288 M 150, 955 P2d 1362, 55 St. Rep. 276 (1998).

85-2-223. Public recreational uses.Case Notes

Fish, Wildlife, and Recreational Purposes as Valid Basis for Appropriative Water Use — Diversion Not Requisite Element of Appropriation When Diversion Not Required — Bean Lake Overruled: The Water Court ruled that five pre-1973 water rights claims based on diversions for fish, wildlife, or recreation were potentially invalid based on the holding in In re Water Rights in Dearborn Drainage, 234 M 331, 766 P2d 228 (1988), commonly known as the Bean Lake decision, because under Montana law before 1973, no appropriation right was recognized for fish, wildlife, or recreation except through a Murphy right statute. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks appealed. The Supreme Court noted that the common-law elements of a valid appropriation are intent, notice, diversion, and application to a beneficial use and held that to the extent that the Bean Lake decision suggests that diversions for fish, wildlife, or recreation are not beneficial uses, that case is overruled. The court went on to address the Bean Lake rationale that claims for the nondiversionary use of water for fish, wildlife, or recreation are not recognized under the prior appropriation doctrine, noting that although most traditional uses necessitate a diversion for application to a beneficial use, the prior appropriation doctrine's history supports the holding that a diversion is not a requisite element of an appropriation when it is not a physical necessity for application to a beneficial use. Thus, instream and inflake appropriations for beneficial uses may be valid when the purpose does not require a diversion. Beneficial use rather than diversion is the touchstone of the prior appropriation doctrine. Montana has validated nondiversionary appropriations, so Montana law prior to 1973 cannot be said to absolutely require a diversion for a valid appropriation of water. The conclusion in the Bean Lake decision that the framers of the 1972 Montana Constitution did not accept fish, wildlife, or recreation uses as a valid basis for appropriative water rights is not reflected in the convention transcripts, which indicate that it was the fear of future limitations on fish, wildlife, and recreation rights, rather than a belief that those rights did not exist, that led to the deletion of proposed constitutional language specifically referencing those uses. Therefore, the Bean Lake conclusion that prior to 1973, Montana did not recognize appropriations for fish, wildlife, and recreation, whether diversionary or nondiversionary, was overruled. State's Claim Asserted in Good Faith — Attorney Fees Not Allowed: Under the American rule that a party in a civil action is generally not entitled to attorney fees absent a specific contractual or statutory provision, the party who prevailed against the state in a case involving the public's recreational water use rights is not entitled to such fees. The Montana Water Use Act provides that the adjudication process is adversarial in nature and does not determine that the prevailing party in an ordinary water dispute is entitled to attorney fees. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks v. Mont. Stockgrowers Ass'n, Inc., 240 M 39, 782 P2d 898, 46 St. Rep. 1925 (1989). The American rule was applied in First Nat'l Bank of Glasgow v. First Sec. Bank of Mont., 260 M 38, 857 P2d 726, 50 St. Rep. 931 (1993).

State's Right to a Pre-1973 Appropriation Use Right to Bean Lake for Recreation, Fish, and Wildlife: As part of the statewide water rights adjudication process, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks filed a claim for a pre-1973 "use" water right appropriation for recreation, fishing, and wildlife purposes in the waters of Bean Lake. The Department had stocked the lake, maintained the fishery resource, made studies of lake surface levels and fish population, and enforced rules relating to motor boats, and the public had made general use of the lake. The Department had been involved with the lake since 1933 and in 1964 obtained a warranty deed to 16.33 acres abutting the lake. The Department's use of the lake was beneficial within the meaning of the appropriation doctrine, but the Water Court correctly denied the claim because of a lack of diversion, intent, and notice. It is clear that under Montana law before 1973, no appropriation right was recognized for recreation, fish, and wildlife purposes, except through a Murphy right statute. The prevailing legal theory was that some form of diversion or capture of water was necessary for an appropriation, though some forms of nondiversionary water rights were given appropriation status. Since the law recognized no appropriation, the Department and public could not have intended one and adverse appropriators could not have had notice of a claim. In re Water Rights in Dearborn Drainage, 234 M 331, 766 P2d 228, 45 St. Rep. 1948 (1988), overruled in re Adjudication of Existing Water Rights of Basin 41I, 2002 MT 216, 311 M 327, 55 P3d 396 (2002).

Use Right of State in Bean Lake — Standing of Stockgrowers Association to Enter Suit — General Test for Any Association: As part of the statewide water rights adjudication process, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks filed a claim for a pre-1973 "use" water right appropriation for recreation, fishing, and wildlife purposes in the waters of Bean Lake. The Montana Stockgrowers Association was a proper party in the case. The Water Court required statewide notice and invitation for others to appear. The Association stated that its members could be affected, and the two other potential appropriators in Bean Lake were members of the Association. The Supreme Court adopted the following as the test to determine the standing of an association to appear as a party on behalf of its members: (1) its members would otherwise have standing in their own right; (2) the interests it seeks to protect are germane to the organization's purpose; and (3) neither the claim asserted nor the relief requested requires the participation of individual members in the suit. In re Water Rights in Dearborn Drainage, 234 M 331, 766 P2d 228, 45 St. Rep. 1948 (1988).

Water Right of State in Bean Lake — Drainage Adjudication Process — Appealability of State's Claim Under Finality of Decision Rules: As part of the statewide water rights adjudication process, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks filed a claim for a pre-1973 "use" water right appropriation for recreation, fishing, and wildlife purposes in the waters of Bean Lake. In recent consolidated cases relating to drainage areas, the Supreme Court dismissed appeals because a certificate had not been obtained under Rule 54(b), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20). In effect, the court held that the causes were not final for purposes of appeal. In this case, the court accepted jurisdiction under its power of general supervisory control over the Water Courts. The Department had filed 15 to 17 similar claims in various drainages, the same issues would recur, and a decision in the present case would help speed the water adjudication process. In re Water Rights in Dearborn Drainage, 234 M 331, 766 P2d 228, 45 St. Rep. 1948 (1988).

Determination of Public's Right to Use Dearborn River — Standing of Coalition of Citizens: In action for determination of the public's right to use the Dearborn River, whether the Montana Coalition for Stream Access, Inc., had standing to bring suit was immaterial because the Department of State Lands (functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks were also plaintiffs. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Case Notes

Judicial Notice of Maps and Descriptions on Appeal: In a dispute over control of an irrigation district's headgate, the Supreme Court permitted submission on appeal of government survey descriptions and maps that had not been introduced as evidence at trial. The court reasoned: first, that the commission comments to Rule 201, Montana Rules of Evidence, indicate that published maps or charts are included within the Rule's scope; and second, that maps and descriptions are acceptable articles of evidence by which to show a water right in the adjudication process. In re Establishment & Organization of Ward Irrigation District, 216 M 315, 701 P2d 721, 42 St. Rep. 824 (1985), distinguished in *Frank v. 1999 Amendment: Chapter 389 in (3)(a) at end substituted "general fund" for "water rights adjudication account for the examination of late claims by the department and for the publication of notices by the department as required under 85-2-213(2)"; at end of (3)(b) substituted "general fund" for "water rights adjudication account"; deleted (3)(c) that read: "(c) For a statement of claim that was filed after April 30, 1982, but prior to July 1, 1993, or for a statement of claim filed by a state agency, the processing fee provided for in subsection (3)(a) must be paid on or before a date to be established by the department by rule, but no later than July 1, 1999"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 629 inserted (3) assessing and providing for disposition of a processing fee; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Case Notes

Constitutional Validity of Conclusive Presumption of Water Right Abandonment: The legislative definition of water right abandonment set out in this section, based on failure to file a timely claim of an existing right, does not require any individualized determinations but rather applies to all persons who filed after the deadline. Water Court hearings were available to make the individual determination as to whether the deadline was met. As established in U.S. v. Locke, 471 US 84, 85 L Ed 2d 64, 105 S Ct 1785 (1985), a Legislature can enact substantive rules of law that treat property as forfeited under conditions that the common law would not consider sufficient to indicate abandonment. The legislative choice to make the presumption of abandonment conclusive rather than rebuttable is constitutionally permissible. In re Adjudication of Existing Yellowstone River Water Rights, 253 M 167, 832 P2d 1210, 49 St. Rep. 413 (1992), distinguishing Vlandis v. Kline, 412 US 441, 37 L Ed 2d 63, 93 S Ct 2230 (1973).

Duty to File Water Rights — Due Process Satisfied: The objective of the Legislature in enacting this section was to meet the mandate of Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., to establish a system of centralized records for the administration of water rights. Before water rights could be adjudicated statewide, it was essential that existing rights be firmly established. This section provides a reasonable means of compelling comprehensive participation, extinguishing duplicative and exaggerated rights, and ridding local records of stale, unused water claims. The filing duty was not burdensome, unreasonable, or unrelated to the legitimate and proper legislative objective. Procedural due process considerations were sufficiently addressed through: (1) ample published and personal notice over a 4-year period; (2) an expanded opportunity to file a claim through an extension of the filing deadline; (3) an adequate opportunity for each claimant to show that he did not intend to abandon or forfeit water rights; and (4) an opportunity for all late claimants to request an evidentiary hearing with the Water Court to determine whether the deadline had in fact been missed. In re Adjudication of Existing Yellowstone River Water Rights, 253 M 167, 832 P2d 1210, 49 St. Rep. 413 (1992).

Forfeiture of Water Rights Not Considered Unjust Taking Without Compensation: Former water rights holders who forfeited their rights through failure to meet the filing deadline contended that this section was an unconstitutional taking without just compensation under state and federal laws because invalidating existing water rights for failure to file extended beyond what was reasonably necessary to preserve the public welfare. However, the deprivation occurred only as the result of the appropriators' neglect or the neglect of their predecessors and not as the result of excessive or unreasonable state action. This section does not result in taking property without just compensation because the state is not required to compensate the owner for the consequences of the owner's own neglect. In re Adjudication of Existing Yellowstone River Water Rights, 253 M 167, 832 P2d 1210, 49 St. Rep. 413 (1992). See also Texaco, Inc. v. Short, 454 US 516, 70 L Ed 2d 738, 102 S Ct 781 (1982).

Forfeiture of Water Rights Not Impairment of Contracts: Former water rights holders who forfeited their rights through failure to meet the filing deadline contended that this section constituted an impairment of contracts by rendering invalid water rights upon which substantial contractual relationships were based. However, failure to demonstrate the existence of any specific contract, let alone its impairment, was fatal to the impairment of contracts claim under either the state or federal constitution. In re Adjudication of Existing Yellowstone River Water Rights, 253 M 167, 832 P2d 1210, 49 St. Rep. 413 (1992).

Forfeiture of Water Rights Not Violative of Equal Protection: Former water rights holders who forfeited their rights through failure to meet the filing deadline contended that this section violated constitutional equal protection guarantees by imposing an arbitrary deadline that unreasonably divided water claimants into two classes: one class of persons who retained their rights and another, late claimants, who lost their rights without opportunity to show good cause for the late filing. This classification was alleged to have resulted in discrimination against late filers who in good faith attempted to meet the statutory filing deadline. The Supreme Court found that this section does not create different classes and that all claimants were treated equally, provided equal notice, and given equal time to file by the given deadline. Any alleged classification was created by the late filers' own negligence, and the equal protection challenge failed. In re Adjudication of Existing Yellowstone River Water Rights, 253 M 167, 832 P2d 1210, 49 St. Rep. 413 (1992).

No Constitutional Protection for Pre-1973 Water Rights: Appellants who forfeited their water rights for failing to file a timely claim pursuant to this section contended that Art. IX, sec. 3, subsection (1), Mont. Const., provided a guarantee of existing water rights and that while the Legislature may constitutionally affirm and protect existing water rights, those rights may not be statutorily forfeited or extinguished. The Supreme Court held that that subsection does not establish immunity from sovereign powers for pre-1973 water rights. Water rights, like other property rights, are protected against unreasonable state action but do not have indefeasible status. The Legislature may enact constitutionally sound regulations, including the requirement for property owners to take affirmative actions to maintain their water rights. In re Adjudication of Existing Yellowstone River Water Rights, 253 M 167, 832 P2d 1210, 49 St. Rep. 413 (1992).

85-2-227. Claim to constitute prima facie evidence — relevant evidence — abandonment — criteria for presumption of municipal nonabandonment.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 213 in (3) at beginning inserted "Subject to the provisions of subsection (4)"; and inserted (4) making a legislative finding, in regard to a determination of abandonment under subsection (3), that a water right claimed for municipal use to water classified as A-Closed is a unique water suited to municipal water use and the claim is presumed to not be abandoned if any part of the water right has been used and there is evidence that there is a filtration waiver under federal law, of diversion or conveyance structures for future use of the water right, of a study including an assessment that using the water right is feasible and the amount of the water right is reasonable for future needs, or of facilities connected to the municipal water supply system to apply the water right to an emergency or supplemental municipal water supply. Amendment effective March 30, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 213, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, waters classified A-Closed pursuant to ARM 17.30.621 represent the highest quality waters in Montana; and

WHEREAS, almost all A-Closed drainages originate in remote, largely inaccessible, alpine settings that afford maximum natural protection for water quality; and

WHEREAS, there is either no habitation or development or extremely limited habitation or development in A-Closed drainages; and

WHEREAS, the existing municipal water rights in each of those drainages have been used for municipal supply purposes and will be needed in many of the drainages; and

WHEREAS, the high elevation alpine settings of A-Closed drainages provide gravity flowing systems that reduce the need for pumping facilities and related energy costs for Montana citizens; and

WHEREAS, the superior mineral, radiological, and microbiological quality of A-Closed waters renders them especially suitable as a raw source of municipal drinking water; and

WHEREAS, there are few gravity flow alternative sources for high quality municipal water, and therefore the loss of the right to use these high quality waters would result in the loss of a unique and irreplaceable natural resource.

THEREFORE, the 56th Legislature of the State of Montana finds that it is appropriate to enact legislation to establish a limited presumption of nonabandonment for municipal water rights situated in A-Closed basins."

Severability: Section 2, Ch. 213, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 174 inserted (2) allowing consideration of all relevant evidence in determining existing water rights; inserted (3) allowing admissibility of evidence of abandonment; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 28, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 7, Ch. 174, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

1989 Amendment: At beginning inserted "For purposes of adjudicating rights pursuant to this part"; after "85-2-221" inserted "or an amended claim of existing right"; and inserted second sentence providing that modified preliminary decree supersedes claim of existing right until issuance of final decree. Amendment effective April 21, 1989.

Saving Clause: Section 9, Ch. 604, L. 1989, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 10, Ch. 604, L. 1989, was a severability clause.

Retroactive and Prospective Applicability: Section 11, Ch. 604, L. 1989, provided: "(1) [This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all temporary preliminary decrees and preliminary decrees that have been issued by the Montana water courts and prospectively to all decrees issued on or after [the effective date of this act] [effective April 21, 1989].

(2) A person whose existing rights are determined in a temporary preliminary decree or a preliminary decree issued before [the effective date of this act] [effective April 21, 1989] may petition the water judge for relief concerning any matter in the decree prior to enforcement of the decree."

Case Notes

Water Right Held Through Pre-1973 Mesne Conveyances — Summary Judgment Incorrectly Granted — Abandonment of Right Factually Dependent: Duncan, who lived on a tract of land in Madison County, used water from a spring located on property (the large parcel) now owned separately from the parcel (the small parcel) lived on by Duncan. In 1950, Duncan conveyed all the property in what is now the large and small parcels to Baker. In 1951, Baker divided the property, conveying the large parcel and all appurtenances to Halse and reserving the small parcel for herself. Baker made no express reservation of water rights with the reserved property, and the deed to Halse conveying the large parcel made no express grant of water rights. For the next 10 years, Baker made no use of the house located on the small parcel. In 1961, Baker conveyed the small parcel to the Hunts, expressly conveying water rights on the property. In 1963, Halse filed a declaration of vested ground water rights for the "total flow of all springs" located on the large parcel. Fossec, who acquired the large parcel from Halse, conveyed it, through mesne conveyances, to M.S. Consulting. The Hunts conveyed the small parcel, through mesne conveyances, to the Axtells. All uses of the water were for livestock and domestic use. In 1993, the Axtells filed a notice of water rights with the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. M.S. Consulting subsequently served the Axtells with notice that their water rights would be cut off in 45 days, and the Axtells brought an action to enjoin the discontinuance of their water supply. The District Court granted summary judgment for the Axtells, and M.S. Consulting appealed. The Supreme Court reviewed the background of the prior appropriation law in Montana, noting that because the current statutes recognize existing water rights, the law before the 1973 statutes were enacted is still the law with regard to water rights acquired before 1973. The Supreme Court reviewed the pre-1973 law and concluded that the water rights appurtenant to all the property passed to Baker but that there was a factual issue whether, as a result of Baker's nonuse of the property and its water rights for over 10 years, Baker had abandoned the water rights conveyed to her by Duncan. If the abandonment occurred, there was no reservation of conveyance and no right to use of the water after that period of nonuse. The issue of abandonment, the Supreme Court noted, depended in turn upon several other issues, such as whether Baker intended to abandon her water right. The Supreme Court also agreed with M.S. Consulting that several other issues of fact raised by the company may also exist, although it noted that these other issues were only material if the District Court ruled a particular way on the question of abandonment. Because there were genuine issues of material fact, the Supreme Court held that the District Court erred in granting summary judgment to the Axtells. Axtell v. M.S. Consulting, 1998 MT 64, 288 M 150, 955 P2d 1362, 55 St. Rep. 276 (1998).

Additional Burden of Proof Beyond Prima Facie Showing: The defendant's introduction into evidence of three notices of appropriation established a prima facie case but did not completely discharge his burden of proof. The defendant still had the burden of showing that all water claimed had been put to a beneficial use within a reasonable period of time. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Insufficient Notice of Appropriation Not Prima Facie Evidence: In enacting section 89-814, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the Legislature established a reward for those parties who comply with section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), by considering a notice of appropriation as prima facie evidence of a claimed water right. However, the former section is to be construed strictly. If the notice does not comply with section 89-810, it is of no evidentiary value. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980). See also Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964); Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937); Peck v. Simon, 101 M 12, 52 P2d 164 (1935).

Contents of Record of Notice: The record of notice of appropriation of water conforming to the provisions of section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), and filed as provided therein is prima facie evidence of its contents. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938); Wills v. Morris, 100 M 514, 50 P2d 862 (1935). See Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935).

Delay in Recording Notice: Notices of appropriation of water not recorded within the time provided in the saving clause found in the original recording act (L. 1885, p. 131) are of no evidentiary value in proving the amount and date of an appropriation in case of noncompliance. Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937).

Verification of Notice:

A water right, when acquired by appropriation, amounts to a grant by the United States or the state, and the appropriator is in position of a grantee. The affidavit required by statute to be attached to a notice of appropriation serves the same purpose as and is of equal dignity with an acknowledgment. Where an appropriation was made by a firm composed of two brothers and the affidavit accompanying the notice of appropriation was verified by one of them, a grantee, as notary public, the verification was void and the notice was not entitled to record. Musselshell Valley Farming & Livestock Co. v. Cooley, 86 M 276, 283 P 213 (1929).

A notice of location of a water right is fatally defective unless it is verified in conformity with section 89-810, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed). Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

85-2-228. Federal reserved water rights with priority date of July 1, 1973, or later — process and adjudication — purpose.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 497 in (4), near end before "reserved water right", inserted "federal"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 22, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

Effective Date: Section 4, Ch. 343, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval." Approved April 4, 1991.

85-2-231. Temporary preliminary and preliminary decree.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 174 substituted (2)(c) regarding issuance of an interlocutory decree for former language that read: "This section does not prevent the water judge from issuing an interlocutory decree or other temporary decree, pursuant to 85-2-321 or as provided in subsection (1) of this section, or if such a decree is otherwise necessary for the orderly administration of water rights prior to the issuance of a preliminary decree"; in (3), at beginning, inserted "temporary", near middle, after "supply of water", inserted "or any claim or group of claims", near end, before "preliminary", inserted "temporary", and at end deleted "or portions of the same decree"; in (4), at beginning, inserted "temporary preliminary decree" and deleted second sentence that read: "The water judge shall include in the preliminary decree the contents of a compact negotiated under the provisions of part 7 that has been approved by the legislature and the tribe or federal agency"; in (5), near middle of first sentence after "preliminary decree", deleted "set forth in subsections (1) and (3)"; deleted (6) that read: "(6) In issuing a subsequent preliminary decree, the water judge shall incorporate the temporary preliminary decree for the basin as modified by objections and hearings. The temporary preliminary decree or preliminary decree, as modified after objections and hearings, is enforceable and administrable according to its terms among parties ordered under 85-2-406. The preliminary decree, as modified after objections and hearings, shall upon issuance supersede and replace the temporary preliminary decree"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 28, 1997.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (1) authorizing Water Judge to issue temporary preliminary decree if necessary for orderly adjudication or administration of water rights; in (1)(c) inserted "or as provided in subsection (1) of this section"; inserted (6) requiring Water Judge in issuing preliminary decree to incorporate temporary preliminary decree, as modified, after objections and hearings and providing that preliminary decree, as modified, supersedes and replaces temporary preliminary decree; and made minor changes in form. Amendment effective April 21, 1989.

Severability: Section 6, Ch. 605, L. 1989, was a severability clause.

Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 605, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] applies to any temporary preliminary decree or preliminary decree issued on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 21, 1989.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 394 in (1)(d) near end after "temporary decree", inserted "pursuant to 85-2-321 or", and after "decree is", inserted "otherwise".

Chapter 667 near end of (3) after "agency", deleted "whether or not it has been ratified by congress".

Select Committee Bill: Chapter 667, L. 1985, was introduced at the request of the Select Committee on Indian Affairs (now Law and Justice Interim Committee). See Committee report published December 1984 by the Montana Legislative Council.

1981 Amendment: Deleted "Within a reasonable time after the close of the filing period" at the beginning of (1); inserted (1)(c) requiring water judge to consider the contents of an approved compact or filings for federal and Indian reserved rights when issuing a preliminary decree; added the material beginning with "The preliminary decree shall be issued . . ." in (1)(d); inserted (2) authorizing water judge to issue a preliminary decree for a hydrologically interrelated portion of a water division at a time different from the issuance of other preliminary decrees or portions of the same decree; substituted "approved by the legislature and the tribe or federal agency" for "agreed upon by the parties to the compact" in (3).

Code Commissioner Correction: Because of rearrangement of sec. 27, Ch. 697, L. 1979, the Code Commissioner, 1979, added the words "negotiated under the provisions of part 7" to the last sentence of (2).

Rules of Procedure: Rules of procedure (including Rules 1 through 9 of the following) for the Water Courts for the state of Montana were approved by Supreme Court order on October 29, 1981, became effective on March 1, 1982, and apply to all proceedings in the Water Courts on or after that date. Rule 10 was approved and became effective on February 9, 1984. The complete text of the rules follows:

RULES OF THE WATER COURTS FOR THE STATE OF MONTANA

"... to expedite and facilitate the adjudication of existing water rights," is the mandate of the Legislature to the Water Courts of Montana and is the governing principle of these Rules of Practice.

The Montana Rules of Civil Procedure (M.R.Civ.P.), the Montana Rules of Evidence (M.R.E.), and Supreme Court of Montana Uniform Court Rules for local District Courts govern the practice of the Water Courts.

The special Rules of Practice of the Water Courts prevail where there is a conflict. The Water Courts must and will insist on the carrying out of the mandate of the Legislature.

These Rules shall be cited Water Court Rules (WCR).

Right to trial by jury does not exist in adjudication of water rights.

RULE 2

Investigative reports and other data submitted by the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to the Water Courts before the issuance of a preliminary decree, and during the course of the hearings on the preliminary decree, shall be admissible for consideration by the Water Courts; this material is not excluded by the hearsay rule.

RULE 3

To assure prompt hearings before the Water Courts, these Rules shall be followed at the pleading and preliminary stage:

A. Prehearings shall be held on the request of the party or the Water Court's own motion. Prehearings shall be the rule rather than the exception.

B. Discovery. We adopt the M.R.Civ.P. rule on discovery with the right of the Water Courts to shorten time, control procedures and eliminate discovery methods used to delay.

C. The Water Courts will use consolidation either on motion of parties or its own motion to expedite adjudication.

D. When a Water Court deems it necessary, it may order the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to become a party to any preliminary hearing and may request it to conduct a field investigation, provide data and testify at hearings on matters before the Water Court.

E. Any claimant who has filed an objection and requested a preliminary hearing, or has filed a notice to appear at the preliminary hearing and makes any further pleading or other motion with the Water Courts in regard to a particular hearing, must serve a copy only upon those claimants of record who have filed the objection or notice to appear, or who have otherwise become a party to the hearing.

F. Request for continuance must be made in writing to the Water Courts.

A request for continuance must be filed not less than five days before the hearing and in the discretion of the Water Judge or Water Master will only be granted upon a substantial showing of good cause.

RULE 4

Clerical errors in the preliminary and final decrees may be corrected by the Water Courts at any time.

RULE 5

A party does not have a right to substitution of a Water Judge or Water Master. Any substitution is at the discretion of the Water Judge of the division or the Chief Water Judge.

RULE 6

Procedure for Filing Objections to the Preliminary Decree

1. A person named in a preliminary decree, or other person for good cause shown, may object to the preliminary decree and request a hearing before the Water Courts. For purposes of filing an objection, "good cause shown" shall include:

A showing that one has a substantial reason for objecting, which means that the party has an interest that has been affected by the preliminary decree and that the objection is made in good faith, is not arbitrary, irrational, unreasonable or irrelevant in respect to the party objecting.

An objection and a request for hearing must be filed on the forms provided by the Water Courts and received by the Court on the date set in the notice of availability.

2. The objection must be filed on a form provided by the Water Courts.

The objector shall also attach to the prescribed form:

a. A precise statement of any of the findings to which the objector disagrees, including a statement of what the objector contends those findings should be;

b. A statement of the specific grounds and evidence upon which the objection is based.

RULE 7

Procedure for Obtaining Extension of Time for Filing Objections

1. An extension of the period for filing objections, not to exceed ninety days, may be granted by the Water Judge for good cause shown. Application for an extension must be filed on a form supplied by the Water Courts. The application for extension must be made within ninety days after the entrance of notice of a preliminary decree. Requests for extension must be on the prescribed Water Court form.

The party requesting the extension shall also attach to the form:

- a. A statement of the party's rights or interest that could adversely be affected; and
- b. A precise statement of the reasons why the objection could not be completed within the ninety days prescribed above.

2. For the purposes of requesting an extension for the objection period, "good cause shown" shall include:

- a. A precise statement of the party's rights or interest that could be adversely affected;
- b. A showing of one of the following:
 - i. newly discovered facts or evidence giving rise to the objection which was not discovered by due diligence and the development of the evidence will necessitate more than the remaining time allowed for objections;
 - ii. any other reason where failure to extend the ninety day objection period would result in an injustice.

The Water Courts are reluctant to grant extensions and the time limits of an extension will be limited.

Notice of Request for Hearing and Intent to Appear

Pursuant to 85-2-233 MCA 1978, the Water Court shall send notice to each party named in a preliminary decree in a water basin, sub-basin or drainage that a hearing has been requested. The notice shall also be published once in at least one paper of general circulation in the area where the basin, sub-basin or drainage is located. That notice shall set forth a statement advising persons where a copy of the objections can be reviewed. It shall set a day when all parties who wish to participate further in any hearings shall file in writing with the Water Courts a notice of intent to appear and participate in any future hearing.

Any party intending to appear and participate in further proceedings must file a notice of appearance on the forms prescribed and furnished by the Court.

The party shall also attach to the prescribed form:

- a. A concise statement of the appearing party's legal rights that may be affected by the preliminary hearing and the purposes for which further participation is sought.

All notices of intent to appear and participate in future hearings must be received by the Water Courts on the day fixed by the Courts for submission of an intent to appear. The Court shall notice those parties who filed an objection or who filed a notice to appear, of all future proceedings in regard to the relevant hearing.

Notice of entry of a final decree shall be sent to those parties of record in the basin, sub-basin or drainage. It shall also be published once in a paper of general circulation in the area where the basin, sub-basin or drainage is located. Appeals to the Supreme Court of the State of Montana shall be made within the time frame allowed in Rule 5 of the Montana Rules of Appellate Civil Procedure [now Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure].

The content of a Notice of Appeal shall be in the form prescribed by Rule 4(c) of the Montana Rules of Appellate Civil Procedure [now Montana Rules of Appellate Procedure]. A Notice of Appeal from a judgment of the Water Courts must also include a specific listing of all water right numbers for which appeal is taken.

Statutory procedures and Water Court Rules for notice, objections, extensions and hearings and all other matters pertaining to a Preliminary Decree shall apply as well to a Preliminary Decree with allowances for compacts, compact negotiating and federal reservations."

85-2-232. Availability of temporary preliminary or preliminary decree.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 389 in (4) inserted second sentence requiring fee to be deposited in state general fund. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 197 in (1)(c) and (1)(d) inserted language requiring Water Judge to serve by mail a notice of availability of the temporary preliminary decree or preliminary decree; at end of (1)(b), (1)(d), and (1)(e) inserted language providing for notice of availability of decrees to be sent to successors of the original owners of water rights; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 23, 1995.

1989 Amendment: In four places, before “preliminary decree”, inserted “temporary preliminary decree or”; in three places inserted “within the decreed basin”; in (1), after “decree”, inserted “issued for a basin” and in third sentence, before “permit”, deleted “beneficial water use” and after “permit” inserted “to beneficially use water within the decreed basin”; inserted (2) requiring publication of a notice of availability of preliminary decree in three newspapers where basin is located for 3 consecutive weeks before final decree is issued; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 21, 1989.

Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 605, L. 1989, provided: “[This act] applies to any temporary preliminary decree or preliminary decree issued on or after [the effective date of this act].” Effective April 21, 1989.

1983 Amendment: In first sentence of (1), after “existing right” inserted “and to the purchaser under contract for deed, as defined in 70-20-115, of property in connection with which a claim of existing right has been filed”.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 174 in (1)(a), in introductory clause, substituted “subsection (9)” for “subsection (7)”; in (1)(c), at end of first sentence, inserted “issued before March 28, 1997”; inserted (1)(d) setting out allowable reasons for objecting or counterobjecting to a matter contained in a prior decree; in (2), at beginning, substituted “Objections” for “If a hearing is requested, the request”; inserted (3) regarding notification of parties whose claim received an objection; in (4), at beginning, substituted “Objections and counterobjections” for “The request for a hearing”; in (5)(a), in first sentence after “filing”, substituted “counterobjections under subsection (3)” for “objections and upon timely receipt of a request for a hearing” and after “preliminary decree” substituted “or that person’s successor as documented in the department records that objections and counterobjections have been filed” for “that a hearing has been requested” and in fifth sentence, after “conducted”, inserted “in the same manner”; inserted (5)(b) allowing the parties to participate in settlement conferences or mediation; inserted (6) regarding public notice provisions; in (10) substituted “subsection (9)” for “subsection (7)”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 28, 1997.

Rule Reference: If the proposed amendment to Rule 53, M.R.Civ.P., is adopted, the reference to Rule 53(e) in this section will become Rule 53(a)(5). See proposed amendment comment to Rule 53 for text of proposed amendment.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 421 in (1)(a) inserted “and subject to the provisions of subsection (7)”; inserted (1)(b) defining good cause shown; in (3), after “must”, deleted “contain a precise statement of the findings and conclusions in the temporary preliminary decree or preliminary decree with which the department or person requesting the hearing disagrees”; inserted (7) concerning dismissal of objection pertaining to previously decreed element; inserted (8) concerning applicability of subsection (7); and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

1989 Amendment: At beginning of (1)(a) substituted language requiring a hearing, upon showing of good cause, on objection to temporary preliminary or preliminary decree for “Upon objection to the”; in (1)(a)(ii) inserted “temporary preliminary decree or”; in (1)(a)(iii) substituted “within the basin entitled to receive notice under 85-2-232(1)” for language entitling person showing good cause to a hearing before judge; inserted (1)(a)(iv) requiring hearing, upon showing of good cause, on objection to decree by any person claiming use of water from sources in other basins hydrologically connected to sources in decreed basin and who is entitled to statutory notice; inserted (1)(b) providing that a person does not waive right to preliminary decree by failing to object to temporary preliminary decree and outlining under what circumstances a person who was a party when an objection was previously litigated and resolved in a temporary preliminary decree may subsequently raise an objection in a preliminary decree; in first sentence of (2) increased filing time from “90 days” to “180 days”, before “entry” deleted “notice of” and inserted “temporary preliminary decree or” and in second sentence, after “limit”, substituted “up to two” for “an”, substituted “90-day periods” for “90 days”, and after “made” substituted “prior to expiration of the original 180-day period or any extension of it” for “within 90 days after notice of entry of the preliminary decree”; in (3) and (4), before “preliminary decree”, inserted “temporary preliminary decree or”; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 21, 1989.

Applicability: Section 8, Ch. 605, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] applies to any temporary preliminary decree or preliminary decree issued on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 21, 1989.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (5) barring a subsequent cause of action upon failure to object to a preliminary decree in a compact negotiated and ratified with an Indian tribe or the federal government; and inserted (6) describing procedures following invalidation of a compact with an Indian tribe or federal agency.

1981 Amendment: Increased the additional time extension from 30 to 90 days in (2).

Standing to Challenge Award of Water Right: A party has standing to challenge a water right only if it conflicts with those granted to him. Thus, he has no standing to challenge a right to water from a source in which he has no water right. However, he may challenge a water right from a source from which he has a water right whether the challenged right is prior or subsequent to his own. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979). Rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 629 near beginning of (3), after "persons", substituted "who have filed a claim in accordance with 85-2-221" for "required by 85-2-221 to file a claim for an existing right"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution provides that all existing rights to the use of any waters for any useful or beneficial purpose are recognized and confirmed; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution requires the Legislature to provide for the administration, control, and regulation of water rights and to establish a system of centralized records for such rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature established a procedure for the general adjudication of existing rights to the use of water and provided in section 85-2-226, MCA, that the failure to file a claim of existing right on or before the deadline established under section 85-2-221, MCA, would establish a conclusive abandonment of the right; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Adjudication of the Water Rights Within the Yellowstone River, 253 Mont. 167, 832 P.2d 1210 (1992), has determined that the failure to file a statement of claim to an existing right to the use of water on or before April 30, 1982, resulted in the forfeiture of that right; and

WHEREAS, it has come to the attention of the Legislature that the forfeiture of water rights for failure to timely file a claim has in some instances caused hardship, and the Legislature accordingly desires to provide water rights claimants with one more opportunity to file a water rights claim in the general adjudication; and

WHEREAS, in so doing, the Legislature recognizes that the adjudication process will not be completed for many years but that a substantial amount of progress has already occurred in the adjudication, specifically in the area of water rights compacts with Indian tribes and the federal government and in decrees and stipulations involving individual claimants, and thus the Legislature believes that it is necessary to ensure that parties who have been recognized as having filed claims on or before April 30, 1982, and holders of federal reserved water rights are not adversely affected by the inclusion of new parties in the adjudication by subjecting the right to file those claims in remission to certain terms and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide protection for timely filed claimants from incurring additional costs or from being adversely affected by justifiable reliance on the presumption of abandonment; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide a conclusive adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature recognizes that according a privilege to file additional statements of claim presents a potential for abuse by those who may attempt to refile previously adjudicated claims, and the Legislature thus believes that the courts should deal harshly with any abuses by such measures as, without limitation, the imposition of sanctions under Rule 11, Montana Rules of Civil Procedure; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature determines that the deadline for filing water right claims as provided in this bill appropriately balances the interests at stake in the adjudication.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds it is appropriate to make the following amendments to sections 85-2-102, 85-2-211 [now repealed], 85-2-213, 85-2-221, 85-2-225, 85-2-226, 85-2-234, 85-2-237, and 85-2-306, MCA, in order to provide for the acceptance of late claims to the use of water under the conditions set forth in this bill. Additionally, the Legislature directs the Water Policy Committee, in coordination with the Department of Justice, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, and the Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, to conduct an interim study regarding certain late claim issues."

Saving Clause: Section 11, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] does not affect proceedings that were begun before [passage and approval of this act] [approved May 11, 1993] in which relief for damages have been sought based upon the diversion, impoundment, or withdrawal of water without a water right established under state law."

Severability — Partial Nonseverability: Section 12, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) If a part of [this act] is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of [this act] is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications.

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon [section 4], which amends 85-2-221, and that if one part of [section 4], except subsection (3)(f)(ii), is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts of [this act] are invalid."

1989 Amendment: Inserted (4) relating to tabulation of water rights and their priorities in final decree; and inserted (8) relating to correction of clerical mistakes in final decree.

Severability: Section 2, Ch. 426, L. 1989, was a severability clause.

Retroactive and Prospective Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 426, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all final decrees that have been issued by the Montana water courts and prospectively to all final decrees issued on or after [the effective date of this act]." Effective October 1, 1989.

1987 Amendment: In (5)(b), after "water", deleted "rate, and volume" and after "right" inserted "as follows"; and inserted (5)(b)(i) through (5)(b)(iii) requiring final water decree to state amount of water by flow rate for direct flow rights, by volume for rights not susceptible to flow rate measurement, or by flow rate and volume for rights determined by Water Judge to require both. Amendment applies retroactively to decrees issued by a Water Judge under Title 85, ch. 2, part 2, after April 30, 1982.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 438, L. 1987, provided: "The legislature intends that water rights should not be quantified in a temporary preliminary, preliminary, or final decree except as historically defined in Montana and except where a water judge determines that quantification of both volume and flow rate are required to adequately administer the right. For example, most irrigation water rights have been defined in Montana only by flow rate, reservoir rights have been commonly defined by volume, and hydropower rights have been defined by both flow rate and volume. The courts retain discretionary power to quantify water rights in terms of their historic definitions. It is the intent of the legislature that the water judges exercise their discretionary power on all existing and future decrees to reduce, to the extent possible, objections to water rights that have not historically been defined by volume."

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 438, L. 1987, provided: "This act applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all decrees issued by a water judge under Title 85, chapter 2, part 2, after April 30, 1982."

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2) requiring terms of compact to be included in the final decree; in (3) inserted "and of any federal agency or Indian tribe possessing water rights arising under federal law, required by 85-2-702 to file claims"; in (4) inserted "federal agency, and Indian tribe"; in (5) inserted "arising under the laws of the state of Montana"; and inserted (6) listing requirements for a final decree for a person, tribe, or federal agency possessing federal water rights.

Select Committee Bill: Chapter 667, L. 1985, was introduced at the request of the Select Committee on Indian Affairs (now Law and Justice Interim Committee). The Legislature did not adopt the exact version proposed by the Committee. See Committee report published December 1984 by the Montana Legislative Council.

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

District Court Error in Restraining Use of Contracted Irrigation Water: Micks contracted to purchase the right to 775 acre-feet of water from the Deadman's Basin Water Users Association, to be appropriated from the Deadman's Basin Reservoir, in order to irrigate a hay crop. In April 2000, the District Court appointed two Water Commissioners to distribute the reservoir water pursuant to a rotation plan. In August 2000, the District Court, on its own motion, found that the water level in the reservoir had reached a critical level, that the remaining water was necessary to maintain domestic, municipal, stock, and wildlife usage, and that the irrigation of crops from the river was prohibited as long as the reservoir level remained critically low. Micks determined that he had used only 431 acre-feet of his contracted 775 acre-feet, and based on his limited usage and other reasons, he presumed that the District Court prohibition did not apply to him, so he continued to irrigate his hay crop. Micks' continued irrigation was discovered, and he was ordered by the District Court to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failure to comply with the prohibition order. Micks requested that the District Court reconsider its order, but the request was denied, so Micks appealed. The Supreme Court noted that under Mildenberger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130 (1991), and Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260 (1992), the jurisdiction to interpret and determine existing water rights rests exclusively with the Water Courts and that although the District Court has the authority to supervise the distribution of previously adjudicated water or to enforce an existing water decree and may in certain cases fill in a pre-1973 decree with further delineations, such as time or season of use and acreage of application, in this case, the District Court made a priority determination regarding domestic and irrigation water consumption based on the court's own inclinations, exceeding its authority to simply fill in a water decree with further delineations. Micks' contract unambiguously required a pro rata reduction in water distribution when an inadequate amount existed to satisfy outstanding water purchase contracts. Therefore, the District Court erred as a matter of law when it employed a first come, first served policy in contravention of the water contract. Denial of Micks' motion to reconsider the prohibition order was reversible error, and his motion to restrain the Water Commissioners from interfering with use of Deadman's Basin Reservoir irrigation water to which he was entitled should have been granted. In re Petition of Deadman's Basin Water Users Ass'n to Appoint Water Comm'r to Distribute Stored Water, 2002 MT 15, 308 M 168, 40 P3d 387 (2002).

Jurisdiction of District Court to "Update" Old Water Rights Decree — Statute Governing Complaints by Dissatisfied Users Inapplicable: Pursuant to a previous writ of supervisory control, a remand to the District Court, and findings entered by the Senior Water Master, the Supreme Court found that the Order Authorizing Updated Decree, entered by the judges of the Fourth Judicial District in January of 1989, was beyond the jurisdiction of the District Court. The order was intended to deal with the problem of a 1902 water rights decree by a District Court, in which the judge adjudicated 27 water rights on Carlton Creek, that had become so brittle with age and damaged by time that the decree could not be readily handled. In the process of updating and reissuing the 1902 order, the Supreme Court found that the Fourth Judicial District Judges had actually made a de facto adjudication of water rights in an overly appropriated drainage and that that adjudication had been undertaken without notice and hearing to the holders of certain of those water rights. Citing Mildenberger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130 (1991), and Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260 (1992), the Supreme Court held that under subsection (6) of this section, it is within the sole jurisdiction of the Water Court to determine such things as priority dates, flow rates, place of use, and means of diversion with respect to a water right. The Supreme Court also held that the matters adjudicated by the decree were not within the scope of matters cognizable under 85-5-301 because that section concerns the correct administration of a water rights decree while the Updated Decree attempts to change the terms of the decree itself. For these reasons, the Supreme Court vacated the 1989 Updated Decree. State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 283 M 1, 938 P2d 1312, 54 St. Rep. 460 (1997).

No Right of Appeal Except From Final Judgment: There is no right of appeal granted to a water right claimant under the state water rights adjudication process except from a final decree entered under this section. In re Adjudication of Sage Creek Water Rights, 234 M 243, 763 P2d 644, 45 St. Rep. 1876 (1988).

"Beneficial Use": No matter how a water right is expressed in the decrees of the Water Court, that expression of amount is not the final determining factor. Beneficial use is the basis, the measure, and the limit of all rights to the use of water. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Expression of Water Rights in Volume Rather than Flow Rate — Not Unconstitutional: Even though almost every irrigation water right prior to the 1973 water use law was expressed in flow rate, the requirement of 85-2-234(5)(b) that the final decree state "the amount of water, rate, and volume, included in the right" is not unconstitutional under Article IX, sec. 3(1) of the Montana Constitution. The amount, rate, and volume are at all times subject to the requirement of beneficial use. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Supreme Court Original Jurisdiction Over Declaratory Action Concerning Statewide Water Adjudication: The Supreme Court had power to determine an action for declaratory judgment involving the constitutionality of the requirement in 85-2-234 that final water decrees state "the amount of water, rate, and volume, included in the right". The issue affects all rights in the statewide adjudication process. Determination of the issue by the Supreme Court: (1) will provide guidance to the water court; (2) is in the interests of judicial economy; and (3) would serve the public policy of the state by expediting the determination of existing water rights. McDonald v. St., 43 St. Rep. 576 (1986), rehearing denied, 220 M 519, 722 P2d 598, 43 St. Rep. 1397 (1986).

Appeal of Water Court Order Regarding Two Parties Before Final Decree — Rule 54(b) Certification of Tort Issues: A Water Court order awarding priorities between two parties is a final and appealable order even though the basin-wide adjudication has not been completed. It is necessary that the parties' respective irrigation water allowances be determined without their having to wait for the basin-wide decree before appealing to the Supreme Court. The fact that trespass and damage claims have not yet been decided does not deprive the Supreme Court of jurisdiction to hear the appeal. The Water Court properly entered a Rule 54(b) certification. The determination of these claims is beyond the jurisdiction of the Water Court, but they cannot be decided until the water rights are resolved. Hill v. Merrimac Cattle Co., Inc., 211 M 479, 687 P2d 59, 41 St. Rep. 1504 (1984).

"All Existing Rights": The right to acquire water rights is a valuable right, and its value often depends on its priority. Hence, to deprive plaintiff of his priority by dismissal because the petition was filed under former law is to deprive him of an existing and valuable water right. Gen. Agriculture Corp. v. Moore, 166 M 510, 534 P2d 859 (1975).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Amount of Water Appropriated — Lack of Capacity at Diversion Point: An appropriator could not acquire a right to more water than his ditch would carry, if the ditch could not carry more than the headgate capacity. Because of lack of capacity at the diversion point, the Supreme Court rejected as inherently improbable evidence of a greater appropriation and reduced the award on the basis of its independent review of the transcript. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979). Rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Sufficiency of Decree: Under section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), a decree is sufficiently definite if it designates the owners of the various water rights, their priority dates, the amount of the awards in miner's inches, and the source of the water. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979). Rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Collateral Attack: A decree giving an appropriator the right to use water on certain named land outside the drainage area where appropriated could not be attacked in a later proceeding on the ground that appropriator had never applied water to that land. McIntosh v. Graveley, 159 M 72, 495 P2d 186 (1972).

Date of Appropriation Where Statute Is Not Complied With:

Where a ditch was not constructed within a reasonable time after date of notice of appropriation, the date of appropriation would not relate back to the date of such notice but would date from the time the water was actually used. Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949).

A prior appropriator may acquire a valid water right by a completed ditch, actual diversion of the water, and its application to a beneficial use without complying with the statute and have a right which is good against everyone, except against an appropriator who complies with the statute before the first claimant has applied the water to a beneficial use. Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935); Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897).

Of two claimants of water, neither of whom had complied with the statute, he who first completes his ditch and puts it to a beneficial use has the prior right, although he began to build his ditch after the ditch of the other claimant had been commenced. Murray v. Tingley, 20 M 260, 50 P 723 (1897), but see Wright v. Cruse, 37 M 177, 95 P 370 (1908).

Extent of Use in Terms of Flow Per Unit of Time: The fact that for many years the courts in water right decrees have followed the custom of expressing water rights in terms of flow per unit of time without stating during how many hours or days the water could be taken or defining the volume of water which could be used may not be taken as an adjudication that appropriations were of an absolutely uninterrupted flow, thereby removing the established limitation of the appropriator's right to water actually taken and beneficially applied, or to expand appropriations to the detriment of subsequent appropriators. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Beneficial Use — Measurement of Water:

The rights of appropriators of water may not be measured entirely by what they claimed in their notices of appropriation but must be measured by their beneficial use thereof over reasonable periods; consideration must be given to the extent and manner of their use, the character of the land upon which used, and the general necessities of the case, as well as whether the stream is furnished by usual rains or snows, extraordinary rain or snowfall, or by springs or seepage. Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Neither the appropriator of water nor one to whom a right is decreed owns the corpus of any part of the flow of a stream. He is entitled only to the beneficial use of the amount of water called for by his appropriation or the decree when he has need for it, provided his distributing system has a sufficient capacity to carry that amount. If it is incapable of carrying that amount, his right is measured by the capacity of his system of distribution regardless of his needs. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926).

Quieting Title: An action under Montana law to determine relative rights and priorities of parties claiming interests in waters of a stream, while in personam, is in effect one to quiet title to real property. Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 84 F2d 126 (9th Cir. 1936).

Fixing Date in Decree: There is no valid objection to the fixing of an arbitrary date of appropriation in a decree unless another appropriator can show that his right antedates the date fixed, instead of being subsequent thereto as shown by the decree. Vidal v. Kensler, 100 M 592, 51 P2d 235 (1935).

Appeal Lying From Part of Judgment: Where two or more parties are awarded a water right under the terms of the decree, each of them recovers a judgment against the other or others; such a judgment is divisible into parts and therefore an appeal lies from a part thereof. Wills v. Morris, 100 M 504, 50 P2d 858 (1935).

Date of Appropriation When Notice Is Defective: Appropriators of water were denied the right to relate back the life of their appropriation to the date of posting their notice of appropriation because their recorded notice was rendered ineffective by a fatally defective verification. Because the evidence showed that they put water on their land for a beneficial purpose on or about a certain time, their right bore the date as of that time. Musselshell Valley Farming & Livestock Co. v. Cooley, 86 M 276, 283 P 213 (1929).

Water Necessary Per Acre: The question as to what amount of water is necessary per acre for irrigation is one of fact and never one of law, notwithstanding the adoption of the rule generally in this state to allow an inch to the acre, in the absence of evidence warranting a greater or lesser award. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926).

Beneficial Use — Irrigation: Respecting the use of water for purposes of irrigation, the ultimate question in every case is how much will supply the actual needs of the prior claimant under existing conditions. Conrow v. Huffine, 48 M 437, 138 P 1094 (1914).

Land Qualifications Unnecessary for Appropriation:

An appropriator of water need not be either an owner or in possession of land to make a valid appropriation for irrigation purposes. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Denniff, 24 M 20, 60 P 398 (1900), distinguished in Dept. of State Lands v. Pettibone, 216 M 361, 702 P2d 948, 42 St. Rep. 869 (1985); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

The right to the use of water may be owned without regard to the title to lands on which the water is to be used. Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Beneficial Use — Intent of Claimant: As every appropriation must be made for a beneficial or useful purpose, it becomes the duty of the courts to try the question of the claimant's intent by his acts and the circumstances surrounding his possession of the water, its actual or contemplated use, and the purposes thereof. Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909); Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Rights of Parties Defendant: The Legislature, in enacting section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), did not state that it intended to compel parties, made defendants to a water right suit pursuant to its provisions, to litigate their respective titles as between themselves. Further, it is doubtful that the Legislature has the power to coerce them to do so. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

Determination of Final Water Rights Judgment Under Rule — Appeal From Water Court: Rule 54(b), M.R.Civ.P. (Title 25, ch. 20), provides for and allows a water right claimant to seek and procure from the Water Court an express direction for the entry of a final judgment as to his claim upon the express determination of the Water Court that there is no just reason for delay. Such action under Rule 54(b) constitutes a final judgment within the meaning of this section, which provides for appeals from the Water Court. In re Adjudication of Sage Creek Water Rights, 234 M 243, 763 P2d 644, 45 St. Rep. 1876 (1988).

Appeal of Water Court Order Regarding Two Parties Before Final Decree — Rule 54(b) Certification of Tort Issues: A Water Court order awarding priorities between two parties is a final and appealable order even though the basin-wide adjudication has not been completed. It is necessary that the parties' respective irrigation water allowances be determined without their having to wait for the basin-wide decree before appealing to the Supreme Court. The fact that trespass and damage claims have not yet been decided does not deprive the Supreme Court of jurisdiction to hear the appeal. The Water Court properly entered a Rule 54(b) certification. The determination of these claims is beyond the jurisdiction of the Water Court, but they cannot be decided until the water rights are resolved. Hill v. Merrimac Cattle Co., Inc., 211 M 479, 687 P2d 59, 41 St. Rep. 1504 (1984).

Standing to Challenge Award of Water Right: A party has standing to challenge a water right only if it conflicts with those granted to him. Thus, he has no standing to challenge a right to water from a source in which he no water right. 1991 Amendment: Deleted (2) that read: "(2) The department shall provide to the county clerk and recorder of the county wherein the point of diversion or place of use is located quarterly reports and an annual summary report of all certificates of water right issued by the department within the county". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1987 Amendment: In (1), at beginning of second sentence, inserted exception clause.

1983 Amendment: In (1), after "sent to the" substituted "person to whom the right is decreed" for "county clerk and recorder of the county where the point of diversion or place of use is located for recordation"; deleted last sentence of (1), which read: "After recordation, the clerk and recorder shall send the certificate to the person to whom the right is decreed.”; and inserted (2) requiring Department to provide the County Clerk and Recorder where the diversion is located a quarterly and annual summary report of certificates of water rights issued in the county.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 629 at beginning of (1) inserted “After July 1, 1996”; in (1)(a), after “issued”, deleted “by the water courts”; inserted (1)(b) that read: “(b) for basins for which claims have been filed under 85-2-221(3)”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: “WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution provides that all existing rights to the use of any waters for any useful or beneficial purpose are recognized and confirmed; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 3, of the Montana Constitution requires the Legislature to provide for the administration, control, and regulation of water rights and to establish a system of centralized records for such rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature established a procedure for the general adjudication of existing rights to the use of water and provided in section 85-2-226, MCA, that the failure to file a claim of existing right on or before the deadline established under section 85-2-221, MCA, would establish a conclusive abandonment of the right; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Supreme Court, in In the Matter of the Adjudication of the Water Rights Within the Yellowstone River, 253 Mont. 167, 832 P.2d 1210 (1992), has determined that the failure to file a statement of claim to an existing right to the use of water on or before April 30, 1982, resulted in the forfeiture of that right; and

WHEREAS, it has come to the attention of the Legislature that the forfeiture of water rights for failure to timely file a claim has in some instances caused hardship, and the Legislature accordingly desires to provide water rights claimants with one more opportunity to file a water rights claim in the general adjudication; and

WHEREAS, in so doing, the Legislature recognizes that the adjudication process will not be completed for many years but that a substantial amount of progress has already occurred in the adjudication, specifically in the area of water rights compacts with Indian tribes and the federal government and in decrees and stipulations involving individual claimants, and thus the Legislature believes that it is necessary to ensure that parties who have been recognized as having filed claims on or before April 30, 1982, and holders of federal reserved water rights are not adversely affected by the inclusion of new parties in the adjudication by subjecting the right to file those claims in remission to certain terms and conditions; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide protection for timely filed claimants from incurring additional costs or from being adversely affected by justifiable reliance on the presumption of abandonment; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide a conclusive adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature recognizes that according a privilege to file additional statements of claim presents a potential for abuse by those who may attempt to refile previously adjudicated claims, and the Legislature thus believes that the courts should deal harshly with any abuses by such measures as, without limitation, the imposition of sanctions under Rule 11, Montana Rules of Civil Procedure; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature determines that the deadline for filing water right claims as provided in this bill appropriately balances the interests at stake in the adjudication.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds it is appropriate to make the following amendments to sections 85-2-102, 85-2-211 [now repealed], 85-2-213, 85-2-221, 85-2-225, 85-2-226, 85-2-234, 85-2-237, and 85-2-306, MCA, in order to provide for the acceptance of late claims to the use of water under the conditions set forth in this bill. Additionally, the Legislature directs the Water Policy Committee, in coordination with the Department of Justice, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, and the Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, to conduct an interim study regarding certain late claim issues.”

Saving Clause: Section 11, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: “[This act] does not affect proceedings that were begun before [passage and approval of this act] [approved May 11, 1993] in which relief for damages have been sought based upon the diversion, impoundment, or withdrawal of water without a water right established under state law.”

Severability — Partial Nonseverability: Section 12, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: “(1) If a part of [this act] is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of [this act] is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications.

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon [section 4], which amends 85-2-221, and that if one part of [section 4], except subsection (3)(f)(ii), is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts of [this act] are invalid."

Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 586, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-209 [sic, 1-2-109], to all preliminary decrees and final decrees that have been issued by the Montana water courts prior to [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 21, 1989.

Severability: Section 3, Ch. 586, L. 1989, was a severability clause.

Effective Date: Section 5, Ch. 586, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] is effective on the latest date on which any of the following occur:

(1) passage and approval of [this act] [approved April 20, 1989], [Senate Bill No. 169 (LC 683)] [Chapter 605, approved April 21, 1989] or [Senate Bill No. 166 (LC 684)] [Chapter 604, approved April 21, 1989]; or

(2) a final determination of failure to receive passage and approval of [Senate Bill No. 169 (LC 683)] or [Senate Bill No. 166 (LC 684)]."

85-2-243. Department assistance to water judges.

Compiler's Comments

1987 Amendment: At end of (1), after "shall", deleted "without cost to the judicial districts wholly or partly within his water division"; and inserted (2) requiring Department to assist Water Judge without cost to judicial districts within water division.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 651, L. 1987, provided in part: "The legislature intends by the amendment to 85-2-243 in section 8 of this bill that it be interpreted to restrict the department to utilize funds that have been appropriated for the adjudication program. The department's funding level in adjudicating water claims for the 1987-89 biennium is as specifically set forth in House Bill No. 2."

Water Rights Claims Examination Rules: In response to In re Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation, 226 M 221, 740 P2d 1096, 44 St. Rep. 604 (1987), the Supreme Court approved an order July 7, 1987, adopting water rights claims examination rules. The rules are available at the Montana State Law Library.

Case Notes

No Departmental Rulemaking Authority Regarding Water Claims — Jurisdiction in Water Courts — Rulemaking Reserved to Supreme Court: Legislation in 1979 placed the procedure for adjudication of water claims in the Water Courts and reserved the power of rulemaking with respect to pending judicial proceedings to the Supreme Court. Lacking express legislative authority, neither the Board (functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) nor Department of Natural Resources and Conservation has any rulemaking authority with respect to procedures in the adjudication of water rights before the Water Courts, and the Montana Administrative Procedure Act does not supply such authority. Functions of the Department respecting water claims are limited to rendering assistance to the Water Judges as set out in 85-2-243. Department Authorized to Condition Permits: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation has authority to grant conditional use permits under 85-2-312 when restrictions are necessary to protect the rights of prior appropriators or are used to impose time limits to perfect a water right under the permit. Mont. Power Co. v. Carey, 211 M 91, 685 P2d 336, 41 St. Rep. 1233 (1984).

1899 Appropriation — Testimony of Persons on Land Showing Beneficial Use: Where the plaintiffs filed a water rights action, seeking a decree that they were entitled to the use of 500 miner's inches of water a year, the District Court did not err in finding that that amount was reasonably required for irrigation purposes. While that amount of water, as specified in the statement of appropriation filed by the plaintiffs' predecessor in interest, cannot be dispositive of the issue, under the rationale of Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), the Supreme Court could not say that the evidence produced at trial did not support the District Court's decree. That evidence consisted primarily of testimony of men who worked and knew the land in question, and that testimony, under the rationale of Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941), constituted substantial evidence. Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85, 40 St. Rep. 1585 (1983).

Water Rights by Prescription — Hostile Use Required: Where the plaintiffs brought an action against the decedent's estate, claiming a prescriptive right to water diverted by the decedent's descendants, the District Court did not err in holding that proof of hostile use of the water is a required element of acquisition of water rights by prescription. Without such a requirement, the holder of a water right could be deprived of that right without notice. In the case before the court, use of the water could not be said to be hostile unless the defendants were deprived of the water in question at a time when they actually had need of it. Language in the opinion in Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), appearing to abrogate the requirement of hostile use, is expressly disapproved. Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85, 40 St. Rep. 1585 (1983).

Findings and Conclusions as to Water Rights Held Inadequate — Judgment Vacated and Remanded: When a midstream and downstream water user filed suit against the upstream user to have the District Court declare the relative water rights of the parties, the findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by the District Court were so bare and inadequate as to provide no basis for meaningful appellate review. Because it could not be determined from the District Court's bare conclusions (i.e., that the parties had failed to prove their case by a preponderance of the evidence and had abandoned their rights) what the factual or evidentiary basis for the District Court's decision was, the Supreme Court vacated the judgment as to all of the three parties, remanded the case to the District Court, and directed it to enter findings and conclusions reflective of the evidence presented at trial and the legal contentions of the parties. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 193 M 229, 631 P2d 690, 38 St. Rep. 1048 (1981).

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

School Trust Land Water Rights Owned by State: In a case involving a dispute over ownership of water rights on state school trust lands, the Supreme Court ruled that title to the surface and ground water rights on school trust lands vests in the state and that the lessee, in making appropriations on and for school trust sections, is acting on behalf of the state. It is only through state action that the lessee is on the land, and Montana law expressly provides that the lessee shall be reimbursed for all capital expenditures made in putting the water to beneficial use. The state is the beneficial user of the water, and its duty as trustee of the school trust lands prohibits it from alienating any interest in the land without receiving full compensation for it or from giving up control over the water rights. Dept. of State Lands v. Pettibone, 216 M 361, 702 P2d 948, 42 St. Rep. 869 (1985).

No Prescriptive Use of Water Found: The Water Court was correct in holding that Merrimac did not prove its claim of prescriptive use to the waters of Martin Creek and Davis Creek from the 1800s through 1980. Merrimac did not acquire adverse possession through 1973 since the water use was based on an accommodation between the parties. In 1973, the Water Use Act eliminated the right to acquire a water-use right by prescription. Merrimac was not entitled to a fractional share of water on the ground that Merrimac had always used one-third of the waters of Martin Creek and Davis Creek since Merrimac never deprived Hill of his water supply. There was no adverse taking. Hill v. Merrimac Cattle Co., Inc., 211 M 479, 687 P2d 59, 41 St. Rep. 1504 (1984).

Water Use Act Exclusive Procedure for Acquisition: Where the defendant in litigation to establish priority in appropriations was held to have abandoned his claim to a water right because of the lack of his predecessor's reasonable diligence in applying the water to a beneficial use, the District Court erred in holding that the defendant nevertheless had a "use" right as of 1976. The Water Use Act of 1973 contains the exclusive procedure for acquisition of water rights after 1973. Nothing in the record shows the defendant complied with the statutory procedures. No right to any use of any water is therefore to be recognized in the defendant. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983), followed in In re Adjudication of Musselshell River Rights, 255 M 43, 840 P2d 577, 49 St. Rep. 866 (1992).

Yellowstone River Compact Filings — In Wyoming — Priority Date: The Yellowstone River Compact, signed by Montana, North Dakota, and Wyoming and ratified by Congress, has the status of a treaty, and Montana water law statutes are subordinate to it. Utah International, Inc. (Utah) filed a Wyoming application to appropriate water, as required by the Compact because Wyoming was the state of diversion (Montana being the state of ultimate use of the water). Utah then filed the same information in Montana, and Montana assigned the date of the Wyoming filing as the priority date in conformity with Wyoming law. Intake Water Company did not attack the Wyoming filing but claimed mandamus should issue requiring Montana to assign the Montana filing date as the priority date. Montana correctly assigned the Wyoming filing date as the priority date, as required by the Compact, and mandamus would not issue, since there was no clear legal duty for Montana to assign the Montana filing date as the priority date. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Bd. of Nat'l Resources & Conserv., 197 M 482, 645 P2d 383, 39 St. Rep. 717 (1982).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Ownership of Land Where Water Has Source: Seepage water which has its rise along the bed of a stream and forms a natural accretion thereto belongs to that stream as part of its source of supply, and the ownership of land where water has its source does not necessarily give the exclusive right to use such water to the landowner so as to prevent others from acquiring rights therein. Woodward v. Perkins, 116 M 46, 147 P2d 1016 (1944), distinguished in Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

Beneficial Use — Measurement of Water:

The rights of appropriators of water may not be measured entirely by what they claimed in their notices of appropriation but must be measured by their beneficial use thereof over reasonable periods; consideration must be given to the extent and manner of their use, the character of the land upon which used, and the general necessities of the case, as well as whether the stream is furnished by usual rains or snows, extraordinary rain or snowfall, or by springs or seepage. Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Neither the appropriator of water nor one to whom a right is decreed owns the corpus of any part of the flow of a stream. Each is entitled only to the beneficial use of the amount of water called for by his appropriation or the decree when he has need for water, provided his distributing system has a sufficient capacity to carry that amount. If the distribution system is incapable of carrying that amount, his right is measured by the capacity of his system of distribution regardless of his needs. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926). (Annotator's note: For additional cases pertaining to courts' interpretation of beneficial use, see the annotations under 85-2-102.)

Appropriator Not Owner of Water — Sale of Water: An appropriator of water does not become the owner thereof but only of the right to use it; he may not sell the water to another to be used by the purchaser when not in use by the appropriator. Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937).

Appropriation on Private Land:

An appropriation of water is not confined to waters flowing in streams upon public land but may be made from a stream flowing through privately owned land by invoking the aid of eminent domain proceedings, if necessary. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

Sections 89-801 through 89-805, 89-807 through 89-828, and 89-839 through 89-844, R.C.M. 1947, do not and cannot authorize a person to go upon the private property of another for the purpose of making an appropriation, except by condemnation proceedings. Prentice v. McKay, 38 M 114, 98 P 1081 (1909), explained in Connolly v. Harrel, 102 M 295, 57 P2d 781 (1936).

The mere fact that water has its source on land owned by a plaintiff does not of itself give him the exclusive right therein so as to prevent others from acquiring rights to it under the laws of the state. Quinlan v. Calvert, 31 M 115, 77 P 428 (1904).

Source of Right: An appropriator of water derives his right from the state and not from the national government, the use of waters flowing in natural streams in Montana being subject to state regulation and control. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

Land Qualifications Unnecessary for Appropriations:

An appropriator of water need not be either an owner or in possession of land to make a valid appropriation for irrigation purposes. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912); Smith v. Denniff, 24 M 20, 60 P 398 (1900), distinguished in Dept. of State Lands v. Pettibone, 216 M 361, 702 P2d 948, 42 St. Rep. 869 (1985); Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

The right to the use of water may be owned without regard to the title to lands on which the water is to be used. Toohey v. Campbell, 24 M 13, 60 P 396 (1900).

Case Notes

Defective Filing — Yellowstone River Compact Filing — Priority Date: Corporation filed application in Wyoming, as required by the Yellowstone River Compact signed by Montana and Wyoming, to appropriate water in Wyoming for use in Montana. Montana notified corporation that it should also file the same information on Montana forms and that if it did so the corporation would retain the priority date of the date it filed in Wyoming. The corporation filed in Montana within 18 months of its Wyoming filing. This section gives Montana discretion to allow the applicant up to 18 months for a correction of a defective filing without losing the original filing date as the priority date. Thus, the corporation was entitled to have Montana, in its discretion, assign as a priority date the date of the Wyoming filing. Montana had no clear legal duty to do otherwise and was not subject to a mandate that it assign as the priority date the date of the Montana filing. (Annotator's note: Chapter 448, L. 1983, reduced the correction period from 18 months to 3 months (now 90 days).) State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. WHEREAS, the Legislature wishes to provide a conclusive adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature recognizes that according a privilege to file additional statements of claim presents a potential for abuse by those who may attempt to refile previously adjudicated claims, and the Legislature thus believes that the courts should deal harshly with any abuses by such measures as, without limitation, the imposition of sanctions under Rule 11, Montana Rules of Civil Procedure; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature determines that the deadline for filing water right claims as provided in this bill appropriately balances the interests at stake in the adjudication.

THEREFORE, the Legislature finds it is appropriate to make the following amendments to sections 85-2-102, 85-2-211 [now repealed], 85-2-213, 85-2-221, 85-2-225, 85-2-226, 85-2-234, 85-2-237, and 85-2-306, MCA, in order to provide for the acceptance of late claims to the use of water under the conditions set forth in this bill. Additionally, the Legislature directs the Water Policy Committee, in coordination with the Department of Justice, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, and the Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, to conduct an interim study regarding certain late claim issues."

Saving Clause: Section 11, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] does not affect proceedings that were begun before [passage and approval of this act] [approved May 11, 1993] in which relief for damages have been sought based upon the diversion, impoundment, or withdrawal of water without a water right established under state law."

Severability—Partial Nonseverability: Section 12, Ch. 629, L. 1993, provided: "(1) If a part of [this act] is invalid, all valid parts that are severable from the invalid part remain in effect. If a part of [this act] is invalid in one or more of its applications, the part remains in effect in all valid applications that are severable from the invalid applications.

(2) It is the intent of the legislature that each part of [this act] is essentially dependent upon [section 4], which amends 85-2-221, and that if one part of [section 4], except subsection (3)(f)(ii), is held unconstitutional or invalid, all other parts of [this act] are invalid."

1991 Amendments: Chapter 769 in (1), at end of third sentence, inserted "and pay a filing fee"; and inserted (5) assessing a $10 filing fee for filing notice of completion and directing deposit of the fee in the ground water assessment account. Amendment effective July 1, 1991, and terminates July 1, 1993.

Chapter 805 in (1) and (2) substituted "35 gallons per minute or less, not to exceed 10 acre-feet per year" for "less than 100 gallons per minute". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1989 Amendment: In (1), after "person who has", deleted "either", inserted clause relating to a possessory interest, and after "or" inserted clause relating to another's rights in ground water development works. Amendment effective April 4, 1989.

1987 Amendment: In (1), in second sentence, inserted exception relating to combined appropriation, near end substituted "appropriator" for "county clerk and recorder in the county where the point of diversion or place of use is located for recordation", and deleted sentence that read: "After recordation, the clerk and recorder shall send the certificate to the appropriator"; and in (2) inserted last sentence concerning certificate issuance.

1985 Amendment: In (1) inserted first sentence limiting the appropriation of ground water to a person who has either exclusive property rights in the ground water development works or written consent of the person with those property rights.

1983 Amendment: Inserted second sentence of (2), dealing with existing water right under 85-2-221; in third sentence of (2) after "section" inserted "or the date of the filing of the claim of existing water right"; in (3) after "the appropriation is" inserted "less than 30 acre-feet per year and is".

1981 Amendments: Chapter 30 inserted "and the impoundment or pit is to be constructed on and will be accessible to a parcel of land that is owned or under the control of the applicant and that is 40 acres or larger" in the middle of (3).

Chapter 160 substituted "within 60 days after" for "before" in the third sentence of (3); inserted the fourth sentence in (3) requiring the Department to automatically issue a provisional permit upon receipt of a correct and complete stockwater provisional permit application; substituted "after a hearing" for "after processing the application" in the last sentence of (3); substituted "it may revoke the permit or require the permittee to modify the impoundment or pit and may then make" for "it may require the applicant to modify the construction of the impoundment or pit and issue" in the last sentence of (3).

Chapter 357 inserted "or developed spring" after "well" in two places in (1); substituted "maximum appropriation of less than 100 gallons per minute" for "maximum yield of less than 100 gallons a minute" in the first sentence of (1); inserted "with the department" after "notice of completion" in the second sentence of (1); substituted "the department shall review the notice and may, before issuing a certificate of water right, return a defective notice for correction or completion, together with the reasons for returning it" for "the department shall automatically issue a certificate of water rights" in the third sentence of (1); inserted the fourth, fifth, and sixth sentences in (1) relating to procedures when notice of ground water appropriation is defective; and inserted (2) describing procedures for issuance of a certificate of water right for a person who appropriates ground water by means of a well or developed spring, put to beneficial use between January 1, 1962, and July 1, 1973, and who did not file a required notice of completion.

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 30, L. 1981, provided: "This act applies to applications pending with the department on the effective date of this act, as well as applications filed with the department after the effective date of this act."

Subsection (1), sec. 7, Ch. 357, L. 1981, provided: "Subsection (2) of section 1 [sec. 1, Ch. 357, L. 1981, amending 85-2-306] applies to all notices of completion filed with the department after July 1, 1973."

Subsection (2), sec. 7, Ch. 357, L. 1981, provided: "Subsection (1) of section 1 [sec. 1, Ch. 357, L. 1981, amending 85-2-306], section 3 [sec. 3, Ch. 357, L. 1981, amending 85-2-310], and section 4 [sec. 4, Ch. 357, L. 1981, amending 85-2-311] apply to notices of completion and applications pending before the department and to those filed with the department after April 14, 1981."

85-2-307. Notice of application.

Compiler's Comments

1993 Amendment: Chapter 370 at beginning of (1)(a) substituted "correct and complete application" for "proper application". Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Severability: Section 11, Ch. 370, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

1987 Amendment: In (1) deleted requirement for publication for 2 consecutive weeks; and in (1)(b) and (2) deleted "last" before "date of publication".

1983 Amendments: Chapter 448, in (1)(a), reduced notice from 3 to 2 weeks; and in (2) reduced time of first filing from 30 to 15 days after notice.

Chapter 526, at end of (1)(b)(i), deleted "A notice shall also be served upon"; and inserted (1)(b)(ii) requiring the Department to serve by first-class mail timely notice of an application upon any purchaser under contract for deed of property that may be affected by the proposed appropriation.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "first-class" for "certified" before "mail" in the second sentence of (1).

85-2-308. Objections.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 574 in (5) inserted second and third sentences requiring the adoption of rules delineating the components of a correct and complete objection and requiring certain information in an objection related to instream flow water rights for fish, wildlife, and recreation; and in (6) at end after "under" substituted "this section and rules of the department" for "subsection (1), (2), or (4)". Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 422 in (1)(b), (2), and (4) substituted "indicating" for "tending to show"; in (5) in first sentence after "under this chapter shall" deleted "timely" and at end inserted "within the time period stated on the public notice associated with the application" and inserted last two sentences relating to defects and corrections of an objection; inserted (6) relating to when an objection is valid; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 1999.

Severability: Section 6, Ch. 422, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 370 inserted (5) requiring objector to timely file correct and complete objection on form prescribed by Department. Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Severability: Section 11, Ch. 370, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

1991 Amendment: In (1)(a), after "application", inserted "for a permit"; in (1)(b), after "objection", inserted "to an application for a permit" and after "that" substituted "one or more of the criteria in 85-2-311 are not met" for "there are no unappropriated waters in the proposed source, that the proposed means of appropriation are inadequate, that the property, water rights, or interests of the objector would be adversely affected by the proposed appropriation, that the proposed use of water is not a beneficial use, or that the proposed use will interfere unreasonably with other planned uses or developments for which a permit has been issued or for which water has been reserved"; inserted (2) requiring that in an application for change in appropriation rights, an objection must state name and address of objector and state that criteria in 85-2-402 are not met; inserted (3) providing that person has standing to file objection if property, water rights, or interests would be adversely affected by proposed appropriation; inserted (4) requiring that in an application for water reservation, an objection must state name and address of objector and state that criteria in 85-2-316 are not met; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1983 Amendment: Substituted (2) (see 1983 Session Law) for former text, which read: "The objection must state the name and address of the objector and facts tending to show that there are no unappropriated waters in the proposed source, that the proposed means of appropriation are inadequate, that the property, rights, or interests of the objector would be adversely affected by the proposed appropriation, or the objector may state any other objections to the proposed appropriation he considers pertinent."

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Standing to Challenge Award of Water Right: A party has standing to challenge a water right only if it conflicts with those granted to him. Thus, he has no standing to challenge a right to water from a source in which he has no water right. However, he may challenge a water right from a source from which he has a water right whether the challenged right is prior or subsequent to his own. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 85-2-309. Hearings on objections — jurisdiction.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 422 in (1) in first sentence substituted "hold a contested case hearing, pursuant to Title 2, chapter 4, part 6" for "hold a public hearing" and substituted reference to service by first-class mail for reference to service by certified mail; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 1999.

Severability: Section 6, Ch. 422, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 497 in (2)(a) inserted second sentence concerning priority of certified controversies; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 22, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

1985 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence, after "permit", inserted "or change approval under 85-2-402" and after "valid objection", deleted "to the issuance of the permit" and at end of first sentence inserted final clause concerning certification to District Court; and inserted (2) and (3) relating to Department's authority to certify to the District Court at any time prior to commencement or before conclusion of a hearing on objections to an application for a permit or change in appropriation right approval all factual and legal issues involving the adjudication or determination of the water rights at issue in the hearing.

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 596, L. 1985, provided: "This act applies to all permit applications and changes in appropriation right applications filed and pending with the department on the effective date of this act [April 17, 1985] and upon which a proposal for a decision has not been issued by the department."

Case Notes

Failure to Participate in Water Court Hearing — Attorney Fees Assessed as Sanction for Defense of Unreasonable Appeal: Despite warnings from the Water Court of the consequences, plaintiffs chose not to participate in a Water Court hearing, thereby creating no record of their issues and preserving none of their arguments for appeal. They appealed anyway, contending that the Water Court's findings were in error. The Supreme Court first found that the findings and conclusions were correct, then sanctioned plaintiffs pursuant to Rule 32, M.R.App.P. (Title 25, ch. 21), finding that defendant was entitled to attorney fees incurred in defending an appeal that was taken without any substantial or reasonable grounds, that delayed the case, and that wasted the resources of defendant and the Supreme Court. Swinger v. Collins, 1999 MT 202, 295 M 447, 984 P2d 151, 56 St. Rep. 787 (1999).

85-2-310. Action on application.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 422 in (1) and (2) substituted references to service by first-class mail for references to service by certified mail; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 1999.

Severability: Section 6, Ch. 422, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1991 Amendment: In (4)(c)(iii), in second sentence after "a reasonable time line", deleted "not to exceed 10 years from the time of issuance of a permit". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1987 Amendment: In (4)(a)(iii), in first sentence after "project plan", deleted "including, but not limited to, a reasonable time line for the completion of the project and the actual application of the water to a beneficial use, which may not exceed 10 years from the date of application, detailing", inserted "describing", and inserted last sentence concerning time line.

1985 Amendment — Applicability: Inserted (4) listing criteria under which the Department must find that an application filed after July 1, 1973, lacks good faith or shows no bona fide intent to appropriate water for a beneficial use.

Section 3, Ch. 399, L. 1985, read: "This act applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications filed after July 1, 1973."

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 399, L. 1985, provided: "A statement of intent is desirable for this bill because it authorizes the board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] to make rules on the new material enacted in the bill. The rules would implement section 1 [85-2-310(4)] of the bill, which establishes criteria for the department of natural resources and conservation to reject an application for a beneficial water use permit that is not in good faith or does not show a bona fide intent to appropriate water."

The intent is to adopt those rules necessary to implement the criteria listed in section 1 [85-2-310(4)]. Because the criteria are specific, the rulemaking authority would be limited to adopting rules:

- (1) defining a proposed place of use;
- (2) prescribing the contents of a detailed project plan and of a general project plan;
- (3) defining reasonable time lines, not to exceed 10 years, for completion of projects; and
- (4) prescribing the detailed information to implement criteria relative to applications for water use above that amount of water which will be used solely by the applicant."

1985 Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 399, L. 1985, read: "This act applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications filed after July 1, 1973."

1981 Amendment: Substituted "objections have been received" for "hearing is held" after "if no" in the first sentence of (1); inserted "or objections have been received" after "if a hearing is held" at the end of the first sentence of (1).

85-2-311. Criteria for issuance of permit.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 497 in (1) inserted first, second, and third sentences concerning issuance of permit before adjudication of source of supply, lack of presumption that applicant cannot meet criteria, and alteration of terms and conditions of existing right; in (1)(a)(i) substituted "is water physically available" for "are unappropriated waters in the source of supply"; deleted former (1)(a)(i) that read: "(i) at times when the water can be put to the use proposed by the applicant"; deleted (1)(a)(iii) that read: "(iii) during the period in which the applicant seeks to appropriate, in the amount requested and that is reasonably available"; inserted (1)(a)(ii) concerning legal availability of water; in (1)(b) inserted "under an existing water right, a certificate, a permit, or a state water reservation" and inserted "In this subsection (1)(b), adverse effect must be determined based on a consideration of an applicant's plan for the exercise of the permit that demonstrates that the applicant's use of the water will be controlled so the water right of a prior appropriator will be satisfied"; deleted former (1)(e) that read: "(e) the proposed use will not interfere unreasonably with other planned uses or developments for which a permit has been issued or for which water has been reserved"; deleted former (3)(b) that read: "(b) the rights of a prior appropriator will not be adversely affected"; in (4)(a), near middle of first sentence, inserted "federal non-Indian and Indian"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 497, L. 1997, provided: "The legislature intends that the Montana Supreme Court's decision in In the Matter of the Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit Nos. 66459-76L, Ciotti, 64988-g76L, Starnier; and Application for Change of Appropriation Water Right No. G15152-s761, Pope, 53 St. Rep. 777 at 784, 923 P.2d 1073, be negated by the passage and approval of this bill. The legislature further intends that the portion of the district court decision in United States v. DNRC (1st Judicial District, Montana, June 15, 1987), No. 50612, (see also the concurring opinion in the Montana Supreme Court's decision in In the Matter of the Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit Nos. 66459-76L Ciotti, 64988-g76L, Starnier; and Application for Change of Appropriation Water Right No. G15152-s761, Pope, 53 St. Rep. 777 at 784, 923 P.2d 1073), determining that in the absence of a quantification of existing water rights, the department of natural resources and conservation does not have the authority to issue a permit for a new water application when questions of senior conflicting claims are raised, be negated by the passage and approval of this bill, specifically by the passage and approval of the amendments to 85-2-311. A statement of intent is desired for this bill in order to provide guidance to the department under 85-2-311 concerning implementation and interpretation of the physical availability of water and reasonable legal availability of water criteria. To find that water is available for the issuance of a permit, the department shall require a three-step analysis involving the following factors: identify physical water availability, identify existing legal demands on the source of supply, and compare and analyze the physical water supply at the proposed point of diversion with the existing legal demands on the source of supply."

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (2), in third sentence, substituted "department of environmental quality" for "department of health and environmental sciences"; in (5) substituted "U.S. natural resources conservation service" for "U.S. soil conservation service"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

1993 Amendments: Chapter 370 near beginning of (1) and (5) substituted "preponderance of evidence" for "substantial credible evidence"; and in (5), near beginning after "applicant", inserted "in addition to other evidence demonstrating that the criteria of subsection (1) have been met", before "hydrologic" deleted "independent", after "including" inserted "but not limited to", after "information developed by the" inserted "applicant, the", and at end, after "studies", deleted "demonstrating that the criteria are met". Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Chapter 460 in (1), near beginning, substituted "subsections (3) and (4)" for "subsections (2) and (3)" and substituted "preponderance of evidence" for "substantial credible evidence"; inserted (1)(g) concerning water quality, (1)(h) concerning classification of water, and (1)(i) concerning effluent limitations; inserted (2) requiring that a valid objection be made before an applicant needs to prove that the permit criteria have been met; in (4), near end, substituted "subsection (4)" for "subsection (3)"; in (4)(b)(i) substituted "subsection (1) or (3)" for "subsection (1) or (2)"; in (4)(c) substituted "subsections (4)(b)(ii) and (4)(b)(iii)" for "subsections (3)(b)(ii) and (3)(b)(iii)"; near beginning of (5) substituted "preponderance of evidence" for "substantial credible evidence"; inserted (7) allowing the Department to adopt rules; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 460, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the bill gives the department of natural resources and conservation authority to adopt administrative rules. The bill adds statutory criteria for the department to consider in the processing of an application for a permit, change authorization, controlled ground water area, or basin closure. In adopting rules implementing this bill and in interpreting the new statutory language, it is the intent of the legislature that the department and board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] should assess the magnitude, character, duration, and geographical extent of the projected effects on the uses of water as classified and utilize this assessment in a practical manner."

Section 7, Ch. 460, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

Section 8, Ch. 460, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 and 3] [85-2-311 and 85-2-402] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications for a permit or change in appropriation right that the department has not noticed out for objection as of [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 21, 1993.

1989 Amendments: Chapter 432 at end of (1)(a) inserted "at the proposed point of diversion"; near end of (1)(a)(iii), before "available", inserted "reasonably"; inserted (1)(f) relating to possessory interest; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 4, 1989.

Chapter 495 in (1) substituted "subsections (2) and (3)" for "subsections (2) through (4)"; inserted (4) relating to evidence necessary to meet the substantial credible evidence standard; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 11, 1989.

1985 Amendment: In (1) near beginning, after "(2)", changed "and (3)" to "through (4)"; in (2) reduced the threshold for issuance of a permit under this subsection from 10,000 acre-feet or 15 cubic feet per second to 4,000 acre-feet and 5.5 cubic feet per second and substituted "the applicant proves by clear and convincing evidence that" for "it affirmatively finds"; in (2)(b) at beginning, deleted "the applicant has proven by clear and convincing evidence that"; after (2)(c)(ii), deleted former (2)(a)(iii)(C) that read: "the economic feasibility of the project"; in (2)(c)(iii) after "quality", deleted "and potability"; inserted (2)(c)(iv) prohibiting the Department from issuing a permit for an appropriation of 4,000 or more acre-feet of water per year and 5.5 or more cubic feet per second of water unless the applicant proves that, based on the effects on the quantity and quality of water for existing beneficial uses in the supply source, the proposed appropriation is a reasonable use; deleted former (2)(b) that read: "A permit for an appropriation for a diversion for a consumptive use of 10,000 or more acre-feet of water a year or 15 or more cubic feet per second of water under this subsection may not be issued unless the department petitions the legislature and the legislature affirms the findings of the department"; inserted (3) establishing criteria to allow the out-of-state transportation and use of public water; and in (4) inserted "use" after "impoundment" three times and after "impound" once, and in first sentence at end, changed "null and void" to "invalid".

1985 Applicability: Section 27, Ch. 573, L. 1985, provided: "This act applies to all permit applications, change in appropriation right applications, water sales and lease applications, and reservation applications filed and pending with the department on July 1, 1985, but upon which a hearing under Title 85, chapter 2, has not yet commenced."

1983 Amendments: Chapter 448, in (1)(b) after "the" inserted "water".

Chapter 706 made the following changes: at beginning of (1), inserted "Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3)"; at end of (1), after "if" inserted "the applicant proves by substantial credible evidence that the following criteria are met"; deleted former (6) and (7), which read: "(6) an applicant for an appropriation of 10,000 acre-feet a year or more and 15 cubic feet per second or more proves by clear and convincing evidence that the rights of a prior appropriator will not be adversely affected;

(7) except as provided in subsection (6), the applicant proves by substantial credible evidence the criteria listed in subsections (1) through (5)."; and inserted (2) and (3) requiring the Department to issue a permit to appropriate water if the rights of a prior appropriator will not be adversely affected and the proposed means of diversion, construction, and operation of the appropriation works are adequate.

Temporary Changes Made Permanent: Section 7, Ch. 706, L. 1983, provided that the amendments made by Ch. 706 were to terminate on July 1, 1985. Section 23, Ch. 573, L. 1985, amended sec. 7, Ch. 706, L. 1983, to provide that only one section (Ch. 706, sec. 4), that established the Select Committee on Water Marketing, would terminate on July 1, 1985. Thus, the amendments to this section made by Ch. 706, L. 1983 (set forth below in the 1983 amendment note), are now permanent, except insofar as the section was further amended in 1985.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "diversion, construction, and operation of the appropriation works" for "diversion or construction" in (3); substituted "and" for "or" after "a year or more" in (6); added (7) relating to required burden of proof.

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

Issuance of Permits for Ground Water on Indian Reservations Precluded Until Tribes' Federally Reserved Water Rights Defined and Quantified: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) granted a permit for the use of ground water on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Despite prior holdings in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073 (1996), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244 (1999), that the state does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights, DNRC contended that this case was distinguishable because the tribes' federally reserved water right concerning ground water is legally uncertain. However, the only federal authority cited by either party, Tweedy v. Tex. Co., 286 F. Supp. 383 (D.C. Mont. 1968), supported the conclusion that there is no distinction between surface water and ground water for purposes of determining what water rights are reserved because those rights are necessary to the purpose of an Indian reservation. Further, neither of the prior state cases excluded ground water. The tribes contended that as a sovereign nation, they should not be required to defend their water rights in piecemeal fashion before a hostile forum and that pursuant to this section and the prior case law, the ground water permit was illegal. The Supreme Court agreed with the tribes and vacated the permit, finding no reason to limit the scope of the prior holdings by excluding ground water from the tribes' federally reserved water rights in this case. Two statutory methods for comprehensively adjudicating Indian reserved water rights already exist—a general inter sese adjudication or negotiations with the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission. Therefore, the tribes should not be required to defend their water rights by participating in the DNRC hearings process. Thus, DNRC cannot determine whether water is available on the Flathead Reservation, whether surface water or ground water, because DNRC cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' preeminent water rights are defined and quantified. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Stults, 2002 MT 280, 312 M 420, 59 P3d 1093 (2002).

Quantification of Tribal Water Rights Required — 1997 Amendment Unconstitutional: In an effort to avoid the result created by In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996), the 1997 Legislature passed Senate Bill No. 97, which substantively eliminated the former protection of Indian reserved water rights provided by this section. The state conceded that the protection of existing water rights in Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., includes water rights reserved for Indian reservations and contended that those rights were not affected by Senate Bill No. 97, but rather that those rights would be considered in that part of the analysis requiring that water be legally available. The state also pointed out the provisional nature of any water use permit and alleged that there were some uses that would not diminish instream flow and that use permits could thus be issued without affecting reserved Indian water rights, regardless of the quantification of those rights. However, under State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), it was found that Indian reserved water rights are owned by the Indians, and because that ownership interest exists under federal law and does not depend on the use of the water, the Supreme Court was not persuaded that the state's permitting process might allow uses of Indian reserved water that in the long term might not diminish instream flows. The provisional nature of permits was not determinative either because use of water that may have been reserved by federal law for the tribes was no less impermissible simply because it was temporary and subject to termination following final quantification of the tribes' rights by adjudication or negotiation. Under the 1997 amendments, permits are still limited to water that is "legally available", but that phrase is not defined. Construing the phrase in a manner that sustains its constitutional validity, the Supreme Court interpreted "legally available" to mean that there is water available that, among other things, has not been federally reserved for Indian tribes. Therefore, as in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, the state cannot determine whether water is legally available on the Flathead Reservation because it cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' rights are quantified by a compact negotiation under 85-2-702 or by a general inter sese water rights adjudication. To allow the issuance of water use permits on the reservation prior to quantification of the tribes' pervasive reserved right would require use of water that might belong to the tribes, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., which protects existing water rights whether adjudicated or not. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244, 56 St. Rep. 1356 (1999).

State May Not Grant Water Use Permits on Indian Lands When Reserved Tribal Rights Not Quantified: The Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation objected to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) issuing new water use permits to nontribal members owning land in fee on the reservation. The tribes argued that this section clearly states that an applicant for a water use permit has to demonstrate that the proposed use will not unreasonably interfere with a planned use for which the water has been reserved and that such a showing cannot be made by an applicant until the tribes reserved rights are quantified by a compact negotiated with the state pursuant to 85-2-702. The Supreme Court held that this section does include Indian reserved water rights and that an applicant cannot show that there will be no adverse impact on tribal rights until those rights have been quantified by a negotiated compact with the state. Therefore, DNRC does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights. (See 1997 amendment.) In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996), followed in Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244, 56 St. Rep. 1356 (1999). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985).

Beneficial Impoundment: Counterclaim against petition of irrigation district for additional appropriation of water was properly denied where evidence was uncontradicted that water was going to waste and that impoundment would be beneficial. Sunset Irrigation District v. Ailport, 166 M 11, 531 P2d 1349 (1974).

85-2-312. Terms of permit.Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 422 in (3) deleted next to last sentence that read: "The department may not accept a request for extension of time that is filed less than 30 days prior to the time limit specified in the permit"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 1999.

Severability: Section 6, Ch. 422, L. 1999, was a severability clause.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 370 substituted language in (3) providing requirement that Department establish process for extension of time limits for commencing appropriation works, for completion of construction, and for application of water to proposed use, prohibiting acceptance by Department of request for time extension if filed less than 30 days prior to time limit in permit, and specifying that permits not completed within time limit or extension are void upon lapse of time limit for former text that read: "The department may, upon a showing of good cause, extend time limits specified in the permit for commencement of the appropriation works, completion of construction, and actual application of the water to the proposed beneficial use. All requests for extensions of time must be by affidavit and must be filed with the department prior to the expiration of the time limit specified in the permit or any previously authorized extension of time. The department may issue an order temporarily extending the time limit specified in the permit for 120 days or until the department has completed its action under this section, whichever is greater. Upon receipt of a proper request for extension of time, the department shall prepare a notice containing the facts pertinent to the request for extension of time and shall publish the notice in a newspaper of general circulation in the area of the source. The department may serve notice by first-class mail upon any public agency or other person the department determines may be interested in or affected by the request for extension of time. The department shall hold a hearing on the request for extension of time on its own motion or if requested by an interested party. The department may grant the extension of time in the absence of a hearing if no requests for a hearing are received and the extension of time is granted as requested, or the department may grant the extension of time in a modified form by following the process established in 85-2-310(2). Subsequent extensions of time may be made in the same manner." Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 85-2-312 grants the department of natural resources and conservation rulemaking authority to establish a procedure for extending time limits for completing work under a water use permit. The legislature intends that the department provide necessary procedural and substantive safeguards to protect existing water users and permit holders from adverse impacts that may be caused by extending time limits for perfecting new water uses."

1991 Amendment: Deleted (5) that read: "(5) The department shall provide to the county clerk and recorder of the county wherein the point of diversion or place of use is located quarterly reports and an annual summary report of all water right permits, certificates, and change approvals issued by the department within the county". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1987 Amendment: In (2), at beginning, substituted "The department shall specify in the permit or in any authorized extension of time provided in subsection (3), the time limits" for "The department may limit the time", deleted last sentence that read: "For good cause shown by the permittee, the department may in its discretion reasonably extend time limits", and inserted last sentence concerning required Department considerations in issuing permit or authorized extension of time; and inserted (3) relating to grant of extension of time for commencement of appropriation works.

1985 Amendment: In (1) in third sentence, at beginning changed "It" to "The department" and after "necessary", substituted "to satisfy the criteria listed in 85-2-311" for "to protect the rights of other appropriators".

1983 Amendment: In (3), after "sent to the" substituted "permittee" for "county clerk and recorder in the county where the point of diversion or place of use is located for recordation"; deleted last sentence of (3), which read: "After recordation, the clerk and recorder shall send the permit to the permittee."; and inserted (4) requiring that the Department provide to the County Clerk and Recorder of a county where the diversion point or place of use is located quarterly and annual reports of all water rights permits, certificates, and change approvals issued by the Department within the county.

Case Notes

Department Authorized to Condition Permits: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation has authority to grant conditional use permits under 85-2-312 when restrictions are necessary to protect the rights of prior appropriators or are used to impose time limits to perfect a water right under the permit. Mont. Power Co. v. Carey, 211 M 91, 685 P2d 336, 41 St. Rep. 1233 (1984). (Annotator's note: Chapter 573, L. 1985, amended this section to provide that the Department may restrict permits when necessary to satisfy the criteria in 85-2-311).

Permit Conditions Supported by Substantial Credible Evidence: In a proceeding for a permit, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation granted the permit but reduced both the quantity of water to be appropriated and the time period during which the water could be appropriated. The Supreme Court upheld these restrictions based on a review of substantial expert testimony which indicated that the water supply was inadequate to sustain the proposed appropriations, along with existing senior rights, without the restrictions imposed by the Department. Mont. Power Co. v. Carey, 211 M 91, 685 P2d 336, 41 St. Rep. 1233 (1984).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 370 in first sentence, at end before "completed", deleted "properly", in second sentence, at end, substituted "was completed" for "has been properly completed in substantial accordance with the terms and conditions of the permit" and in third sentence, near beginning after "department", inserted "shall review the certified statement and"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

1991 Amendment: Inserted second sentence requiring notification to contain certified statement by person with experience in design, construction, or operation of appropriation works that appropriation has been properly completed in accordance with permit; and deleted (2) that read: "(2) The department shall provide to the county clerk and recorder of the county wherein the point of diversion or place of use is located quarterly reports and an annual summary report of all certificates of water right issued by the department within the county". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Applicability: Section 14, Ch. 805, L. 1991, provided: "[Sections 7 and 8] [85-2-315 and 85-2-317], concerning certification by a person with experience in the design, construction, or operation of appropriation works, apply to all permits and change approvals issued after [the effective date of this act] [effective July 1, 1991]."

1983 Amendment: In (1), after "sent to the" substituted "permittee" for "county clerk and recorder in the county wherein the point of diversion or place of use is located for recordation"; deleted last sentence of (1), which read: "After recordation, the clerk and recorder shall send the certificate to the appropriator."; substituted (2) (see 1983 Session Law) for former text, which read: "Except as provided in 85-2-313, a certificate of water right in a particular source may not be issued prior to a general determination under part 2 of this chapter of existing rights in that source."

1997 Amendments: Chapter 330 in (9)(d), after "permit", inserted "or a certificate for ground water development"; in (9)(d)(i), after "application", inserted "or the notice of completion of ground water development"; in (9)(d)(ii), after "permits", inserted "or certificates for ground water development"; inserted (9)(d)(iii) relating to consent to subordination of ground water development; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 1997.

Chapter 497 throughout section, in 16 places before reference to reservation, inserted "state water" and in 7 places, before "water reservation", inserted "state"; in (1), near middle, substituted "acquire a state water reservation" for "reserve waters"; in (11), in second sentence near beginning after "Reallocation of", deleted "reserved" and after "water" inserted "reserved pursuant to a state water reservation"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (1), in two places, (3), (4)(a), in two places, (4)(b), (4)(c), (5), (6), in two places, (8)(a), (9)(c), (9)(d), (9)(e), (10), in two places, (11), in four places, (13), and (14) substituted "department" for "board"; in (7), after "may", deleted "with the approval of the board"; in (12), in second sentence after "change", deleted "the board, upon notification by" and after "department" deleted "of its approval"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 370 at beginning of (3) substituted "a correct and complete application" for "an application"; in (4)(a) and (5), after "board", inserted "by a preponderance of evidence"; and at end of second sentence in (8)(b), after "agricultural purposes", substituted "describing how the reserved water was put to use" for "that the reserved water has been put to use in substantial accordance with the terms and conditions of the authorization to use reserved water". Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

1991 Amendment: In (8)(a), at end of first sentence after "approved use", inserted "and issue the applicant an authorization for the use"; inserted (8)(b) relating to notification of use of water and inspection for compliance with authorization; in (10) inserted last sentence relating to appropriation of undeveloped water; inserted (12) relating to approval of changes in reservations of water; and inserted (13) relating to transfers of water reservations. Amendment effective April 20, 1991.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 515, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all reservations of waters granted pursuant to 85-2-316."

1989 Amendment: Substituted (9) relating to determination of priority of appropriation of a water reservation and relative priority of the reservation to permits with a later priority for former (9) that read: "(9) A reservation under this section shall date from the date the order reserving the water is adopted by the board and shall not adversely affect any rights in existence at that time"; and made minor changes in phraseology and punctuation.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 389, L. 1989, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill to guide the board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] in the subordination of water reservations to junior water use permits. The legislature intends that the board amend the rules governing water reservations to clarify the procedure by which subordination, if necessary, will be undertaken and to ensure that any subordination occurs in a manner that results in a clear order of priority among all permits and reservations for use in the administration of water rights associated with the specific water source.

In amending the rules, the board should make clear that the matter of subordination may be considered only after a final decision has been made on all applications for water reservations from a specific water source. If the board determines that subordination should be considered, it may request that the department of natural resources and conservation prepare an analysis concerning the potential for subordination to interfere with the purpose of the reservation and the level at which substantial interference with the reservation would occur. Once the department's analysis is completed, all affected reservants, permitholders, and other interests are to be provided legal notice and the opportunity to appear before the board to present testimony and other evidence concerning subordination. Any board decision on the matter of subordination should be written as an order that includes findings of fact and conclusions of law.

After determining the level at which substantial interference with the purpose of a reservation would occur, the board may subordinate a reservation only to permits that in cumulative effect and in order of priority would not exceed the established level of interference. The board should consider priority dates in deciding which reservations are to be subordinated to which permits in order to avoid confusion about the priority of right to water among permits, between permits and reservations, and among reservations. For example, a reservation with a July 1, 1985, priority date should not be subordinated to a permit with a July 1, 1988, priority date without the reservation also being subordinated to a permit with a June 30, 1987, priority date. Also, a senior water reservation should not be subordinated to a permit without all junior reservations affected also being subordinated to the permit."

Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 389, L. 1989, provided: "[This act] does not apply to existing water reservations or to water reservation applications filed with the department of natural resources and conservation before October 1, 1989."

1987 Amendment: In (2)(a), at end of introductory clause, substituted "basin where it is reserved, as described by the following basins" for "following river basins"; and inserted (2)(b) relating to water reservation outside a basin of diversion.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2) listing river basins in which water may be reserved only for existing or future beneficial uses; inserted (4)(b) through (4)(d) establishing criteria for reservation of water for withdrawal and transport for use outside the state; inserted (13) requiring the Department to develop an education program on the benefits and procedures for water reservation and provide technical assistance to agencies or political subdivisions applying for water reservation; and inserted (14) exempting reserved water from the state leasing program.

1985 Applicability: Section 27, Ch. 573, L. 1985, provided: "This act applies to all permit applications, change in appropriation right applications, water sales and lease applications, and reservation applications filed and pending with the department on July 1, 1985, but upon which a hearing under Title 85, chapter 2, has not yet commenced."

1981 Amendments: Chapter 186 in (7) inserted "when requested by the districts" before "for rendering technical and administrative assistance", inserted "preparation and" before "processing of such applications", and added last two sentences requiring the Department to complete requested feasibility study and the Board to extend to a conservation district the time allowed to develop plan identifying projects utilizing water reservation.

Chapter 357 added the last sentence of (2) requiring an applicant to pay a reasonable proportion of the Department's cost of preparing environmental impact statement unless payment is waived by the Department.

1981 Applicability: Subsection (3), sec. 7, Ch. 357, L. 1981, provided: "Section 6 [sec. 6, Ch. 357, L. 1981, amending 85-2-316] applies to applications pending before the board on April 14, 1981, as well as applications filed with the board after April 14, 1981."

85-2-317. Limitation on appropriation of ground water.

Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: Substituted (1) providing that after July 1, 1991, Department may not approve a permit to appropriate ground water in excess of 3,000 acre-feet per year unless criteria in 85-2-311 are met and Legislature affirms decision after public hearings for former (1) that read: "(1) After May 7, 1979, no application for a permit to appropriate ground water in excess of 3,000 acre-feet per year may be granted, except pursuant to an act of the legislature permitting the specific appropriation". Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Applicability: Section 14, Ch. 805, L. 1991, provided: "[Sections 7 and 8] [85-2-315 and 85-2-317], concerning certification by a person with experience in the design, construction, or operation of appropriation works, apply to all permits and change approvals issued after [the effective date of this act] [effective July 1, 1991]."

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 524, L. 1989, provided: "WHEREAS, agricultural and stockwater users in Musselshell County are experiencing water shortages during periods of low flow in the Musselshell River; and

WHEREAS, alternatives for additional water supplies, such as off-stream reservoir storage, would be very costly; and

WHEREAS, abandoned coal mines near Roundup could provide substantial supplemental water; and

WHEREAS, the 50th Montana Legislature authorized the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to issue an interim permit to the Deadman Basin Water Users Association to appropriate ground water in the mines; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation is preparing to issue an interim permit to the Deadman Basin Water Users Association for a small test withdrawal, after a thorough review of the project for any environmental effects; and

WHEREAS, the best interests of people in the Roundup area will be served by a credible and technically sound evaluation of whether the coal mines can provide significant supplemental water supplies without significant adverse environmental effects and without harm to other existing appropriators; and

WHEREAS, test appropriations proposed during the summers of 1990 and 1991 will require an interim permit for an amount exceeding 3,000 acre-feet per year, thereby requiring legislative approval pursuant to section 85-2-317, MCA."

Authorization to Issue Interim Permit to Appropriate Ground Water: Section 1, Ch. 524, L. 1989, provided: "Pursuant to 85-2-317(1), the department of natural resources and conservation may authorize an interim permit for a period ending no later than September 30, 1991, to the Deadman Basin water users association to appropriate ground water up to 6,000 acre-feet per year from abandoned coal mines in Musselshell County. The application and interim permit are subject to the remaining provisions of Title 85, chapter 2, part 3."

1987 Permits: Section 1, Ch. 138, L. 1987, authorized the Department to issue two permits to appropriate ground water exceeding 3,000 acre-feet per year according to application numbers 54092-g43D and 54124-g43D.

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 138, L. 1987, provided: "WHEREAS, hydropower is a beneficial use of water that provides benefits to many Montana citizens; and

WHEREAS, applicants propose to use ground water from an existing well and from a new well located in Carbon County for generating hydropower; and

WHEREAS, the source of water for the wells is the Tensleep formation, a major aquifer with commonly reported flows in excess of 8 cubic feet per second; and

WHEREAS, the applicants and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks have agreed to a provisional permit under conditions that ensure adequate flows for the nearby Bluewater Fish Hatchery; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation has reviewed the applications and recommends approval of the application; and

WHEREAS, the ground water applied for exceeds 3,000 acre-feet per year for each well and therefore requires legislative approvals pursuant to section 85-2-317, MCA.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana finds it appropriate to authorize the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to issue two permits to the applicants for ground water appropriations in excess of 3,000 acre-feet per year."

Certain Abandoned Mine Workings — Authorization to Issue Permit to Appropriate Ground Water: Chapter 414, L. 1987, read: "WHEREAS, agricultural and stockwater users in Musselshell County are experiencing water shortages during periods of low flow in the Musselshell River; and

WHEREAS, alternatives for additional water supplies, such as off-stream reservoir storage, would be very costly; and

WHEREAS, abandoned coal mines near Roundup could provide substantial supplemental water; and

WHEREAS, the Deadman Basin Water Users Association has applied to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation for a permit to appropriate approximately 13,000 acre-feet annually; and

WHEREAS, the use of this water would exceed 3,000 acre-feet per year and therefore requires legislative approval pursuant to 85-2-317, MCA.

THEREFORE, The Legislature of the State of Montana finds it appropriate to authorize the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to issue a permit to appropriate ground water to the Deadman Basin Water Users Association.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF MONTANA:

Section 1. Authorization to issue permit to appropriate ground water. Pursuant to 85-2-317(1), the department of natural resources and conservation may issue an interim permit for a period ending September 30, 1989, to appropriate ground water in excess of 3,000 acre-feet per year to the Deadman Basin water users association according to application number 61478-g40C for the purpose of conducting and evaluating a project to pump ground water from abandoned mine workings along the lower Musselshell River. The application is subject to the remaining provisions of Title 85, chapter 2, part 3.

Section 2. Coordination instruction. If House Bill No. 642, including the section of that bill repealing 85-2-317, is passed and approved, this act is void.

Section 3. Effective date. This act is effective July 1, 1987."

House Bill No. 642 was passed and approved as Ch. 535, L. 1987. As enacted, Ch. 535 did not repeal 85-2-317. Thus, this chapter is not void.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (2), near end of first sentence, and in (2)(d) substituted "department of environmental quality" for "department of health and environmental sciences"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 460 at end of first sentence of (2), after "subbasin", inserted "or upon petition of the department of health and environmental sciences alleging facts under subsection (2)(d)"; inserted (2)(d) clarifying facts that must be alleged in the case of a petition filed by the Department of Health and Environmental Sciences; inserted (5) allowing the Department to adopt rules; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 460, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the bill gives the department of natural resources and conservation authority to adopt administrative rules. The bill adds statutory criteria for the department to consider in the processing of an application for a permit, change authorization, controlled ground water area, or basin closure. In adopting rules implementing this bill and in interpreting the new statutory language, it is the intent of the legislature that the department and board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] should assess the magnitude, character, duration, and geographical extent of the projected effects on the uses of water as classified and utilize this assessment in a practical manner."

1983 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 370 (Ch. 448, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it delegates rulemaking authority to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation in sections 1 and 17."

The intent is to provide the Department with the authority to adopt rules necessary to reject, modify, or condition water use permit applications in highly appropriated basins or subbasins. A rule may only be adopted under this section upon a petition signed by a certain percentage of water users in the source of supply or by direction of the Legislature. The petition must allege certain facts showing the need for the adoption of a rule. The Department must act on the petition within 60 days by: denying the petition and providing reasons to the petitioners; informing the petitioners that additional study of the allegations is necessary before denying or proceeding with the petition; or initiating the rulemaking proceeding. The rulemaking procedure must follow the notice requirements of the Montana Administrative Procedure Act, and in addition the Department must publish notice of the rulemaking hearing once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in which the source is located and also serve an individual copy of the notice on any known water right holder in the source of supply according to the Department's records.

This bill also delegates rulemaking authority to the Board of Natural Resources and Conservation [functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation] in section 2.

The intent is to provide the Board with the authority to adopt, through rules, fees to be paid by applicants, petitioners, and others for services provided. Fees could be adopted for: rulemaking hearings to reject, modify, or condition water use permit applications in highly appropriated basins or subbasins; administrative hearings conducted by the Department to settle objections to permit or change applications; costs incurred during the field investigation of a complaint against a permittee and related revocation proceedings; and for costs incurred in the field verification of issued and completed permits and change approvals."

1985 Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 394, L. 1985, read: "WHEREAS, there has long been in the Milk River Basin a scarcity of water available to meet the needs of all water users; and

WHEREAS, the precipitation in the Milk River Basin during the past 2 years has been even lower than usual; and

WHEREAS, in 1981, the 47th Legislature recognized the growing problem of protection of existing water rights in the Milk River Basin, in view of continuing applications for new water rights, by enacting a law authorizing the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation to suspend action on new permits in the Basin; and

WHEREAS, tension has arisen among certain water users in the Milk River Basin because of uncertainty on the amounts and priorities of individual rights to the scarce water resources; and

WHEREAS, neither a preliminary nor temporary preliminary decree has been issued to date in the Milk River Basin in the Montana Water Court's adjudication of existing water rights; and

WHEREAS, complicated legal issues exist with respect to water rights in the Milk River Basin because of the 1909 Boundary Waters Treaty, the location in the Basin of federal Bureau of Reclamation irrigation projects, and the existence in the Basin of federal reserved water rights claims; and

WHEREAS, in view of these complicated legal issues, it may not be feasible at this time to issue a preliminary decree of water rights in the Milk River Basin; however, a temporary preliminary decree can be issued; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds that it is in the interest of water users in the Milk River Basin that the Montana Water Court issue a temporary preliminary decree in the Basin as soon as practicable."

1989 Amendment: In introductory clause of (1) inserted "or in the Little Missouri River basin"; substituted (1)(a) and (1)(b), relating to reservation above and below Fort Peck dam, for end of (1) that read: "July 1, 1989, except that applications for reservation of water below Fort Peck dam must be filed no later than July 1, 1991"; at end of (2) inserted "and the Little Missouri River basin"; at beginning of (3)(a) substituted "July 1, 1992" for "December 31, 1991"; at end of (3)(b) inserted "and in the Little Missouri River basin"; and in (4) inserted "in the Missouri River basin and a priority date of July 1, 1989, in the Little Missouri River basin". Amendment effective March 18, 1989.

1987 Amendment: At end of (1) inserted exception for water below Fort Peck Dam; at end of (3)(a) inserted "above Fort Peck dam"; inserted (3)(b) requiring Board before December 31, 1991, to make final determination on applications filed before July 1, 1989, for reservation of water in Missouri River above Fort Peck Dam; inserted (3)(c) requiring Board to determine which applications are above or below Fort Peck Dam; and in (4) inserted second sentence concerning subordination.

1985 Amendment: In (1) and (3) changed deadline for filing applications from July 1, 1987, to July 1, 1989; and in (3) changed deadline for final board determination from December 31, 1989, to December 31, 1991.

Applicability: Section 27, Ch. 573, L. 1985, provided: "This act applies to all permit applications, change in appropriation right applications, water sales and lease applications, and reservation applications filed and pending with the department on July 1, 1985, but upon which a hearing under Title 85, chapter 2, has not yet commenced."

Appropriation — Deadline Change: House Bill 952, L. 1985 (approved May 13, 1985), appropriated funds for water reservations in the upper Missouri River Basin, and changed the deadlines set forth in Ch. 573, L. 1985, for filing applications for water reservations and for action by the Board of Natural Resources & Conservation (functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) on reservation applications. The preamble to House Bill 952, L. 1985, read: "WHEREAS, the Select Committee on Water Marketing was commissioned by the 1983 Legislature to undertake a study of the advantages and disadvantages of water marketing; and

WHEREAS, the Select Committee in completing its study determined that Montana needs to address broader questions of water policy in order to protect Montana's interests in the allocation and management of state waters; and

WHEREAS, the Select Committee has presented a comprehensive series of recommendations that must be considered as a whole; and

WHEREAS, these recommendations serve to revise Montana's water policy in order to maximize Montana's authority over management of state waters and other natural resources and to conserve water for existing and future beneficial uses by Montanans; and

WHEREAS, many of these recommendations are embodied in House Bill No. 680, which is under consideration by the 49th Legislature, as well as contained in the Select Committee's final report; and

WHEREAS, funds are needed for various agencies of state government to implement these recommendations.

THEREFORE, the Legislature of the State of Montana finds it appropriate to allocate funds for the implementation of the recommendations and to further develop a comprehensive water policy."

Part 4 Utilization of Water

Part Case Notes

Findings and Conclusions as to Water Rights Held Inadequate — Judgment Vacated and Remanded: When a midstream and downstream water user filed suit against the upstream user to have the District Court declare the relative water rights of the parties, the findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by the District Court were so bare and inadequate as to provide no basis for meaningful appellate review. Because it could not be determined from the District Court's bare conclusions (i.e., that the parties had failed to prove their case by a preponderance of the evidence and had abandoned their rights) what the factual or evidentiary basis for the District Court's decision was, the Supreme Court vacated the judgment as to all of the three parties and remanded the case to the District Court and directed it to enter findings and conclusions reflective of the evidence presented at trial and the legal contentions of the parties. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 193 M 229, 631 P2d 690, 38 St. Rep. 1048 (1981).

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 497 inserted (4) concerning recognition and confirmation of changes in appropriation rights actions of Department after July 1, 1973; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 22, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

Case Notes

Appropriative Rights Annual Rather Than Seasonal: Generally, there is no division of the year into an irrigation season and a storage season, so as to give later direct users a seasonal preference over earlier indirect users, or vice versa. Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984).

Damage Award to Appropriator of Costs of Lawsuit Filed to Enforce Rights: In a water rights dispute, upstream junior appropriators damaged downstream senior appropriators' headgate. A lawsuit over their respective water rights ensued, and the senior appropriators were successful both at trial and on appeal. At trial, the jury awarded the senior appropriators their court costs and attorney fees as damages. The Supreme Court refused to overturn the award, ruling that the costs of the lawsuit were consequential to the interference with the headgate and not so remote as to preclude recovery. Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984).

No Grounds for Change of Pre-1973 Water Right: Upstream junior appropriators were precluded from challenging a change in place of use made by downstream senior appropriators' predecessor in interest in 1941 because the junior appropriators held no rights to the waters at issue in 1941. Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984).

Right of Priority: Priority of application for water appropriation is an existing right which is preserved from extinction by the provisions of Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const. Gen. Agriculture Corp. v. Moore, 166 M 510, 534 P2d 859 (1975).

Priority of Senior Main Stem Water Rights Over Junior Tributary Water Rights: Appellant owns water rights in Clear Creek dating to 1910. Petitioners have water rights in Rock Creek dating to 1896. Clear Creek is a tributary of Rock Creek. In 1970, appellant obtained a court order directing the Rock Creek Water Commissioner to "carry out" the Clear Creek water rights of appellant. Following the District Court order, the Water Commissioner honored in full the requests of appellant for water without regard to any priority in the relationship of the creeks' water rights. As a result, at times of water shortage, senior Rock Creek decreed waters are cut off. In 1977, petitioners filed this action to rescind the 1970 order and to direct the Water Commissioner to subject the Clear Creek water rights to the priorities of Rock Creek water rights. The District Court ruled that the 1970 court order, applied by the Water Commissioner to fulfill junior appropriations ahead of prior decreed rights, was improper. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's order and further stated that the order did not violate due process. The Supreme Court reasoned that the only rights affected by the District Court order were the rights of the parties before the court. Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983).

Waters of Tributary: The waters of a tributary belong to the stream into which the tributary flows to the extent of prior appropriations. Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983).

Valid Water Right Not Affected by Release of Surplus to Junior User: Defendants' predecessor in interest began using water in the amount of 110 gallons a minute from Mahle Spring in 1917 for domestic, stock, and irrigation purposes. Mahle Spring flows into Ashley Creek. In 1958, defendants completed construction of a dam whose purpose was to stabilize their water supply only, not to increase the amount of water appropriated. In April 1973, defendants filed notice of completion of ground water appropriation without well, claiming 110 gallons a minute. In 1957, plaintiff's predecessor in interest began using water from Ashley Creek. At times, when Ashley Creek dried up, defendants agreed to release water from the dam. In 1978, plaintiff obtained a water use permit for Ashley Creek. Subsequently, defendants refused to release any water from the dam. Plaintiff filed an action to adjudicate the parties' water rights and to enjoin defendants from interfering with the flow of Ashley Creek. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the District Court's ruling that defendants are entitled to 110 gallons a minute with a priority date of 1917 and that plaintiff is entitled only to the excess over that. The court denied plaintiff's claim that defendants were estopped from asserting a superior claim, reasoning that the release of the water did not cause plaintiff's predecessor in interest to change her position for the worse because the defendants had already established a valid claim to the water and thus the release was either a mere gratuity or a release of surplus water. In the absence of evidence that defendant was not simply releasing surplus water, the court also denied plaintiff's claim of laches. Finally, the court denied plaintiff's claim that the release from the dam was evidence that defendants were not making beneficial use of all the water since the District Court findings indicated that the defendants' total claim was fully justified. Bagnell v. Lemery, 202 M 238, 657 P2d 608, 40 St. Rep. 58 (1983).

Prior Rights: Where plaintiff had over the years constructed a series of dikes in order to spread over his land the water which would flow down a dry gully after the melting of snow or a heavy rainfall, he had a prior right to the extent that his project was finished. He who first diverts the water to a beneficial use has the prior right thereto where the right is based upon the custom and practice of the early settlers and where there was no compliance with the statutes. Midkiff v. Kincheloe, 127 M 324, 263 P2d 976 (1953). (See, however, the dissenting opinion in the case in which it was contended that the waters were floodwaters and wastewaters which the defendant had a right to impound in a stock reservoir, 127 M 324, 263 P2d 976 (1953).)

Temporary Suspension of Prior Right: When the one holding the prior right does not need the water, such prior right is temporarily suspended and the next right in the order of priority may use the water until such time as the prior appropriator's needs justify his demanding that the junior appropriator give way to his superior claim. Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), distinguished and overruled on other grounds in Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85 (1983).

Abandonment — Resumption: Where use of water is abandoned and resumed, use vests from the date of resumption. Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); O'Shea v. Doty, 68 M 316, 218 P 658 (1923).

Priority of Appropriation: Priority of appropriation of water confers superiority of right without reference to the character of the use, whether natural or artificial. Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

2003 Amendment: Chapter 161 in (1) in third sentence in exception clause and in (2) in exception clause inserted reference to subsection (16); inserted (15)(a)(iii)(A) concerning municipal wells; at end of (15)(a)(iii)(B) inserted "for all other wells"; inserted (16) concerning redundant water supply wells in a public water supply system; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 28, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 132 at beginning of third sentence in (1) inserted exception clause and near middle of sentence after "right" substituted "without the approval of the department" for "except, as permitted under this section, by applying for and receiving the approval of the department"; near beginning of (2) inserted reference to subsection (15); inserted (15) allowing appropriator to change water right for replacement wells without prior approval of department if certain criteria are met; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 27, 2001.

Chapter 381 in (1) at beginning of third sentence inserted exception clause and near middle after "appropriation right" substituted "without" for "except, as permitted under this section, by applying for and receiving"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 27, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 42 in (5)(b) at beginning inserted "for the withdrawal and transportation of appropriated water for out-of-state use"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 24, 1999.

Extension of Termination Date: Sections 5 through 7, Ch. 123, L. 1999, amended sec. 11, Ch. 658, L. 1989, and secs. 4 and 7, Ch. 740, L. 1991, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 658, L. 1989, and Ch. 740, L. 1991, to June 30, 2009. Effective March 19, 1999. Section 6, Ch. 322, L. 1995, and sec. 14, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided a termination date of June 30, 2005, for one version of this section; however, the 1995 termination date was not extended by Ch. 123, L. 1999.

1997 Amendments: (Temporary version and version effective July 1, 1999) Chapter 353 in (2)(d), after "85-2-408", inserted "or 85-2-439". Amendment effective April 22, 1997.

(All versions) Chapter 497 in (1) inserted first and second sentences concerning right to make change and lack of presumption in change proceeding; and in (2)(a), near beginning, substituted "change in appropriation right" for "use", before "water rights of other persons" inserted "use of the existing", near middle, after "persons or other", inserted "perfected or", after "a permit" inserted "or certificate", and at end substituted "a state water reservation has been issued under part 3" for "water has been reserved". Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

(Temporary version and version effective July 1, 1999) In (6), near middle of first sentence after "requirements for", inserted "federal non-Indian and Indian". Amendment effective May 1, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 22, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

Severability: Section 23, Ch. 497, L. 1997, was a severability clause.

1995 Amendments — Composite Section: (Temporary version) Chapter 322 in (2)(b) inserted language pertaining to temporary change authorization for instream use to benefit fishery resource pursuant to 85-2-408; at beginning of (2)(d) inserted exception clause relating to 85-2-436 or 85-2-408; and made minor changes in style.

(Version effective July 1, 1999) At beginning of (1)(b) and (1)(d) inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment terminates June 30, 2005.

(Temporary version) Chapter 487 in (2)(b), after "85-2-436", inserted "or water use pursuant to 85-2-439"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 14, 1995, and terminates June 30, 2005. The amendment in (2)(b) rendered the Ch. 322 use of "either" after "85-2-408 when" inappropriate.

(Version effective July 1, 1999) In (2)(b), at beginning, inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999, and terminates June 30, 2005. The insertion in (2)(b) of exception clause required the addition of "or" to separate exception clauses and required corresponding changes in style.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 322, L. 1995, provided: "This legislation, jointly developed by representatives from the agricultural, recreation, and conservation communities, is intended to authorize the temporary use of existing water rights for instream flow to benefit the fishery resource. In establishing the use of water rights for authorized instream flow to benefit the fishery resource, it is the intent of the legislature that the authorization respect and work within the prior appropriation water rights system.

This legislation creates an opportunity for citizens to voluntarily enter into agreements to lease existing water rights to protect fisheries and allows persons who own water rights to temporarily change the use of that water to instream flow to benefit the fishery resource.

To monitor and review the implementation of this instream flow program, the legislature directs the office of the governor to convene on an ongoing and regular basis a working group that includes representatives from the agricultural, recreation, and conservation communities. This working group shall consult with the department of natural resources and conservation on relevant changes in water use and shall submit a report to the governor and the legislature in 2001 outlining the status of the program."

Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all applications for changes in appropriation rights, permits, and water reservations received by the department of natural resources and conservation after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 14, 1995.

1993 Amendments: Chapter 370 in (1), in first sentence after "this section", substituted "by applying for and receiving the approval" for "and with the approval" and inserted second sentence requiring applicant to submit a correct and complete application; in (2) and (4), after "proves by", substituted "a preponderance of evidence" for "substantial credible evidence"; near end of first sentence of (9), before "completed", deleted "properly" and at end of second sentence, after "works", substituted "describing how the appropriation was completed" for "that the appropriation has been properly completed in substantial accordance with the terms and conditions of the change approval"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Chapter 460 in (2) substituted "subsections (4) through (6)" for "subsections (3) through (5)"; in (2) and (4), after "proves by", substituted "a preponderance of evidence" for "substantial credible evidence"; inserted (2)(f) concerning water quality and (2)(g) concerning effluent limitations; inserted (3) requiring that a valid objection be made before an applicant needs to prove that the change approval criteria have been met; in (5)(a) substituted "subsections (2) and (4)" for "subsections (2) and (3)"; in (6)(b)(i) substituted "subsection (2) or (4)" for "subsection (2) or (3)"; in (6)(c) substituted "subsections (6)(b)(ii) and (6)(b)(iii)" for "subsections (5)(b)(ii) and (5)(b)(iii)"; inserted (14) allowing the Department to adopt rules; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 460, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the bill gives the department of natural resources and conservation authority to adopt administrative rules. The bill adds statutory criteria for the department to consider in the processing of an application for a permit, change authorization, controlled ground water area, or basin closure. In adopting rules implementing this bill and in interpreting the new statutory language, it is the intent of the legislature that the department and board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] should assess the magnitude, character, duration, and geographical extent of the projected effects on the uses of water as classified and utilize this assessment in a practical manner."

Section 7, Ch. 460, L. 1993, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

Section 8, Ch. 460, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 and 3] [85-2-311 and 85-2-402] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications for a permit or change in appropriation right that the department has not noticed out for objection as of [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 21, 1993.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 308 inserted (2)(e) regarding salvaged water.

Chapter 805 inserted (8) requiring appropriator to notify Department that appropriation has been completed and requiring notification to contain certified statement by person with experience in design, construction, or operation of appropriation works that appropriation has been properly completed in accordance with terms of change approval. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 308, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to provide guidance to the department of natural resources and conservation concerning the adoption of rules to allow the appropriation, use, and change of use of salvaged water. The legislature directs the department of natural resources and conservation to adopt rules that promote the conservation and efficient use of water by implementing the provisions of this bill."

1989 Amendments: Chapter 432 inserted (2)(d) relating to possessory interest; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 4, 1989.

Chapter 658 at beginning of (2)(b) inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective May 11, 1989, and terminates June 30, 1993.

1987 Amendment: In (7) inserted last sentence concerning time extension.

1985 Amendment: Substituted (1) through (8) (see 1985 Session Law) for former (1) through (6) that read: "(1) An appropriator may not change the place of diversion, place of use, purpose of use, or place of storage except as permitted under this section and approved by the department.

(2) The department shall approve the proposed change if it determines that the proposed change will not adversely affect the rights of other persons. If the department determines that the proposed change might adversely affect the rights of other persons, notice of the proposed change shall be given in accordance with 85-2-307. If the department determines that an objection filed by a person whose rights may be affected states a valid objection to the proposed change, the department shall hold a hearing thereon prior to its approval or denial of the proposed change. Objections shall meet the requirements of 85-2-308(2), and hearings shall be held in accordance with 85-2-309.

(3) An appropriator of more than 15 cubic feet per second may not change the purpose of use of an appropriation right from an agricultural or irrigation use to an industrial use.

(4) The department may approve a change subject to such terms, conditions, restrictions, and limitations it considers necessary to protect the rights of other appropriators, including limitations on the time for completion of the change.

(5) If a change is not completed as approved by the department or if the terms, conditions, restrictions, and limitations of the change approval are not complied with, the department may, after notice and opportunity for hearing, require the appropriator to show cause why the change approval should not be modified or revoked. If the appropriator fails to show sufficient cause, the department may modify or revoke the change approval.

(6) Without obtaining prior approval from the department, an appropriator may not sever all or any part of an appropriation right from the land to which it is appurtenant, sell the appropriation right for other purposes or to other lands, or make the appropriation right appurtenant to other lands. The department shall approve the proposed change if it determines that the proposed change will not adversely affect the water rights of other persons. If the department determines that the proposed change might adversely affect the water rights of other persons, notice of the proposed change must be given in accordance with 85-2-307. If the department then determines that an objection filed by a person whose water rights may be affected states a valid objection to the proposed change, the department shall hold a hearing thereon prior to its approval or denial of the proposed change. Objections must meet the requirements of 85-2-308, and hearings must be held in accordance with 85-2-309"; and inserted (11) relating to invalidating a change in appropriation right made contrary to law.

Applicability: Section 27, Ch. 573, L. 1985, provided: "This act applies to all permit applications, change in appropriation right applications, water sales and lease applications, and reservation applications filed and pending with the department on July 1, 1985, but upon which a hearing under Title 85, chapter 2, has not yet commenced."

1983 Amendment: In (3), after "agricultural" inserted "or irrigation"; inserted (6) through (8) describing criteria and procedures for departmental approval of a proposed change in appropriation.

Administrative Rules

ARM 36.15.603 Permits for water diversions.

Case Notes

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

Burden of Proof at All Stages: This section requires the Department to approve an appropriation right change if: (1) the appropriator proves that the proposed use will not adversely affect the water rights of others; (2) the proposed means of diversion, construction, and operation are adequate; and (3) the proposed use is a beneficial one. Deletion by 1985 amendment of language referring to a contested case hearing stage in the application process did not have the effect of making this burden of proof apply only at the application stage, with the objector having the burden of proof at the hearing stage. The applicant has the burden of proof at all stages before the Department and courts. In re Application for Change of Appropriation of Water Rights for Royston, 249 M 425, 816 P2d 1054, 48 St. Rep. 747 (1991).

Evidence That Change Would Not Affect Objector's Rights: Applicant applied for a change in water rights that would alter the place of use, the amount of acres irrigated, and the type of irrigation used. The hearings examiner properly precluded applicant from showing the nature of objectors' water rights in an attempt to demonstrate that the rights would not be affected by applicant's proposed change. The records of objectors' water rights are in the Water Court's temporary preliminary decree, and the hearings examiner correctly concluded that the rights in the decree were prima facie evidence that the objectors had water rights in the stream. The provisions of this chapter, commonly referred to as the Water Use Act, have a separate procedure by which applicant can attack rights claimed by objectors. To allow applicant to present evidence pertaining to objectors' water rights could lead to readjudication of rights claimed in the creek. In re Application for Change of Appropriation of Water Rights for Royston, 249 M 425, 816 P2d 1054, 48 St. Rep. 747 (1991).

Failure of Applicant to Carry Burden of Proof: Applicant for a change of appropriation failed to meet the burden of proving that the change would not adversely affect objectors' rights. The application was properly denied because the evidence in the record does not sustain a conclusion of no adverse effect and because it cannot be concluded from the record that the means of diversion and operation are adequate. The hearings examiner's decision to deny the application was not clearly erroneous in view of the reliable, probative, and substantial evidence in the record. In re Application for Change of Appropriation of Water Rights for Royston, 249 M 425, 816 P2d 1054, 48 St. Rep. 747 (1991).

Retroactivity and Validity of Change in Burden of Proof for Change of Water Appropriation: The fact that a water right existing at the time of adoption of the 1972 Montana Constitution is recognized by that constitution does not mean that if the owner of the right applies for a change in the right, the burden of proof must be placed on the objector. The objector had the burden in 1972, but the holder now has the burden under this section. The change in the burden of proof is not an impermissible retroactive application of the statute to the detriment of vested rights acquired under the 1972 Montana Constitution. Statutes that modify the procedure for exercising a vested right or for carrying out a duty do not constitute retroactive legislation. In re Application for Change of Appropriation of Water Rights for Royston, 249 M 425, 816 P2d 1054, 48 St. Rep. 747 (1991).

Standing of Junior Appropriators to Object: The contention by applicant for a change of appropriation that junior downstream appropriators and junior upstream appropriator lacked standing to object to the change was without merit because either can be damaged by a change in the amount of water appropriated downstream if a shortage ensues and a senior appropriator causes the downstream or upstream appropriator to forego his water use until the senior's rights are fulfilled. In re Application for Change of Appropriation of Water Rights for Royston, 249 M 425, 816 P2d 1054, 48 St. Rep. 747 (1991).

Change in Point of Use — Judicial Review of Procedural Orders Improper: Pursuant to 1973 water use law, appellant applied for Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) approval to change the point of use of its pre-1973 water right. DNRC hearing examiner ordered objectors to respond to appellant's discovery request, yet refused to dismiss the objections of objectors who failed to respond. Upon review, the Water Court reversed the DNRC denial. Appellant appealed, arguing review was inappropriate. The Supreme Court agreed, stating that judicial review of the hearing examiner's procedural order was improper as there had been no final decision or exhaustion of administrative remedies. Kingsbury Ditch Co. v. Dept. of Natural Resources and Conservation, 223 M 379, 725 P2d 1209, 43 St. Rep. 1805 (1986).

Enlargement of Dam: Permission for additional appropriation on an adjudicated stream was proper where the findings indicated that there was surplus water to be appropriated, there would be no injury to prior appropriators, impoundment of water would be beneficial, and the proposed dam could be operated so as not to interfere with others. Sunset Irrigation District v. Ailport, 166 M 11, 531 P2d 1349 (1974).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Change in Point of Diversion — Burden of Proof of Injury: Under section 89-803, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the point of diversion may be changed if the change would not prejudice the rights of other appropriators. The party claiming to be prejudiced has the burden of proving the prejudice. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc., v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980); following Lokowich v. Helena, 46 M 575, 129 P 1063 (1913).

Change in Place of Diversion — Water Exchange Prevented: The defendants, upstream subsequent appropriators with respect to the plaintiff, diverted all the waters of a creek. Further downstream but still above the plaintiff, the defendants replenished the creek with water from a canal. The plaintiff could not change his diversion to a point upstream of the defendants because of the injury resulting to the defendants. Thompson v. Harvey, 164 M 133, 519 P2d 963 (1974).

Diversion Point Changed: An appropriator was entitled to move his point of diversion downstream, so long as he installed measuring devices to ensure that he took no more than would have been available at his original point of diversion, and the fact that a water commissioner might have to be employed to oversee the appropriation was not the kind of burden on other appropriators that would prevent the change. McIntosh v. Graveley, 159 M 72, 495 P2d 186 (1972).

Use of Water Changed: Where an appropriator had a decreed right to use water for irrigation of specified land outside the drainage area, his use of the water on other land outside the drainage area did not impose an undue burden on other appropriators, so long as he did not increase the amount of water diverted from the drainage area. McIntosh v. Graveley, 159 M 72, 495 P2d 186 (1972).

Remedies of Servient Owner: Changes in a ditch appurtenant to a water right did not forfeit the ditch right or justify the use of self-help by the servient landowner to fill in a portion of the ditch. Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964).

Substantial Change: Under section 89-803, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the owner of a ditch appurtenant to a water right could change the location by minor meandering along the course of the ditch and its marginal land with a bulldozer to account for topographical adjustments in the terrain, so long as he did not add any new burden to the servient estate or cause any additional damage thereto. Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964).

Sale of Portion of Land — Division of Water Right:

When an owner of a tract of land with an appurtenant water right grants a portion of the tract without any express division or reservation, the water right is divided in the proportion the number of irrigated acres conveyed bears to the total irrigated acres. Spaeth v. Emmett, 142 M 231, 383 P2d 812 (1963).

Neither a change in the place of diversion of water nor a change in its use from mining to agriculture, or vice versa, affects its appropriation. Thomas v. Ball, 66 M 161, 213 P 597 (1923). See also Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); Whitcomb v. Murphy, 94 M 562, 23 P2d 980 (1933); Thrasher v. Mannix & Wilson, 95 M 273, 26 P2d 370 (1933); Loyning v. Rankin, 118 M 235, 165 P2d 1006 (1946).

Actual diversion of water and its beneficial use existing, prospective, or in contemplation constitute an appropriation, which is not affected by a change in the point of diversion or place of use. Wheat v. Cameron, 64 M 494, 210 P 761 (1922).

The location of a flume maintained over the land of another, as well as the use of the water flowing through it, may be changed, provided the change adds no new burdens to the servient estate or causes additional damage thereto. Pioneer Min. Co. v. Bannack Gold Min. Co., 60 M 254, 198 P 748 (1921).

Burden of Proof of Injury:

For a period of more than 50 years the defendant accumulated water rights and used them wherever and whenever needed to irrigate 34,000 acres of land. The burden was on the plaintiffs to show that they had been injured or prejudiced by such changing use. Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

The party who claims to have been injured by another's change in place of diversion of water right has the burden of alleging and proving the injury. Thrasher v. Mannix & Wilson, 95 M 273, 26 P2d 370 (1933); Lokowich v. Helena, 46 M 575, 129 P 1063 (1913); Hansen v. Larsen, 44 M 350, 120 P 229 (1911).

Change in Place of Use — Decree Not Detailed:

A water rights decree failed to describe the particular acreage to be irrigated and expressed the water rights in terms of flow per unit of time without stating during how many such units of time water could be taken. Adjudicated owners could not expand the use of water to additional lands or in length of time to the injury of subsequent appropriators. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

The conclusiveness of a judgment as res judicata in a water right suit between the same parties or their successors in interest in a prior action is not impaired by the alleged fact that in authorizing a change of place of use or point of diversion, it violated the provisions of section 89-803, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed). Brennan v. Jones, 101 M 550, 55 P2d 697 (1936).

Change of Use — Sale: Appropriations not originally made for the purpose of sale may have their use changed to that purpose if subsequent appropriators are not thereby injured. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

Change in Use — Outside of Watershed: Pursuant to an earlier water rights decree, the defendant irrigated land outside the watershed of the source. When the defendant brought additional lands outside the watershed under irrigation with this water right, the plaintiffs could not claim they were injured by this change in use. Their lands were either within the watershed of the source or higher than the defendant's irrigated land and would not benefit from percolating waters from his land. Thrasher v. Mannix & Wilson, 95 M 273, 26 P2d 370 (1933).

Change in Use — Sale of Water Not in Use: An appropriator of a water right for placer mining purposes attempted to convey to another a right to use the waters when not being used for mining. Although an appropriator may change the use of his appropriation, he may not sell the same in the interim when the water is not being used. Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); Creek v. Bozeman Water Works Co., 15 M 121, 38 P 459 (1894).

Change in Place of Diversion or Use — Who May Complain: Only an injured subsequent appropriator may complain that a prior appropriator's change in place of diversion or use is affecting subsequent rights. Carlson v. Helena, 43 M 1, 114 P 110 (1911).

Change in Place of Diversion and Use — Placer Mining: The successors of the appropriator of water appropriated for placer mining purposes cannot so change its use as to deprive lower appropriators of their rights, already acquired, in the use of it for irrigating purposes. Head v. Hale, 38 M 302, 100 P 222 (1909).

Change in Place of Use — Deprivation of Subsequent Right: After the defendant used his water right for placer mining purposes the water was turned into a gulch, whereupon the plaintiff appropriated it for irrigation purposes. The defendant then changed the place of use of his water right, resulting in the water no longer being returned to the gulch. Such change in use was unlawful because it absolutely deprived the plaintiff of his subsequent right. Gassert v. Noyes, 18 M 216, 44 P 959 (1896).

Change in Use — Mining to Irrigation: A water right was abandoned for mining purposes, the water returned to its original channel, and then recaptured by the original owner to be used for irrigation purposes. Such change in use was lawful. Meagher v. Hardenbrook, 11 M 385, 28 P 451 (1891).

1987 Amendment: In (2) deleted reference to subsection (6) of 85-2-402.

1983 Amendments: Chapter 448, in (1), after "use water" deleted "under a permit or certificate of water right"; deleted former (2) and (3), which read: "(2) The person receiving the appropriation interest shall file with the department notice of the transfer on a form prescribed by the department.

(3) Without obtaining prior approval from the department, an appropriator may not sever all or any part of an appropriation right from the land to which it is appurtenant, sell the appropriation right for other purposes or to other lands, or make the appropriation right appurtenant to other lands. The department shall approve the proposed change if it determines that the proposed change will not adversely affect the rights of other persons. If the department determines that the proposed change might adversely affect the rights of other persons, notice of the proposed change shall be given in accordance with 85-2-307. If the department then determines that an objection filed by a person whose rights may be affected states a valid objection to the proposed change, the department shall hold a hearing thereon prior to its approval or denial of the proposed change. Objections shall meet the requirements of 85-2-308(2) and hearings shall be held in accordance with 85-2-309."; (subsection (3) was enacted as 85-2-402(6)).

Chapter 674 also deleted former (2) that required a person receiving an appropriation interest to file with the Department a notice of transfer; and inserted new (2) relating both to the effect of a failure to comply with procedures for change in appropriation upon a conveyance or reservation and to the retroactive application of the subsection to conveyances or reservations made after July 1, 1973.

In (2), the Code Commissioner changed a reference to "subsection (2)" to "85-2-402(6)" because (2) (formerly (3)) was deleted by Ch. 448, L. 1983, and reenacted as 85-2-402(6). The apparent intent was to apply new subsection (2) of this section, including retroactive effect, to failure to comply with former subsection (3) of this section, as reenacted as 85-2-402(6).

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

Application of Approval Provision to Rights Perfected Prior to Statute — Construction With Constitutional Guarantee: Article IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., providing that "all existing rights to the use of any waters for any useful or beneficial purpose are hereby recognized and confirmed", is not violated by application of this section's provision, stating that prior approval of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation must be obtained before an appropriator may sell, sever, or make appurtenant to other lands an appropriation right that was perfected prior to the effective date of this section. The law has not changed, and the Department has simply been given a review to determine an issue that could previously be determined only by a District Court. Castillo v. Kunnemann, 197 M 190, 642 P2d 1019, 39 St. Rep. 460 (1982), modifying upon rehearing 38 St. Rep. 1618 (1981).

Chapter's Application to Rights Perfected Prior to Its Effective Date: Except where it indicates a contrary intent, this chapter applies to water rights perfected prior to the effective date of this chapter, and failure to comply with the terms of this chapter does not render a conveyance or reservation void but suspends ability to use the right until the statutorily mandated permission is granted by the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation. Castillo v. Kunnemann, 197 M 190, 642 P2d 1019, 39 St. Rep. 460 (1982), modifying upon rehearing 38 St. Rep. 1618 (1981).

Sale of Land and One of Two Water Rights — Legal Effects: Landowner owned two water rights on river, one called the "McNiven Right" and one called the "Grannis Right". He sold part of his land together with part of the McNiven Right. The Supreme Court held that: (1) both the McNiven and the Grannis Rights were appurtenant to the conveyed land and both remained appurtenant to the conveyed land after the sales; (2) the conveyance impliedly reserved the Grannis Right to seller and passed title to part of the McNiven Right to buyer; (3) under this section, buyer's right to use the McNiven Right would be delayed until appropriate approval is granted by the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation as required by this section, and seller must apply under this section for permission to sever from the land conveyed the Grannis Right which the deed impliedly reserved to seller. Castillo v. Kunnemann, 197 M 190, 642 P2d 1019, 39 St. Rep. 460 (1982), modifying upon rehearing 38 St. Rep. 1618 (1981).

Sale of a Water Right With Implied Reservation of Another Water Right: Landowner owned two water rights on river and each had a related ditch right; one was called the "McNiven Right" and the other was called the "Grannis Right". He sold part of his land together with part of the McNiven Right and "related ditch rights". The Supreme Court held that the words "related ditch rights" in the deed's water right grant referred only to the McNiven ditch, and further held that since the landowner held two water rights and related ditch rights, the conveyance of the McNiven water and ditch right impliedly reserved to landowner the Grannis water right and related ditch right. Castillo v. Kunnemann, 197 M 190, 642 P2d 1019, 39 St. Rep. 460 (1982), modifying upon rehearing 38 St. Rep. 1618 (1981).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW

Change in Use — Appurtenant to Land: After purchasing an adjoining tract of land with an appurtenant water right, a farmer proceeded to irrigate all of his land with the newly purchased water right. This change in use resulted in the water right becoming appurtenant to all of the land. Spaeth v. Emmett, 142 M 231, 383 P2d 812 (1963).

Sale of Portion of Land — Division of Water Right: When an owner of a tract of land with an appurtenant water right grants a portion of the tract without any express division or reservation, the water right is divided in the proportion the number of irrigated acres conveyed bears to the total irrigated acres. Spaeth v. Emmett, 142 M 231, 383 P2d 812 (1963).

Conveyance of Right as Appurtenance: When land is conveyed, including the appurtenances, any water rights previously enjoyed are thereby transferred. When the grantor later purports to convey the water right only, the latter deed does not constitute severance of the water right, as it adds nothing to the conveyance previously made. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Effective March 19, 1999. Section 14, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided a termination date of June 30, 2005, for one version of this section; however, the 1995 termination date was not extended by Ch. 123, L. 1999.

1997 Amendment: (All versions) Chapter 174 in (2), near end after "right", deleted "in whole or"; and in (5), near end before "determined", inserted "finally". Amendment effective March 28, 1997.

Saving Clause: Section 7, Ch. 174, L. 1997, was a saving clause.

1995 Amendment: (Temporary version) Chapter 487 in (4), after "85-2-436", inserted "the use of water pursuant to 85-2-439"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 14, 1995, and terminates June 30, 2005.

(Version effective July 1, 1999) At beginning of (4) inserted "The use of water pursuant to 85-2-439 or"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999, and terminates June 30, 2005.

Severability: Section 11, Ch. 487, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all applications for changes in appropriation rights, permits, and water reservations received by the department of natural resources and conservation after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 14, 1995.

1991 Amendment: (Temporary version) In (4), after "85-2-436", inserted "or the temporary change pursuant to 85-2-407" and in two places, after "abandonment", deleted "by the lessor".

(Version effective July 1, 1999) Inserted (4) providing that a temporary change pursuant to 85-2-407 is not an abandonment.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (4) regarding lease of an existing right pursuant to the water leasing study; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective May 11, 1989, and terminates June 30, 1993.

1987 Amendment: Inserted (3) establishing that nonuse as a result of participation in state or federal conservation set-aside program is not presumed abandonment; at beginning of (4) substituted "Subsections (1) and (2)" for "This section"; and made minor change in phraseology.

Case Notes

No Different Standard for Abandonment of Water Rights Used for Mining Purposes: Graveley had not used the water right for his mining claim for more than 50 years but nevertheless claimed that he had not abandoned the right simply because the lack of profitability of mining the claim had led to the nonuse. Declining to distinguish the law of abandonment between various uses of water, the Supreme Court noted that the Legislature had not chosen to apply a different standard for determining the abandonment of water rights used for mining purposes and held that because Graveley had not introduced evidence sufficient to rebut the presumption of abandonment, the water right claim was terminated. In re Adjudication of Existing Rights to Use of All Water, Both Surface & Underground, Within Clark Fork River Drainage Above Blackfoot River, 274 M 340, 908 P2d 1353, 52 St. Rep. 1264 (1995).

Abandonment of Water Right by Nonuse Distinguished From Abandonment of Easement or Ditch Right: After hearing, the Water Court determined that three water rights held by appellants Pitsch had been abandoned because of nonuse over approximately 40 years. The Supreme Court held that the Water Court did not err in holding that the case was not governed by E.E. Eggebrecht, Inc. v. Waters, 217 M 291, 704 P2d 422 (1985), and that there was no conflict between Eggebrecht and 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215 (1983). Eggebrecht concerns the abandonment of easements by grant, more analogous to a ditch right by grant than a water right, while 79 Ranch concerns abandonment of a water right. There is no reason why Montana law on abandonment of those interests should be identical. In re Adjudication of Musselshell River Rights, 255 M 43, 840 P2d 577, 49 St. Rep. 866 (1992).

General Evidence of Conditions Insufficient to Excuse Long Period of Nonuse: Appellants presented general evidence to the Water Court of a variety of negative factors that caused them to not use perfected water rights for a period of 40 years. The Water Court held, in accordance with 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215 (1983), that appellants had abandoned their rights through nonuse. The Supreme Court held that evidence presented by appellants of dry conditions in the 1920s, "dust bowl years" of the 1930s, the depression, World War II, blown-in ditches, lack of water, and lack of money was conclusory in nature and not specific enough to excuse the long period of nonuse. Other parties to the case presented evidence that some amount of water was available and that blown-in ditches were easily opened. Under these facts, the Supreme Court held that the Water Court did not err in applying the abandonment presumption of 79 Ranch, which the appellants failed to rebut by their evidence. In re Adjudication of Musselshell River Rights, 255 M 43, 840 P2d 577, 49 St. Rep. 866 (1992).

Post-1973 Evidence Unpersuasive as to Adjudication of Existing Water Right: The purpose of statewide water rights adjudication is to adjudicate those rights as they existed on July 1, 1973, the effective date of the Montana Water Use Act. Therefore, the Water Court did not err in refusing to consider evidence pertaining to a water right claimant's actions taken after 1973 as showing a lack of intent to abandon the water right. In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992).

Water Right and Easement as Separate Rights — Abandonment: Water rights and easements or ditch rights are separate and distinct rights; therefore, one can be abandoned without abandoning the other. In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992), following McDonnell v. Huffine, 44 M 411, 120 P 792 (1912). See also Rieman v. Anderson, 282 M 139, 935 P2d 1122, 54 St. Rep. 286 (1997).

Forty Years of Nonuse as Raising Rebuttable Presumption of Intent to Abandon: In litigation to establish plaintiffs and defendant's respective priorities to water appropriated from Big Coulee Creek, the evidence showed that neither had used previously appropriated water for a period of at least 40 years. Thus, the District Court did not err in holding that under section 89-802, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), the appropriation rights of both parties had been abandoned for lack of use of the water. While abandonment of a water right is a question of fact, nonuse for a period of at least 40 years raises, in effect, a rebuttable presumption of abandonment. A claim that the predecessors of the parties could not afford to use the water by irrigating their land did not excuse the failure to use the water or rebut the presumption of abandonment since economics could excuse nearly every otherwise abandoned water right. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 204 M 426, 666 P2d 215, 40 St. Rep. 981 (1983), followed in In re Adjudication of Clark Fork River Drainage, 254 M 11, 833 P2d 1120, 49 St. Rep. 591 (1992), in which nonuse for 23-plus years was sufficient to constitute a presumption of abandonment despite the fact that the water right was carried as an asset on the county's books during the period of nonuse, and In re Adjudication of Existing Rights to Use of All Water, Both Surface & Underground, Within Clark Fork River Drainage Above Blackfoot River, 274 M 340, 908 P2d 1353, 52 St. Rep. 1264 (1995), in which continuous nonuse of water for a mining claim for over 50 years raised a rebuttable presumption of abandonment, despite claimant's contention that the cyclical nature of the mining industry and its uncertain economics were reason enough to explain the long period of nonuse. See also Axtell v. M.S. Consulting, 1998 MT 64, 288 M 150, 955 P2d 1362, 55 St. Rep. 276 (1998).

Abandonment by Nonuse: Under section 89-802, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), 75 years of nonuse is sufficient to provide "clear evidence" of abandonment of the unused portion of a water right. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Intent to Abandon: Mere nonuse of a ditch appurtenant to a water right is not sufficient to establish abandonment. There must be concurrent intent to abandon. Shammel v. Vogl, 144 M 354, 396 P2d 103 (1964), followed in Rieman v. Anderson, 282 M 139, 935 P2d 1122, 54 St. Rep. 286 (1997).

"Abandonment" Defined: Before it may be said that the owner of a water right has abandoned it, there must be the necessary concurrence of act and intent to abandon. He must have relinquished it because he no longer desired to possess it. Irion v. Hyde, 107 M 84, 81 P2d 353 (1938).

Abandonment — Essential Elements: Abandonment of a water right is a voluntary act, and to constitute it there must be a concurrence of act and intent. Neither the relinquishment of possession nor the intent not to resume it for a beneficial use is alone sufficient to bring about its abandonment. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936); Thomas v. Ball, 66 M 161, 213 P 597 (1923).

Abandonment — Trespassers: Plaintiff's predecessors in interest for 13 years used a water right acquired by a desert land entryman after the entry had been canceled and thus were trespassers upon the public domain. That fact did not deprive the plaintiff from resuming the use of the water upon acquiring possession, unaffected by any junior rights which came into being in the meantime, there being no law enforcing abandonment of a vested water right as a penalty for exercising it as a trespasser. Osnes Livestock Co. v. Warren, 103 M 284, 62 P2d 206 (1936).

Abandonment — Resumption: Where use of water is abandoned and resumed, use vests from the date of resumption. Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); O'Shea v. Doty, 68 M 316, 218 P 658 (1923).

Abandonment — Burden of Proof — Nonuse: One who claims an abandonment of a water right has the burden of proving it by a preponderance of clear and definite evidence. Where the only evidence was nonuse for 7 years, whereupon its use was resumed by the owner and the water right later sold to another, the resumption and sale were evidence that abandonment was not intended. Thomas v. Ball, 66 M 161, 213 P 597 (1923).

Abandonment of Ditch — No Effect on Water Right: An appropriation was made from a creek, turned into a ditch, and eventually used at placer mines. Years later the appropriator abandoned the ditch, returned the water to the creek, and recaptured it for irrigation use. The abandonment of the ditch was not an abandonment of the entire water right. Meagher v. Hardenbrook, 11 M 385, 28 P 451 (1891).

Abandonment — Insufficient Supply: Defendant's appropriation for placer mining was not abandoned by his failure to use the appropriation for 5 years since there was not enough water to work the mines during those years. McCauley v. McKeig, 8 M 389, 21 P 22 (1889).

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

District Court Error in Restraining Use of Contracted Irrigation Water: Micks contracted to purchase the right to 775 acre-feet of water from the Deadman's Basin Water Users Association, to be appropriated from the Deadman's Basin Reservoir, in order to irrigate a hay crop. In April 2000, the District Court appointed two Water Commissioners to distribute the reservoir water pursuant to a rotation plan. In August 2000, the District Court, on its own motion, found that the water level in the reservoir had reached a critical level, that the remaining water was necessary to maintain domestic, municipal, stock, and wildlife usage, and that the irrigation of crops from the river was prohibited as long as the reservoir level remained critically low. Micks determined that he had used only 431 acre-feet of his contracted 775 acre-feet, and based on his limited usage and other reasons, he presumed that the District Court prohibition did not apply to him, so he continued to irrigate his hay crop. Micks' continued irrigation was discovered, and he was ordered by the District Court to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failure to comply with the prohibition order. Micks requested that the District Court reconsider its order, but the request was denied, so Micks appealed. The Supreme Court noted that under Mildenberger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130 (1991), and Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260 (1992), the jurisdiction to interpret and determine existing water rights rests exclusively with the Water Courts and that although the District Court has the authority to supervise the distribution of previously adjudicated water or to enforce an existing water decree and may in certain cases fill in a pre-1973 decree with further delineations, such as time or season of use and acreage of application, in this case, the District Court made a priority determination regarding domestic and irrigation water consumption based on the court's own inclinations, exceeding its authority to simply fill in a water decree with further delineations. Micks' contract unambiguously required a pro rata reduction in water distribution when an inadequate amount existed to satisfy outstanding water purchase contracts. Therefore, the District Court erred as a matter of law when it employed a first come, first served policy in contravention of the water contract. Denial of Micks' motion to reconsider the prohibition order was reversible error, and his motion to restrain the Water Commissioners from interfering with use of Deadman's Basin Reservoir irrigation water to which he was entitled should have been granted. In re Petition of Deadman's Basin Water Users Ass'n to Appoint Water Comm'r to Distribute Stored Water, 2002 MT 15, 308 M 168, 40 P3d 387 (2002).

Recharge of River — Right to Use of Water by Subsequent Appropriator Even Though No Water Available to Upstream Prior Appropriator: A Water Commissioner closed the headgate of the Baker Ditch Company, a downstream appropriator with decreed water rights, because there was no water available to an upstream superior appropriator, even though there was water available to the Company due to recharge of the river by return flows, seepage, and other sources. The Commissioner evidently believed that he had to enforce the decree to the extent that if a prior appropriator was without water upstream, a subsequent appropriator downstream could not divert water under its rights even though the river was being recharged. However, if a subsequent appropriator is using water in accordance with the decree and that use cannot in any way be a detriment to a prior appropriator, then the subsequent appropriator has the right to the use of the water. Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260, 49 St. Rep. 17 (1992), replacing the prior opinion at 48 St. Rep. 972 (1991).

Jurisdiction to Determine Existing Water Rights to Rest With Water Court: Defendants appealed from a District Court judgment granting plaintiffs a stockwater right of 200 miner's inches. The Supreme Court vacated the judgment, holding that a final adjudication of a water right rests with the Water Court and not the District Court. Mildenerger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130, 48 St. Rep. 621 (1991), followed in State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 283 M 1, 938 P2d 1312, 54 St. Rep. 460 (1997).

Grounds for "Filling-In" Pre-1973 Water Decree: A District Court may in certain instances "fill-in" a pre-1973 water decree with further delineations such as the time or season of use and acreage of application. However, such judicial interpretation should be limited to situations similar to that addressed by the Supreme Court in Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940), where the appropriator has either expanded his appropriation, exceeded what can be beneficially used, or damaged junior appropriators. Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984). See also State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 283 M 1, 938 P2d 1312, 54 St. Rep. 460 (1997).

Priority of Senior Main Stem Water Rights Over Junior Tributary Water Rights: Appellant owns water rights in Clear Creek dating to 1910. Petitioners have water rights in Rock Creek dating to 1896. Clear Creek is a tributary of Rock Creek. In 1970, appellant obtained a court order directing the Rock Creek Water Commissioner to "carry out" the Clear Creek water rights of appellant. Following the District Court order, the Water Commissioner honored in full the requests of appellant for water without regard to any priority in the relationship of the creeks' water rights. As a result, at times of water shortage, senior Rock Creek decreed waters are cut off. In 1977, petitioners filed this action to rescind the 1970 order and to direct the Water Commissioner to subject the Clear Creek water rights to the priorities of Rock Creek water rights. The District Court ruled that the 1970 court order, applied by the Water Commissioner to fulfill junior appropriations ahead of prior decreed rights, was improper. The Supreme Court affirmed the District Court's order and further stated that the order did not violate due process. The Supreme Court reasoned that the only rights affected by the District Court order were the rights of the parties before the court. Granite Ditch Co. v. Anderson, 204 M 10, 662 P2d 1312, 40 St. Rep. 630 (1983).

Valid Water Right Not Affected by Release of Surplus to Junior User: Defendants' predecessor in interest began using water in the amount of 110 gallons a minute from Mahle Spring in 1917 for domestic, stock, and irrigation purposes. Mahle Spring flows into Ashley Creek. In 1958, defendants completed construction of a dam whose purpose was to stabilize their water supply only, not to increase the amount of water appropriated. In April 1973, defendants filed notice of completion of ground water appropriation without well, claiming 110 gallons a minute. In 1957, plaintiff's predecessor in interest began using water from Ashley Creek. At times, when Ashley Creek dried up, defendants agreed to release water from the dam. In 1978, plaintiff obtained a water use permit for Ashley Creek. Subsequently, defendants refused to release any water from the dam. Plaintiff filed an action to adjudicate the parties' water rights and to enjoin defendants from interfering with the flow of Ashley Creek. The Montana Supreme Court upheld the District Court's ruling that defendants are entitled to 110 gallons a minute with a priority date of 1917 and that plaintiff is entitled only to the excess over that. The court denied plaintiff's claim that defendants were estopped from asserting a superior claim, reasoning that the release of the water did not cause plaintiff's predecessor in interest to change her position for the worse because the defendants had already established a valid claim to the water and thus the release was either a mere gratuity or a release of surplus water. In the absence of evidence that defendant was not simply releasing surplus water, the court also denied plaintiff's claim of laches. Finally, the court denied plaintiff's claim that the release from the dam was evidence that defendants were not making beneficial use of all the water since the District Court findings indicated that the defendants' total claim was fully justified. Bagnell v. Lemery, 202 M 238, 657 P2d 608, 40 St. Rep. 58 (1983).

Findings and Conclusions as to Water Rights Held Inadequate — Judgment Vacated and Remanded: When a midstream and downstream water user filed suit against the upstream user to have the District Court declare the relative water rights of the parties, the findings of fact and conclusions of law entered by the District Court were so bare and inadequate as to provide no basis for meaningful appellate review. Because it could not be determined from the District Court's bare conclusions (i.e., that the parties had failed to prove their case by a preponderance of the evidence and had abandoned their rights) what the factual or evidentiary basis for the District Court's decision was, the Supreme Court vacated the judgment as to all of the three parties and remanded the case to the District Court and directed it to enter findings and conclusions reflective of the evidence presented at trial and the legal contentions of the parties. 79 Ranch, Inc. v. Pitsch, 193 M 229, 631 P2d 690, 38 St. Rep. 1048 (1981).

Standing to Challenge Award of Water Right: A party has standing to challenge a water right only if it conflicts with those granted to him. Thus, he has no standing to challenge a right to water from a source in which he has no water right. However, he may challenge a water right from a source from which he has a water right whether the challenged right is prior or subsequent to his own. Holmstrom Land Co., Inc. v. Newlan Creek Water District, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 36 St. Rep. 1403 (1979), rehearing denied, 185 M 409, 605 P2d 1060, 37 St. Rep. 295 (1980).

Preliminary Injunctive Proceedings: In the same way that substantive property rights cannot be adjudicated in a summary way and that title to real estate may not be litigated in an action for an injunction, water rights should not be determined in a preliminary proceeding for injunctive relief. Eliason v. Evans, 178 M 212, 583 P2d 398 (1978).

Damages for Wrongful Diversion of Water:

Where several parties have diverted water so as to injure the crops of another, they cannot be held jointly liable for the acts of each other nor can they be sued in one action for the entire damage, with or without an apportionment of the damage. Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913).

Section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), does not apply to an action at law for damages for the wrongful diversion of water where there is no allegation in the complaint that would authorize the court to grant equitable relief and there is no evidence to show that the plaintiff is entitled to such relief. Miles v. Du Bey, 15 M 340, 39 P 313 (1895). See Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913).

Equitable Actions: Section 89-815, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), contemplates equitable actions only, in which relative priorities and conflicting rights of all parties may be settled and where the damages claimed are a mere incident. Howell v. Bent, 48 M 268, 137 P 49 (1913); Miles v. Du Bey, 15 M 340, 39 P 313 (1895).

Pleadings: The District Court may settle the relative priorities and rights of all the parties to a water right suit in one judgment only when pleadings have been framed so as to justify such settlement. Sloan v. Byers, 37 M 503, 97 P 855 (1908), distinguished and followed in Bennett v. Quinlan, 47 M 247, 131 P 1067 (1913).

Claimant to Be Able to Use Water Before He May Object to the Use by Others: Until a claimant is himself in a position to use the water of a stream subject to appropriation, the right to the water or water right does not exist in such sense that the mere diversion of the water by another is a ground of action either to recover the water or for damages for its diversion. Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905).

Injunction: Property owners having the right to divert the waters of a creek for irrigation purposes may join in a suit to restrain a third person from diminishing the volume of water to the use of which they are entitled. Beach v. Spokane Ranch & Water Co., 25 M 379, 65 P 111 (1901).

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 322, L. 1995, provided: "This legislation, jointly developed by representatives from the agricultural, recreation, and conservation communities, is intended to authorize the temporary use of existing water rights for instream flow to benefit the fishery resource. In establishing the use of water rights for authorized instream flow to benefit the fishery resource, it is the intent of the legislature that the authorization respect and work within the prior appropriation water rights system.

This legislation creates an opportunity for citizens to voluntarily enter into agreements to lease existing water rights to protect fisheries and allows persons who own water rights to temporarily change the use of that water to instream flow to benefit the fishery resource.

To monitor and review the implementation of this instream flow program, the legislature directs the office of the governor to convene on an ongoing and regular basis a working group that includes representatives from the agricultural, recreation, and conservation communities. This working group shall consult with the department of natural resources and conservation on relevant changes in water use and shall submit a report to the governor and the legislature in 2001 outlining the status of the program."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 435, L. 1991, provided: "It is the declared policy of the state in 85-1-101 that water resources be put to optimum beneficial use to secure maximum economic and social prosperity for its citizens. The legislature recognizes that water supplies are limited and vary from year to year. As water supplies become fully appropriated, the reallocation of some water may be necessary to meet changing economic and social needs.

The appropriate means of reallocating water among competing demands is with the voluntary approval of water right holders. With sufficient innovation and economic incentives, water can be reallocated voluntarily, without loss of appropriation rights, and to the profit of prior appropriators, through the temporary change of water rights in anticipation of periods of water scarcity. This legislation clarifies that these types of arrangements are allowed, except when other appropriators might be adversely affected. Thus, water can be reallocated for optimum beneficial use and the maximum economic and social prosperity of all Montana citizens."

85-2-411. Water turned into natural channels.

Case Notes

Canal Water Turned Into Slough — Amount That May Be Reclaimed: The defendant permitted waters from a canal and spring to run in a slough and then used the slough as a waterway. The defendant could reclaim from the slough only that amount of water equal to what he put in. Meine v. Ferris, 126 M 210, 247 P2d 195 (1952).

Seepage Water Potholed and Recaptured: Since seepage water that has its rise along the bed of a stream and forms a natural accretion thereto belongs to the stream as a part of its source of supply, the same as do feeder springs, and an appropriator of water on such stream has the right to all such tributary flow even as against the owner of the land, the conducting of water from upper reaches of a tributary to "potholes" and "reservoirs" and then capturing the seepage therefrom in ditches is insufficient proof of creating a new supply for an additional water right. Woodward v. Perkins, 116 M 46, 147 P2d 1016 (1944), distinguished in Forrester v. Rock Island Oil & Ref. Co., 133 M 333, 323 P2d 597 (1958).

Percolation From Irrigation on Adjacent Lands: While under section 89-804, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), one may employ the natural channel of a stream for the conveyance of water which he has developed and reclaim it if the rights of prior appropriators are not thereby diminished in quantity or deteriorated in quality, the rule has no application where an increase in the flow of the stream results solely by percolation from irrigation on adjacent lands. West Side Ditch Co. v. Bennett, 106 M 422, 78 P2d 78 (1938); State ex rel. Mungas v. District Court, 102 M 533, 59 P2d 71 (1936); Rock Creek Ditch & Flume Co. v. Miller, 93 M 248, 17 P2d 1074, 89

Deterioration in Quality Prohibited: While section 89-804, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), authorizes an appropriator to turn water into the channel of a stream other than the one from which he appropriates, he may do so only if the waters in the stream the channel of which he thus uses are not deteriorated in quality to the detriment of a prior appropriator. Missoula Pub. Serv. Co. v. Bitter Root Irrigation District, 80 M 64, 257 P 1038 (1927).

Developed Water Supply — Burden of Proof as to Amount: One who claims to have developed a water supply has the burden of proving the amount developed, especially when it is mingled with a water supply to which another is entitled. Spaulding v. Stone, 46 M 483, 129 P 327 (1912); Smith v. Duff, 39 M 382, 102 P 984 (1909).

Drainage Ditch — Interception of Stream's Source: In order to catch seepage water from irrigated land, the defendant constructed a drainage ditch that paralleled and intersected a stream. Because the ditch intercepted seepage water that was a source of supply for the stream, the defendant did not develop a new water supply to which he was entitled. Spaulding v. Stone, 46 M 483, 129 P 327 (1912).

Case Notes

Surplus Water: Water in excess of the amount which defendant was entitled to appropriate and which ran over spillway on to plaintiff's land was "surplus water" and not artificial water. Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949).

Duty of Appropriator to Turn Surplus Back Into Stream: Under this section, a prior appropriator of water must turn back into the stream from which the water is taken all over and above what is actually and necessarily used by him. Brennan v. Jones, 101 M 550, 55 P2d 697 (1936); Galiger v. McNulty, 80 M 339, 260 P 401 (1927); Creek v. Bozeman Water Works Co., 15 M 121, 38 P 459 (1894).

Rights of Subsequent Appropriators: Subsequent appropriators of water may compel a prior appropriator to release water for their use which he does not need for a beneficial use. Gans & Klein Inv. Co. v. Sanford, 91 M 512, 8 P2d 808 (1932).

Extent of Right of Owner: Where a party has all the water his necessities require or that his ditches will carry, it is immaterial that he has a right, under decree or otherwise, to a greater flow from the stream; he must permit the excess to remain in the stream, or having diverted it, return it to the stream in such a manner that it will be available to subsequent appropriators. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926).

Unused Excess Not Appropriated: The diversion of water for domestic purposes in excess of what is required and allowing such excess to overflow lands without any intention of irrigating and without any intention of using such excess for any useful purpose does not constitute an appropriation of the excess. Power v. Switzer, 21 M 523, 55 P 32 (1898).

Case Notes

Recharge of River — Right to Use of Water by Subsequent Appropriator Even Though No Water Available to Upstream Prior Appropriator: A Water Commissioner closed the headgate of the Baker Ditch Company, a downstream appropriator with decreed water rights, because there was no water available to an upstream superior appropriator, even though there was water available to the Company due to recharge of the river by return flows, seepage, and other sources. The Commissioner evidently believed that he had to enforce the decree to the extent that if a prior appropriator was without water upstream, a subsequent appropriator downstream could not divert water under its rights even though the river was being recharged. However, if a subsequent appropriator is using water in accordance with the decree and that use cannot in any way be a detriment to a prior appropriator, then the subsequent appropriator has the right to the use of the water. Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260, 49 St. Rep. 17 (1992), replacing the prior opinion at 48 St. Rep. 972 (1991).

Appropriative Rights Annual Rather Than Seasonal: Generally, there is no division of the year into an irrigation season and a storage season, so as to give later direct users a seasonal preference over earlier indirect users, or vice versa. Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984).

Grounds for "Filling-In" Pre-1973 Water Decree: A District Court may in certain instances "fill-in" a pre-1973 water decree with further delineations such as the time or season of use and acreage of application. However, such judicial interpretation should be limited to situations similar to that addressed by the Supreme Court in Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940), where the appropriator has either expanded his appropriation, exceeded what can be beneficially used, or damaged junior appropriators. Cate v. Hargrave, 209 M 265, 680 P2d 952, 41 St. Rep. 697 (1984).

Lawful Exchange: Owners of rights in a canal who, because of the topography of the area, could not transport water from the canal directly to their land, properly diverted the natural flow of the creek for use on their land and replaced the water with water from the canal which intersected with the stream below the point of diversion. Thompson v. Harvey, 164 M 133, 519 P2d 963 (1974).

Misuse of Channel: Where petitioners for an order authorizing a change in a point of diversion on a creek asserted that protestors had misused a channel on Deep Creek by exchanging canal water for stream water which was removed at points above the canal, this use of the channel was specifically authorized in Montana law and the protestors did not have unclean hands. Thompson v. Harvey, 164 M 133, 519 P2d 963 (1974).

Interference With Prior Rights: Primary rights to the use of water in a stream are those of appropriators of its natural flow. The burden is upon a subsequent storage claimant (in this case, defendant State Water Conservation Board, precursor to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) or upon one who uses a watercourse as a part of his distribution system of developed or alien waters affirmatively to disprove interference with prior rights in a suit to enjoin such interference. Allendale Irrigation Co. v. St. Water Conservation Bd., 113 M 436, 127 P2d 227 (1942).

Case Notes

Failure to Enjoin Against Interference With Secondary Easement Rights Not Error: Engel asserted District Court error in failing to enjoin Gampps from interfering with Engel's use of a secondary easement to maintain an irrigation ditch running across the property of both parties. However, there was substantial evidence that Engel's access for routine inspections and maintenance was, and always had been, free and uninterrupted. Although failing to enjoin Gampps, the District Court nevertheless fashioned an order balancing Engel's reserved right for occasional access with Gampps' right not to be unreasonably burdened by Engel's secondary easement, so the District Court was affirmed. Engel v. Gampp, 2000 MT 17, 298 M 116, 993 P2d 701, 57 St. Rep. 96 (2000).

Condemnation of Land for Conduct of Water Subject to Eminent Domain Proceedings: An action to condemn land pursuant to 85-2-414 must follow the eminent domain proceedings set out in Title 70, ch. 30. A water appropriator could not contend that his right of eminent domain was taken away when he had not even initiated the proper procedures to pursue the action. Careless Creek Ranch Co. v. Murnion, 230 M 216, 748 P2d 475, 45 St. Rep. 154 (1988).

Reservoir Water at Sufficient Height for Use Intended: Defendant had no claim under this section to eminent domain over land covered by raising the water level behind his reservoir because the reservoir was already at a sufficient height to make the water enter a ditch, thereby fulfilling its intended use for irrigation. Careless Creek Ranch Co. v. Murnion, 230 M 216, 748 P2d 475, 45 St. Rep. 154 (1988).

Prescriptive Easement: This section has no application in the case of a prescriptive easement in a water right since the dominant tenement will not be required to pay for an easement acquired by prescription. O'Connor v. Brodie, 153 M 129, 454 P2d 920 (1969).

Right of Easement Holder to Make Repairs:

In a proceeding to quiet title to a secondary easement on another's land for irrigation purposes and to enable the dominant owner to maintain and repair his ditches, an award of so much of the lands of the servient owner as may be necessary for the purposes of maintenance was not objectionable for indefiniteness and uncertainty. Laden v. Atkeson, 112 M 302, 116 P2d 881 (1941), distinguished in Stalcup v. Cameron Ditch Co., 130 M 294, 300 P2d 511 (1956), and followed in Engel v. Gampp, 2000 MT 17, 298 M 116, 993 P2d 701, 57 St. Rep. 96 (2000).

The owner of a secondary easement, such as a right to pass over the land of the servient owner for the purpose of making repairs on a dam and ditches, has a duty to repair a route that has become impassable or merely inconvenient rather than to materially deviate therefrom without consent of the servient owner. He may dig up soil and use it for repairs, doing no more injury than is necessary. Laden v. Atkeson, 112 M 302, 116 P2d 881 (1941), distinguished in Stalcup v. Cameron Ditch Co., 130 M 294, 300 P2d 511 (1956), and followed in Engel v. Gampp, 2000 MT 17, 298 M 116, 993 P2d 701, 57 St. Rep. 96 (2000).

Wing Dam Not Constituting Waste: Under this section, which gives an appropriator of water the right to raise the level of water in a stream by means of a dam to a sufficient height to make it enter a ditch, the contention that where a wing dam is used, the water which does not enter the ditch is improperly wasted was erroneous. State ex rel. Crowley v. District Court, 108 M 89, 88 P2d 23, 121 ALR 1031 (1939).

Water Rights and Ditches Separate Rights: Water rights and ditch rights are separate and distinct property rights. One may own a water right without a ditch right or a ditch right without a water right. Connolly v. Harrel, 102 M 295, 57 P2d 781 (1936).

Case Notes

Change of Use — Sale: Appropriations not originally made for the purpose of sale may have their use changed to that purpose if subsequent appropriators are not thereby injured. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

Claims of Adverse Possession or Common-Law Dedication No Defense: Where defendant townspeople for many years took water for domestic uses with the acquiescence of ditch owners and either performed labor in repairing the ditch or paid an annual charge for the privilege of obtaining the water, thus recognizing the paramount right of plaintiffs, they could not rely upon the defense of a common-law dedication in the absence of a showing of an offer to dedicate, in an action to enjoin their further use. Nor could defendant townspeople rely upon the defense of adverse possession or use. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

Injunction Against Further Use: Where the owners of a water right had for many years permitted the inhabitants of a town to tap their nearby ditch for domestic uses for a consideration consisting in some instances of services about the ditch and in others of rental money, thus presumably acting under sections 89-823 through 89-826, R.C.M. 1947 (85-2-415 through 85-2-418), and then sought to enjoin such further use, inhabitants were not entitled to injunctive relief in the absence of proof of a tender of the customary rates although such use was clothed with a public interest. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

Restrictions on Sale of Water: After an appropriator of water has used it sufficiently to fulfill the purposes of his appropriation, he may not take the water of the stream remaining which he cannot use for such purposes and sell it so that it will deprive subsequent appropriators of their right to use it. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

Tender Essential to Demand Delivery and Institute Suit: While sections 89-823 through 89-826, R.C.M. 1947 (85-2-415 through 85-2-418), give to one who desires water from an appropriator who has a surplus and is entitled to sell it the right to demand delivery thereof and to institute suit to compel delivery if refused, he may do so only upon payment or a tender of the usual or customary rates per inch. Sherlock v. Greaves, 106 M 206, 76 P2d 87 (1938).

1997 Amendment: Chapter 167 in (1), before "shall", deleted "or his agent or representative"; in (2), at end of first sentence, substituted "contain a water rights disclosure whereby the transferor shall acknowledge, at or before closing, whether or not any water rights are associated with the property to be transferred and whether or not any water rights will transfer with the real property" for "note whether or not the transfer includes a transfer of water rights" and in second sentence, after "certificate", substituted "discloses" for "notes" and at end substituted "a water right transfer certificate must be completed and filed with the department" for "the clerk and recorder shall provide such person the form prescribed under 85-2-423 for the transfer of water rights"; substituted (3) requiring sending copies to the Department on a monthly basis for former language that read: "The county clerk and recorder shall send to the department a list of all transfers that involve transfers of water rights. The list must be sent every month and must include all transfers for the month immediately preceding the date of submittal to the department. The list must include the names and addresses of all parties to the transfer and a legal description of the land subject to the transfer"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 1998.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 167, L. 1997 provided: "[This act] is effective January 1, 1998, and does not apply to deeds entering escrow before that date."

1991 Amendment: Deleted (4) that read: "(4) The department shall send a reference copy of the water right transfer certificate to the office of the chief water judge and to the county clerk and recorder in the county in which the transfer occurred". Amendment effectively July 1, 1991.

1985 Amendment: In (1) substituted "transferor" for "parties to a transfer", substituted requirement that certificate be filed with the department for former requirement that certificate be recorded with the county clerk and recorder, and after "certificate" inserted remainder of subsection requiring transferor to file certificate within 60 days of recording of deed or instrument evidencing transfer of real property; in (3) substituted language concerning list of transfers for "The county clerk and recorder shall cause a permanent record of the water right transfer certificate to be made"; and in (4) substituted requirement that department send reference copy of certificate to chief water judge and to county clerk and recorder in county in which transfer occurred for former requirement that county clerk and recorder send copy of certificate to department and chief water judge.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (1), at beginning, substituted "department" for "board of natural resources and conservation"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1985 Amendment: In (1) in first sentence, after "fee that", substituted "will be no higher than necessary to" for "must", after "department" inserted "and the county clerk and recorder", and in last sentence substituted "filing" for "recordation"; and in (2) substituted language concerning deposit of the fee for "The county clerk and recorder shall:

(a) collect the fee required under subsection (1) and forward it to the department to be deposited in the water right appropriation account provided for in 85-2-318; and

(b) charge and collect a recording fee as provided for in 7-4-2631 for recording the document."

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 401 (Ch. 674, L. 1983) provided: "Senate Bill 401 requires a statement of intent because it provides, [in section 6 (85-2-426)] that the Board of Natural Resources and Conservation [functions now transferred to Department of Natural Resources and Conservation] must by rule prescribe a fee for the processing of a copy of a water right transfer certificate. It is the intent of the legislature that the board study the cost of processing such certificates and set the fee commensurate with the department's cost in processing a certificate. In making its cost analysis study the board should consult with the department and obtain the department's opinion as to what the department's costs will be. The fee may not be set so high that it generates revenue in excess of actual costs."

Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 487, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to all applications for changes in appropriation rights, permits, and water reservations received by the department of natural resources and conservation after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 14, 1995.

1995 Transition: Section 81, Ch. 545, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The members of the legislative council, as provided in 5-11-101, the members of the legislative finance committee, as provided in 5-12-202, the members of the legislative audit committee, as provided in 5-13-202, and the members of the environmental quality council, as provided in 5-16-101, must be appointed as soon as possible following [the effective date of this section] [effective April 27, 1995]."

(2) To implement the changes provided in [this act], the office of the legislative council, the office of budget and program planning, and the department of administration shall establish all necessary authorizations during the accounting preparation process known as the "turnaround" process, beginning in April or May 1995, to administer the several appropriations made by any means to programs of the legislative branch agencies consolidated under [sections 3 and 4] [5-2-503 and 5-2-504] for fiscal year 1996 or 1997 or the biennium ending June 30, 1997, as appropriations to a single legislative agency while maintaining the specific identification, legislative intent, and purpose for which the appropriations were made. During this transition, the executive director may authenticate documents as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act]. Appropriate changes on the statewide budgeting and accounting system and the payroll, personnel, and position control system must also be made and authorized as required to accomplish the purposes of [this act].

(3) Personnel and property of the environmental quality council are transferred to the legislative services division effective July 1, 1995."

1993 Amendments: Chapter 175 in second sentence of (3)(a), after "lease", inserted "a summary of stream reach designation activity under 85-2-437, and a summary of leasing activity on all designated streams" and in third sentence, after "leased", inserted "additional"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

Chapter 370 near beginning of (2)(b), before "application", inserted "correct and complete" and near end, before "complete application", inserted "correct and"; in (2)(f) substituted "a preponderance of evidence" for "substantial credible evidence"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 1993.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 12, Ch. 370, L. 1993, provided: "[Sections 1 through 8] apply retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all applications and objections pending on [the effective date of this act] [effective April 16, 1993] that are subject to the provisions of Title 85, chapter 2."

1991 Amendment: In (2)(e) increased lease term from 4 years to 10 years and after "years" substituted "but it may be renewed once for up to 10 years, except that a lease of water made available from the development of a water conservation or storage project is restricted to a term of not more than 20 years" for "but may be renewed for up to 10 years per renewal, if allowed by law and upon notification to the department. If this section terminates without reauthorization by the legislature, all leases and lease authorizations expire on the date of termination"; in (2)(f), before "lease", deleted "original"; in (2)(i), after "terms", deleted "the renewal of the lease"; in (2)(j), after "installing", deleted "measuring"; inserted (3)(a) requiring Department to submit to Board, Commission, and Water Policy Committee by December 1 annual progress report, including lease information, and requiring Department to provide compelling information justifying any water rights not leased by December 1 of any year in progress report; in (3)(b), before “study”, inserted “final” and at end extended date from 1990 to 1998; inserted (4) providing that section does not create right to bring suit to compel renewal of expired lease; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 1991.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 460 near middle of (2), after "motion", inserted "by petition of a state or local public health agency for identified public health risks"; at end of (2)(e), after "migration", deleted "and a degradation of ground water quality within the ground water area"; inserted (2)(f) concerning water quality and (2)(g) concerning unsuitability for beneficial use; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 21, 1993.

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 460, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the bill gives the department of natural resources and conservation authority to adopt administrative rules. The bill adds statutory criteria for the department to consider in the processing of an application for a permit, change authorization, controlled ground water area, or basin closure. In adopting rules implementing this bill and in interpreting the new statutory language, it is the intent of the legislature that the department and board of natural resources and conservation [functions now transferred to department of natural resources and conservation] should assess the magnitude, character, duration, and geographical extent of the projected effects on the uses of water as classified and utilize this assessment in a practical manner."

1985 Amendment: Inserted (2)(e) authorizing the designation or modification of an area of controlled ground water use upon alleged facts showing that excessive ground water withdrawals would cause contaminant migration and a degradation of ground water quality within the ground water area.

Rules of Procedure: The rules of procedure for the Water Courts for the state of Montana are set forth in full under 85-2-231.

Part Case NotesDECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

Exercise of Original Supreme Court Jurisdiction Based on Statewide Importance of Tribal Water Rights: The Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes petitioned the Supreme Court to exercise original jurisdiction in a case involving the use of ground water on the Flathead Indian Reservation. The Supreme Court found this to be an appropriate case in which to exercise original jurisdiction because: (1) the petition implicated constitutional water rights issues under Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const.; (2) tribal water rights are of statewide importance; (3) the decisive issue was purely legal or constitutional; and (4) the normal litigation process was inadequate. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Stults, 2002 MT 280, 312 M 420, 59 P3d 1093 (2002), following In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073 (1996), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244 (1999).

Issuance of Permits for Ground Water on Indian Reservations Precluded Until Tribes' Federally Reserved Water Rights Defined and Quantified: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) granted a permit for the use of ground water on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Despite prior holdings in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073 (1996), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244 (1999), that the state does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights, DNRC contended that this case was distinguishable because the tribes' federally reserved water right concerning ground water is legally uncertain. However, the only federal authority cited by either party, Tweedy v. Tex. Co., 286 F. Supp. 383 (D.C. Mont. 1968), supported the conclusion that there is no distinction between surface water and ground water for purposes of determining what water rights are reserved because those rights are necessary to the purpose of an Indian reservation. Further, neither of the prior state cases excluded ground water. The tribes contended that as a sovereign nation, they should not be required to defend their water rights in piecemeal fashion before a hostile forum and that pursuant to 85-2-311 and the prior case law, the ground water permit was illegal. The Supreme Court agreed with the tribes and vacated the permit, finding no reason to limit the scope of the prior holdings by excluding ground water from the tribes' federally reserved water rights in this case. Two statutory methods for comprehensively adjudicating Indian reserved water rights already exist—a general inter sese adjudication or negotiations with the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission. Therefore, the tribes should not be required to defend their water rights by participating in the DNRC hearings process. Thus, DNRC cannot determine whether water is available on the Flathead Reservation, whether surface water or ground water, because DNRC cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' preeminent water rights are defined and quantified. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Stults, 2002 MT 280, 312 M 420, 59 P3d 1093 (2002).

Quantification of Tribal Water Rights Required — 1997 Amendment Unconstitutional: In an effort to avoid the result created by In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996), the 1997 Legislature passed Senate Bill No. 97, which substantively eliminated the former protection of Indian reserved water rights provided by 85-2-311. The state conceded that the protection of existing water rights in Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., includes water rights reserved for Indian reservations and contended that those rights were not affected by Senate Bill No. 97, but rather that those rights would be considered in that part of the analysis requiring that water be legally available. The state also pointed out the provisional nature of any water use permit and alleged that there were some uses that would not diminish instream flow and that use permits could thus be issued without affecting reserved Indian water rights, regardless of the quantification of those rights. However, under State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), it was found that Indian reserved water rights are owned by the Indians, and because that ownership interest exists under federal law and does not depend on the use of the water, the Supreme Court was not persuaded that the state's permitting process might allow uses of Indian reserved water that in the long term might not diminish instream flows. The provisional nature of permits was not determinative either because use of water that may have been reserved by federal law for the tribes was no less impermissible simply because it was temporary and subject to termination following final quantification of the tribes' rights by adjudication or negotiation. Under the 1997 amendments, permits are still limited to water that is "legally available", but that phrase is not defined. Construing the phrase in a manner that sustains its constitutional validity, the Supreme Court interpreted "legally available" to mean that there is water available that, among other things, has not been federally reserved for Indian tribes. Therefore, as in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, the state cannot determine whether water is legally available on the Flathead Reservation because it cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' rights are quantified by a compact negotiation under 85-2-702 or by a general inter sese water rights adjudication. To allow the issuance of water use permits on the reservation prior to quantification of the tribes' pervasive reserved right would require use of water that might belong to the tribes, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., which protects existing water rights whether adjudicated or not. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244, 56 St. Rep. 1356 (1999).

State May Not Grant Water Use Permits on Indian Lands When Reserved Tribal Rights Not Quantified: The Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation objected to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) issuing new water use permits to nontribal members owning land in fee on the reservation. The tribes argued that 85-2-311 clearly states that an applicant for a water use permit has to demonstrate that the proposed use will not unreasonably interfere with a planned use for which the water has been reserved and that such a showing cannot be made by an applicant until the tribes reserved rights are quantified by a compact negotiated with the state pursuant to 85-2-702. The Supreme Court held that 85-2-311 does include Indian reserved water rights and that an applicant cannot show that there will be no adverse impact on tribal rights until those rights have been quantified by a negotiated compact with the state. Therefore, DNRC does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights. (See Ch. 497, L. 1997.) In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996), followed in Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244, 56 St. Rep. 1356 (1999). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985).

State Water Court — Jurisdiction to Adjudicate Indian Reserved Water Rights: In an original proceeding to determine jurisdiction of the Water Court over Indian tribes and water flowing through state reservations, the Supreme Court held that Article I of the Montana Constitution does not bar state jurisdiction to adjudicate Indian reserved water rights. With the 1952 McCarran amendment, the U.S. Congress diminished the scope of absolute federal jurisdiction over controversies involving federal water rights by allowing state courts concurrent jurisdiction to adjudicate federal water rights. In Colo. River Water Conserv. District v. U.S., 424 US 800 (1976), the U.S. Supreme Court held that the McCarran amendment applied to Indian water rights. The state Legislature's enactment of the Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) pursuant to Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., constitutes a valid and binding consent of the people of Montana to Congress' grant of state jurisdiction over Indian reserved water rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

Water Use Act — Adjudication of Indian and Federal Reserved Water Rights:

The Montana Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) is adequate on its face to adjudicate Indian reserved water rights. Although state appropriative water rights and Indian reserved water rights differ in origin and definition, the Water Use Act, as amended, permits the Water Court to treat Indian reserved water rights differently from state appropriative rights. The Water Use Act does not state explicitly that the Water Court shall apply federal law in adjudicating Indian reserved rights; however, state courts are required to follow federal law with regard to those water rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986), and In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996).

The Montana Water Use Act (Title 85, ch. 2) is adequate on its face to adjudicate federal reserved water rights. Although federal reserved rights differ from state appropriative rights in origin, determination of priority date, and quantification standards, the Water Use Act recognizes the distinction between federal reserved rights and state-created appropriative rights. As the Act permits each different class of water rights to be treated differently, the Act is adequate to allow for adjudication of federal reserved rights. State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754, 42 St. Rep. 1856 (1985), followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986), and In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996).

Federal Reserved Water Rights — Jurisdiction Over Water Court Not Barred by Suspension Provision: After the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Ariz. v. San Carlos Apache Tribe, 463 US 545, 77 L Ed 2d 837, 103 S Ct 3201 (1983), that the McCarran amendment, 43 U.S.C. §666, removed "whatever limitations the enabling acts or federal policy may have originally placed on state court jurisdiction" over the adjudication of Indian water rights, the state requested that the Montana Supreme Court exercise its powers of supervisory control over the state Water Court concerning the adjudication of federal reserved water rights. In assuming jurisdiction, the Supreme Court ruled that the request for supervisory control is not barred by the suspension provisions of 85-2-217, as the proceeding will not generally adjudicate any Indian reserved water rights or any federal reserved water rights. This proceeding will consider the following issues: (1) is the state Water Court prohibited from exercising jurisdiction over Indian reserved water rights based on the disclaimer clause of Art. I of the Montana Constitution or otherwise; (2) is the Montana Water Use Act, Title 85, ch. 2, adequate to adjudicate federal reserved water rights; and (3) is the Montana Water Use Act adequate to adjudicate federal reserved water rights held, on its own behalf, by the United States or any of its agencies. State ex rel. Greely v. Water Court, 214 M 143, 691 P2d 833, 41 St. Rep. 2373 (1984).

State Court Jurisdiction Over Federal and Indian Water Rights: The McCarran amendment, 43 U.S.C. §666, granting state courts jurisdiction over the United States in litigation involving a comprehensive adjudication of water rights, removed "whatever limitations the enabling acts or federal policy may have originally placed on state court jurisdiction" over the adjudication of Indian water rights in actions brought by the United States on behalf of an Indian tribe as well as in actions brought by an Indian tribe itself. Assuming that the state adjudication procedure is adequate and complies with state law, dismissal of adjudication actions filed in federal District Court out of deference to state adjudication proceedings was proper. Ariz. v. San Carlos Apache Tribe, 463 US 545, 77 L Ed 2d 877, 103 S Ct 3201 (1983), reversing N. Cheyenne Tribe v. Adsit, 668 F2d 1080 (9th Cir. 1982); followed in Blackfeet Indian Nation v. Hodel, 634 F. Supp. 646, 43 St. Rep. 863 (D.C. Mont. 1986).

Appropriation on Indian Lands:

Defendant's contention that an appropriation of a water right was made on Indian lands prior to opening for settlement and therefore initiated by trespass and hence void could not be sustained because the provision of the Crow Indian treaty of 1868 that white men should be excluded from Indian lands is directory and not mandatory. Whites could be excluded if inimical to Indian welfare. It was discretionary with those charged with protecting Indian rights to take action against whites invading without the consent of the tribe. The Indian land became public domain subject to squatter's rights after ratification of agreement for settlement in 1891. Cook v. Hudson, 110 M 263, 103 P2d 137 (1940), distinguished and overruled on other grounds in Grimsley v. Estate of Spencer, 206 M 184, 670 P2d 85 (1983).

By the treaty of May 7, 1868, between the United States and the Crow Indians, establishing the Crow Indian Reservation, the federal government impliedly reserved to itself the waters thereon for irrigation and other purposes for use by the Indians, hence they were not subject to appropriation by others. The right to use water appurtenant to lands on an Indian reservation and held by Indians under trust patents is property of the United States, and state courts are without jurisdiction to enter a decree affecting such right; but when an Indian becomes seized of a fee simple title after removal of a trust patent, the conveyance of land transfers the right to use the water appurtenant to the land. Anderson v. Spear-Morgan Livestock Co., 107 M 18, 79 P2d 667 (1938).

Appropriation Made on Public Domain by Settler: A settler on lands which were a part of the public domain could make a valid appropriation of water thereon. Galahan v. Lewis, 105 M 294, 72 P2d 1018 (1937).

Method of Procedure: The United States, under section 89-808, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), must proceed, in making appropriations of water from nonnavigable streams of this state, as a corporation or individual. Bailey v. Tintinger, 45 M 154, 122 P 575 (1912). See U.S. v. Burley, 172 F 615 (9th Cir. 1909); Burley v. U.S., 179 F 1 (9th Cir. 1910). See also Mettler v. Ames Realty Co., 61 M 152, 201 P 702 (1921).

Case Notes

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

State May Not Grant Water Use Permits on Indian Lands When Reserved Tribal Rights Not Quantified: The Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation objected to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) issuing new water use permits to nontribal members owning land in fee on the reservation. The tribes argued that 85-2-311 clearly states that an applicant for a water use permit has to demonstrate that the proposed use will not unreasonably interfere with a planned use for which the water has been reserved and that such a showing cannot be made by an applicant until the tribes reserved rights are quantified by a compact negotiated with the state pursuant to 85-2-702. The Supreme Court held that 85-2-311 does include Indian reserved water rights and that an applicant cannot show that there will be no adverse impact on tribal rights until those rights have been quantified by a negotiated compact with the state. Therefore, DNRC does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights. (See Ch. 497, L. 1997.) Commissioner Correction: Because of rearrangement of sec. 27, Ch. 697, L. 1979, the Code Commissioner, 1979, changed "The compact commission" to "The reserved water rights compact commission, created by 2-15-212," in subsection (1).

Case Notes

DECISIONS UNDER CURRENT LAW

Exercise of Original Supreme Court Jurisdiction Based on Statewide Importance of Tribal Water Rights: The Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes petitioned the Supreme Court to exercise original jurisdiction in a case involving the use of ground water on the Flathead Indian Reservation. The Supreme Court found this to be an appropriate case in which to exercise original jurisdiction because: (1) the petition implicated constitutional water rights issues under Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const.; (2) tribal water rights are of statewide importance; (3) the decisive issue was purely legal or constitutional; and (4) the normal litigation process was inadequate. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Stults, 2002 MT 280, 312 M 420, 59 P3d 1093 (2002), following In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073 (1996), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244 (1999).

Issuance of Permits for Ground Water on Indian Reservations Precluded Until Tribes' Federally Reserved Water Rights Defined and Quantified: The Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) granted a permit for the use of ground water on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Despite prior holdings in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073 (1996), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244 (1999), that the state does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights, DNRC contended that this case was distinguishable because the tribes' federally reserved water right concerning ground water is legally uncertain. However, the only federal authority cited by either party, Tweedy v. Tex. Co., 286 F. Supp. 383 (D.C. Mont. 1968), supported the conclusion that there is no distinction between surface water and ground water for purposes of determining what water rights are reserved because those rights are necessary to the purpose of an Indian reservation. Further, neither of the prior state cases excluded ground water. The tribes contended that as a sovereign nation, they should not be required to defend their water rights in piecemeal fashion before a hostile forum and that pursuant to 85-2-311 and the prior case law, the ground water permit was illegal. The Supreme Court agreed with the tribes and vacated the permit, finding no reason to limit the scope of the prior holdings by excluding ground water from the tribes' federally reserved water rights in this case. Two statutory methods for comprehensively adjudicating Indian reserved water rights already exist—a general inter sese adjudication or negotiations with the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission. Therefore, the tribes should not be required to defend their water rights by participating in the DNRC hearings process. Thus, DNRC cannot determine whether water is available on the Flathead Reservation, whether surface water or ground water, because DNRC cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' preeminent water rights are defined and quantified. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Stults, 2002 MT 280, 312 M 420, 59 P3d 1093 (2002).

Quantification of Tribal Water Rights Required — 1997 Amendment Unconstitutional: In an effort to avoid the result created by In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, 278 M 50, 923 P2d 1073, 53 St. Rep. 777 (1996), the 1997 Legislature passed Senate Bill No. 97, which substantively eliminated the former protection of Indian reserved water rights provided by 85-2-311. The state conceded that the protection of existing water rights in Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., includes water rights reserved for Indian reservations and contended that those rights were not affected by Senate Bill No. 97, but rather that those rights would be considered in that part of the analysis requiring that water be legally available. The state also pointed out the provisional nature of any water use permit and alleged that there were some uses that would not diminish instream flow and that use permits could thus be issued without affecting reserved Indian water rights, regardless of the quantification of those rights. However, under State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), it was found that Indian reserved water rights are owned by the Indians, and because that ownership interest exists under federal law and does not depend on the use of the water, the Supreme Court was not persuaded that the state's permitting process might allow uses of Indian reserved water that in the long term might not diminish instream flows. The provisional nature of permits was not determinative either because use of water that may have been reserved by federal law for the tribes was no less impermissible simply because it was temporary and subject to termination following final quantification of the tribes' rights by adjudication or negotiation. Under the 1997 amendments, permits are still limited to water that is "legally available", but that phrase is not defined. Construing the phrase in a manner that sustains its constitutional validity, the Supreme Court interpreted "legally available" to mean that there is water available that, among other things, has not been federally reserved for Indian tribes. Therefore, as in In re Application for Beneficial Water Use Permit, the state cannot determine whether water is legally available on the Flathead Reservation because it cannot determine whether the issuance of permits would affect existing water rights until the tribes' rights are quantified by a compact negotiation under this section or by a general inter sese water rights adjudication. To allow the issuance of water use permits on the reservation prior to quantification of the tribes' pervasive reserved right would require use of water that might belong to the tribes, in violation of Art. IX, sec. 3, Mont. Const., which protects existing water rights whether adjudicated or not. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. Clinch, 1999 MT 342, 297 M 448, 992 P2d 244, 56 St. Rep. 1356 (1999).

State May Not Grant Water Use Permits on Indian Lands When Reserved Tribal Rights Not Quantified: The Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation objected to the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC) issuing new water use permits to nontribal members owning land in fee on the reservation. The tribes argued that 85-2-311 clearly states that an applicant for a water use permit has to demonstrate that the proposed use will not unreasonably interfere with a planned use for which the water has been reserved and that such a showing cannot be made by an applicant until the tribes reserved rights are quantified by a compact negotiated with the state pursuant to this section. The Supreme Court held that 85-2-311 does include Indian reserved water rights and that an applicant cannot show that there will be no adverse impact on tribal rights until those rights have been quantified by a negotiated compact with the state. Therefore, DNRC does not have jurisdiction to issue new use permits prior to formal adjudication of the tribes' reserved water rights. 2003 Amendment: Chapter 522 in (4)(c) before "15-38-106" deleted "15-36-324 and". Amendment effective April 26, 2003.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 21, Ch. 522, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax revenue derived from oil and natural gas production occurring after December 31, 2002."

Contingent Effective Date: Section 13(3), Ch. 552, L. 1999, provided: "If the funding switch described in [section 12(1)] does not occur, then [section 8] [85-2-905] is effective July 1 of the first year following the date that the governor by executive order certifies to the secretary of state that the resource indemnity trust fund balance has reached $100 million. The secretary of state shall notify the department of revenue, the department of administration, the code commissioner, and the legislative fiscal division of this certification." On February 27, 2002, the Governor certified that the balance in the resource indemnity trust fund had reached $100 million.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 552 in (4)(a) substituted "$366,000" for "14.1%" and substituted "and $300,000 of the interest earnings from the resource indemnity trust fund, as authorized by 15-38-202" for "and 2.2% of the proceeds from the metalliferous mines license taxes, as authorized by 15-37-117". Amendment effective on occurrence of contingency.

1997 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 42 in (1), in first sentence, substituted "special revenue fund" for "state special revenue fund"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

Chapter 444 in (4)(a)(i) substituted "proceeds" for "funds"; in (4)(b) substituted "by state government agencies" for "by federal or state government agencies"; inserted (4)(c) relating to proceeds allocated to the ground water assessment account by 15-36-324 and 15-38-106; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

Style changes were slightly different in the chapters. In each case, the codifier chose the more appropriate.

The amendments to this section made by sec. 5, Ch. 120, L. 1997, were rendered void by sec. 7, Ch. 542, L. 1997, a coordination section.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 31 at beginning of (4)(a) deleted "on July 1, 1993, and", after "each" deleted "succeeding", and near middle inserted language directing 2.2% of metalliferous mines license tax proceeds to the ground water assessment account; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 6, 1995.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 31, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all metalliferous mines taxes collected after December 31, 1994."

Appropriation: Section 18, Ch. 769, L. 1991, provided: "There is appropriated to the Montana bureau of mines and geology for the biennium ending June 30, 1993, all funds in the ground water assessment account, established in [section 4] [85-2-905], in the state special revenue fund, for purposes of establishing a ground water monitoring program and a ground water characterization program."

Coordination Instruction: Section 20, Ch. 769, L. 1991, provided: "If Senate Bill No. 407 is passed and approved and does not contain a provision that allocates a portion of public water supply system fees to the ground water assessment account, then [section 4(4)(d) of this act] [85-2-905(4)(d) (temporary version)] is void." Senate Bill No. 407 was approved April 26, 1991, as Ch. 645, L. 1991, and included a provision allocating fees to the ground water assessment account. Therefore, 85-2-905(4)(d) (temporary version) is valid.

Effective Date: Section 21(1), Ch. 769, L. 1991, provided that the temporary version of this section is effective July 1, 1991.

Termination: Section 22, Ch. 769, L. 1991, provided that subsections (4)(a) through (4)(d) of this section terminate July 1, 1993. Chapter 769, L. 1991, enacted two versions of the ground water assessment account. The effect of the termination provided in sec. 22, Ch. 769, L. 1991, is the implementation of the 1993 version of 85-2-905.

2003 Amendment: Chapter 179 in (4) near beginning of first sentence after "compensation" inserted "require a commissioner or commissioners to purchase a workers' compensation insurance policy and elect coverage on themselves" and at end inserted "including the cost of workers' compensation insurance purchased by a water commissioner or commissioners"; inserted (6) providing that a water commissioner is not an employee of the judicial branch, a local government, or a water user; inserted (7) providing that a water commissioner who fails to obtain workers' compensation insurance coverage is precluded from receiving workers' compensation or occupational disease benefits; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 31, 2003.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 179, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved March 31, 2003] and applies to water commissioner appointments made on or after [the effective date of this act]."

1989 Amendments: Chapter 468 in first sentence of (2), after "court", substituted "may" for "shall", after "application by" inserted "both", and after "conservation" inserted "and one or more holders of valid water rights in the source"; inserted second sentence of (4) allowing Department to be included in apportionment of costs; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective April 6, 1989.

Chapter 604 in (1), in first sentence after "jurisdiction", inserted "including temporary preliminary, preliminary, and final decrees issued by a water judge"; and in (2) inserted "temporary preliminary decree, preliminary decree, or". Amendment effective April 21, 1989.

(2) A person whose existing rights are determined in a temporary preliminary decree or a preliminary decree issued before [the effective date of this act] [effective April 21, 1989] may petition the water judge for relief concerning any matter in the decree prior to enforcement of the decree."

1983 Amendment: In (2), after "district court" deleted "which issued the final decree"; and in (4), inserted "including permittees and certificate holders".

Case Notes

Distribution of Waters: In an action by landowners against the State Water Conservation Board (precursor of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation), for declaration of the respective rights of the parties to waters in a creek, plaintiffs alleged that the defendant's refusal to unlock the headgate to a ditch rendered it impossible for the Water Commissioner to measure and distribute the waters in question. Defendant's denial of this material allegation precluded a judgment on the pleadings. Johnson v. St. Water Conserv. Bd., 140 M 603, 374 P2d 325 (1962).

Persons Concluded by Decree:

Any act of the judge or of any Water Commissioner appointed by him done in violation of the plain mandate of the statute, which gives to the Commissioner authority to admeasure and distribute to the parties bound by the decree or decrees the waters to which they are entitled under the decrees, cannot be relied upon by a person to establish his claimed right to the prior use of waters by adverse possession. Lamping v. Diehl, 126 M 193, 246 P2d 230 (1952).

On certiorari, where landowner, who was not a party to an original water right suit or a successor in interest of a party thereto but who claimed a right under an appropriation the legality of which had not been a subject of litigation, tapped the stream and when advised by Water Commissioner that water in stream was insufficient for needs of those with decreed rights, continued in its use, a finding that he was guilty of contempt was not warranted in the absence of a showing that he interfered with the Commissioner in performance of his duties. State ex rel. Reeder v. District Court, 100 M 376, 47 P2d 653 (1935).

A person not mentioned in the decree, who joined in a petition for the appointment of the Water Commissioner and afterward refused to respect the decree, made himself a party thereto and was liable to be punished in contempt proceedings. State ex rel. Pool v. District Court, 34 M 258, 86 P 798 (1906).

Contempt in County Other Than Where Decree Made: Where the violation of the decree of the District Court of Cascade County was committed in Lewis and Clark County, the courts of Lewis and Clark County may punish for the violation. Contempts, being criminal in their nature, must be tried in the county where they were committed. State ex rel. Swanson v. District Court, 107 M 203, 82 P2d 779 (1938).

River and Tributaries Flowing in Several Counties: Where a river and its tributaries flowed in three counties, the District Court of any one of the counties had jurisdiction to adjudicate the water rights on the whole watershed. The court which first acquired jurisdiction retained it for the purpose of disposing of the whole controversy, and no court of coordinate power could interfere with its action. Such court "having jurisdiction" appoints the Water Commissioner to enforce its decree. This rule does not apply to rights not adjudicated in that decree. State ex. rel. Swanson v. District Court, 107 M 203, 82 P2d 779 (1938).

Nature of Proceedings:

Procedure under Montana statutes authorizing an owner or user of waters of an adjudicated stream who is dissatisfied with the method of distribution to file a written claim in the appropriate court and providing for a hearing and the making of appropriate findings and orders is not a formal trial but is more in the nature of proceedings ancillary to an original decree adjudicating rights on the stream. Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 84 F2d 126 (9th Cir. 1936).

In a proceeding brought under this act, relating to the appointment and duties of Water Commissioners, by one owning or using an adjudicated water right who is dissatisfied with the method of distribution of the waters in a stream by a Commissioner, a formal trial, upon pleadings filed by the interested parties, is not contemplated. The only pleading required is the complaint, and the sole question for determination is whether the Commissioner has distributed the waters in accordance with the decree. Other users may present themselves at the hearing and resist the demands of a complainant orally if they object to the granting of relief. Gans & Klein Inv. Co. v. Sanford, 91 M 512, 8 P2d 808 (1932).

Contempt Proceeding Not Procedure to Adjudicate Water Rights: A Water Commissioner does not possess complete and exclusive jurisdiction to control the stream, regardless of whether all rights are adjudicated under court decree fixing measurement of water. Nor may the District Court in a contempt proceeding, summary in nature, decide that contemnor claiming right in stream, otherwise adjudicated, has no right. This may be done only by appropriate action after due notice and hearing. State ex rel. Reeder v. District Court, 100 M 376, 47 P2d 653 (1935), distinguished in Clausen v. Armington, 123 M 1, 212 P2d 440 (1949).

Damages for Impairment of Water Rights: The provisions relating to the appointment of a Water Commissioner and prescribing his duties and powers do not provide an exclusive remedy for one whose water rights have been impaired and therefore do not preclude him from maintaining an action for damages. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926), distinguished in Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 20 F. Supp. 843 (D.C. Mont. 1937).

85-5-105. Power and duty to distribute water.Case Notes

Recharge of River — Right to Use of Water by Subsequent Appropriator Even Though No Water Available to Upstream Prior Appropriator: A Water Commissioner closed the headgate of the Baker Ditch Company, a downstream appropriator with decreed water rights, because there was no water available to an upstream superior appropriator, even though there was water available to the Company due to recharge of the river by return flows, seepage, and other sources. The Commissioner evidently believed that he had to enforce the decree to the extent that if a prior appropriator was without water upstream, a subsequent appropriator downstream could not divert water under its rights even though the river was being recharged. However, if a subsequent appropriator is using water in accordance with the decree and that use cannot in any way be a detriment to a prior appropriator, then the subsequent appropriator has the right to the use of the water. Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260, 49 St. Rep. 17 (1992), replacing the prior opinion at 48 St. Rep. 972 (1991).

Expiration of Commissioner's Term — Action Not Rendered Invalid: The purpose of this section is to provide a uniform, equitable, and economical distribution of adjudicated, stored, and supplemental waters. In order to assure this type of distribution, instructions given by a District Court must be binding upon the office of the Water Commissioner, not merely upon the individual holding the office at a particular time. Thus the filing of an action to clarify decreed rights subsequent to the expiration of a Commissioner's term does not render the action invalid. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

85-5-107. Record of daily distribution of water.Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: In first sentence after "monthly" inserted "or seasonally, at the discretion of the district judge"; after "water distributed" inserted "each day"; after "such month" substituted "or season" for "daily"; after "salary per day" inserted "and other costs of the water commissioner approved by the district judge".

85-5-108. Authority and arrest power.Case Notes

Power of Commissioner Appointed in Another County: The fact that a Water Commissioner is by this section vested with the same power of arrest as is a Sheriff or Constable, whose powers are confined to their counties, does not militate against the holding that the District Court of one county may appoint a Commissioner in another county to which his duties are wholly confined. One violating a water right decree will not be heard to say that his arrest should have been accomplished by some other officer. State ex rel. Swanson v. District Court, 107 M 203, 82 P2d 779 (1938).

Offender Liable to Injured Party for Damages: It is true that under the authority vested in him by this section the Commissioner may arrest an offender for interference with such distribution and take him before the court for punishment, but such action does not in any manner compensate the party injured by the unlawful act of the culprit and therefore does not preclude him from maintaining an action for damages. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926), distinguished in Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 20 F. Supp. 843 (D.C. Mont. 1937).

Nonjudicial Officer: This section does not constitute Water Commissioners judicial officers in the sense that violations of their orders are contempts committed in the immediate view and presence of the court. State ex rel. Flynn v. District Court, 33 M 115, 82 P 450 (1905).

85-5-110. Appointment of water mediators — duties.Compiler's Comments

Case Notes

Court Allowed to Assess Lands in Another County: The District Court of one county has power to make an assessment for costs and expenses against lands situated in another county benefited by appointment of a Water Commissioner, thereby creating liens upon such lands. This procedure is no more objectionable than the statutory provision that a judgment rendered in one county is a lien upon real estate of the debtor in another county under 25-9-302. State ex rel. Swanson v. District Court, 107 M 203, 82 P2d 779 (1938).

Part 3 Rights and Duties of Water Users

85-5-301. Complaint by dissatisfied user.

Case Notes

Jurisdiction of District Court to "Update" Old Water Rights Decree — Statute Governing Complaints by Dissatisfied Users Inapplicable: Pursuant to a previous writ of supervisory control, a remand to the District Court, and findings entered by the Senior Water Master, the Supreme Court found that the Order Authorizing Updated Decree, entered by the judges of the Fourth Judicial District in January of 1989, was beyond the jurisdiction of the District Court. The order was intended to deal with the problem of a 1902 water rights decree by a District Court, in which the judge adjudicated 27 water rights on Carlton Creek, that had become so brittle with age and damaged by time that the decree could not be readily handled. In the process of updating and reissuing the 1902 order, the Supreme Court found that the Fourth Judicial District Judges had actually made a de facto adjudication of water rights in an overly appropriated drainage and that that adjudication had been undertaken without notice and hearing to the holders of certain of those water rights. Citing Mildenberger v. Galbraith, 249 M 161, 815 P2d 130 (1991), and Baker Ditch Co. v. District Court, 251 M 251, 824 P2d 260 (1992), the Supreme Court held that under 85-2-234(6), it is within the sole jurisdiction of the Water Court to determine such things as priority dates, flow rates, place of use, and means of diversion with respect to a water right. The Supreme Court also held that the matters adjudicated by the decree were not within the scope of matters cognizable under this section because that section concerns the correct administration of a water rights decree while the Updated Decree attempts to change the terms of the decree itself. For these reasons, the Supreme Court vacated the 1989 Updated Decree. State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 283 M 1, 938 P2d 1312, 54 St. Rep. 460 (1997).

Continuance of Water Use Case Properly Denied: On October 7, 4 days before a scheduled hearing on charges of contempt of the order of a Water Commissioner, counsel for relator sent a letter notifying the court that his schedule would prevent him from appearing and requesting that the hearing be continued until November 4 or 18, approximately 1 month later. However, the court properly denied the request in light of the fact that the continuance would have left relator in sole possession and use of all waters of the creek for over a month at a time when very little remained of the irrigation season. Marks v. District Court, 239 M 428, 781 P2d 249, 46 St. Rep. 1804 (1989).

Knowledge of Water Commissioner's Directives and Procedures Sufficient to Uphold Contempt Charge: A water user's participation in many water controversies over a period of several years, his continuing refusal to abide by a Water Commissioner's directives, and his prior knowledge of procedures involving water Commissioners and Water Courts provided sufficient substantial evidence for a lower court to find that the water user was in contempt of court for failing to obey an order of a Water Commissioner. Marks v. District Court, 239 M 428, 781 P2d 249, 46 St. Rep. 1804 (1989).

Proceedings to Be Informal: The procedure in a dissatisfied water user's action filed under this section is informal. Since standard trial procedures are not followed in this informal, summary proceeding, the time limits governing posttrial procedures should not be strictly applied. Morrison v. Higbee, 204 M 501, 668 P2d 1029, 40 St. Rep. 1031 (1983).

Scope of Court's Authority in Dissatisfied Water User's Action: The purpose of a dissatisfied water user's action is to enforce the original decree and oversee the Water Commissioner's distribution of water through properly maintained ditches, headgates, and other water measuring devices. In an action of this type, it was appropriate for a District Court to order the removal of trees and brush on an irrigation ditchbank when the purpose of the removal was to enhance the method of distribution of water. Morrison v. Higbee, 204 M 501, 668 P2d 1029, 40 St. Rep. 1031 (1983).

Court's Findings Exceeding Scope of Section: Findings based upon facts and occurrences subsequent to the decree under consideration and those outside of the pleadings, record, and judgment role of that decree exceeded the scope of this section. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

Evidence Sufficient to Establish Interference With Water Commissioner: Evidence that a water user locked and rendered inoperative headgate controls at the diversion point from a creek was sufficient to establish that the water user interfered with and hindered the duties of the Water Commissioner. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

Expiration of Commissioner's Term — Action Not Rendered Invalid: The purpose of this section is to provide a uniform, equitable, and economical distribution of adjudicated, stored, and supplemental waters, and in order to assure this type of distribution, instructions given by a District Court must be binding upon the office of the Water Commissioner, not merely upon the individual holding the office at a particular time. Thus the filing of an action to clarify decreed rights subsequent to the expiration of a Commissioner's term does not render the action invalid. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

Notice to All Water Users on a Creek: The District Court is not required to give notice in an action for clarification of a 1890 water rights decree to all water users on a creek under the prior decree. Specifically, notice is not required to be given to users who have not questioned a Water Commissioner's authority and whose rights are not adversely affected. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

Prior Decree Uncertain: The purpose of an action pursuant to this section is not to adjudicate water rights previously determined by decree but only to enforce the rights determined by the prior decree. Thus, in determining whether a Water Commissioner properly distributed water, a District Court must look to two factors: (1) what was adjudged in the former proceeding and decree; and (2) was the Water Commissioner distributing the water in accordance with what was adjudged. As to the first factor, the absence of identifying the respective lands of the water owners is sufficient by itself to support the District Court's finding that the prior decree was uncertain in meaning and susceptible of different interpretations. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

Standing: Plaintiff has standing to pursue an action under this section on the basis that he is dissatisfied with the method of distribution of a Water Commissioner and that plaintiff's entitlement to more water is in jeopardy. Plaintiff may also have standing if he is dissatisfied with the method of distribution of the Water Commissioner and his entitlement to a right prior to that allowed him by a Water Commissioner is being challenged. Luppold v. Lewis, 172 M 280, 563 P2d 538 (1977).

Counterclaim Denied: A counterclaim against a petition of an irrigation district for additional appropriation of water was properly denied where evidence was uncontradicted that water was going to waste and that impoundment would be beneficial. Sunset Irrigation District v. Ailport, 166 M 11, 531 P2d 1349 (1974).

Purpose of Summary Proceeding: The District Court had no authority in a proceeding under this section to approve a method of distribution which changed the point of diversion of water to a tract and changed the transportation ditch thereto, because the only function of the court in such a proceeding is to determine whether the water involved is being allocated in compliance with existing decrees and not to decree new water rights. Allen v. Wampler, 143 M 486, 392 P2d 82 (1964).

Purpose Not to Adjudicate Water Rights: The purpose of the summary proceeding authorized by this section is not to adjudicate water rights determined by prior decrees or, under the guise of instructions to the Commissioner after hearing, to summarily subordinate the right of one to that of another where, as between the two, their rights have never been adjudicated. A Water Commissioner is as disinterested in such proceeding as a stakeholder or interpleader and may not champion the rights of an owner whose rights have never been adjudicated and who had no notice and did not appear at the hearing. State ex rel. McKnight v. District Court, 111 M 520, 111 P2d 292 (1941).

Real Parties in Interest: As in the case of an injunction action against a Water Commissioner, so in a proceeding under this section, the real parties interested are the parties whose water rights are affected. The constitutional right of due process cannot be abridged by the court's instructing the Water Commissioner in a manner subordinating the right of one to that of another to conform to a decree to which the former was not a party, merely because time and expense would be consumed in litigation between users whose rights between themselves have not been adjudicated. State ex rel. McKnight v. District Court, 111 M 520, 111 P2d 292 (1941).

Appropriations in Anticipation of Future Needs: When the intention is made manifest, the court must take into consideration prospective or future needs in entering a water right decree, and a mere description of lands does not justify the extended use of water in the absence of recitals in the pleadings and decree and proof in the record that the appropriation is made in anticipation of future needs. In reviewing the acts of the Water Commissioner in distributing water, in a proceeding under this section, reasonable diligence must be shown to have been exercised since entry of the decree in developing such needs. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Diversion Into Fishpond Without Outlet Constituting Unauthorized New Appropriation: Where, after the appointment of a Water Commissioner, there never was more than enough water in an adjudicated stream to supply the needs of the parties under their adjudicated rights, a diversion of water therefrom by one of them into a fishpond which had no outlet constituted an attempted new appropriation under sections 89-829 through 89-838, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), which in the absence of a decree establishing it was unauthorized and therefore properly prohibited by an order of a court in a proceeding under this section. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Reference to Entire Record to Construe Obscure or Uncertain Decree: In construing a water right decree which is lacking in certain elements or obscure and uncertain in meaning, the Supreme Court, on appeal from orders of the District Court in a proceeding under this section relating to the actions of a Water Commissioner in distributing water to claimants whose rights were adjudicated in prior decrees, may refer to the pleadings, judgment roll, or the entire record of the case. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Rule as to Extended Use of Water Irrespective of the Rights of Others: Owners of decreed rights are not entitled to increase the use of the water decreed on additional lands even if they do not exceed their decreed quota per unit of time, when to do so would result in injury to subsequent appropriators. The decreed right is limited to water taken and beneficially applied on lands either in actual or contemplated irrigation at the time it was decreed. Quigley v. McIntosh, 110 M 495, 103 P2d 1067 (1940).

Jurisdiction Federal Court May Entertain: That a prior decree of a state court settling water priorities in a particular stream permanently enjoined parties thereto from interfering with rights of each other did not preclude federal court from entertaining jurisdiction of a suit to have the power company's rights adjudged inferior to plaintiffs', in view of holdings of state court authorizing independent actions, notwithstanding prior injunction; nor does the fact that state court had appointed a Water Commissioner and through him was still exercising jurisdiction over the res preclude exercise of jurisdiction, especially where state laws did not contemplate that his adjustment of water rights should be exclusive. Sain v. Mont. Power Co., 84 F2d 126 (9th Cir. 1936).

Questions to Be Determined: In a proceeding under this section, the primary questions for consideration by the trial court are: (1) what was adjudged in the former proceeding and decree; and (2) was the Water Commissioner distributing the water in accordance with what was there adjudged. Brennan v. Jones, 101 M 550, 55 P2d 697 (1936).

Jurisdiction of District Court: In a proceeding brought under this section by a dissatisfied water user against a Water Commissioner appointed to admeasure the waters of a tributary of a river, defendant's contention that his refusal to distribute water to plaintiff was justified by the fact that the tributary flowed entirely in his county and that therefore the District Court of a neighboring county was without jurisdiction to render the decree upon which plaintiff relied as the basis of his water right was without merit. Whitcomb v. Murphy, 94 M 562, 23 P2d 980 (1933), distinguished in State ex rel. Swanson v. District Court, 107 M 203, 82 P2d 779 (1938).

Claimant to Be Able to Use Water Before He May Object to the Use by Others: Until a claimant is himself in a position to use the water of a stream subject to appropriation, the right to the water or water right does not exist in such sense that the mere diversion of the water by another is a ground of action either to recover the water or for damages for its diversion. Miles v. Butte Elec. & Power Co., 32 M 56, 79 P 549 (1905).

Attorney General's Opinions

Water Commissioner Employee of District Court Judge: When a District Court Judge appoints a Water Commissioner under Title 85, ch. 5, the District Court Judge, rather than the water users, is considered the employer for the purpose of payment of workers' compensation. 40 A.G. Op. 56 (1984).

Case Notes

Scope of Court's Authority in Dissatisfied Water User's Action: The purpose of a dissatisfied water user's action is to enforce the original decree and oversee the Water Commissioner's distribution of water through properly maintained ditches, headgates, and other water measuring devices. In an action of this type, it was appropriate for a District Court to order the removal of trees and brush on an irrigation ditchbank when the purpose of the removal was to enhance the method of distribution of water. Morrison v. Higbee, 204 M 501, 668 P2d 1029, 40 St. Rep. 1031 (1983).

Police Regulation: This section requiring the installation of headgates and measuring boxes in ditches by persons using water from a stream under a decree where a Water Commissioner has been appointed is in the nature of a police regulation, under which the Commissioner may refuse to distribute water to one who fails to do so. It does not license a stranger to appropriate water to his own use from a stream merely because an owner of a right has not complied with such requirement. Tucker v. Missoula Light & Ry., 77 M 91, 250 P 11 (1926).

Part Case Notes

Irrigation Contract — Interpretation of Limitations on Water Usage: In an action against an irrigation company, plaintiff irrigator claimed the company had violated its contract by failing to provide him with sufficient water to irrigate his land, the District Court did not err in holding that it was the plaintiff who violated the contract since there was substantial evidence showing that the blockage of the irrigation ditch by the plaintiff resulted in the plaintiff's taking of more than the 400 miner's inches of water a year allowed by the contract. The District Court did err, however, in prohibiting the plaintiff from diverting water by pumping and from irrigating land not historically irrigated. There was no language in the contract restricting the method of irrigation or the number or location of acres to be irrigated. As long as the plaintiff used no more water than his contractual entitlement, the District Court could not limit the means or place of irrigation. Griffel v. Cove Ditch Co., 207 M 348, 675 P2d 90, 41 St. Rep. 1 (1984).

Case Notes

No Negligence by Irrigation District for Failure to Warn of Unforeseeable Flood: Plaintiffs' property was damaged by an unprecedented flood caused by an ice jam on the Clark Fork River. Plaintiffs alleged that the local irrigation district was liable for breaching its duty to construct and maintain an irrigation system that would protect the property and for failing to warn of the flooding conditions to allow plaintiffs the opportunity to protect their property. The District Court held that the irrigation district had no duty to prevent the flood or to warn of the impending natural disaster, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The first element that plaintiffs must establish in a negligence action is the existence of a duty of care, and the measure of a duty of care owed is the scope of the risk that the negligent conduct foreseeably entails. Thus, the primary factor in determining whether the irrigation district owed a duty of care was whether it was foreseeable, as a matter of law, that the district's acts or omissions would pose a risk of injury to plaintiffs. Here, substantial evidence supported the conclusion that the risk that flooding would damage plaintiffs' property was unforeseeable, so the district had no duty to erect or maintain flood control structures to prevent the unforeseeable event. The district also exercised reasonable care in the maintenance of the irrigation system that was in place. Further, plaintiffs failed to advance any applicable authority that would impose upon the district a duty to warn of the unforeseeable flood because mere knowledge of the dangerous situation, of which plaintiffs themselves had become aware the night of the flood, did not impose a legal duty to warn. Gaudreau v. Clinton Irrigation District, 2001 MT 164, 306 M 121, 30 P3d 1070 (2001), following Estate of Strever v. Cline, 278 M 165, 924 P2d 666 (1996).

Liability of Users' Association Not Exclusive: This section does not preclude liability of a third party for the safe operation of an irrigation ditch by an incorporated users' association. It merely precludes liability of the state of Montana for injuries allegedly caused by its regulation of such companies. Limberhand v. Big Ditch Co., 218 M 132, 706 P2d 491, 42 St. Rep. 1460 (1985).

1981 Amendment: In (5) inserted "sell, or otherwise dispose of" after "abandon" near the beginning, inserted "a water users'" before "association" near the beginning, inserted the second sentence requiring that before action is taken to abandon, sell, or dispose of a project which involves a water user's association, the Department receive a petition approving the abandonment, sale, or disposition, signed by stockholders representing 66 $\frac{2}{3}$ % or more of the issued and outstanding association stock, substituted "final proposal of abandonment, sale, or other disposal" for "notice of abandonment" in the last sentence, and inserted "sold, or otherwise disposed of" after "abandoned" in the last sentence.

CHAPTER 7 IRRIGATION DISTRICTS

Chapter Case Notes

No Negligence by Irrigation District for Failure to Warn of Unforeseeable Flood: Plaintiffs' property was damaged by an unprecedented flood caused by an ice jam on the Clark Fork River. Plaintiffs alleged that the local irrigation district was liable for breaching its duty to construct and maintain an irrigation system that would protect the property and for failing to warn of the flooding conditions to allow plaintiffs the opportunity to protect their property. The District Court held that the irrigation district had no duty to prevent the flood or to warn of the impending natural disaster, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The first element that plaintiffs must establish in a negligence action is the existence of a duty of care, and the measure of a duty of care owed is the scope of the risk that the negligent conduct foreseeably entails. Thus, the primary factor in determining whether the irrigation district owed a duty of care was whether it was foreseeable, as a matter of law, that the district's acts or omissions would pose a risk of injury to plaintiffs. Here, substantial evidence supported the conclusion that the risk that flooding would damage plaintiffs' property was unforeseeable, so the district had no duty to erect or maintain flood control structures to prevent the unforeseeable event. The district also exercised reasonable care in the maintenance of the irrigation system that was in place. Further, plaintiffs failed to advance any applicable authority that would impose upon the district a duty to warn of the unforeseeable flood because mere knowledge of the dangerous situation, of which plaintiffs themselves had become aware the night of the flood, did not impose a legal duty to warn. Gaudreau v. Clinton Irrigation District, 2001 MT 164, 306 M 121, 30 P3d 1070 (2001), following Estate of Strever v. Cline, 278 M 165, 924 P2d 666 (1996).

Irrigation Districts Special, Limited-Purpose Units of Government — Freeholder Requirement for Qualifications of Commissioners Constitutional — Reasonable Relationship Standard Applied: The freeholder requirement under 85-7-1501 does not violate the right to equal protection under the federal constitution. Montana irrigation districts are special, limited-purpose units of government whose activities have a disproportionate effect on landowners in the districts as a group. It is appropriate to depart from the usual strict scrutiny standard applied to statutes impacting on a citizen's right to vote and to analyze the freeholder requirement of 85-7-1501 under the reasonable relationship standard. Johnson v. Killingsworth, 271 M 1, 894 P2d 272, 52 St. Rep. 274 (1995).

Importance of Control of Distribution by District: The most important function of an irrigation district is the control, to the mutual advantage of all the members, of the irrigation system. Water rights remain with the private appropriator, but control lies exclusively with the district. In re Establishment & Organization of Ward Irrigation District, 216 M 315, 701 P2d 721, 42 St. Rep. 824 (1985).

Relationship Between District Rights and Nondistrict Rights: A portion of the Fosses' ranch is included in the irrigation district and a portion is not. The part of the ranch not in the district has water rights, which precede the district rights, in two creeks, which during part of the year spill into the district's system. Further, a segment of the district's ditch follows the natural channel of one of the creeks. The Fosses habitually have conveyed their nondistrict water through the ditch, and the district has delivered water to Foss land not included within the district through a district headgate. In 1979, a dispute arose over control of the headgate. The District Court ruled that the Fosses had no legal right to use of the district's distribution system. The Supreme Court reversed and remanded the case for further proceedings in accordance with its ruling that the Fosses may convey their nondistrict water rights to the district and that the district has the obligation to deliver that water. If the ditch is too small to service the district and other water rights, the Fosses should not be required to bear any burden of expansion. In re Establishment & Organization of Ward Irrigation District, 216 M 315, 701 P2d 721, 42 St. Rep. 824 (1985).

Chapter Attorney General's Opinions

Voting Procedure Based on Land Ownership Not Violative of "One Man, One Vote" Constitutional Provisions: Montana's weighting of votes according to the size of land holdings in irrigation district elections does not violate the "one man, one vote" requirement of the U.S. Constitution. In upholding the weighted voting scheme in a similar case, the U.S. Supreme Court held in Salzer Land Co. v. Tulare Lake Basin Water Storage District, 410 US 719 (1973), that where the tax burden fell unequally according to the size of the land holdings, it was not unreasonable for the votes to be weighted according to the size of the land holdings. 42 A.G. Part 1

Creation of Districts — Generally

85-7-101. Creation of irrigation districts by percentage of titleholders.

Case Notes

Inclusion of State School Lands: The Legislature has always assumed that it had authority to fix the policy as to whether state lands, as a matter of justice and equity, should be included in irrigation districts and subject to assessments, as was done by section 2401, R.C.M. 1907, section 4014, R.C.M. 1921, and Ch. 58, L. 1929. Sections 2401 and 4014, supra, were later repealed. In the instant case, section 4014, supra, could not apply to a district created in 1911 under Ch. 146, L. 1909, and in absence of specific legislation on the subject at the time plaintiff district was created, there was no authority for including state lands in the district subject to lien for assessments. Tongue River & Yellowstone River Irrigation District v. Hyslop, 109 M 190, 96 P2d 273 (1939).

Intention of Legislature: In ascertaining the intention of the Legislature in enacting a statute consisting of numerous sections all relating to the same general subject, the act must be considered in its entirety, since it was passed as a whole, not in parts or sections. Drake v. Schoregge, 85 M 94, 277 P 627 (1929).

Liberal Construction: After the organization of an irrigation district, the provisions of the act of its creation and rules of procedure should be given most liberal construction in order that the purpose of the act may be carried out. Drake v. Schoregge, 85 M 94, 277 P 627 (1929).

Attacking Regularity of District: An action by a landowner seeking to have his irrigated land excluded from an irrigation district on the ground of lack of jurisdiction in the court when the court entered its judgment creating the irrigation district, because of a failure of service of notice and a lack of written consent to the inclusion of his lands, was not a collateral attack upon the judgment of creation. Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928), distinguished in Midland Dev. Co. v. Cove Irrigation District, 102 M 479, 58 P2d 1001 (1936).

Public Corporation: An irrigation district created under this act is a public corporation exercising essential governmental functions, one of which is the right to levy taxes, organized for the government of a portion of the state and for the promotion of the public welfare. Thus, it must be deemed a subdivision of the state within the meaning of 7-4-2516 and therefore is not required to pay fees for the recordation of papers in the County Clerk and Recorder's office. Crow Creek Irrigation District v. Crittenden, 71 M 66, 227 P 63 (1924), explained in Buffalo Rapids Irrigation District v. Colleran, 85 M 466, 279 P 369 (1929).

Jurisdiction of District Court: While the irrigation district act confers certain exclusive powers upon the District Court of the county in which the business of the district is being conducted, there is nothing in the act which gives exclusive jurisdiction to that court to compel the Treasurer of that county by mandamus to pay interest due upon bonds of the district. Therefore, the court of any district or county has the power to issue the writ. State ex rel. Carroll v. District Court, 69 M 415, 222 P 444 (1924), overruled on other grounds in USF&G v. St., 136 M 148, 345 P2d 734 (1959).

Inclusion of Specially Benefited Lands: Under the district irrigation statutes, only such lands as will be specially benefited may be included within a proposed district against the will of the owner. In re Crow Creek Irrigation District, 63 M 293, 207 P 121 (1922).

Nonconsenting Owners: Since the inclusion of a tract of land of a nonconsenting owner in an irrigation district and subjection of it to its pro rata part of the burden of the expense necessarily incident to the construction of the works and the operation of the system deprives him of his property to the extent of the burden thus imposed, such deprivation can be effected only by due process of law, i.e., he must be afforded adequate opportunity to be heard. In re Crow Creek Irrigation District, 63 M 293, 207 P 121 (1922).

Character and Object of Act: For general observations upon the character and objects of the legislation embraced in this chapter, see In re Gallatin Irrigation District, 48 M 605, 140 P 92 (1914).

Constitutionality: Sections 85-7-101 through 85-7-1507, relating to the creation of irrigation districts, are not, in conferring certain alleged nonjudicial powers and duties upon the District Judge, violative of Art. IV, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const. (Art. III, sec. 1, 1972 Mont. Const.), which divides the powers of government into the legislative, executive, and judicial departments. O'Neill v. Yellowstone Irrigation District, 44 M 492, 121 P 283 (1912).

2004 Annotations to the MCA

85-7-104. Petition for organization.Case Notes

Amendment of Petition: In the hearing and determination of petitions, a wide discretion is lodged in the District Court, an abuse of which must be clearly shown before its action in dismissing a petition for insufficiency will be disturbed. In re Gallatin Irrigation District, 48 M 605, 140 P 92 (1914).

Signature by Majority of Landowners: Where a petition disclosed on its face that it was not signed by a majority of the landowners in the proposed district, an order dismissing it was proper, since it did not confer jurisdiction to create the district. In re Gallatin Irrigation District, 48 M 605, 140 P 92 (1914).

Sufficiency of Petition: Since a homestead or desert entryman does not have a taxable interest in land he holds, prior to final proof, his name cannot be counted in determining the sufficiency of a petition for the creation of an irrigation district. Further, for the purpose of determining whether a petition meets the statutory requirements, the court is authorized to take testimony if necessary. In re Gallatin Irrigation District, 48 M 605, 140 P 92 (1914).

Witness Fees and Costs of Objectors to District: The allowance of mileage and per diem to witnesses who were present and ready to testify for the objectors to the creation of an irrigation district and whose testimony would have been relevant, competent, and material was proper, though they were not subpoenaed, sworn, or examined because of the dismissal of the petition for insufficiency. In re Gallatin Irrigation District, 48 M 605, 140 P 92 (1914).

Effect of Failure to Give Bond: Failure to give the bond required by this section does not affect the jurisdiction of the court or that of the Commissioners appointed to conduct the affairs of the district, since it is merely designed as security for costs in the event the district is not organized. O'Neill v. Yellowstone Irrigation District, 44 M 492, 121 P 283 (1912).

85-7-105. Order and notice of hearing on petition.Case Notes

Notice to Nonresident: The mailing of a copy of the petition for the creation of an irrigation district and notice of hearing to a nonresident landowner is an indispensable prerequisite to vesting the court with jurisdiction to create the district. Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928), distinguished in Wood v. Kalispell, 131 M 390, 310 P2d 1058 (1957).

Sufficiency of Notice: Under this section, which provides that the Clerk of the District Court shall cause to be published at least once a week "for two successive calendar weeks" a notice of the time and place for hearing on a petition for the creation of an irrigation district, a notice published on March 31 and April 7 of a given year was a sufficient compliance with the requirement. The applicable rule is that publication for the number of times expressed in weeks, not more than 7 days apart, suffices. Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928).

Character of Notice: The only notice required to be given under this section of the contemplated creation of an irrigation district was by publication or in certain cases by mail. Therefore, the objection made by landowners on a hearing upon a petition of the District Commissioners for confirmation of a contemplated contract that they had not been served with personal notice of the creation of the district had no merit. In re Fort Shaw Irrigation District, 81 M 170, 261 P 962 (1927).

85-7-106. Hearing on petition.Case Notes

Conditions Imposed Without Final Judgment — Creation of New District Affirmed: In a proceeding to establish an irrigation district organized to assume the operation and maintenance of an irrigation project from the state and its predecessors in interest, the Supreme Court held that the District Court did not err in imposing upon the appellants conditions for the use of their water rights and in not making any final judgment with respect to the appellants, who alleged that the extent of their water rights should be affirmatively established prior to the approval of the creation of the new district. The Supreme Court held that because the extent of the appellants' rights was made subject to the future negotiation or court decree, there was no final judgment to review. The Supreme Court therefore affirmed the District Court's order approving the creation of the district and remanded the case to the District Court for any further necessary proceedings respecting the rights of the parties and interested persons. In re Petition for Irrigation District in Ravalli County, 209 M 218, 680 P2d 944, 41 St. Rep. 658 (1984).

Court to Address Issues Raised by Noncontesting Landowners: In a proceeding to establish an irrigation district organized to assume the operation and maintenance of an irrigation project from the state, the District Court did not err in considering issues presented to it by water users who did not contest the formation of the district at a hearing on the petition. While the statutes contemplate that those persons contesting the establishment of the district attend the hearing on the petition, the District Court is also required by statute to determine which lands belonging to holders of appurtenant water rights are to be included in the district and which are not and is required to address the issues raised by those landholders whether or not they attended the hearing on the petition. In re Petition for Irrigation District in Ravalli County, 209 M 218, 680 P2d 944, 41 St. Rep. 658 (1984).

Contents of Order: While the court's order should be clear as to material issues on the hearing of a petition for the creation of an irrigation district, particularly on boundaries, lands included, practicability, benefits and damages to included lands, etc., it should leave the details respecting the works to be constructed to the discretion of the district. Blaser v. Clinton Irrigation District, 100 M 459, 53 P2d 1141 (1935).

Finality of Order: An order of a court creating an irrigation district is in the nature of a judgment or decree. It stands as an absolute finality as to everything directly or impliedly determined and cannot be attacked collaterally unless the judgment roll shows it to be void. Blaser v. Clinton Irrigation District, 100 M 459, 53 P2d 1141 (1935).

Constitutionality: The sections relating to organization of irrigation districts are not invalid as depriving a nonresident of the right of removal of a suit to federal court. Tomich v. Union Trust Co., 31 F2d 515 (9th Cir. 1929).

Court to Determine Whether or Not Land Shall Be Included: Whether or not lands then under irrigation should have been included in an irrigation district subsequently organized was for determination of the court on hearing of petition for organization of district. Tomich v. Union Trust Co., 31 F2d 515 (9th Cir. 1929).

Time of Objecting to Inclusion of Land: The objection that land proposed to be included in an irrigation district should not be included must be made by the landowner at time the district is formed, since there is a hearing afforded for that purpose. Tomich v. Union Trust Co., 31 F2d 515 (9th Cir. 1929).

Taxation of Property of a Public Corporation: The property of a public corporation may not be declared exempt from taxation unless it is made exempt by virtue of express pronouncement of the Montana Constitution or legislative declaration permitted by the Constitution. Further, an irrigation district is not a "municipal corporation" within the meaning of Art. XII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const., providing that the property of municipal corporations shall be exempt from taxation, and therefore the county in which such a district was located had the power to assess and levy a tax upon lands acquired by the district by tax deed. Buffalo Rapids Irrigation District v. Collieran, 85 M 466, 279 P 369 (1929).

Effect of Failure to Appeal: The provisions of this section and section 3967, R.C.M. 1921 (since repealed), declaring, in effect, that an appeal from a judgment creating an irrigation district and from one confirming a bond issue of such a district shall be the exclusive method of attacking the validity of either, do not bar an action by which it is sought to evade the effect of such judgments on grounds recognized as sufficient to vacate an ordinary judgment—fraud and lack of jurisdiction. Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928).

Inclusion of Irrigated Lands: While under the irrigation district act the question of whether lands will or will not be benefited by means of an irrigation system in contemplation is left to the discretion of the court, under this section the inclusion of lands already irrigated from appurtenant water rights depends not upon the exercise of the court's discretion but upon the written consent of the owner. Scilley v. Red Lodge-Rosebud Irrigation District, 83 M 282, 272 P 543 (1928).

Description of Land: Where in an order establishing an irrigation district, the description of the lands included in it were sufficient under this section, the fact that the court went further and made a tabulation under various headings, such as "Gross Area", "Area Included", etc., did not render the order void. Walden v. Bitter Root Irrigation District, 68 M 281, 217 P 646 (1923).

Exchange Water Users Right to Credit Against Water-Use Charges — Terms of District Membership: In a proceeding to establish an irrigation district organized to assume the operation and maintenance of an irrigation project from the state and its predecessors in interest, the Supreme Court found that the District Court did not err in holding that the newly organized district had an obligation to provide exchange water users with water free of charge and that that obligation could be satisfied, as to each of those water users ranked 10th and above in superiority who joined the new district, by extending to them a credit against the water-use charges to be levied by the new district. The Supreme Court viewed the District Court's order as establishing terms for membership in the district for those exchange water users and further found that the District Court had the authority to set terms. Irrigation District a Governmental Entity Immune From Suit: The plaintiffs filed suit in August 1983, alleging that the irrigation district's actions had resulted in crop losses for the plaintiffs. In November 1989, the lower court allowed the defendant to amend its answer to include the defense that the irrigation district was a governmental entity immune from suit. After allowing the amendment, the lower court dismissed the suit on a summary judgment motion. The Supreme Court upheld the lower court's decision on the basis that it was within the lower court's discretion and that the plaintiffs had failed to show that they were prejudiced by the amendment. Love v. Harlem Irrigation District, 245 M 443, 802 P2d 611, 47 St. Rep. 2190 (1990), followed in Bozeman v. AIU Ins. Co., 272 M 349, 900 P2d 296, 52 St. Rep. 823 (1995). Mont. 1981), the Supreme Court held that despite Loves' claims of issues of fundamental fairness and new theories of recovery, all four elements composing the doctrine of res judicata were met. The issues having been previously decided in the 1990 Love decision, judgment for the irrigation district on the issues raised by the amended complaint was granted. *State ex rel. Case Notes

Freeholder Requirement Constitutional — Reasonable Relationship Standard Applied: A landowner within an irrigation district filed a petition seeking to have the election of an irrigation district commissioner set aside on the grounds that the elected commissioner did not own irrigable land within the district as required by this section. The District Court set aside the election, and the commissioner appealed on the grounds that the land ownership requirement violates the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. The Supreme Court affirmed and held that the freeholder requirement does not violate the right to equal protection under the federal constitution. Montana irrigation districts are special, limited-purpose units of government whose activities have a disproportionate effect on landowners in the districts as a group. It is appropriate to depart from the usual strict scrutiny standard applied to statutes impacting on a citizen's right to vote and to analyze the freeholder requirement of this section under the reasonable relationship standard. *Johnson v. Voting Procedure Based on Land Ownership Not Violative of "One Man, One Vote" Constitutional Provisions: Montana's weighting of votes according to the size of land holdings in irrigation district elections does not violate the "one man, one vote" requirement of the U.S. Constitution. In upholding the weighted voting scheme in a similar case, the U.S. Supreme Court held in Salyer Land Co. v. Tulare Lake Basin Water Storage District, 410 US 719 (1973), that where the tax burden fell unequally according to the size of the land holdings, it was not unreasonable for the votes to be weighted according to the size of the land holdings. 42 A.G. 1997 Amendment: Chapter 306 in (1) inserted "in conformance with 85-7-1803 through 85-7-1807"; inserted (2) allowing the owner of a tract of land 3 acres or smaller in size to petition for elimination of the tract from a district if the tract is in a district partially within or adjacent to a first-class city with a population of between 40,000 and 55,000 under the 1990 census and is within 5 miles of the exterior boundary of an incorporated city and is not served by any district, canal, system, facility, or other undertaking; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997, and terminates December 31, 1998.

Termination: Section 5, Ch. 306, L. 1997, provided that the 1997 amendments terminate December 31, 1998.

Case Notes

Irrigation District Has Standing to Challenge Constitutionality of Legislation Affecting Land Included in District: The Legislature enacted legislation primarily directed at the Missoula Irrigation District (MID) allowing certain landowners to opt out of MID. MID challenged Geil's petition for removal from MID on grounds that the legislation was unconstitutional. Geil argued that MID did not have standing to challenge the legislation. The Supreme Court, applying the law as it existed in 1997, held that MID did have standing because under 85-7-1846 (now terminated) and this section, only MID could object to a petition for removal and further that if certain individuals were allowed to withdraw from MID, the remaining members would be subject to pay an increased amount to maintain MID. Geil v. Missoula Irrigation District, 2002 MT 269, 312 M 320, 59 P3d 398 (2002).

Legislation Crafted to Apply Only to Missoula Irrigation District Upheld as Constitutional: The Legislature enacted legislation primarily directed at the Missoula Irrigation District (MID) allowing certain landowners to opt out of MID because they had no access to MID's water. MID challenged Geil's petition for removal from MID on grounds that the legislation was unconstitutional as a violation of equal protection because the legislation was narrowly crafted to apply only to MID. The Supreme Court noted that even a cursory glance at the legislation's history indicated that the Legislature intended for the relaxed land exclusion process to apply only to Missoula. However, the Supreme Court noted that whether the legislation applied to the whole state or only to Missoula, the objective was to offer persons not served by MID relief from assessments, and the Supreme Court held that that was a legitimate governmental objective. Geil v. Missoula Irrigation District, 2002 MT 269, 312 M 320, 59 P3d 398 (2002).

Notice to Irrigation District Constitutionally Sufficient: The Legislature enacted legislation primarily directed at the Missoula Irrigation District (MID) allowing certain landowners to opt out of MID because they had no access to MID's water. MID challenged Geil's petition for removal from MID on grounds that the legislation was unconstitutional as a violation of due process because the notice contemplated by the statute was insufficient to provide a reasonable opportunity for MID and other individual members of MID to be heard. The Supreme Court held that because an individual was required to send a copy of the petition to withdraw from MID to MID prior to filing the petition with the lower court, the requirement for an opportunity to be heard was met and a due process violation did not exist. Geil v. Missoula Irrigation District, 2002 MT 269, 312 M 320, 59 P3d 398 (2002).

Constitutionality: This section, prescribing the procedure for the extension of an irrigation district already created, when the act is viewed as a whole and liberally construed as provided in section 85-1-103, is not open to the objection that it operates to deprive the nonconsenting landowner of his property without due process of law, in that while providing for a hearing, it makes no provision for granting relief to him. Case Notes

Collateral Attack: Where plaintiff had not appealed from an order establishing an irrigation district, his action to enjoin a sale of its bonds on the ground that the order was void for failure to give accurate descriptions of the lands included in it was in the nature of a collateral attack maintainable only if the invalidity of the order on that ground appeared from its face. Walden v. Bitter Root Irrigation District, 68 M 281, 217 P 646 (1923).

Appeal From Part of Judgment:

An exception to the general rule that an appeal does not lie from a part of the judgment is that class of cases where an issue distinct, entire, and complete is formed between some of the parties to an action and upon which issue a final judgment is given affecting only the interests and rights of the parties to that issue. In re Bitter Root Irrigation District, 67 M 436, 218 P 945 (1923), explained in Wills v. Morris, 100 M 504, 50 P2d 858 (1935).

In a proceeding, special in its nature, for the extension of an irrigation district, in which an objecting landowner appeared and protested against the inclusion of his lands in the proposed extension and their exclusion was ordered, the appeal of petitioners from the order of exclusion was not subject to dismissal as from a portion of the judgment only, the issue between the protestant and the petitioners having been from the whole judgment so far as protestant and petitioners were concerned. In re Bitter Root Irrigation District, 67 M 436, 218 P 945 (1923), explained in Wills v. Morris, 100 M 504, 50 P2d 858 (1935).

Operation of Districts

Part Case Notes

Lack of NPDES Permits — Motion by Irrigation Districts to Intervene as of Right Properly Denied: In 1987, Congress added section 518(e) to the Clean Water Act, which authorized the Environmental Protection Agency to permit Indian tribes to be "treated as a state" (TAS) for purposes of promulgating water quality standards. The Flathead Joint Board of Control, two irrigation districts, and four individual irrigators who owned fee land on the reservation sought to intervene as of right, contending that the imposition of tribal water quality standards would violate their civil rights by subjecting them to tribal jurisdiction and would depress the value of their property. Because the intervenors held no National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits, they could not be subject to NPDES enforcement proceedings. TAS status does not confer enforcement authority on the tribes; it only allows the tribes to set the standards. Even if the tribes sought enforcement authority, NPDES permits would still be issued by the federal government and enforced in federal, not tribal, courts. Further, a speculative and purely economic interest did not create a protectable interest in litigation concerning a statute that regulates environmental rather than economic interests. Because the transfer of the right to establish water quality standards from the state to the tribes would have no immediate or foreseeable, demonstrable effect on the proposed intervenors, the application to intervene as of right was properly denied. Mont. v. U.S. Env'tl. Protection Agency, 137 F3d 1135 (9th Cir. 1998), certiorari denied, 142 L Ed 2d 227, 119 S Ct 275 (1998).

Acquisition of Rights to Use Water: Since an irrigation district is not a "subdivision" of the state within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const., providing that neither county, city, town, municipality, "nor other subdivision of the state" shall become a shareholder in or a joint owner with a company or corporation, its Board of Commissioners may acquire shares in a reservoir company or purchase rights to the use of water, as authorized by this section. Thaanum v. Bynum Irrigation District, 72 M 221, 232 P 528 (1925).

Tax Levies: The taxes which an irrigation district is authorized to levy upon the lands included in the district for the purpose of paying for property acquired are in the nature of special assessments as distinguished from general taxes, and by the expenditure of money authorized by this section, it obtains an equivalent in the value of the property purchased, hence does not come within the prohibition of Art. XIII, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const. Thaanum v. Bynum Irrigation District, 72 M 221, 232 P 528 (1925).

Case Notes

Punitive Damages for Intentional Denial of Water: This section's provision that “the board of commissioners shall apportion the water for irrigation among the lands in the district in a just and equitable manner” sets out a statutory duty that was clearly violated when defendant irrigation district, through two individual (defendant) employees of the district, failed to provide water to plaintiffs. The failure was arguably intentional and therefore unjustifiable. Therefore, it was impliedly malicious and thus constituted justification for punitive damages. Dvorak v. Huntley Project Irrigation District, 196 M 167, 639 P2d 62, 38 St. Rep. 2176 (1981).

Sovereign Immunity Denied: Irrigation district, a state government entity, was subject to punitive damages in tort action where action arose in and was limited to summer of 1974. The 1972 Montana Constitution provided that the state, counties, cities, towns, and all other local governmental entities have no immunity from suit for injury to person or property except as may be specifically provided by law by a two-thirds vote of each house of the Legislature, and the Legislature did not provide immunity for certain governmental entities until 1977 when it enacted 2-9-104 (now repealed) and 2-9-105, which cannot be retroactively applied. Dvorak v. Huntley Project Irrigation District, 196 M 167, 639 P2d 62, 38 St. Rep. 2176 (1981).

Injunction to Prevent Diversion Outside District: In a proceeding to enjoin water users in an irrigation district from interfering with the right of a like user, a plaintiff, to convey water from the district to lands owned by him outside the district, where plaintiff in so diverting water was injuring owners within the district and depriving them of water in which they had a vested right, the court correctly enjoined him, without passing on his right of assignment because none of his land in the district was unirrigated and there was nothing for him to assign within the meaning of this section. Koch v. Colvin, 110 M 594, 105 P2d 334 (1940).

Case Notes

Historic Recognition of Right to Exchange or Substitute Water Upheld: In a proceeding to establish an irrigation district organized to assume the operation and maintenance of an irrigation project from the State and its predecessors in interest, the Supreme Court found that the District Court did not err in holding that the newly organized district had an obligation to provide certain landowners with water from the Bitterroot River free of charge in exchange for water from Skalkaho Creek. The District Court found that the State and its predecessors in interest had for 81 years recognized the right of each of those exchange users to the other water. Thus, the Supreme Court found the existence of an obligation to provide exchange waters and further found that the applicable statutes contemplated exactly what the District Court had ordered. In re Petition for Irrigation District in Ravalli County, 209 M 218, 680 P2d 944, 41 St. Rep. 658 (1984).

Case Notes

No Negligence by Irrigation District for Failure to Warn of Unforeseeable Flood: Plaintiffs' property was damaged by an unprecedented flood caused by an ice jam on the Clark Fork River. Plaintiffs alleged that the local irrigation district was liable for breaching its duty to construct and maintain an irrigation system that would protect the property and for failing to warn of the flooding conditions to allow plaintiffs the opportunity to protect their property. The District Court held that the irrigation district had no duty to prevent the flood or to warn of the impending natural disaster, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The first element that plaintiffs must establish in a negligence action is the existence of a duty of care, and the measure of a duty of care owed is the scope of the risk that the negligent conduct foreseeably entails. Thus, the primary factor in determining whether the irrigation district owed a duty of care was whether it was foreseeable, as a matter of law, that the district's acts or omissions would pose a risk of injury to plaintiffs. Here, substantial evidence supported the conclusion that the risk that flooding would damage plaintiffs' property was unforeseeable, so the district had no duty to erect or maintain flood control structures to prevent the unforeseeable event. The district also exercised reasonable care in the maintenance of the irrigation system that was in place. Further, plaintiffs failed to advance any applicable authority that would impose upon the district a duty to warn of the unforeseeable flood because mere knowledge of the dangerous situation, of which plaintiffs themselves had become aware the night of the flood, did not impose a legal duty to warn. Gaudreau v. Clinton Irrigation District, 2001 MT 164, 306 M 121, 30 P3d 1070 (2001), following Estate of Strever v. Cline, 278 M 165, 924 P2d 666 (1996).

Importance of Control of Distribution by District: The most important function of an irrigation district is the control, to the mutual advantage of all the members, of the irrigation system. Water rights remain with the private appropriator, but control lies exclusively with the district. In re Establishment & Organization of Ward Irrigation District, 216 M 315, 701 P2d 721, 42 St. Rep. 824 (1985).

Purpose of Section: This section does two things: first, it gives an irrigation district the exclusive right to regulate and control its distribution system; and second, it prohibits a district from controlling its distribution system in a manner that detrimentally affects water rights over which the district has no control. In re Establishment & Organization of Ward Irrigation District, 216 M 315, 701 P2d 721, 42 St. Rep. 824 (1985).

Relationship Between District Rights and Nondistrict Rights: A portion of the Fosses' ranch is included in the irrigation district and a portion is not. The part of the ranch not in the district has water rights, which precede the district rights, in two creeks, which during part of the year spill into the district's system. Further, a segment of the district's ditch follows the natural channel of one of the creeks. The Fosses habitually have conveyed their nondistrict water through the ditch, and the district has delivered water to Foss land not included within the district through a district headgate. In 1979, a dispute arose over control of the headgate. The District Court ruled that the Fosses had no legal right to use of the district's distribution system. The Supreme Court reversed and remanded the case for further proceedings in accordance with its ruling that the Fosses may convey their nondistrict water rights to the district and that the district has the obligation to deliver that water. If the ditch is too small to service the district and other water rights, the Fosses should not be required to bear any burden of expansion. In re

Amendment effective April 4, 1989.

1987 Amendment: Inserted (4) providing exemption from debt limitation for state or federal bonds for project authorized by Legislature.

1981 Amendment: Increased 15% to 18.75% in (1) and (2)(b); and increased 10% to 12.5% in (2)(b).

Validation: Section 64, Ch. 614, L. 1981, provided: “Notwithstanding any provisions of this act, any outstanding indebtedness or bond issue on January 1, 1982, of any governmental subdivision is not invalidated because of any changes in the taxable valuation of the subdivision due to removal of automobiles and trucks having a rated capacity of three-quarters of a ton or less from the tax base.”

Effect of 1981 Amendment: The primary purpose of Ch. 614, L. 1981, was to replace the system of taxation of automobiles and light trucks with a fee system. With the adoption of the fee system, automobiles and light trucks are no longer taxable property. The resulting loss of taxable valuation has a direct effect on the amount of indebtedness a political subdivision can incur. Thus it was necessary in Ch. 614 to increase the percentage of taxable valuation used as a limitation on indebtedness to offset the loss of taxable valuation attributable to automobiles and light trucks.

Case Notes

Federal Court Required to Follow Montana Supreme Court Decisions: The federal courts, in determining whether bonds issued by Montana irrigation district were general obligations of the district, were required to follow decisions of the Supreme Court of Montana holding that such bonds, issued pursuant to Montana statutes, were not general obligations of irrigation district but merely a charge against land within the district. *Toole County Irrigation District v. Subsequent Agreement Void as to Making Bonds General Obligations of District: Recovery could not be had against district in action on irrigation district bonds on ground that bonds, even if not general obligations of district when issued, had become so by reason of a subsequent agreement, where action was not based on the agreement and agreement, insofar as it purported to make the bonds general obligations of district, was void. Toole County Irrigation District v. Fort Belknap Irrigation District, 197 F. Supp. 812 (D.C. Mont. 1961).

2004 Annotations to the MCA

Effect of Federal Court's Application of Montana Decisions: The federal courts, in determining whether bonds issued by Montana irrigation district constituted general obligations of district, were required to give effect to decisions of Montana Supreme Court holding that bonds, which had been issued prior to decisions, were not general obligations of district as against contention that such action would amount to giving the decisions a "retroactive" effect. Such application did not constitute an "impairment of obligation of contract", since the court's decision was merely that the obligation allegedly impaired did not exist, notwithstanding that those decisions were in conflict with earlier decisions of the Montana court. Toole County Irrigation District v. Moody, 125 F2d 498 (9th Cir. 1942).

Extent of Liability: Bonds issued by an irrigation district are not a general obligation of the district but are a charge against the lands within the district. State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930), overruling Cosman v. Chestnut Valley Irrigation District, 74 M 111, 238 P 879, 40 ALR 1344 (1925).

Remedy for Enforcement: While the law under which public bonds are issued becomes as much a part of the contract with the bondholders as though incorporated in the bonds, the Legislature may by subsequent statutes change the remedy given them to enforce payment, provided the new remedy is as efficacious as the one afforded under the original act. Otherwise the obligations of the contract would be impaired contrary to the provisions of Art. I, sec. 10, U.S. Const. State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930).

Refunding Bonds: In June 1929, proceedings for the refunding of irrigation district bonds were held under section 7210, R.C.M. 1921, as amended by Ch. 157, L. 1923, providing for the authorization of such bonds in the mode prescribed by section 7226, R.C.M. 1921, as amended by the same chapter. Section 7210, R.C.M. 1921, was amended by Ch. 185, L. 1929, which did not become effective until July 1, 1929. Since section 7226, R.C.M. 1921, was repealed by Ch. 155, L. 1929, and was not in effect when the bonds were authorized, the repeal of section 7226, incorporated by reference in section 7210, did not affect the latter section and the injunction was properly denied in an action to enjoin issuance of bonds. Gustafson v. Hammond Irrigation District, 87 M 217, 287 P 640 (1930).

Effect of Final Judgment: Upon its creation an irrigation district becomes absolute as an entity and has the power of issuing bonds against the lands embraced in its confines for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act under which it was created, and if the Board of Commissioners orders bonds issued and no appeal is taken from the judgment of the District Court confirming and ratifying the proceedings of the Board, the judgment cannot thereafter be called in question in the absence of allegation and proof of fraud. Drake v. Schoregge, 85 M 94, 277 P 627 (1929).

Collection of Delinquent Assessments: In the collection of tax or assessment levied by an irrigation district for the payment of the interest on bonds issued by it, the County Treasurer is not authorized to seize and sell personal property of a delinquent owner of lands within the district but must proceed in the manner prescribed by Ch. 173, part III, R.C.M. 1921, as amended by Ch. 96, L. 1923 (15-16-101, et seq.), for the collection of state and county taxes made a lien upon real property. State ex rel. Spokane & E. Trust Co. v. Nicholson, 74 M 346, 240 P 837 (1925).

Amendment effective April 4, 1989.

85-7-2016. Confirmation by district court.

Case Notes

Effect of Confirmation:

In an action to have a contract of sale of lands included in an irrigation district which had issued bonds reformed and liens against the lands arising from the bond issues canceled, on the ground of fraud in the creation of the district, where most of the bonds had been issued before plaintiffs made the purchase and no appeal had been taken from the judgment of the District Court confirming their validity, their legality cannot, under this section, be called in question thereafter, the bonds then constituting a lien upon all the lands in the district. Krueger v. Morris, 110 M 559, 107 P2d 142 (1940).

Under 85-7-2012 through 85-7-2018, a decree confirming bond proceedings, from which no appeal was taken, could not be set aside in an independent equitable action on the ground that the court exceeded its power in deciding that the tax levy was authorized by 85-7-2012 through 85-7-2015. Midland Dev. Co. v. Cove Irrigation District, 102 M 479, 58 P2d 1001 (1936).

Upon its creation an irrigation district becomes absolute as an entity and has the power of issuing bonds against the lands embraced in its confines for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act under which created, and if the Board of Commissioners orders bonds issued and no appeal is taken from the judgment of the District Court confirming and ratifying the proceedings of the Board, the judgment cannot thereafter be called in question in the absence of allegation and proof of fraud. Drake v. Schoregge, 85 M 94, 277 P 627 (1929).

In the absence of fraud in the proceedings, the order of the District Court establishing the district and that directing the issuance of bonds are, unless appeals are taken from the orders within the prescribed time, res judicata and constitute an estoppel against thereafter litigating the validity of district bonds. O'Neill v. Yellowstone Irrigation District, 44 M 492, 121 P 283 (1912).

Appearance by Objectors: In a proceeding by the Commissioners of an irrigation district to secure confirmation of a contemplated contract with the United States to take over irrigation works constructed by the federal government and to raise the necessary funds by assessments upon the irrigable lands in the district, verified objections of objecting owners, which in effect were answers by way of confession and avoidance, were properly treated as answers. In re Fort Shaw Irrigation District, 81 M 170, 261 P 962 (1927).

Case Notes

Effect of Failure to Appeal: Landowners and mortgagees of land in district, who did not appeal from order and decree ratifying, approving, and confirming issuance of bonds for irrigation district under 85-7-2012 through 85-7-2018, could not question a decree in a suit to enjoin payment of bonds and collection of taxes for payment thereof. Tomich v. Union Trust Co., 31 F2d 515 (9th Cir. 1929).

Effect of Failure to Object or Contest: Landowner, whose land was described in a petition for organization of irrigation district under 85-7-104 through 85-7-109, 85-7-1501, 85-7-1502, and 85-7-1504(2), and for issuance of bonds under 85-7-2012 through 85-7-2018, and who had notice of proceedings but did not appear at hearing and object to inclusion of his land, could not question court's conclusion collaterally in a suit to enjoin collection or payment of bonds issued and to enjoin collection of taxes for payment. Tomich v. Union Trust Co., 31 F2d 515 (9th Cir. 1929).

Questions Considered on Appeal: In a proceeding for the confirmation of a resolution passed by the Commissioners of an irrigation district for the execution of a contract with the United States to take over federal irrigation works, instituted pursuant to the provisions of this section, the question whether nonirrigable lands were subject to the contemplated tax levy was not one presented for determination and may not be considered on appeal, it being presumed that when the levy is made only irrigable lands will be included within the assessment. In re Fort Shaw Irrigation District, 81 M 170, 261 P 962 (1927).

Pleading: Plaintiff's allegations that there existed an encumbrance on land within an irrigation district by virtue of a bond issue and that such issue had been regularly made, levied, and issued were mere legal conclusions. To show the validity of the bond issue, proper pleading required a showing that the District Court had made an order of confirmation, which, if made, may be alleged as "having been duly given and made", under section 93-3806, R.C.M. 1947 (since repealed). *Clark v. Straight Maturity Bonds to Share Pro Rata in Funds Available for Payment: Straight maturity bonds were issued by an irrigation district under section 7212, R.C.M. 1921, prior to amendment by Ch. 157, L. 1923. The fund from which they were payable was insufficient to make payment in full and could not be replenished by assessment. The money remaining in the fund was held properly distributed pro rata among the outstanding bonds, without regard to their numbering, since they were not to mature serially and neither Ch. 157, L. 1923, nor Ch. 155, L. 1929, indicates legislative intent that the bonds as issued did not rank equally in order of payment. Case Notes

Statutory Provision Part of Bondholders' Contract: The provision of section 7229, R.C.M. 1921 (now repealed), in force in 1919 when district organized, that issued bonds and any assessment made for payment thereon should be a lien upon the lands in the district against which levied, became a part of the bondholders' contract with the district, the same as though it had been incorporated in the bonds. Toole County Irrigation District v. St., 104 M 420, 67 P2d 989 (1937).

Encumbrance: This section, making bonds issued by an irrigation district a lien upon all the lands in the district, created a lien which constituted an encumbrance against them, within the meaning of the term "encumbrance" as used in 15-18-403 (now repealed), providing that a tax deed conveys to the grantee absolute title "free of all encumbrances". State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930), explained in U.S. v. Christensen, 218 F. Supp. 722 (D.C. Mont. 1963).

Extinguishment of Lien:

Under this section the lien of irrigation district bonds against the lands in the district for delinquent taxes is extinguished by the tax deed issued to the county. State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930), explained in U.S. v. Christensen, 218 F. Supp. 722 (D.C. Mont. 1963).

Where lands in an irrigation district were sold for delinquent taxes and tax deed was issued to the county, the purchaser from the county took title free of the lien of the bonds. Delinquent assessments for the payment of the bonds and interest may not be included in future assessments made against other lands in the district. The lands sold, however, remain liable to assessments for maintenance and repairs. State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930), explained in U.S. v. Christensen, 218 F. Supp. 722 (D.C. Mont. 1963).

Charge Against Lands: Bonds issued by an irrigation district are not a general obligation of the district but are a charge against the lands within the district. State ex rel. Malott v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 89 M 37, 296 P 1 (1930), overruling Cosman v. Chestnut Valley Irrigation District, 74 M 111, 238 P 279 (1925).

85-7-2022. Sale of bonds.

Case Notes

Unearned Interest: Transfer of bonds of irrigation district, in which interest coupons remained on bond, not canceled, and unearned portion of them was repaid to district by transferee, was proper procedure under this section, requiring that irrigation district bonds should never be sold at less than 90% of value "and accrued interest thereon to date of delivery". Am. Sur. Co. of New York v. Cove Irrigation District, 24 F2d 18 (9th Cir. 1928).

Amortization Bonds: Chapter 38, L. 1923 (now repealed), providing that the state, municipal corporations, or districts in issuing bonds shall give preference to amortization bonds and accept serial bonds only when the former cannot be negotiated to good advantage, is inapplicable to the issuance of irrigation district bonds, and the provisions of the irrigation law dealing with the subject specially are controlling. Walden v. Bitter Root Irrigation District, 68 M 281, 217 P 646 (1923).

Case Notes

Historic Recognition of Right to Exchange or Substitute Water Upheld: In a proceeding to establish an irrigation district organized to assume the operation and maintenance of an irrigation project from the State and its predecessors in interest, the Supreme Court found that the District Court did not err in holding that the newly organized district had an obligation to provide certain landowners with water from the Bitterroot River free of charge in exchange for water from Skalkaho Creek. The District Court found that the State and its predecessors in interest had for 81 years recognized the right of each of those exchange users to the other water. Thus, the Supreme Court found the existence of an obligation to provide exchange waters and further found that the applicable statutes contemplated exactly what the District Court had ordered. Case Notes

Amount of Levy: The limitation on the amount of the levy set out in subsection (2) refers only to administrative expenses and the cost of maintenance and repairs incurred by the district, and it does not limit the amount that may be levied to reimburse the United States for maintenance necessarily undertaken by it pursuant to the original contract. U.S. v. Fort Belknap Irrigation District, 197 F. Supp. 812 (D.C. Mont. 1961).

Authority to Tax: The provision made by this section for the raising of revenue for the maintenance and operation of irrigation districts is sufficiently broad to enable them to meet exactions of the taxing power of the state. Buffalo Rapids Irrigation District v. Colleran, 85 M 466, 279 P 369 (1929).

Apportionment of Assessments: The apportionment of assessments for administrative expenses, maintenance, repairs, etc., of an irrigation district on the basis of the irrigable area in each tract of land of 40 acres or less, prescribed by this section, is neither unreasonable nor arbitrary in view of the fact that that method has had the benefit of long experience in other states and the consensus of opinion is that no fairer method has been devised. Walden v. Bitter Root Irrigation District, 68 M 281, 217 P 646 (1923).

Ordinary Running Expenses: Ordinary overhead or running expenses of a district are to be met by an annual levy of taxes. In re Gallatin Irrigation District, 48 M 605, 140 P 92 (1914).

Attorney General's Opinions

Board of Commissioners — Authority to Directly Assess Irrigation Tax or Receive Direct Payment Prohibited: The Board of Commissioners of an irrigation district may not, even with the consent of all water users within the district, bypass the annual tax levy procedure in 85-7-2104 and directly assess the water users' lands for amounts otherwise subject to levy under such provision. The County Treasurer may issue receipts of payment for amounts levied under 85-7-2104 but remitted directly to the Board of Commissioners of an irrigation district upon appropriate certification by the district of such payments. However, the practice of direct payments to the Commissioners must terminate, and all unexpended money so received must be remitted to the County Treasurer for deposit and supervision. 42 A.G. County Debtor of District: When funds of an irrigation district are deposited with the County Treasurer they become county funds for which the district has a credit on the books of the Treasurer, i.e., the relation of debtor and creditor is created between the county and the district. *State ex rel. Power to Levy Taxes:

Authority to issue irrigation bonds implies an authority to levy a tax to pay them. Judith Basin Irrigation District v. Malott, 73 F2d 142, 97 ALR 504 (9th Cir. 1934).

An irrigation district organized under the laws of this state exercises some governmental functions; for example, it may levy taxes (this section), which is the exercise of one of the highest prerogatives of sovereignty. Crow Creek Irrigation District v. Crittenden, 71 M 66, 227 P 63 (1924).

Distribution Pro Rata When Funds Insufficient — When Interest Should Be Retired First: Where the bonds issued by an irrigation district were straight maturity and not serial bonds and the fund out of which they were payable was insufficient to make full payment of them all and could not be replenished by further assessments, the money remaining was properly distributed pro rata, irrespective of the fact that other holders had been paid in full. Final Judgment: Under 25-1-111 (since repealed), providing that the final determination of the rights of a party to a special proceeding is a judgment, an order of the District Court directing the exclusion of the lands of a protestant from a proposed extension of an irrigation district is a final judgment. In re Bitter Root Irrigation District, 67 M 436, 218 P 945 (1923), distinguished in In re Fort Shaw Irrigation District, 81 M 170, 261 P 962 (1927), and *State ex rel. Bole v. 85-7-2212. Irrigation ditches — nonliabilities.Case Notes

Both Parties Equally Liable for Landslide Damage Caused by Ditch Seepage: The hillside near parallel irrigation ditches owned by plaintiff and defendant gave way, causing damages. Each party blamed the other for engaging in activity that caused the landslide, presenting extensive exhibits and expert testimony. After a 4-day hearing, the District Court concluded that the activities of both parties jointly caused the landslide and that both parties were equally liable for the costs of the damages. After reviewing the voluminous transcript, the Supreme Court deferred to the discretion of the District Court in determining the weight of the evidence and credibility of the witnesses regarding the two credible though contradictory reports and declined to set aside the judgment. Graveley Simmental Ranch Co. v. Quigley, 2003 MT 34, 314 M 226, 65 P3d 225 (2003).

Permanent Injunction Inappropriate Limitation of Lawful Irrigation Practices: The Wellses built a home on property adjacent to land that had been flood irrigated by the Youngs for generations. Between 1994 and 1998, the Youngs' land was irrigated three times, and on each occasion, the Wellses experienced flooding in the crawl space of their home. The Wellses sought damages in excess of $80,000 based on tort theories of negligence, nuisance, and trespass. The District Court reasoned that because the irrigation practices predated the construction of the Wellses' home, they could not recover damages or recover on their trespass claim under this section. The court also concluded that the nuisance claim was barred by 27-30-101. The court held that the Youngs breached the general obligation imposed by 28-1-201 because their irrigation practices caused immediate, irreparable, and substantial harm to the Wellses' home, but the negligence claim was disposed of because the Wellses failed to establish that the irrigation practiced breached the standard of care of a reasonable farm irrigator engaged in flood irrigation. Nevertheless, the District Court permanently enjoined the Youngs from irrigating their property because future irrigation without modification of the head ditch would result in an unreasonable and substantial risk of continuing harm and irreparable injury to the Wellses' property. The Youngs moved to vacate the injunction based on the determination that their irrigation practices were lawful, but the motion was denied, so the Youngs appealed. The Supreme Court examined the record for abuse of discretion, noting that a District Court must find a breach of an obligation by the party sought to be enjoined before imposing a permanent injunction. The District Court's general finding that the Youngs breached the duty imposed under 28-1-201 conflicted with the specific findings that the Youngs did not trespass or create a nuisance and conformed to the applicable standard of care. Absent a specific breach of obligation, the District Court abused its discretion in issuing a permanent injunction enjoining the Youngs from engaging in lawful flood irrigation practices. Wells v. Young, 2002 MT 102, 309 M 419, 47 P3d 809 (2002), distinguishing Madison Fork Ranch v. L&B Lodge Pole Timber Prod., 189 M 292, 615 P2d 900 (1980).

No Negligence by Irrigation District for Failure to Warn of Unforeseeable Flood: Plaintiffs' property was damaged by an unprecedented flood caused by an ice jam on the Clark Fork River. Plaintiffs alleged that the local irrigation district was liable for breaching its duty to construct and maintain an irrigation system that would protect the property and for failing to warn of the flooding conditions to allow plaintiffs the opportunity to protect their property. The District Court held that the irrigation district had no duty to prevent the flood or to warn of the impending natural disaster, and the Supreme Court affirmed. The first element that plaintiffs must establish in a negligence action is the existence of a duty of care, and the measure of a duty of care owed is the scope of the risk that the negligent conduct foreseeably entails. Thus, the primary factor in determining whether the irrigation district owed a duty of care was whether it was foreseeable, as a matter of law, that the district's acts or omissions would pose a risk of injury to plaintiffs. Here, substantial evidence supported the conclusion that the risk that flooding would damage plaintiffs' property was unforeseeable, so the district had no duty to erect or maintain flood control structures to prevent the unforeseeable event. The district also exercised reasonable care in the maintenance of the irrigation system that was in place. Further, plaintiffs failed to advance any applicable authority that would impose upon the district a duty to warn of the unforeseeable flood because mere knowledge of the dangerous situation, of which plaintiffs themselves had become aware the night of the flood, did not impose a legal duty to warn. Gaudreau v. Clinton Irrigation District, 2001 MT 164, 306 M 121, 30 P3d 1070 (2001), following Estate of Strever v. Cline, 278 M 165, 924 P2d 666 (1996).

Failure to Allege Error — Denial of New Trial: Plaintiffs appealed from directed verdict and order by the District Court denying a new trial, claiming that the court erred in determining that plaintiffs had failed to establish a prima facie case against defendants for the overflow of a drainage ditch near plaintiffs' residence. The Supreme Court affirmed the lower court decision, holding that because subsection (2) of this section is an independent, sufficient, and clearly articulated ground for granting defendants' direct verdict motion, plaintiffs' failure to allege error under the subsection constituted a waiver of plaintiffs' claim. Schaubel v. Iversen, 257 M 164, 848 P2d 489, 50 St. Rep. 213 (1993).

No Liability for Damage From Irrigation Ditch Seepage: Home owners appealed a District Court order granting the irrigation ditch owners summary judgment, alleging that the ditch owners negligently diverted water through the ditch, resulting in ground saturation and subsequent flood damage to the home owner's property. Although the home owners asserted that no seepage occurred before the ditch owners overused the ditch, the undisputed facts established that the damage occurred either because of weather conditions or from the same kind of seepage from the ditch that had existed for at least 53 years before the home owners arrived or obtained an interest in the land. Alexander v. McCauley, 250 M 216, 819 P2d 176, 48 St. Rep. 798 (1991).

Case Notes

County Subject to Assessment for Benefits: A drainage district created in 1921 under the provisions of 85-8-101, et seq., could recover assessments made against the county for benefits accruing to its highways from its system, since the act, as it existed prior to amendment by Ch. 169, L. 1929 (85-8-307, 85-8-341, 85-8-350, and 85-8-351), was broad enough to authorize such assessments, as against contention that the county could not be held for costs unless it owned lands in the district. State ex rel. Valley Center Drain District v. Bd. of County Comm'rs, 100 M 581, 51 P2d 635 (1935), explained in Burke v. Sullivan, 127 M 374, 265 P2d 203 (1954).

It is the intent of the legislature that the department adopt rules relating to the classification of dams and reservoirs to determine whether dams and reservoirs are to be classified as high-hazard under the bill; rules governing the content, form, and procedure for applications for dam and reservoir classification and permits to be issued under the bill; rules governing criteria to be used by the owners of dams and reservoirs when conducting inspections of the high-hazard dams and reservoirs and submitting reports to the department; rules establishing safety standards for the design, construction, operation, and maintenance of high-hazard dams and reservoirs; rules establishing emergency preparedness and warning procedures to be implemented by owners of high-hazard dams and reservoirs in cases of danger to people or property; and other rules as may be necessary for the department to implement the bill."

Case Notes

Common-Law Negligence: An instruction in the precise language of this section should not be given where the plaintiff is suing on the theory of common-law negligence. Richland County v. Anderson, 129 M 559, 291 P2d 267 (1955).

Measurement of Water in Reservoir: Devices for measuring the water in a storage reservoir should be such that at a glance anyone may tell the exact number of acre-feet therein at any time, thus obviating the necessity of calling in engineers or others to measure it. The details of operation present a practical or engineering problem rather than a judicial one, and therefore should properly be left to the parties interested. If the court's intervention or assistance is required in that behalf, a motion for modification of the decree should suffice. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

Rights of Person Reservoiring Water: Briefly stated, the rights of a person to reservoir water are as follows: He may, in any one year, store for use in that or succeeding years what he has a right to use and also any additional amounts which others would not have the right to use and which otherwise would go to waste. The appropriation and use of water, as well as the sites for reservoirs for collecting it, constitute a public use under Art. III, sec. 15, 1889 Mont. Const. (Art. IX, sec. 3, 1972 Mont. Const.), since it is in the interest of the public that water be conserved rather than wasted, so that arid lands may be made productive. Fed. Land Bank v. Morris, 112 M 445, 116 P2d 1007 (1941).

Storage of Flood Water: Under Title 85, ch. 15, et seq., reservoirs may be constructed for the purpose of storing flood water, in the course or at the headwaters of an adjudicated stream, provided their construction does not interfere with the use by prior appropriators of the natural flow in the stream to the extent of their appropriations. Donich v. Johnson, 77 M 229, 250 P 963 (1926).

If, upon the examination, the department finds that the dam, dike, or reservoir is unsafe or is diverting or is being filled with water to such an extent as to render it unsafe, it shall notify the county attorney of the county in which the dam, dike, or reservoir is located, setting forth its findings, and the county attorney shall immediately take the necessary steps to abate the danger and make the structure safe.

(3) If either party is dissatisfied with the findings of the department, it may appeal to the district court of the district wherein the dam, dike, or reservoir is located, and the court shall hear and determine the matter at the earliest practical time, subject to the right of either party to appeal as in other civil cases; however, the judgment of the department shall control until the final determination of the case."

Part 1 Yellowstone River Compact

Part Case Notes

Commerce Clause Immunity: The Yellowstone River Compact was approved by Congress. Because it was approved by Congress, it is federal, not state, law for purposes of Commerce Clause objections. Therefore, the Compact cannot by definition be a state law impermissibly interfering with commerce but is instead a federal law, immune from attack. Intake Water Co. v. Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Compact Applies to All Waters of Yellowstone River Basin: A diversion of water from the Yellowstone River at a point on the river that is not specifically apportioned by Article V of the Yellowstone River Compact is subject to the terms of the Compact because the proposed diversion is within the Yellowstone River Basin and is on the Yellowstone River system. Intake Water Co. v. Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Compact Not in Violation of Equal Protection: In a suit for declaratory and injunctive relief, Intake Water Company challenged the Yellowstone River Compact, claiming that it was a violation of equal protection under the Fourteenth Amendment for the Compact to restrict interbasin transfer of Yellowstone River water, while other water appropriations from other river basins in Montana do not require consent of all the signatory states to the compact. A three-judge panel (required under 28 U.S.C. §2281 repealed by Act of August 12, 1976, 90 Stat. 1119) upheld the Compact, ruling: (1) it is well settled that the Fourteenth Amendment does not prohibit legislation that operates on a limited geographical area within a state; (2) differing conditions in different geographic areas may provide a reasonable basis for different legislative treatment; and (3) Intake cannot meet its required heavy burden to show that the Compact is not rationally related to a legitimate government purpose. Intake Water Co. v. Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Jurisdiction of Federal and State Courts Concurrent: Where the defendant private corporation appropriating water from the Yellowstone River in Wyoming for use in Montana brought an action in state court in Montana to compel certain actions of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation under the Yellowstone River Compact and the plaintiff subsequently brought an action in the federal District Court in Montana under 28 U.S.C. §§1331(2) and 2201 to declare the rights of the parties under the Yellowstone River Compact, both the state courts of Wyoming and Montana had subject matter jurisdiction to construe the terms of the Compact and enforce its provisions. Utah Int'l, Inc. v. Intake Water Co., 484 F. Supp. 36, 36 St. Rep. 2270 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Jurisdiction of Federal Court — Abstention in Favor of State Court Proceedings: Where the defendant private corporation had instituted an action in state District Court to compel certain actions of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation under the Yellowstone River Compact and the plaintiff water company subsequently brought an action in federal District Court under 28 U.S.C. §§1331(2) and 2201 to declare the rights of the parties to waters appropriated by each under the Compact, the assumption of jurisdiction of the federal court was discretionary and the court should, in accordance with the principles of abstention announced in Colorado River Water Conservation District v. U.S., 424 US 800 (1976), abstain from exercising its jurisdiction, as there were significant questions of state policy which would appropriately be determined in the case pending before the state District Court. Utah Int'l, Inc. v. Intake Water Co., 484 F. Supp. 36, 36 St. Rep. 2270 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

Jurisdiction of Federal Court — Compact Law as Federal Question: Where the defendant private corporation had instituted an action in state District Court to compel certain action of the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation and where the plaintiff subsequently brought an action in federal District Court for a declaratory judgment under 28 U.S.C. §§1331(2) and 2201 to declare the rights of the parties to waters appropriated by each under the Yellowstone River Compact, the Compact constituted a law of the United States under 28 U.S.C. §1331(2), giving the federal District Court jurisdiction to declare its terms and enforce its provisions. Utah Int'l, Inc. v. Intake Water Co., 484 F. Supp. 36, 36 St. Rep. 2270 (D.C. Mont. 1979).

85-20-101. Approval of compact.Compiler's Comments

Yellowstone River Compact Comm'n*, (D.C. Mont. 1983, cv 1184, apparently not reported), affirmed 769 F2d 568 (1985).

Diversion in Wyoming — Use in Montana — Priority Dates: Corporation filed a Wyoming application to appropriate water, as required by the Yellowstone River Compact, because Wyoming was the state of diversion (Montana being the state of ultimate use of the water). Corporation then filed the same information in Montana, which assigned the date of the Wyoming filing as the priority date in conformity with Wyoming law. Water company did not attack the Wyoming filing but claimed mandamus should issue requiring Montana to assign the Montana filing date as the priority date. Montana correctly assigned the Wyoming filing date as the priority date, as required by the Compact, and mandamus would not issue, since there was no clear legal duty for Montana to assign the Montana filing date as the priority date. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Bd. of Nat'l Resources & Conserv., 197 M 482, 645 P2d 383, 39 St. Rep. 717 (1982).

Appropriation Filing — Correction of Defect — Priority Date: Corporation filed application in Wyoming, as required by the Yellowstone River Compact, to appropriate water in Wyoming for use in Montana. Montana notified corporation that it should also file the same information on Montana forms and that if it did so the corporation would retain the priority date of the date it filed in Wyoming. The corporation filed in Montana within 18 months of its Wyoming filing. Since 85-2-302 gives Montana discretion of allowing up to 18 months for a correction of a defective filing without the applicants losing the original filing date as the priority date, corporation was entitled to have Montana, in its discretion, assign as a priority date the date of the Wyoming filing. Montana had no clear legal duty to do otherwise and was not subject to a mandate that it assign as the priority date the date of the Montana filing. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Bd. of Nat'l Resources & Conserv., 197 M 482, 645 P2d 383, 39 St. Rep. 717 (1982).

Compact as Treaty — State Law Subordinate: The Yellowstone River Compact, signed by Wyoming, North Dakota, and Montana and ratified by Congress, has the status of a treaty; and state law, including Montana's water law statutes, is subordinate to it. State ex rel. Intake Water Co. v. Bd. of Nat'l Resources & Conserv., 197 M 482, 645 P2d 383, 39 St. Rep. 717 (1982).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 7, Sp. L. November 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, in accordance with section 85-2-702, MCA, the 52nd Montana Legislature ratified the Northern Cheyenne-Montana Compact as Chapter 812, Laws of 1991; and

WHEREAS, by its terms, the Compact required the participation of the United States in the project to repair and rehabilitate the Tongue River Dam in southeastern Montana, which required certain authorizations and appropriations by the Congress of the United States; and

WHEREAS, in the Northern Cheyenne Indian Reserved Water Rights Settlement Act of 1992, referred to in this preamble as the federal act (Public Law 102-374, 106 Stat. 1186), Congress approved the Compact and obligated, under certain terms and conditions, the federal government and the state to provide funding for the project; and

WHEREAS, because of a clerical error in the federal act Montana may lose some of the federal funding for the project, and accordingly, Congress, in S. 1654 (103d Cong. 1st Sess.), is considering an amendment to correct that error; and

WHEREAS, some of the terms of the federal act and the pending amendment vary from the Compact, thereby creating uncertainty in efforts to obtain federal funding for the project and secure judicial approval of the Compact; and

WHEREAS, the Northern Cheyenne Tribe, the Montana Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission, and the Montana Department of Natural Resources and Conservation have given their consent to, adopted, and ratified the terms of the federal act and the pending amendment; and

WHEREAS, the judicial confirmation of the Compact and timely completion of the project is of high priority to the State of Montana, the Northern Cheyenne Tribe, and the United States.

THEREFORE, the 53rd Legislature of the State of Montana, meeting in special session, finds it appropriate to give its consent to, adopt, and ratify the terms and conditions of the federal act and the pending amendment and to modify the Compact to the extent necessary to conform therewith."

National Monument inserted "and by Act of March 22, 1946, 60 Stat. 59", in definition of non-consumptive use, in three places, inserted "[with respect to BHN, GNP, or YNP and]" and reference to the effective date of this Compact with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM, inserted definition of Parkman sandstone, inserted definition of quaternary alluvium, and inserted definition of quaternary terrace deposits; in Article II IMPLEMENTATION, under "Abstract" near middle of first sentence, inserted "[for Big Hole National Battlefield, Glacier National Park, and Yellowstone National Park, and] Appendix 2, which is a specific listing of all of the United States' water rights for Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area and the Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument"; in II, B. Method of Allocation of Water on Category 3 and 4 Streams and of Determining Rights Subject to Curtailment on the Little Bighorn River and its Tributaries, in catchline, inserted "and of Determining Rights Subject to Curtailment on the Little Bighorn River and its Tributaries" and at end of second sentence inserted "and whether a water right on the Little Bighorn River and its tributaries upstream from the LBBNM shall be subject to curtailment to satisfy the reserved instream flow water right for LBBNM"; in II, B., 1. Allocation to Instream Flow, at beginning of introductory paragraph, inserted "With the exception of the reserved instream flow rights for LBBNM"; in II, B., 2., b. Groundwater inserted introductory paragraph, inserted iv. relating to calculation of total future consumptive use on Category 3 or 4 streams at BCNRA, and inserted v. relating to determination of whether an appropriation of groundwater after effective date of Compact is subject to curtailment to satisfy the instream flow water right at LBBNM; in II, C. Subordination of Instream Flow Right, in 1. at end, substituted "sections I and K" for "section I" and in 2. inserted reference to 85-2-212 and at end inserted "provided that water allocated to future consumptive use pursuant to Article III [B.] of this Compact may be used to satisfy claims filed pursuant to 85-2-221(3), MCA in order of priority"; in II, F. Prohibition on Future Impoundments, near end of first sentence, inserted "[and] no new impoundments may be permitted on the mainstem of the Little Bighorn River in Montana upstream of the LBBNM"; in II, G. Management to Maximize Use by Montana Water Users of the Water Allocated to Consumptive Use Rights Recognized Under State Law, near middle after "January 1, 1993", inserted "[with respect to BHN, GNP, and YNP and] before the effective date of this compact [with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM]"; in II, H. Basin Closure inserted "Big Horn Canyon National Recreation Area: Dry Head, Deadman, Davis and Layout Creeks"; in II, I. Enforcement of Water Right, in 5. at end, inserted last four sentences requiring United States to install and maintain rated gauge to measure instream flows in Little Bighorn River and restricting curtailment of junior water uses; inserted II, K. Administration of Little Bighorn Instream Flow relating to administration of instream flow rights of United States on Little Bighorn River; in Article III WATER RIGHT, in introductory paragraph, inserted second sentence recognizing that water rights for certain NPS Units are junior to Crow Tribal water rights; in III, B. Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area substituted current Compact language relating to Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area water rights, including Table 3 and Table 4, for former language that read: "B. Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area

The parties were unable to finalize agreement on quantification of the water rights for BCNRA prior to the effective date of this Compact. The parties agree to continue to pursue, in good faith, quantification of water rights, and further agree that all other relevant provisions of this Compact apply to a settlement of this water right through this process. In the event the parties are unable to agree on quantification, the United States retains its right to have the quantity of any reserved water right for BCNRA adjudicated in a state or federal court of competent jurisdiction"; in III, E. Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument substituted current Compact language relating to Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument water rights, including Table 7, for former language that read: "E. Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument

The parties were unable to finalize agreement on quantification of the water rights for LBBNM prior to the effective date of this Compact. For the purposes of settlement of the reserved water rights for land administered by the National Park Service in Montana, the parties agree that a water right for instream flow is necessary for the historic purposes of LBBNM. The parties agree to continue to pursue, in good faith, quantification of water rights and further agree that all other relevant provisions of this Compact apply to a settlement of this water right through this process. In the event the parties are unable to agree on quantification, the United States retains its right to have the quantity of any reserved water right for LBBNM adjudicated in a state or federal court of competent jurisdiction"; and throughout Article III WATER RIGHT renumbered existing Tables to reflect insertion of new Tables and changed internal references to Tables, as appropriate; in Article V GENERAL PROVISIONS, in V, A. No Effect on Tribal Rights or Other Federal Reserved Water Rights, in 1. near middle of first sentence, inserted "[with respect to BHNB, GNP, and YNP or] the nature or extent of the rights to water or the right to administer water [with respect to BCNRA and LBBNM]" and inserted last sentence recognizing seniority of Crow Tribal water rights; in V, C. General Disclaimers inserted 10. relating to alteration or amendment of Yellowstone River Compact; in V, G. Severability, at end, inserted "provided that for the purposes of Sec. 85-2-702(3) MCA, the water rights described in this Compact for the LBBNM and BCNRA Units shall be considered as separate Compacts"; in VI FINALITY OF COMPACT AND DISMISSAL OF PENDING CASES, in B., 2. Disposition of Federal Suits, at end of first sentence, inserted "and any claims made by the United States for LBBNM or BCNRA in federal court"; in VI, C. Settlement of Claims, in first paragraph in second sentence, substituted "retained in Article III, sections D. and F. in the Compact for YNP, GNP, and BHNM" for "retained in Article III, sections B., D., E, and F." and inserted last paragraph exempting water rights Claims No. 43P-W-162354-00 and 43P-W-162348-00, relating to Big Horn Canal and Pete's Spring, from this Compact; adjusted internal references to reflect codification of new material within existing compact; and made minor changes in style.

Codification Instruction — Explanation: Section 2, Ch. 149, L. 1995, provided: "[Section 1] is intended to be codified as an integral part of the United States National Park Service-Montana Water Rights Compact, as provided in 85-20-401, and the provisions of the United States National Park Service-Montana Water Rights Compact, as provided in 85-20-401, apply to [section 1]." Accordingly, the Code Commissioner has inserted portions of [this act] into 85-20-401, and those changes are reported in the 1995 amendment note.

Effective Date — Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 149, L. 1995, provided: "(1) [This act] is effective upon signature by the parties as provided in [this act].

(2) Because [this act] requires Montana and United States approval and incorporates provisions of the existing water rights compact between the United States National Park Service and the State of Montana as provided in 85-20-401, [this act] applies only to the Bighorn Canyon National Recreation Area and the Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument. The provisions of the existing compact, as provided in 85-20-401, continue in effect and are not affected by [this act] and are incorporated into [this act]."

1991 Name Change: Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1991, directed the Code Commissioner to change the name of the Fish and Game Commission to the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission wherever the name appears in the MCA. Accordingly, the name was changed in this section as directed.

Redundant Language Not Codified: The language contained in section 26-1802(1), (2), R.C.M. 1947, was not codified in the MCA because it is redundant with 87-1-101. The language not codified is still valid law. Citation may be made to sec. 2, Ch. 461, L. 1973. See 1-2-208.

87-1-102. Penalties — violation of state law.

Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 499 in (1) near beginning after “fish and game” deleted “or the orders or rules of the commission or department”; inserted (6) establishing penalties for second offenses within 10 years; inserted (7) establishing penalties for third offenses within 10 years; inserted (8) requiring payment of costs of imprisonment; inserted (9) exempting juveniles from mandatory forfeiture of privileges; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

Chapter 502 throughout section substituted “county detention center” for “county jail”; at beginning of (2)(a) and (2)(b) inserted exception clause; inserted (2)(f) establishing penalty for taking, killing, possessing, or transporting trophy wildlife; inserted (3) banning fishing or hunting in state for additional 5 years if person convicted of illegally taking certain wildlife or trophy wildlife and requiring person to complete hunter education course; in (5) after “87-1-111” inserted “or 87-1-115”; inserted (12) defining knowingly, negligently, and purposely; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 552 inserted (6) relating to suspension of a license or permit, notice to the person, and surrender of the license or permit. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 101 in (4) inserted second sentence concerning violation involving a moose, a bighorn sheep, or a mountain goat; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 417 at end of (1), (2)(a), (2)(b), and (2)(d) inserted sentence concerning notice to person losing privileges and inserted sentence concerning surrender of licenses; in (1), near beginning of first sentence after “knowingly”, inserted “or negligently” and near middle increased maximum fine from $500 to $1,000 and at end of second sentence substituted “set by the court” for “of not less than 24 months from the date of conviction or forfeiture”; in (2)(a), in first sentence after “transporting”, deleted “or wasting”, substituted “wild buffalo” for “wild bison”, inserted “black bear”, and increased maximum fine from $1,000 to $2,000 and in second sentence, after “state for”, deleted “not less than” and at end inserted “unless the court imposes a longer forfeiture period”; in (2)(b), in first sentence after “mountain lion”, deleted “or black bear” and after “animals” deleted “or wasting a deer, antelope, or elk” and in second sentence, after “state for”, deleted “not less than” and at end inserted “unless the court imposes a longer forfeiture period”; in (2)(c) substituted “trap or hunt” for “trap, take, shoot, or kill”; deleted former (2)(d) that read: “(d) A person convicted of unlawfully taking, killing, possessing, transporting, shipping, labeling, packaging, or wasting or unlawfully attempting to take, kill, or possess any game bird, wild turkey, or fish or any part of any such bird or fish or of failure to tag a game animal or game bird as prescribed by law shall be fined not less than $50 or more than $200 or imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 30 days, or both”; in (2)(d), in first sentence after “knowingly”, inserted “or negligently”, after “killing” inserted “trapping”, and increased minimum fine from $50 to $100 and in second sentence, after “trap”, substituted “in this state for” for “not less than” and after “forfeiture” inserted “unless the court imposes a longer forfeiture period"; in (2)(e), (3), and (4) increased maximum fine from $1,000 to $2,000; in (4), in first sentence, substituted "this section" for "subsection (2)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Style changes in the chapters were slightly different. In each case, the codifier chose the most appropriate.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 417, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 277 in (1), near beginning of first sentence, substituted "who purposely or knowingly violates" for "violating", after "misdemeanor" inserted "except if a felony is expressly provided by law", in second sentence, after "person", inserted "upon conviction or forfeiture of bond or bail", and at end, after "conviction", inserted "or forfeiture"; in (2)(a), (2)(b), and (2)(e), in second sentence after "person", inserted "upon conviction or forfeiture of bond or bail" and near end, after "conviction", inserted "or forfeiture"; inserted (3) prohibiting acquisition of license during period of forfeiture and providing a penalty; in (4) inserted second sentence providing a penalty for unlawfully applying for or entering a drawing for a special license; and made minor change in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Chapter 609 in (1), near end of second sentence after "this state", inserted "or to use state lands, as defined in 77-1-101, for recreational purposes"; in (2)(a), in second sentence after "fishing", inserted "recreational use"; and made minor change in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Applicability: Section 22, Ch. 609, L. 1991, provided: "On passage and approval of [this act], the board of land commissioners shall commence proceedings to adopt rules to be effective March 1, 1992. The department of state lands [now department of natural resources and conservation] and the department of fish, wildlife, and parks shall commence proceedings and arrangements necessary to establish a recreational use license to be effective March 1, 1992." Approved April 24, 1991.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (3) prohibiting application for special licenses after certain convictions.

1987 Amendment: In (2)(d), after "fish", deleted "or fur-bearing animal" and after "any such" substituted "bird" for "animal"; and inserted (2)(e) relating to the illegal taking, possession, or disposing of a fur-bearing animal.

Case Notes

Appeal to District Court Allowed Only After Trial in Lower Court, Not After Forfeiture of Bond — Exclusive Statutory Remedy for Appeals From Courts of Limited Jurisdiction: Kempin was charged in Justice's Court with seven fish and game violations but failed to appear for trial, so the appearance bonds that Kempin had posted were forfeited and Kempin's hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges were suspended for 10 years. Kempin appealed to the District Court within 10 days of the Justice's Court judgment, but the appeal was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and because Kempin had no statutory right to appeal the forfeitures as a matter of law, so Kempin appealed to the Supreme Court. Under Art. VII, sec. 4, Mont. Const., District Courts must hear appeals from inferior courts as trials de novo unless otherwise provided by law, and appeal of a criminal conviction from a court of limited jurisdiction is governed exclusively by 46-17-311, which provides three circumstances under which a criminal defendant may appeal to District Court for a trial de novo: (1) when a defendant pleads guilty or nolo contendere but preserves legal issues raised by pretrial motion for appeal; (2) when a defendant files written notice of intention to appeal within 10 days after a judgment is rendered following a trial; and (3) when a defendant appeals revocation of a suspended sentence. Here, Kempin claimed that denial of a District Court trial by jury following forfeiture in Justice's Court violated his due process rights. However, Kempin raised no appealable pretrial issues, nor was the case an appeal of a suspended sentence, so the first and third circumstances did not apply. Kempin did appeal the judgment within 10 days, but there was no trial, so Kempin was not constitutionally entitled to a trial de novo when there had been no trial initially, nor is 46-17-311 unconstitutionally vague for not explicitly proscribing an appeal following a forfeiture. The Supreme Court agreed with the District Court's explanation in declining jurisdiction—that if a defendant was automatically entitled to a trial de novo on appeal without first having a trial in Justice's Court, a defendant could avoid Justice's Court altogether by not appearing and forfeiting the Justice's Court bonds and then pursuing a trial in District Court, which would render the Justice's Court system meaningless. Kempin's other due process arguments were also not compelling because Kempin waived his trial rights by failing to appear in Justice's Court to assert any constitutional rights and in light of his stated intention to forfeit the bonds and the advance notice of the suspension of the hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges. Absent any statutory basis for an appeal, dismissal of the appeal by the District Court was affirmed. St. v. Kempin, 2001 MT 313, 308 M 17, 38 P3d 859 (2001). See also St. v. Feight, 2001 MT 205, 306 M 312, 33 P3d 623 (2001).

Exclusivity of Title 87 as Remedy for Fish and Game Violations:

Subsection (1) of this section (1993) provided in part that a "person who purposely or knowingly violates any provision of this title, any other state law pertaining to fish and game, or the orders or rules of the commission or department is guilty of a misdemeanor, except if a felony is expressly provided by law, and shall be fined not less than $50 or more than $500, imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 6 months, or both, unless a different punishment is expressly provided by law for the violation". This provision limits penalties for fish and game violations to those provided in this title and precludes the charging of appellant with felony criminal mischief under Title 45. The portion of St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467 (1992), holding that this title does not provide the exclusive remedy for fish and game violations and allowing defendant to be charged with felony criminal mischief under Title 45, is manifestly wrong and is expressly overruled. St. v. Gatts, 279 M 42, 928 P2d 114, 53 St. Rep. 1042 (1996). (See 1997 enactment of 87-1-110 and 1999 amendment.)

Defendants Richard and David Fertterer were convicted of felony criminal mischief for illegally killing game. They contended on appeal that because of the differences in misdemeanor penalties under Title 87 and felony penalties under Title 45, it is manifestly unjust for them to be convicted under 45-6-101 and is contrary to the intent of the Legislature. Citing the language of this section, the Supreme Court held that the Legislature did not intend Title 87 to constitute the exclusive penalties for fish and game violations because the penalties under 45-6-101 constitute the "different punishment" contemplated by this section. St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467, 49 St. Rep. 846 (1992).

Hours of Hunting Sufficiently Clear to Withstand Due Process Challenge: After he shot a bull elk half an hour before sunrise, Johnston was arrested for hunting before the allowed time. Johnston challenged the rules of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks as being inconsistent, ambiguous, vague, and factually erroneous. The Supreme Court held that the rules establishing the time of sunrise within the hunting district where Johnston shot the elk were clear in that they precisely defined the time of sunrise on the day Johnston shot the elk, leaving no room to guess at what time a hunter could begin shooting. St. v. Johnston, 263 M 179, 867 P2d 1090, 51 St. Rep. 5 (1994).

Jurisdiction — Hunting and Fishing: Flathead Tribe had jurisdiction to regulate fishing upon Crow Creek Reservoir, and violation of tribal ordinance requiring permit for fishing constituted federal offense. U.S. v. Zempel, 32 St. Rep. 1130 (D.C. Mont. 1975). (Annotator's Comment: This case was not published in F. Supp.)

Seasons on Indian Reservation: Conviction of non-Indian for killing two bull elk on Crow Indian Reservation during season closed by state fish and game laws was not in conflict with act of Congress providing penalty for trespass to possessory rights of reservation Indians or in conflict with The Enabling Act providing that Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of Congress of United States. State ex rel. Nepstad v. Danielson, 149 M 438, 427 P2d 689 (1967), followed in U.S. v. Sanford, 547 F2d 1089 (9th Cir. 1976).

Failure to Tag Deer: When plaintiff lawfully killed a deer but failed to fill out the tag attached to his hunting license and attach it to the carcass, the deer was not unlawfully possessed and the Game Warden was without authority to seize and confiscate the carcass when he arrested plaintiff for failure to attach the tag. Shipman v. Todd, 131 M 365, 310 P2d 300 (1957).

Attorney General's Opinions

Duty of Judge to Notify Defendant of Potential Forfeiture of Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping Privileges — Notification of Loss of Privileges Duty of Department: In order to ensure that a knowing plea is entered by a defendant accused of a fish and game violation, a judge must inform the defendant of the potential forfeiture of hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges as a result of a conviction, guilty plea, or forfeiture of bond in the case of offenses for which the loss of privileges is a direct and immediate consequence of the violation. Notification of the loss of hunting, fishing, and trapping privileges is statutorily delegated to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks. 49 A.G. Op. 20 (2002).

1983 Amendment: Substituted reference to state special revenue fund for reference to earmarked revenue fund.

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment of Medical Expenses Incurred by Fish and Game Violator: Medical expenses incurred by a prisoner incarcerated in a county jail for a violation of state fish and game laws are not chargeable against the state or county, with two exceptions: (1) if the medical condition threatens the health or well-being of other prisoners or persons present in the jail and the county incurs expenses pursuant to section 16-2822, R.C.M. 1947 (7-32-2204, MCA), such expenses are "costs" as defined in section 26-1002, R.C.M. 1947 (87-1-104, MCA), and should be borne by the state; and (2) if a prisoner is financially unable to provide such necessities for himself, in which case the provisions of Title 71, ch. 3, R.C.M. 1947 (Title 53, ch. 3, part 3, MCA), apply. 30 A.G. Op. 36 (1964). (Annotator's note: An amendment to section 16-2818, R.C.M. 1947 (7-32-2222, MCA), by sec. 1, Ch. 179, L. 1965, provided that medical expenses "shall be borne by the agency or authority at whose instance the prisoner is detained". The applicability of this provision to fish and game violations was affirmed in 34 A.G. Op. 24 (1971). An amendment to 7-32-2222 by sec. 1, Ch. 768, L. 1991, provided that medical expenses must be borne by the arresting agency and made an exception for arrests by the Department of Corrections and Human Services (now Department of Corrections).)

Gatts*, No. 95-402 (1996), limited penalties for fish- and game-related crimes to those specified in the fish and game code, precluding the state from bringing charges under the state criminal code; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature that the charging for and punishment of fish- and game-related violations be authorized under the criminal code as well as the fish and game code and that the fish and game code not be considered the exclusive remedy for fish and game violations to the exclusion of the criminal code; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the Legislature that if fish- and game-related violations constitute an offense under both the criminal code and the fish and game code, the prosecution has the discretion to bring charges under either or both codes."

Effective Date: Section 3, Ch. 161, L. 1997, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval." Approved March 26, 1997.

Case Notes

Exclusivity of Title 87 as Remedy for Fish and Game Violations: Section 87-1-102(1) (1993) provided in part that a "person who purposely or knowingly violates any provision of this title, any other state law pertaining to fish and game, or the orders or rules of the commission or department is guilty of a misdemeanor, except if a felony is expressly provided by law, and shall be fined not less than $50 or more than $500, imprisoned in the county jail for not more than 6 months, or both, unless a different punishment is expressly provided by law for the violation". This provision limits penalties for fish and game violations to those provided in this title and precludes the charging of appellant with felony criminal mischief under Title 45. The portion of St. v. Fertterer, 255 M 73, 841 P2d 467 (1992), holding that this title does not provide the exclusive remedy for fish and game violations and allowing defendant to be charged with felony criminal mischief under Title 45, is manifestly wrong and is expressly overruled. St. v. Gatts, 279 M 42, 928 P2d 114, 53 St. Rep. 1042 (1996). (See 1997 enactment of this section.)

1999 Amendment: Chapter 369 inserted (9) requiring department programs that manage fish and wildlife so as to prevent the need for listing under 87-5-107 or the Endangered Species Act and that manage listed, sensitive, or potentially listed species under 87-5-107 or the Endangered Species Act so as to assist in their maintenance or recovery, requiring department to balance maintenance or recovery with social and economic impacts of maintenance or recovery, and providing that subsection (9) does not affect ownership or possession of a privately held listed, sensitive, or potentially listed species; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 20, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in temporary version in (1), at end of first sentence, inserted clause authorizing implementation of voluntary programs to encourage hunting access and to promote harmonious relations between landowners and public; and made minor changes in style. Amendment terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

A written report must be submitted to the Water Policy Committee by July 1, 1992.

1983 Amendment: Substituted reference to state special revenue fund for reference to earmarked revenue fund.

Seasonal Rules Adopted Annually: Section 2-4-102 excludes from the Montana Administrative Procedure Act seasonal rules adopted annually relating to hunting, fishing, and trapping if the rules are published in accordance with statutory requirements. Section 87-1-202 sets out those requirements. Although the rules do not appear in the Administrative Register of Montana, they are published and copies are available in state and regional offices of the Department.

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

Hours of Hunting Sufficiently Clear to Withstand Due Process Challenge: After he shot a bull elk half an hour before sunrise, Johnston was arrested for hunting before the allowed time. Johnston challenged the rules of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks as being inconsistent, ambiguous, vague, and factually erroneous. The Supreme Court held that the rules establishing the time of sunrise within the hunting district where Johnston shot the elk were clear in that they precisely defined the time of sunrise on the day Johnston shot the elk, leaving no room to guess at what time a hunter could begin shooting. St. v. Johnston, 263 M 179, 867 P2d 1090, 51 St. Rep. 5 (1994).

Evidence Sufficient to Support Conviction for Game Farm (now Alternative Livestock Ranch) Violations: Evidence of the presence of wild elk on Brogan's game farm (now alternative livestock ranch), gathered by wardens through direct observation and supported by circumstantial evidence, such as animal tracks, the presence of hay near gates, the absence of electric power in the game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) fence, and Brogan's evasive conduct, was sufficient to support Brogan's conviction for capturing wild elk for use on the game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) and for failure to maintain fences. St. v. Brogan, 261 M 79, 862 P2d 19, 50 St. Rep. 1204 (1993).

Removal Proceedings: Summary dismissal of employee by the State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) (holder of such authority under former law) without prior charges by the Commission, reasonable notice and hearing thereon, and without affording the employee an opportunity to refute the charges was prohibited. State ex rel. Ford v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 148 M 151, 418 P2d 300 (1966), distinguished in Steer v. Missoula, 169 M 398, 547 P2d 843 (1976).

Construction and Application: The power of discharge must be "for cause" and there is no distinction between officers and employees, and removal may be effected only after notice of the charges made has been given and the person involved has been given an opportunity to be heard in his defense. State ex rel. Opheim v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 133 M 362, 323 P2d 1116 (1958), distinguished in Steer v. Missoula, 169 M 398, 547 P2d 843 (1976), and State ex rel. Hollibaugh v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 139 M 384, 365 P2d 942 (1961).

District Court Bound by Factual Findings of Board of Personnel Appeals — Wrongful Discharge — Reinstatement — No Backpay: An employee of the state was discharged from employment because he used a state-owned vehicle for private purposes. He appealed the decision of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and the Board of Personnel Appeals ruled that though his discharge was properly justified, the Department had never adopted a policy regarding such use of vehicles and had not punished similar usage; thus, the discharge was wrongful and he was entitled to reinstatement. He was offered a substantially equivalent position but appealed the Board's denial of backpay and benefits and, upon losing the District Court appeal, pursued the issues before the Supreme Court. The court upheld the District Court on all issues, observing that both courts were bound by factual findings of the Board and stipulations by the parties. The District Court was not obligated to hold a hearing on the facts. Hutchin v. St., 213 M 15, 688 P2d 1257, 41 St. Rep. 1916 (1984).

1985 Amendment: In (3)(c) extended period for submission of cash bids from 30 to 60 days; and in (3)(d) inserted second and third sentences relating to the price on private sale and the method of conveyance.

1983 Amendment: At beginning of (4), deleted "Notwithstanding the provisions of 18-4-102".

1981 Amendments: Chapter 230 deleted "condemnation" after "may acquire by purchase" in the introductory clause of (1) and added subsection (2) relating to condemnation for historical or archaeological sites.

Chapter 418 inserted "and, in the case of land acquisition involving more than 100 acres or $100,000 in value, the approval of the board of land commissioners" near the beginning of (1).

Severability: Section 3, Ch. 379, L. 1979, was a severability section.

Case Notes

Nature of Road to Fishing Access Site — Easement — No Deprivation of Landowner's Property: A landowner brought an action to prevent the state from opening a fishing access site and from paving a road to the site, based on a claimed fee title to the roadway. The District Court granted the state a summary judgment as a matter of law. The Supreme Court found the landowner's interest was an ordinary easement. The words "private road" did not clearly indicate intent to create in him an "exclusive" easement. The state's use of the road cannot be declared inconsistent with the landowner's on the basis of speculation. Furthermore, under various statutory provisions, the state obtained its land lawfully. The plaintiff had not yet been deprived of his property interest. Any damages remained speculative at the time of the decision. The summary judgment was accordingly affirmed. Titeca v. St., 194 M 209, 634 P2d 1156, 38 St. Rep. 1533 (1981).

Attorney General's Opinions

Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Subject to Local Review in Creation of Recreational Vehicle Camping Area: The term "subdivision" is defined in 76-3-103 to include the provision of multiple space for recreational camping vehicles. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks argued that, as a state agency, it was exempt from the review requirement. Because exemptions are provided for some state activities but not for activities to provide multiple space for recreational camping vehicles on state land, the clear implication is that the state is to stand on the same footing with a private person in this matter. It was noted that there is a trend toward abandoning the traditional view that activities of the state may be exercised free of local control. The Department is subject to local subdivision review to the extent that it creates an area that will provide multiple space for recreational camping vehicles. 39 A.G. Op. 14 (1981).

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 604 in (2)(c) inserted third sentence concerning public hunting of wild buffalo or bison; deleted former (3) that read: "(3) The department and the department of livestock are strongly urged to enter into an agreement with the national park service for the long-term management of the Yellowstone national park wild buffalo or bison herd. If the national park service does not proceed in good faith in a timely manner to enter a long-term management agreement that, in the determination of the department and the department of livestock, responds adequately to the needs of Montana, the departments are strongly urged to take appropriate court action. The department and the department of livestock shall prepare a joint report to the 55th legislature regarding the present state of wild buffalo or bison management in Montana and any progress on an agreement for the long-term management of the Yellowstone national park herd"; inserted (4) concerning rules regarding special wild buffalo or bison license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 9, 2003.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 346, L. 1995, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because the department of livestock is authorized in [section 1] [81-2-120] to adopt rules with regard to management of publicly owned wild buffalo or bison that enter Montana on private or public land and that are from a herd that is infected with a contagious disease that may spread to persons or livestock and may jeopardize compliance with federally administered livestock disease control programs. The department may determine that rulemaking is necessary with regard to feasible methods of taking wild buffalo or bison allowed within [section 1(1)] [81-2-120(1)] or with regard to disposal of the carcasses of wild buffalo or bison as provided for in [section 1(2) and (3)] [81-2-120(2) and (3)].

A statement of intent is also required because [section 2] [87-1-216] authorizes the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to adopt rules with regard to wild buffalo or bison that have not been exposed to or infected with a contagious disease but are in need of management because of potential damage to person or property. The department may determine that rulemaking is necessary if management of wild buffalo or bison under the provisions of [section 2] [87-1-216] includes public hunting."

Effective Date: Section 5, Ch. 346, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval." Approved April 10, 1995.

Case Notes

Federal Court Action Against State Barred Absent State Consent to Be Sued: The Fund for Animals alleged that federal and state officials violated the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) and the Montana Environmental Policy Act (MEPA) by failing to prepare an environmental impact statement before adopting a plan to kill bison leaving Yellowstone National Park. The District Court properly denied a preliminary injunction to halt implementation of the plan in light of public support of the plan, given the serious threat of brucellosis to Montana cattle, the large number of excess bison, and the lack of feasible alternatives to control bison migrating out of the park. Although nonfederal actors may be enjoined under NEPA if their proposed action cannot proceed without prior approval of a federal agency, state actors may not be enjoined simply because the state project involves major federal action. Penalizing the State of Montana for consenting to participate in a plan with the federal government, designed to limit the killing of bison, would be inequitable. Further, the 11th amendment to the U.S. Constitution barred the organization from proceeding in federal court against either the State of Montana or its officers for violations of MEPA, absent a demonstration that the state had consented to be sued in federal court for alleged MEPA violations. Fund for Animals, Inc. v. Lujan, 962 F2d 1391 (9th Cir. 1992).

and conclude an agreement with the council of the Confederated Salish and Kootenai tribes of the Flathead Indian reservation for the purpose of:

(a) obtaining and establishing for the citizens of Montana, regularly licensed to hunt and fish in the state, the privileges of hunting and fishing on Indian lands on the Flathead Indian reservation;

(b) the conservation and protection of fish and game and fur-bearing animals on such Indian lands and on lands adjacent thereto;

Case Notes

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Permissible Exercise of Authority of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission: It is not necessary that state fish and game laws specifically mention Indian hunting rights in order for the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission to have proper authority to promulgate a regulation that recognizes those rights under state law, nor is it necessary that the Commission be directed by legislative intent, studies, or committee minutes specific to the issue in order to recognize Indian hunting rights. In promulgating hunting regulations, the Commission must take this section into account, which explicitly recognizes tribal hunting rights on the Flathead Indian Reservation, as well as federal court decisions regarding the issue of jurisdiction to regulate hunting on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Thus, the Commission properly exercised its authority in prohibiting hunting by nontribal members on reservations. Here, Shook, who was not a tribal member, was convicted of killing a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook's conviction did not conflict with 87-1-305. Further, 18 U.S.C. 1165, which gives tribes exclusive jurisdiction to regulate hunting on reservations, did not apply to Shook because the violation was charged under state rather than federal law. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002). See also *State ex rel. Greely v. Summary of Holdings in Litigation Over Hunting and Fishing Rights on Crow Indian Reservation: "The explicit holdings of the Supreme Court in Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. 544, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981), and of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. State of Montana, 604 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. 1979), to the extent not reversed by the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. The Crow Tribe can proscribe all hunting and fishing by non-members on those lands described in 18 U.S.C. §1165. Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

2. The Crow Tribe, within 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands, has power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the tribe (whether Indian or non-Indian) subject to the following conditions:

(a) That the Crow Tribe lacks the power to impose criminal sanctions on non-Indians who violate its hunting and fishing regulations,

(b) That the exercise by the Crow Tribe of its power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-Indians must be within the constraints recognized by this court in Quechan Tribe of Indians v. Rowe, 531 F.2d 408 (9th Cir. 1976). Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254; United States v. Montana, 604 F.2d at 1165, 1170.

3. The title to the bed and banks of the Big Horn is in the State of Montana. 450 U.S. at 556-57, 101 S.Ct. at 1253-54.

4. The Crow Tribe has no power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members on non-member owned fee patent land located within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation. Id. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

5. The State of Montana cannot regulate hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe within 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands. 604 F.2d at 1172.

6. The State of Montana has the power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the Crow Tribe within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation subject to the following limitations:

(a) That such regulations of the State of Montana not regulate indirectly the hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe on 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands.

(b) That such regulations of the State of Montana must have as their purpose the conservation and proper management of game and fish and not to discriminate against, nor to impede, authorized regulation by the Crow Tribe. Id. at 1166.

7. Such rights as the State of Montana has to regulate fishing on the Big Horn River by the Crows and all others are not limited by either (a) the treaties of 1851 and 1868 (except to such extent as these treaties might acknowledge pertinent aboriginal title rights of the Crow Tribe not heretofore asserted or recognized in this litigation) or (b) the inherent sovereignty of the Crow Tribe. 604 F.2d at 1170-71." Tribal Regulation of Flathead Lake Usage: Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation have authority to regulate federal common-law riparian rights of non-Indians who own reservation land bordering the south half of Flathead Lake. The Circuit Court held that the decision in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544, 67 L Ed 2d 493, 101 S Ct 1245 (1981), regarding ownership and control of the Bighorn River, was not controlling. The decision in Mont. Power Co. v. Rochester, 127 F.2d 189 (9th Cir. 1942), was given deference under the principle of stare decisis. Rochester held that the United States holds title to the bed and banks of the south half of Flathead Lake in trust for the tribes. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation v. Namen, 665 F.2d 951 (9th Cir. 1982), followed in In re Estate of Hobbs, 2002 MT 85, 309 M 308, 46 P3d 594 (2002).

Airborne Hunting — Non-Indian Hunters on Indian Reservations: The Airborne Hunting Act, 16 U.S.C. §742j-1, was declared unconstitutional in a challenge by non-Indian hunters caught hunting on an Indian reservation. The statute was found to be an unlawful preemption of reserve state regulatory authority. The federal government is not empowered to displace Montana's regulation in this area. U.S. v. Helsley, 463 F. Supp. 1111 (D.C. Mont. 1979), reversed in U.S. v. Helsley, 615 F.2d 784 (9th Cir. 1979).

Indians Hunting on Open and Unclaimed Land: Members of the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes have a right to hunt free from the regulation of Montana game laws on "open and unclaimed lands" by virtue of Article II of the Treaty of Hell Gate and this includes National Forest Service land. St. v. Stasso, 172 M 242, 563 P2d 562 (1977).

Jurisdiction — Hunting and Fishing: Flathead Tribe had jurisdiction to regulate fishing upon Crow Creek Reservoir, and violation of tribal ordinance requiring permit for fishing constituted federal offense. U.S. v. Zempel, 32 St. Rep. 1130 (D.C. Mont. 1975). (Annotator's Comment: This case was not published in F. Supp.)

Treaty of 1855: Indians were not subject to state fish and game laws on reservation property since under the Treaty of 1855 between the Indians of Flathead Reservation and the United States, the exclusive right to hunt and fish within the boundaries of the Reservation was reserved by the Indians. St. v. McClure, 127 M 534, 268 P2d 629 (1954).

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 241, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, the lease or purchase of land suitable for wildlife habitat and the acquisition of conservation easements to protect and enhance habitat are necessary; and

WHEREAS, the program instituted by the 1987 Legislature to allocate revenue from increased hunting license fees to fund the protection and enhancement of wildlife habitat has proved to be an effective and valuable tool in maintaining the quality of wildlife habitat in Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interests of the people and the wildlife of the State of Montana to continue the wildlife habitat acquisition program on a permanent basis."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. 1989 Amendment: Inserted (1)(e) requiring analysis of significant potential social and economic impacts. Amendment effective April 12, 1989.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 598, L. 1987, provided: "House Bill No. 526 [Ch. 598, L. 1987] requires a statement of intent because section 1 [87-1-241] requires the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to adopt rules establishing its policy regarding wildlife habitat acquisitions provided for by this act.

It is the intent of this act to provide a means for the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to acquire an interest in land for the purpose of protecting and enhancing wildlife habitat. Such interest in land must be gained by the purchase of leases, conservation easements, or fee title. While it is preferable to acquire such interest through lease or conservation easement, the legislature acknowledges that the willing seller will determine the manner by which such interest is obtained and thus provides for all three alternatives.

It is intended that the rules will address policy considerations for making acquisitions generally, as well as establishing procedures for determining in each case of a proposed acquisition whether the interest will be acquired.

It is intended that the commission identify habitat needs by administrative region and compile these needs in a consolidated statewide habitat acquisition plan. The rules must ensure that acquired interests in habitat lands are reasonably distributed around the state in accordance with the statewide habitat acquisition plan and that emphasis is placed upon those areas where important habitat is seriously threatened.

It is intended that the department exercise good land management practices on all land acquired, and multiple uses of such land when not detrimental to its value as wildlife habitat are specifically authorized. The department shall identify management objectives for each proposed acquisition, analyze potential impacts to adjacent private land resulting from those objectives, and develop plans to address such impacts.

A public hearing must be held in the area of each proposed acquisition after the required analysis has been completed by the department, for the purpose of obtaining comment from the interested public. The analysis and related public concerns are to be presented to the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] prior to its final action on any acquisition of interest and also to the board of land commissioners if that body is required to make a decision on the proposal under 87-1-209.

The policy and an analysis for each proposal acted upon in a biennium must be presented to the members of both the house and senate fish and game committees when they next meet in regular session."

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 598, L. 1987, read: "WHEREAS, the lease or purchase of land suitable for wildlife habitat and the acquisition of conservation easements to protect and enhance habitat are necessary; and

WHEREAS, allocating revenue from increases in hunting license fees is appropriate to fund the protection and enhancement of wildlife habitat."

2001 Amendment: Chapter 7 in (1)(i) after "Class AAA" substituted "combination sports" for "sportsman's". Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, amended sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 459 to March 1, 2006.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in version effective March 1, 1996, in (2) inserted variable pricing exception; deleted former (4)(a) that read: "(a) Until March 1, 1991, 20% of the money allocated by this section must be credited to the account created by 87-1-601(5) for use in the manner prescribed therein for the development and maintenance of real property used for wildlife habitat"; in (4), at beginning, deleted "On and after March 1, 1991"; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996, and terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 241, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, the lease or purchase of land suitable for wildlife habitat and the acquisition of conservation easements to protect and enhance habitat are necessary; and

WHEREAS, the program instituted by the 1987 Legislature to allocate revenue from increased hunting license fees to fund the protection and enhancement of wildlife habitat has proved to be an effective and valuable tool in maintaining the quality of wildlife habitat in Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interests of the people and the wildlife of the State of Montana to continue the wildlife habitat acquisition program on a permanent basis.”

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

1991 Amendment: At beginning of (4)(a) inserted “Until March 1, 1991”; and inserted (4)(b) reallocating 20% of the money collected under this section for development and maintenance of real property used for wildlife habitat. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 319, L. 1991, provided: “WHEREAS, wildlife is a major historical, social, and economic resource of Montana; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interests of the people, the wildlife, and the State of Montana to have a permanent wildlife habitat and conservation easement acquisition program; and

WHEREAS, sportsmen and others have demonstrated their commitment to wildlife by supporting, through license fees, the acquisition of wildlife habitat; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide significant habitat for Montana’s wildlife resources and have legitimate concerns regarding the operation and maintenance of neighboring lands acquired by the Fish and Game Commission [now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission] for wildlife habitat; and

WHEREAS, it is in the best interests of the people, the wildlife, and the State of Montana that relations between landowners and sportsmen be cooperative and mutually respectful in nature and that the concerns of both landowners and sportsmen be taken into consideration in the formulation of a wildlife habitat and conservation easement acquisition program; and

WHEREAS, an independent and detailed study is needed to determine the character and application of the state’s permanent wildlife habitat and conservation easement acquisition program.”

Study Required — Report to 1993 Legislature: Section 2, Ch. 319, L. 1991, provided: “(1) The department of fish, wildlife, and parks shall commission an independent comprehensive study of wildlife habitat acquisition, improvement, and development, to be funded in an amount up to $150,000 from money allocated under 87-1-242(3).

(2) The study must analyze the department’s current wildlife habitat acquisition, improvement, operations, maintenance, and development program and develop a comprehensive plan for a permanent wildlife habitat acquisition, improvement, operations, maintenance, development, and land management program, including the use of conservation easements, leases, and fee title acquisition. The study must also include a comprehensive and detailed accounting of expenditures authorized by 87-1-242(4). The department shall ensure participation by the public, including landowners and sportsmen, in the development of the comprehensive plan. The study and plan must be completed by December 1, 1992, and presented to the 1993 legislature.”

Effective Date — Contingent Retroactive Applicability: Section 4, Ch. 319, L. 1991, provided: “[This act] is effective on passage and approval and, if passed and approved on or after March 1, 1991, applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to funds allocated under 87-1-242(4) on and after March 1, 1991.” Approved April 2, 1991.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

Coordination Instruction: Section 11, Ch. 598, L. 1987, a coordination section, in (1)(a) substituted $77 for $100; in (1)(i) substituted $7 for $9; and inserted (1)(j) relating to the Class B-11 license.

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons.”

1995 Statement of Intent: “A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program.”

2001 Amendment: Chapter 196 in (1) in first sentence after “hunters” inserted “anglers” and after “hunting access enhancement program” inserted “the fishing access enhancement program”; in (2)(a) substituted reference to 58th legislature for reference to 57th legislature; inserted (2)(b) concerning report regarding success of fishing access enhancement program; and in two places in (3) inserted “and the fishing access enhancement program”. Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 544 in first sentence in (1) after “interested” substituted “in issues related to hunters, landowners, and outfitters, including but not limited to the hunting access enhancement program, landowner-hunter relations, outfitting industry issues” for “in the hunter management program, the hunting access enhancement program” and after “wildlife” deleted “to review the success and progress of the hunter management program and the hunting access enhancement program”, in second sentence substituted “broad representation” for “equal representation” and after “sportspersons” deleted “and be broadly representative of the various geographical areas of the state”, and in third sentence substituted “assist” for “facilitate the efforts of”; in first sentence in (2) after “governor” inserted “and to the 57th legislature”, after “success” substituted “of various elements of” for “of the hunter management program and”, and after “program” inserted language regarding reporting of annual participation, number of enrolled acres, harvest success, qualified applicants, and accounting for “including a report of annual landowner participation and the number of acres annually enrolled in the programs”, in second sentence after “improvement” inserted “needed to achieve the objectives”, and deleted former third sentence that read: “If the review committee determines that expanding funding for programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement is desirable, consideration must be given to providing the expanded funding through increases in resident hunting license fees”; inserted (3) authorizing director to appoint additional advisory committees; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1999.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, amended sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 459 to March 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: “WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage; and

It is the intent of the legislature that in its initial rulemaking process, the commission utilize an advisory committee, including representatives of hunting and fishing organizations, outfitters, and landowners, to make recommendations regarding the structure of nonresident hunting licenses as authorized by this bill. It is also the intent of the legislature that commission rules not authorize more nonresident elk and deer hunters than are prescribed by current law."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 267 inserted (3) authorizing Commission to adopt rules.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 267, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a long and cherished hunting tradition; and

WHEREAS, as with other traditions Montana's hunting heritage will persevere through its passage from one generation to the next; and

WHEREAS, it is fitting that the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission, as the regulating body for state hunting regulations, be granted the specific authority to encourage this hunting heritage for Montana's youth through the establishment of special youth licenses or permits, seasons, conditions, or programs."

1991 Amendment: Inserted (2) giving Commission authority to adopt rules regarding use of archery equipment for hunting and fishing.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 22, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-1-301(2) grants to the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] the authority to adopt rules regarding the use and type of archery equipment that may be employed for hunting and fishing purposes. It is intended that this authority be permissive rather than mandatory in order to allow but not require the commission to address any need for restrictions or limitations on archery equipment, with adequate opportunity for public hearing and comment. The legislature is aware that this rulemaking power is expressed in broad and general language; however, this is necessary because bow hunting technology is an emerging field for which detailed and precise standards have not yet been fully developed. The legislature recognizes that the commission has the power to determine the extent and nature of hunting and fishing privileges and that the commission's expertise makes it the proper forum for addressing the need for archery equipment regulation."

Seasonal Rules Adopted Annually: Section 2-4-102 excludes from the Montana Administrative Procedure Act seasonal rules adopted annually relating to hunting, fishing, and trapping if the rules are published in accordance with statutory requirements. Section 87-1-202 sets out those requirements. Although the rules do not appear in the Administrative Register of Montana, they are published and copies are available in state and regional offices of the Department.

Case Notes

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Permissible Exercise of Authority of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission: It is not necessary that state fish and game laws specifically mention Indian hunting rights in order for the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission to have proper authority to promulgate a regulation that recognizes those rights under state law, nor is it necessary that the Commission be directed by legislative intent, studies, or committee minutes specific to the issue in order to recognize Indian hunting rights. In promulgating hunting regulations, the Commission must take 87-1-228 into account, which explicitly recognizes tribal hunting rights on the Flathead Indian Reservation, as well as federal court decisions regarding the issue of jurisdiction to regulate hunting on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Thus, the Commission properly exercised its authority in prohibiting hunting by nontribal members on reservations. Here, Shook, who was not a tribal member, was convicted of killing a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook's conviction did not conflict with 87-1-305. Further, 18 U.S.C. 1165, which gives tribes exclusive jurisdiction to regulate hunting on reservations, did not apply to Shook because the violation was charged under state rather than federal law. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. St., 750 F. Supp. 446 (1990).

Summary of Holdings in Litigation Over Hunting and Fishing Rights on Crow Indian Reservation: "The explicit holdings of the Supreme Court in Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. 544, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981), and of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. State of Montana, 604 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. 1979), to the extent not reversed by the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. The Crow Tribe can proscribe all hunting and fishing by non-members on those lands described in 18 U.S.C. §1165. Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

2. The Crow Tribe, within 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands, has power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the tribe (whether Indian or non-Indian) subject to the following conditions:

(a) That the Crow Tribe lacks the power to impose criminal sanctions on non-Indians who violate its hunting and fishing regulations,

(b) That the exercise by the Crow Tribe of its power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-Indians must be within the constraints recognized by this court in Quechan Tribe of Indians v. Rowe, 531 F.2d 408 (9th Cir. 1976). Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254; United States v. Montana, 604 F.2d at 1165, 1170.

3. The title to the bed and banks of the Big Horn is in the State of Montana. 450 U.S. at 556-57, 101 S.Ct. at 1253-54.

4. The Crow Tribe has no power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members on non-member owned fee patent land located within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation. Id. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

5. The State of Montana cannot regulate hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe within 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands. 604 F.2d at 1172.

6. The State of Montana has the power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the Crow Tribe within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation subject to the following limitations:

(a) That such regulations of the State of Montana not regulate indirectly the hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe on 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands.

(b) That such regulations of the State of Montana must have as their purpose the conservation and proper management of game and fish and not to discriminate against, nor to impede, authorized regulation by the Crow Tribe. Id. at 1166.

7. Such rights as the State of Montana has to regulate fishing on the Big Horn River by the Crows and all others are not limited by either (a) the treaties of 1851 and 1868 (except to such extent as these treaties might acknowledge pertinent aboriginal title rights of the Crow Tribe not heretofore asserted or recognized in this litigation) or (b) the inherent sovereignty of the Crow Tribe. 604 F.2d at 1170-71." Tribal Regulation of Flathead Lake Usage: Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation have authority to regulate federal common-law riparian rights of non-Indians who own reservation land bordering the south half of Flathead Lake. The Circuit Court held that the decision in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544, 67 L Ed 2d 493, 101 S Ct 1245 (1981), regarding ownership and control of the Bighorn River, was not controlling. The decision in Mont. Power Co. v. Rochester, 127 F2d 189 (9th Cir. 1942), was given deference under the principle of stare decisis. Rochester held that the United States holds title to the bed and banks of the south half of Flathead Lake in trust for the tribes. *Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation v. 1999 Amendment: Chapter 569 in (2) in second sentence after "public safety" inserted "public welfare", after "property" inserted "and public resources", and after "motor-driven boats" inserted "the operation of personal watercraft, the resolution of conflicts between users of motorized and nonmotorized boats"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective June 1, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 569, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana waters will experience a great increase in traffic by recreationists celebrating the bicentennial of the Lewis and Clark expedition and retracing the routes of the famous explorers; and

WHEREAS, the increased recreational use of Montana waters by every manner of recreationist, motorized as well as nonmotorized users, has led to a corresponding increase in conflicts between river users; and

WHEREAS, in other states, conflicts between recreational users of waters have escalated to the point of violence and even deaths of recreationists; and

WHEREAS, the use of personal watercraft has grown immensely in Montana, and the irresponsible use of personal watercraft conflicts with the ability of lakeshore cabin owners and homeowners to enjoy their pursuit of happiness through peaceful relaxation; and

WHEREAS, it is in the interests of public health, safety, welfare, and protection of property that measures be taken in Montana to reduce potential conflicts between recreational users of Montana waters before this state experiences similar problems."

Case Notes

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Not Violative of Equal Protection Guarantee: Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission regulations limited hunting on Indian reservations to tribal members only. Shook, who was not a tribal member, killed a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook did not own the property, nor was the property owned by a tribal member. Shook was convicted of hunting in a closed area and appealed on grounds that the closure was an unconstitutional violation of equal protection because it distinguished between tribal and nontribal members on the basis of race. The state and tribes countered that laws that distinguish between persons based on tribal membership have long been held constitutional because the distinction is political rather than racial. The District Court agreed with the state and the tribes, and the Supreme Court affirmed. As set out in Morton v. Mancari, 417 US 535 (1974), laws that afford special treatment for Indians are constitutional as long as those laws can be rationally tied to the fulfillment of the unique federal obligation toward Indians. Federal Indian law is binding on the state; therefore, the state constitutional equal protection guarantee must allow for state classifications based on tribal membership if those classifications can be rationally tied to the governmental obligation toward Indians. The state has a duty to regulate hunting by nontribal members in a way that recognizes Indian hunting privileges protected by federal law; thus, the regulation was an entirely rational way for the state to fulfill that duty by preserving wildlife populations for hunting by Indians and was not violative of equal protection guarantees. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002).

Closure to Nontribal Member of Big Game Hunting on Indian Reservation Permissible Exercise of Authority of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission: It is not necessary that state fish and game laws specifically mention Indian hunting rights in order for the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission to have proper authority to promulgate a regulation that recognizes those rights under state law, nor is it necessary that the Commission be directed by legislative intent, studies, or committee minutes specific to the issue in order to recognize Indian hunting rights. In promulgating hunting regulations, the Commission must take 87-1-228 into account, which explicitly recognizes tribal hunting rights on the Flathead Indian Reservation, as well as federal court decisions regarding the issue of jurisdiction to regulate hunting on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Thus, the Commission properly exercised its authority in prohibiting hunting by nontribal members on reservations. Here, Shook, who was not a tribal member, was convicted of killing a whitetail buck on private property on the Flathead Indian Reservation. Shook's conviction did not conflict with 87-1-305. Further, 18 U.S.C. 1165, which gives tribes exclusive jurisdiction to regulate hunting on reservations, did not apply to Shook because the violation was charged under state rather than federal law. St. v. Shook, 2002 MT 347, 313 M 347, 61 P3d 863 (2002). See also State ex rel. Greely v. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes, 219 M 76, 712 P2d 754 (1985), and Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes v. St., 750 F. Supp. 446 (1990).

Drawing for Licenses: The literal language of section 26-104(15), R.C.M. 1947 (repealed in 1973), did not require that the application process to receive a permit to hunt elk be fulfilled by one personally present at the drawing; rather it merely required that the drawing be held at a particular town. State ex rel. Jones v. District Court, 158 M 67, 488 P2d 1141 (1971).

Seasons on Indian Reservation: Conviction of non-Indian for killing two bull elk on Crow Indian Reservation during season closed by state fish and game laws was not in conflict with act of Congress providing penalty for trespass to possessory rights of reservation Indians or in conflict with The Enabling Act providing that Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of Congress of United States. State ex rel. Nepstad v. Danielson, 149 M 438, 427 P2d 689 (1967), followed in U.S. v. Sanford, 547 F2d 1089 (9th Cir. 1976).

Commission Empowered to Lengthen Hunting Season: A temporary order restraining the State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) from putting into effect its order lengthening the hunting season on elk in a certain locality, thus modifying the law on fixing of seasons, was improper since under section 26-104, R.C.M. 1947, declaring prior to amendment that the statutes governing "such subjects" should continue in force and effect except as altered or modified by the rules and regulations of the Commission, the Legislature so empowered the Commission, amounting to modification of existing statutes. State ex rel. Fish & Game Comm'n v. District Court, 107 M 289, 84 P2d 798 (1938).

District Court Bound by Factual Findings of Board of Personnel Appeals — Wrongful Discharge — Reinstatement — No Backpay: An employee of the state was discharged from employment because he used a state-owned vehicle for private purposes. He appealed the decision of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, and the Board of Personnel Appeals ruled that though his discharge was properly justified, the Department had never adopted a policy regarding such use of vehicles and had not punished similar usage; thus, the discharge was wrongful and he was entitled to reinstatement. He was offered a substantially equivalent position but appealed the Board's denial of backpay and benefits and, upon losing the District Court appeal, pursued the issues before the Supreme Court. The court upheld the District Court on all issues, observing that both courts were bound by factual findings of the Board and stipulations by the parties. The District Court was not obligated to hold a hearing on the facts. Hutchin v. St., 213 M 15, 688 P2d 1257, 41 St. Rep. 1916 (1984).

Removal of Employee:

Under this section's former language, the State Fish and Game Director has the power of summary removal without prior charges, notice, or hearing. However, that power is subject to review and final action by the Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) if the employee demanded a hearing. *State ex rel. Ford v. Under former language, this section did not require that the Director hold a hearing before discharging an employee for cause but merely required that the employee have an opportunity for hearing before the Commission. *State ex rel. Authority of Game Warden to Approach Boat to Promote Safety — Particularized Suspicion Unnecessary: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden looked into the live well of Boyer's boat and in the process found unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer contended that the warden had initiated an investigatory stop without the requisite particularized suspicion of wrongdoing, as required in 46-5-401, and that the evidence was therefore unlawfully seized. The Supreme Court disagreed. The warden was acting within his express authority to enforce outdoor recreation laws, including the safety of persons and property connected with the use of watercraft, and thus the warden's approach of Boyer's boat was lawful. *St. v. Redundant Language Not Codified: The following language from section 26-107, R.C.M. 1947, was not codified in the MCA because it is redundant with 87-1-502: "State fish and game wardens employed and appointed by virtue of this act shall be persons who have an interest in protection, conservation and propagation of wildlife, game and fur-bearing animals, fish and game birds; they shall devote all of their time to their official duties." Case Notes

Game Warden May Reasonably Request Production of Hunting or Fishing License — Particularized Suspicion of Criminal Activity Inapplicable: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden was assured of Boyer's safety, but when Boyer told the warden that he had been fishing, the warden asked to see Boyer's fishing license. Boyer contended that the warden needed a particularized suspicion of wrongdoing to effectuate detention and the request for the license. However, under 87-2-109, it is unlawful to refuse to show one's fishing license upon demand, and the warden had authority under this section to request production of the license. In light of these provisions, the Supreme Court declined to imply a particularized suspicion into the statutes, holding that a game warden may request production of a hunting or fishing license when circumstances reasonably indicate that an individual has been engaged in those activities. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Particularized Suspicion of Wrongdoing Not Required for Game Warden to Step on Boat Transom in Effort to Inspect Angler's Catch When Reasonable Suspicion Exists for Investigatory Stop: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden discovered that Boyer was fishing and asked to see Boyer's license and catch. Boyer produced several fish, and the warden requested to see what else was in Boyer's live well. Boyer suggested that the warden could look later when Boyer came to shore, but the warden declined, and after tethering the boats together, the warden stepped onto the transom of Boyer's boat to look into the open live well, and found several unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer suggested that the warden's act of stepping onto the boat transom constituted an illegal search in violation of Boyer's reasonable expectation of privacy. The Supreme Court disagreed. Boyer had no legitimate expectation of privacy in the rear platform of his boat, and the act of stepping on the transom—an exterior platform readily accessible to the public—did not constitute a search. The nature of the intrusion was so minimal as not to violate any privacy expectation that Boyer might have had. Whether or not probable cause existed at that point was irrelevant, because Boyer's behavior gave the warden a reasonable suspicion that an offense had occurred, and it is the presence of reasonable suspicion that allowed the warden to proceed with the investigative stop. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002), distinguishing St. v. Elison, 2000 MT 288, 302 M 228, 14 P3d 456 (2000).

Consent to Improper Tagging: Any consent given by Game Warden to illegal tagging of killed elk would be outside scope of authority and would have no effect whatever in law. State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

WHEREAS, wardens of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks have authority under section 37-47-345, MCA, to enforce violations of Title 37, chapter 47, MCA, relating to outfitters and guides, and this authority should be clearly provided in Title 87, MCA; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature intends that costs to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks related to enforcement of Title 37, chapter 47, MCA, by wardens of the Department be funded from the fees that are collected by the Board of Outfitters and transferred to the Department through memorandums of understanding or other agreements."

1983 Amendment: Inserted (7) relating to enforcement of disorderly conduct and public nuisance laws as applied to motorboat use.

Case Notes

No Reasonable Expectation of Privacy in Possession of Game Fish — Probable Cause Not Required for Game Warden's Inspection of Angler's Concealed Catch: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden approached the watercraft. When informed that Boyer had been fishing, the warden asked to see Boyer's license and catch. After Boyer requested a later inspection, he reluctantly exhibited eight fish. At that point, the warden looked into the live well of Boyer's boat, and in the process found unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer contended that the warden needed probable cause to believe that Boyer had committed a violation at the time that the request was made in order to inspect his catch, and that conducting a warrantless search of Boyer's live well was impermissible. The Supreme Court noted that under the Montana Constitution, an impermissible search occurs only when a reasonable expectation of privacy exists. To determine whether the warden unlawfully intruded into Boyer's privacy, the court considered: (1) whether Boyer had an actual expectation of privacy; (2) whether society was willing to recognize that expectation as objectively reasonable; and (3) the nature of the state's intrusion (see St. v. Bassett, 1999 MT 109, 294 M 327, 982 P2d 410 (1999)). The court concluded that Boyer's subjective expectation of privacy in his catch was not one that society would recognize as reasonable. Under Art. IX, sec. 1, Mont. Const., the state must maintain a clean and healthful environment, and the Legislature has provided for game wardens to enforce the environmental laws regarding fish and game by implementing a system that includes the ability of wardens to inspect game in the field, which encompasses proper licensing and game limitation requirements. In this capacity, wardens act as public trustees protecting and conserving Montana wildlife and habitat for all citizens. Fishing is a privilege accorded by the state, not a private right, and anglers must assume the burdens of the sport, as well as its benefits, and acknowledge the prospect of at least some governmental intrusion into their activities, including license checks, inquiries about game taken, and requests to inspect game in the field. Because Boyer had no reasonable expectation of privacy in his catch, the warden's request for and inspection of the catch was not considered a search, so probable cause was not necessary. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Particularized Suspicion of Wrongdoing Not Required for Game Warden to Step on Boat Transom in Effort to Inspect Angler's Catch When Reasonable Suspicion Exists for Investigatory Stop: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden discovered that Boyer was fishing and asked to see Boyer's license and catch. Boyer produced several fish, and the warden requested to see what else was in Boyer's live well. Boyer suggested that the warden could look later when Boyer came to shore, but the warden declined, and after tethering the boats together, the warden stepped onto the transom of Boyer's boat to look into the open live well, and found several unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer suggested that the warden's act of stepping onto the boat transom constituted an illegal search in violation of Boyer's reasonable expectation of privacy. The Supreme Court disagreed. Boyer had no legitimate expectation of privacy in the rear platform of his boat, and the act of stepping on the transom—an exterior platform readily accessible to the public—did not constitute a search. The nature of the intrusion was so minimal as not to violate any privacy expectation that Boyer might have had. Whether or not probable cause existed at that point was irrelevant, because Boyer's behavior gave the warden a reasonable suspicion that an offense had occurred, and it is the presence of reasonable suspicion that allowed the warden to proceed with the investigative stop. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002), distinguishing St. v. Elison, 2000 MT 288, 302 M 228, 14 P3d 456 (2000).

Forfeiture of Game Properly Applied in Case of Waste of Mountain Goat: Defendant was convicted of wasting game contrary to the provisions of 87-3-102. He contended that it was improper to impose a penalty of forfeiture of the head, cape, and horns of the mountain goat he killed legally. Having failed to comply with the requirement that he not waste the meat, defendant was subject to the game warden's authority under this section to seize any parts of the animal. Imposition of forfeiture was not contrary to law. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

Confiscation of Illegally Killed Game: Illegally killed elk, tagged improperly in that one tag was not punched on month and day of kill and other was not filled in with name and address of hunter and county of kill, were subject to confiscation by State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission). State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

FISHING, HUNTING, AND TRAPPING LICENSES

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in Baldwin v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 436 US 371, 56 L Ed 2d 354, 98 S Ct 1852 (1978).

Tagging Game Killed by Another: Tagging of game animal that someone else has killed or so far brought under control that one can walk up to it and cut its throat is not method of acquiring ownership contemplated by statute authorizing licensed hunter to pursue, hunt, shoot, and kill game animal and then to possess carcass with result that person tagging illegally killed elk is not entitled to possession. State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

General Provisions

87-2-101. Definitions.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 84 in definition of game fish inserted "the species perca flavescens (yellow perch); all species of the genus pomoxis (crappie)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 20, 2003.

Chapter 499 in definition of migratory game birds at end deleted "however, the open season on mourning doves is restricted to the open season on upland game birds as defined in subsection (15)"; in definition of upland game birds deleted "quail" and before "pheasant" inserted "ring-necked"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 2003.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in introductory clause inserted "and 87-1-102"; substituted definition of angling for former definition that read: "'Angling" or "fishing" means the taking of or attempting to take fish by hook and single line or single rod, in hand or within immediate control"; inserted definitions of bait, hunt, and trap; adjusted internal references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 417, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

1991 Name Change: Section 2, Ch. 28, L. 1991, directed the Code Commissioner to change the name of the Fish and Game Commission to the Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission wherever the name appears in the MCA. Accordingly, the name was changed in this section as directed.

1985 Amendment: In (5) at end, after "bear", inserted "and wild buffalo".

1983 Amendment: In (7), inserted last clause relating to mourning doves and open season on mourning doves.

Administrative Action Required: Section 2, Ch. 46, L. 1979, provided: "It is the intent of this legislature that the department of fish and game take the necessary administrative action to remove lynx, northern swift fox, and wolverine from the listing of nongame species in need of management."

Severability: Section 19, Ch. 478, L. 1979, was a severability clause.

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 44, Ch. 46, and Ch. 478, L. 1979, and a composite was prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Chapter 478 added "Canada lynx" to the definition of "fur-bearing animals" in subsection (4), and Ch. 46 added "lynx" to that definition. The Ch. 46 language was chosen because it is more general and incorporates the additions intended by both Ch. 478 and Ch. 46.

87-2-102. Resident defined.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 60 inserted (1)(b) pertaining to residency status of a Montana resident with respect to a hunting, fishing, or trapping license if the resident is a member of the armed forces and obtains a resident hunting, fishing, or trapping license in another state; in (2) before "hunting" inserted "resident"; in (2)(d) at beginning inserted exception clause; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 16, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 499 in (1)(b) substituted "proof of completion of a hunter safety course approved by the department" for "proof of competency". Amendment effective July 1, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1)(b), near middle of first sentence before "of competency", substituted "proof" for "a certificate"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in (1)(b), near beginning after "currently", inserted "stationed in and", inserted third sentence concerning reassignment, and inserted fourth sentence concerning designation in armed forces record; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) A person who has been a resident of the state of Montana for a period of 6 months immediately prior to making application for a license is eligible to receive a resident hunting, fishing, or trapping license. A person is considered a resident if the person meets the following criteria"; inserted (2) concerning primary home or abode for 180 consecutive days; inserted (3) requiring continuing residence for 120 days a year; inserted (4) concerning additional criteria; substituted (4)(a) concerning primary home for former text that read: "the person lives in Montana or has a fixed intent to return to this state when the person leaves it"; in (4)(d), near beginning, substituted "possess or apply for" for "use", after "trapping" inserted "licenses from another state or country or exercise resident hunting, fishing, or trapping", and at end deleted "during the time the resident Montana license is valid"; inserted (5) concerning students; inserted (9) concerning disqualifying factors for residency; inserted (10) providing that license agent is not a representative of state; adjusted internal references; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendments: Chapter 219 in (1)(b), at end of first sentence, inserted reference to certificate of competency or other certificate. Amendment effective March 1, 1994.

Chapter 589 substituted (1) concerning determination of residency for member of armed forces or a dependent for former text that read: "Members of the regular armed forces of the United States or members of the armed forces of foreign governments attached to the armed forces of the United States who are assigned to active duty in Montana and their dependents, as defined in 15-30-113, who reside in their Montana household with them, after a period of 30 days within Montana, upon presenting assignment orders emanating from the proper unit commander, are considered residents for the purpose of this chapter. The 30-day residence requirement is waived in time of war"; substituted (5) concerning residency of an unmarried minor for former text that read: "An unmarried minor whose parents, legal guardian, or custodial parent is a resident for purposes of this section is also considered a resident for purposes of this section"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1993.

1991 Amendment: In (1), near beginning of first sentence before "armed forces", inserted "regular", near middle, before "duty", inserted "active", and after "dependents" inserted reference to 15-30-113; in (2), near beginning of first sentence after "Montana", deleted "as defined in 1-1-215" and inserted (2)(a) through (2)(e) establishing criteria for determining residency; in (4), near beginning after "person", substituted "who does not reside in Montana but who meets" for "meeting"; inserted (5) regarding residency of unmarried minors; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1985 Amendment: Inserted (4) regarding criteria by which a nonresident may be considered a resident for hunting and fishing licensing purposes.

1983 Amendment: In middle of (1), substituted "their dependents who reside in their Montana household with them" for "members of their immediate families".

Case Notes

Residency Requirements for Obtaining Hunting or Fishing License Not Unconstitutionally Vague: Britton was charged in Justice's Court with various hunting license-related crimes, but moved for dismissal on grounds that Montana's residency laws are so vague as to violate due process. The motion was denied. Following conviction, Britton asserted in District Court that this section, defining residency for hunting and fishing license purposes, is vague because other statutes define residency differently for purposes such as voting, dissolution of marriage, college attendance, and taxation. The District Court held that fish and game residency requirements are neither vague nor ambiguous and affirmed the Justice's Court conviction. On appeal, Britton asserted that the various statutory definitions of residency might confuse a person of ordinary intelligence and operate as a trap for the innocent. However, the Supreme Court affirmed, noting that the other statutory residency provisions to which Britton referred clearly provide that those provisions are for specific acts or purposes other than obtaining a hunting license and that it strained credulity to suggest that a person of ordinary intelligence would be confused into thinking that any of those statutes define residency for the purpose of obtaining a hunting license. Britton failed to establish that the residency requirements for obtaining a hunting or fishing license are facially unconstitutional on vagueness grounds. St. v. Britton, 2001 MT 141, 306 M 24, 30 P3d 337 (2001).

False Affirmation of Six-Month Residency Requirement Distinct From Constitutionality of Residency Requirement: Still falsely affirmed on his applications for hunting licenses that he had been a resident of the state for 6 months. The Supreme Court declined to address the constitutionality of the residency requirement imposed by this section because Still violated 87-2-106, a separate statute. The Supreme Court held that if Still wanted to challenge the constitutionality of the residency requirement, he should have filled out the application truthfully and then challenged the subsequent denial of the license. St. v. Still, 273 M 261, 902 P2d 546, 52 St. Rep. 965 (1995).

"Resident" Requirement for Hunting, Fishing, or Trapping License Not Unconstitutionally Vague: After the state filed charges against appellants for making false statements concerning residency in order to obtain hunting licenses, appellants filed an action, claiming that the residency statute is unconstitutionally vague. Upholding the statute, the Supreme Court ruled that the fact that the statute may be difficult to apply does not render it unconstitutionally vague. Monroe v. St., 265 M 1, 873 P2d 230, 51 St. Rep. 327 (1994), followed, as to difficulty in the application insufficient to render the statute unconstitutional, in St. v. Stanko, 1998 MT 323, 292 M 214, 974 P2d 1139, 55 St. Rep. 1313 (1998).

Attorney General's Opinions

Out-of-State Employment as Affecting Eligibility for Resident License: A Montana resident who has resided in state 6 months or more but who is absent from the state by reason of employment prior to application for a resident fish and game license does not lose his residence by being employed out of state and need not reside 6 continuous months after his return to be eligible for a resident license. 27 A.G. Op. 27 (1957). (Annotator's note: See 1995 amendment, which attempted to clarify criteria for residency by a person who has established residency but who may not physically reside in the state more than 120 days a year.)

1993 Amendment: Chapter 49 at beginning of (1) inserted exception clause; inserted (2) regarding nonlicensure of companion of disabled hunter who assists in taking a wounded game animal; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 18, 1993.

Case Notes

Three-Year Statute of Limitations Reasonable for Prosecution of Misdemeanor Fish and Game Violations — Equal Protection and Due Process Not Violated: Defendant was charged with five misdemeanor fish and game and outfitter violations that occurred nearly 2 years earlier. Although misdemeanor violations must generally be charged within 1 year, 45-1-205(5) and (6) allow charges for misdemeanor fish and game crimes to be brought within 3 years of violation. Defendant contended that the extended statute of limitations for charging fish and game crimes violated equal protection and due process guarantees. The District Court reviewed the legislative history of 45-1-205(5) and (6) and concluded that the extended statute of limitations served a reasonable relation to the proper legislative purpose of protecting wildlife and that in order to effectively enforce fish and game laws, additional time to discover and investigate fish and game violations was warranted. The Supreme Court agreed. A separate class of misdemeanors for fish and game violations did not violate equal protection because all persons who commit such crimes are in a similarly situated class and subject to the same treatment. Further, because fish and game and outfitter violations sometimes require investigation over several hunting seasons and involve perpetrators who reside out of state, an extended statute of limitations is a reasonable exercise of the state's legitimate police power in preserving wildlife and does not violate substantive due process. St. v. Egdorf, 2003 MT 264, 317 M 436, 77 P3d 517 (2003).

Taking Elk Without Valid License — Consent Defense Invalid: Undercover government agents did not consent to defendant's shooting of elk without a valid Montana hunting license when they provided defendant with a false hunting license. Defendant did not know that the persons who provided him the license were government agents but did know that he was shooting elk without a valid license. Defendant's proposed consent instruction improperly propounded a theory akin to entrapment without stating the proper elements of entrapment and was correctly disallowed. U.S. v. Heuer, 916 F2d 1557 (9th Cir. 1990).

Case Notes

Residency Requirements for Obtaining Hunting or Fishing License Not Unconstitutionally Vague: Britton was charged in Justice's Court with various hunting license-related crimes, but moved for dismissal on grounds that Montana's residency laws are so vague as to violate due process. The motion was denied. Following conviction, Britton asserted in District Court that 87-2-102, defining residency for hunting and fishing license purposes, is vague because other statutes define residency differently for purposes such as voting, dissolution of marriage, college attendance, and taxation. The District Court held that fish and game residency requirements are neither vague nor ambiguous and affirmed the Justice's Court conviction. On appeal, Britton asserted that the various statutory definitions of residency might confuse a person of ordinary intelligence and operate as a trap for the innocent. However, the Supreme Court affirmed, noting that the other statutory residency provisions to which Britton referred clearly provide that those provisions are for specific acts or purposes other than obtaining a hunting license and that it strained credulity to suggest that a person of ordinary intelligence would be confused into thinking that any of those statutes define residency for the purpose of obtaining a hunting license. Britton failed to establish that the residency requirements for obtaining a hunting or fishing license are facially unconstitutional on vagueness grounds. St. v. Britton, 2001 MT 141, 306 M 24, 30 P3d 337 (2001).

False Affirmation of Six-Month Residency Requirement Distinct From Constitutionality of Residency Requirement: Still falsely affirmed on his applications for hunting licenses that he had been a resident of the state for 6 months. The Supreme Court declined to address the constitutionality of the residency requirement imposed by 87-2-102 because Still violated this section, a separate statute. The Supreme Court held that if Still wanted to challenge the constitutionality of the residency requirement, he should have filled out the application truthfully and then challenged the subsequent denial of the license. St. v. Still, 273 M 261, 902 P2d 546, 52 St. Rep. 965 (1995).

Bear Killed Unlawfully — State Prosecution Barred: Defendant was charged in state District Court for subscribing to a materially false statement on an application for a grizzly bear trophy license and was charged and convicted in federal District Court for violating the Endangered Species Act for taking the same trophy. The federal court and the state court have concurrent jurisdiction, and the state prosecution is barred as it is based on an offense arising out of the same transaction as the federal charge. St. v. Sword, 229 M 370, 747 P2d 206, 44 St. Rep. 2053 (1987), distinguishing St. v. Pierce, 199 M 57, 647 P2d 847 (1982), and Blockburger v. U.S., 284 US 299, 76 L Ed 306, 52 S Ct 180 (1932).

Refusal to Sell License — Liability: The Director (the Fish and Game Warden under former law) is not liable in damages for failure to sell fishing licenses to a particular person. Meinecke v. McFarland, 122 M 515, 206 P2d 1012 (1949).

Case Notes

Game Warden May Reasonably Request Production of Hunting or Fishing License — Particularized Suspicion of Criminal Activity Inapplicable: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden was assured of Boyer's safety, but when Boyer told the warden that he had been fishing, the warden asked to see Boyer's fishing license. Boyer contended that the warden needed a particularized suspicion of wrongdoing to effectuate detention and the request for the license. However, under this section, it is unlawful to refuse to show one's fishing license upon demand, and the warden had authority under 87-1-502 to request production of the license. In light of these provisions, the Supreme Court declined to imply a particularized suspicion into the statutes, holding that a game warden may request production of a hunting or fishing license when circumstances reasonably indicate that an individual has been engaged in those activities. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Application of Federal Lacey Act to Outfitting and Guiding — Statute of Limitations on Charges of Conspiracy: While a prosecution under the federal Lacey Act, 16 U.S.C. 3371, et seq., which prohibits transportation or acquisition in interstate commerce of wildlife in violation of state laws, may not properly be had for the substantive acts of selling guiding services and hunting permits, a prosecution can be maintained for conspiracies to violate the Act while providing outfitting and guiding services, such as arranging for out-of-state hunters to use elk licenses and permits belonging to other hunters, knowing that any elk taken would be transported out of state. The Act applied when evidence was sufficient to establish the involvement of defendant, a hunting guide and outfitter, in a conspiracy to transport elk in interstate commerce in violation of Montana law. Further, the 5-year "catchall" statute of limitations set out in 18 U.S.C. 3282 applied to charges of conspiring to violate the Act. *U.S. v. Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in *Baldwin v. 87-2-305. Navigable waters subject to fishing rights.Case Notes

Public Recreational Use Rights Statute — Constitutionality: Following Curran and Hildreth decisions (see below), which held that the public trust doctrine provides the public with a constitutional right to use the bed and banks of navigable streams up to the high-water mark despite a landowner's fee title, the Legislature enacted 23-2-302 providing public recreational use of streams. Plaintiff filed suit requesting the court to declare the recreational use statute an unconstitutional taking of private property without just compensation. Plaintiff then appealed after the trial court upheld the statute's constitutionality and awarded the state summary judgment. The Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional 23-2-302(2)(d), (2)(e), and (2)(f), which provided the public a right to hunt big game, build duck blinds and boat moorages, and camp overnight so long as not within sight of an occupied dwelling or within 500 yard of an occupied dwelling, whichever is less. The court further held as unconstitutional 23-2-311(3)(e), which required a landowner to pay costs of constructing a portage route around artificial barriers. The public has a right of use of the bed and banks up to the high-water mark but only such use as is necessary to utilization of the water itself. Any use of the bed and banks must be of minimal impact. Galt v. St., 225 M 142, 731 P2d 912, 44 St. Rep. 103 (1987).

Public Right to Use Beaverhead River for Recreational Purposes: Following the decision in Mont. Coalition for Stream Access v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984), the Supreme Court held that: (1) the Beaverhead River is navigable for recreational purposes and the public has a right to use its bed and banks up to the ordinary high-water mark with limited right to portage across private property in order to bypass barriers in the water; (2) determination of navigability for title is not necessary; (3) the public does not have the right to trespass over private property in order to reach the state-owned waters; and (4) plaintiff's action did not constitute inverse condemnation because public use of waters, rather than title, was determined. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Hildreth, 211 M 29, 684 P2d 1088, 41 St. Rep. 1192 (1984).

Determination of Public's Right to Use Dearborn River — Standing of Coalition of Citizens: In action for determination of the public's right to use the Dearborn River, whether the Montana Coalition for Stream Access, Inc., had standing to bring suit was immaterial because the Department of State Lands (now Department of Natural Resources and Conservation) and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks were also plaintiffs. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Determining Public's Right to Use Dearborn River — Indispensable Parties: Stream access coalition, the Department of State Lands (now Department of Natural Resources and Conservation), and the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks sued landowner along the Dearborn River, seeking a determination of the public's right to use the river. The District Court did not err for failure to dismiss the plaintiffs' claims for failure to join indispensable parties. When litigation seeks vindication of a public right, those who may be adversely affected by a decision do not thereby become indispensable parties. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Navigability for Title Purposes — Federal Test — Dearborn River Navigable: Federal law controlled the issue of whether the Dearborn River was, at the time Montana became a state, navigable for the purpose of determining title to its bed. Under federal law, rivers are navigable in law if they are navigable in fact, and they are navigable in fact if they were used or capable of being used, in their ordinary condition, as highways for commerce over which trade and travel were or could be conducted in the customary modes of trade and travel on the water at the time of the state's admission to the Union. Navigability in fact can be determined by using the log-floating test. That test was satisfied by evidence that in 1887, 2 years before Montana became a state, the Dearborn was used to float about 100,000 railroad ties and that in 1888 or 1889, one or two log drives a year were floated down the river, one of them containing 700,000 board feet. Title to the riverbed was thus in the federal government when Montana became a state in 1889 and was transferred to the State upon its admission to the Union. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Navigability for Title Purposes — Summary Judgment — Dearborn River: The District Court properly granted the coalition for stream access and two state departments summary judgment on the issue of navigability of the Dearborn River in 1889 for title purposes. The affidavits and depositions of plaintiffs' two competent historians were admissible because the historians were qualified experts who provided evidence of the history of the river, their affidavits and depositions disclosed circumstantial guarantees of trustworthiness, and the facts and data they relied on were of a type reasonably relied on by experts in their field; the facts and data did not themselves have to be admissible. The affidavits of defendant landowner's witnesses were worthless, were not admissible, and did not create any genuine issue of material fact concerning the navigability of the river at the time Montana became a state in 1889. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Public Recreational Use Rights on Dearborn River — Limits: Navigability for public use is governed by state law and is separate from the question of navigability under federal law for title purposes. The question is whether waters owned by the State under Art. IX, sec. 3(3), Mont. Const., are susceptible to recreational use by the public. The capability of use of the waters for recreational purposes determines the availability of the waters for recreational use by the public. Whether or not a private party owns the bed beneath the waters is irrelevant. The constitution and the Public Trust Doctrine bar a private party from interfering with the public's right to use of the surface of the waters owned by the State, and any surface waters that are capable of recreational use may be so used by the public without regard to streambed ownership or navigability for nonrecreational purposes. The public's recreational use right extends to the point of the high-water marks. The public does not have the right to cross over private property to reach waters upon which they have a recreational use right, though they may portage around barriers in the water in the least intrusive way possible, avoiding damage to any private property holder's rights. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Public Recreational Use of Dearborn River — No Inverse Condemnation: Landowner along Dearborn River was sued by parties seeking a determination of the public's right to use the river for recreational uses. Landowner counterclaimed for inverse condemnation, basing the counterclaim on his claim to ownership of the riverbed. The Supreme Court held that the question of title to the bed was irrelevant to determining navigability for use by the public; that landowner had no claim to the waters; that since there was no claim to the waters, nothing was taken and thus there was no ground for an inverse condemnation claim; and that consequently, the District Court did not err in dismissing the counterclaim. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Title to and Public Recreation on Dearborn River — Ex Post Facto, Contract Clause, and Irrevocable Privileged Considerations: The Supreme Court held that the State, not the landowner along the Dearborn River, held title to the bed of the river under the federal test of navigability (at the time Montana became a state) for purposes of determining title to the riverbed. The court also held that landowner had no right to exclude the public from recreational use of the waters of the Dearborn. Because of these holdings, landowner's questions relating to ex post facto laws, violation of the contract clause of the constitution, and irrevocable rights and privileges were not germane to the case. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Federal Commerce Clause Navigability Immaterial: In action for determination of the public's right to use the Dearborn River, whether Montana has adopted the log-floating test of commercial navigability and whether the Dearborn is navigable under the federal commercial use test were immaterial because the question was one of recreational use or navigability, not commercial navigability. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Title to and Public Use of Dearborn River — Subject Matter Jurisdiction Found: Landowner along the Dearborn River claimed the District Court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over action for determination of the public's right to use the river, basing his claim on the presumption that he held title to the riverbed and that the State had no power to strip him of that title under the guise of determining navigability of the waters over the riverbed. The claim lacked merit because the State holds title to the riverbed and the water flowing over it, so that there was no question of the District Court's subject matter jurisdiction. Mont. Coalition for Stream Access, Inc. v. Curran, 210 M 38, 682 P2d 163, 41 St. Rep. 906 (1984).

Summary of Holdings in Litigation Over Hunting and Fishing Rights on Crow Indian Reservation: "The explicit holdings of the Supreme Court in Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. 544, 101 S.Ct. 1245, 67 L.Ed.2d 493 (1981), and of the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. State of Montana, 604 F.2d 1162 (9th Cir. 1979), to the extent not reversed by the Supreme Court, are as follows:

1. The Crow Tribe can proscribe all hunting and fishing by non-members on those lands described in 18 U.S.C. §1165. Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

2. The Crow Tribe, within 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands, has power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the tribe (whether Indian or non-Indian) subject to the following conditions:

- (a) That the Crow Tribe lacks the power to impose criminal sanctions on non-Indians who violate its hunting and fishing regulations,

- (b) That the exercise by the Crow Tribe of its power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-Indians must be within the constraints recognized by this court in Quechan Tribe of Indians v. Rowe, 531 F.2d 408 (9th Cir. 1976). Montana v. United States, 450 U.S. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254; United States v. Montana, 604 F.2d at 1165, 1170.

3. The title to the bed and banks of the Big Horn is in the State of Montana. 450 U.S. at 556-57, 101 S.Ct. at 1253-54.

4. The Crow Tribe has no power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members on non-member owned fee patent land located within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation. Id. at 557, 101 S.Ct. at 1254.

5. The State of Montana cannot regulate hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe within 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands. 604 F.2d at 1172.

6. The State of Montana has the power to regulate hunting and fishing by non-members of the Crow Tribe within the exterior boundaries of the Crow Reservation subject to the following limitations:

- (a) That such regulations of the State of Montana not regulate indirectly the hunting and fishing by members of the Crow Tribe on 18 U.S.C. §1165 lands.

(b) That such regulations of the State of Montana must have as their purpose the conservation and proper management of game and fish and not to discriminate against, nor to impede, authorized regulation by the Crow Tribe. Id. at 1166.

7. Such rights as the State of Montana has to regulate fishing on the Big Horn River by the Crows and all others are not limited by either (a) the treaties of 1851 and 1868 (except to such extent as these treaties might acknowledge pertinent aboriginal title rights of the Crow Tribe not heretofore asserted or recognized in this litigation) or (b) the inherent sovereignty of the Crow Tribe. 604 F.2d at 1170-71." (Quoting from U.S. v. Mont., 686 F.2d 766 (9th Cir. 1982), at pp. 768-769.)

Tribal Regulation of Flathead Lake Usage: Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation have authority to regulate federal common-law riparian rights of non-Indians who own reservation land bordering the south half of Flathead Lake. The Circuit Court held that the decision in Mont. v. U.S., 450 US 544, 67 L Ed 2d 493, 101 S Ct 1245 (1981), regarding ownership and control of the Bighorn River, was not controlling. The decision in Mont. Power Co. v. Rochester, 127 F.2d 189 (9th Cir. 1942), was given deference under the principle of stare decisis. Rochester held that the United States holds title to the bed and banks of the south half of Flathead Lake in trust for the tribes. Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes of the Flathead Reservation v. Namen, 665 F.2d 951 (9th Cir. 1982), followed in In re Estate of Hobbs, 2002 MT 85, 309 M 308, 46 P3d 594 (2002).

substituted "and upon such terms as set forth by the commission but may not simultaneously possess a Class A-5 and a Class A-7 license in the same year" for "during the regular big game season as set forth by the commission", inserted second and third sentences requiring surrender of current Class A-5 license and issuance of Class A-7 license without cost if Class A-5 license is surrendered, at beginning of fourth sentence deleted "However", and in middle of fourth sentence, after "person", substituted "holding a Class A-7 antlerless elk tag may not take an elk" for "taking an antlerless elk as provided in this subsection may not take another elk".

1983 Amendment: Increased license fees as follows: Class A-3, deer A tag from $8 to $9; Class A-4, deer B tag from $5 to $6; Class A-5, elk tag from $9 to $10; and inserted (1)(e) and (2), creating Class A-7, antlerless elk tag.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 335 (Ch. 680, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for House Bill 335 because section 3 [87-2-501] provides that the Fish and Game Commission [now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission] will designate the areas in which surplus antlerless elk may be taken with a Class A-7 antlerless elk license. In addition, the Commission may set times during the regular big game season for the taking of surplus antlerless elk in designated areas."

The intent of the Class A-7 antlerless elk license is to provide the Commission with the option to issue antlerless elk licenses. The Commission would, with appropriate public comment, authorize antlerless elk licenses to be used in problem areas where additional antlerless elk need to be harvested. Class A-7 antlerless elk license holders would not be allowed to harvest a bull elk in the designated areas for the time period authorized by the Commission for the antlerless elk license.

The Class A-7 antlerless elk license would not replace the need for or use of the antlerless or either sex elk permits now in place. The Class A-7 antlerless elk license would provide additional flexibility for the Commission to deal with problems of surplus antlerless elk, particularly on private land."

1981 Amendment: Increased license fees as follows: Class A-3, deer A tag from "$7" to "$8"; Class A-5, elk tag from "$8" to "$9"; and Class A-6, bear tag from "$6" to "$8".

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 528 in (1)(a) near end substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks" for "fish and game"; in (1)(a)(i) increased license fee to $250; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2002.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 1, Ch. 21, L. 2001, repealed sec. 6, Ch. 355, L. 1997, which terminated the 1997 amendments to this section October 1, 2001. Effective February 19, 2001.

1999 Amendment: (Version effective October 1, 2000) Chapter 533 in (1)(a) after second "who" substituted "is" for "will be" and after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "prior to September 15 of"; in (1)(b) after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; and made minor changes in style. (Corresponding changes were made in later versions.) Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1997 Amendment: (Temporary version) Chapter 355 in (1)(a)(i) increased cost of Class B-7 deer tag from $150 to $175; in (1)(a)(ii) increased cost of Class B-8 deer tag from $50 to $75; in (1)(b), at end before "rules", substituted "commission" for "department"; in (2), in first sentence after "license", substituted "may" for "must", after "region or" inserted "regions or a", and after "administrative region" inserted "or regions or in a specific hunting district or districts or a portion of a specific hunting district or districts", in second sentence, after "state", inserted "except as provided in 87-2-512(1)(d)", and deleted third sentence that read: "Money received from the sale of Class B-7 licenses in excess of 1,700 must be used as provided in 87-1-242(1)"; inserted (3) allowing the Commission to set certain conditions on Class B-8 licenses; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 22, 1997, and terminates October 1, 2001.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 355, L. 1997, provided: "This bill establishes the authority of the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to modify, by rule, the structure of nonresident elk and deer licenses within the general framework established by law as needed for the effective management of big game animals. It is the intent of the legislature that in its initial rulemaking process, the commission utilize an advisory committee, including representatives of hunting and fishing organizations, outfitters, and landowners, to make recommendations regarding the structure of nonresident hunting licenses as authorized by this bill. It is also the intent of the legislature that commission rules not authorize more nonresident elk and deer hunters than are prescribed by current law."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 near end of first sentence, in clause following first list of licenses after "holder to", deleted "pursue" and after "hunt" deleted "shoot, and kill"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 417, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 458 near beginning of second sentence inserted "or B-11" and inserted sentence allowing B-7 license purchased as part of B-11 license to be used statewide. Amendment effective March 1, 1988.

Chapter 598 increased B-7 tag from $100 to $150 and inserted last two sentences limiting number of licenses sold and providing for use of money from sale. (Chapter 598 amendments terminate March 1, 1994.)

2003 Amendment: Chapter 201 inserted (3) concerning nonresident antlerless elk B tag license and setting fee for the license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: (Version effective March 1, 2002) Chapter 216 in (1) near middle of first sentence after "$475" inserted "plus the nonresident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(d)". Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

(Version effective March 1, 2002) Chapter 528 in (1) in first sentence increased fee from $475 to $625.

(Version effective March 1, 2006) In (1) substituted "fee of $550" for "fee of $398 or upon payment of the fee of $408 if the license is one of the 5,600 licenses reserved pursuant to 87-2-511 for applicants indicating their intent to use the services of a licensed outfitter"; and made minor changes in style.

(Versions effective March 1, 2002, and March 1, 2006) In (1) in first sentence substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks office" for "fish and game office".

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in (1) after second "who" substituted "is" for "will be", after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "prior to September 15 of", and after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; inserted (2) concerning unsuccessful nonresident in B-10 drawing; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 459 in version effective March 1, 1996, in first sentence, after “payment of the fee of”, deleted “$462 beginning March 1, 1992, and”, after “$475” deleted “beginning March 1, 1994”, substituted “established as provided in 87-1-268” for “of $472 beginning March 1, 1992, and $485 beginning March 1, 1994”, and before “licenses” deleted “5,600” and in second sentence substituted “11,500 unreserved” for “17,000”; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996, and terminates October 1, 2001.

Amendment Not Codified: The Code Commissioner has not codified the amendments to the version effective March 1, 2006. Section 18(1), Ch. 459, L. 1995, terminated the amendments on October 1, 2001, before the section became effective on March 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: “WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana’s hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons.”

1995 Statement of Intent: “A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program.”

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006.

1991 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 1992) In first sentence increased nonresident big game combination license fee from $450 to $462 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $475 beginning March 1, 1994, or to $472 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $485 beginning March 1,

1994, for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter and near end, after "Class B-7", deleted "and black bear"; and made minor change in style.

(Version effective March 1, 1996) In first sentence increased nonresident big game combination license fee from $373 to $398 or to $408 for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter and near end, after "Class B-7", deleted "and black bear"; and made minor change in style. Amendments effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 598 increased fee from $350 to $450 from March 1, 1988, to March 1, 1994.

Chapter 636 increased fee from $350 to $373.

1985 Amendment: Increased license fee from $300 to $350 effective March 1, 1986.

1983 Amendment: Increased license fee from $275 to $300 effective March 1, 1984.

1981 Amendment: Changed the fee from "$225" to "$275".

Case Notes

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under this section is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. (See 1999 amendment.) Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in *Baldwin v. Administrative Rules

ARM 12.6.301 Tagging of carcasses of game animals.

Case Notes

Failure to Keep Tag Attached to Animal Hide — Continuous Offense: Defendant argued that the statute of limitations on the misdemeanor offense of failing to keep a tag attached to a hide is 1 year under 45-1-205. However, the language of this section indicates that the offense continues as long as any considerable portion of the hide remains unconsumed, which in this case was interpreted to mean as long as the bear hide remained in preparation for taxidermy. St. v. Earl, 242 M 279, 790 P2d 464, 47 St. Rep. 691 (1990).

Sufficient Evidence of Failure to Keep Tag on Bear Hide: In the freezer of a taxidermy shop, fish and game inspectors found a frozen bear hide without a tag attached. Defendant was cited for failure to keep a tag attached to the hide but argued that the state failed to prove she was in possession of the hide at any time when it was not tagged. However, a rational jury could have found possession beyond a reasonable doubt, based on defendant's testimony that she knew where the hide was at all times and had not given it away or abandoned control over it. St. v. Earl, 242 M 279, 790 P2d 464, 47 St. Rep. 691 (1990).

Tagging Game Killed by Another: Under statute requiring tagging, the word “take” does not mean that one can tag animal someone else has killed, so if one person illegally killed elk, another person cannot gain ownership by tagging it and ownership of elk remains in state. State ex rel. Visser v. St. Fish & Game Comm'n, 150 M 525, 437 P2d 373 (1968).

Seizure and Confiscation of Untagged Carcass: In a case which arose while section 26-205, R.C.M. 1947 (subsequently repealed), was in effect, it was held that when plaintiff lawfully killed a deer but failed to fill out the tag attached to his hunting license and attach it to the carcass, the deer was not unlawfully possessed and the Game Warden was without authority to seize and confiscate the carcass when he arrested plaintiff for failure to attach the tag. Shipman v. Todd, 131 M 365, 310 P2d 300 (1957).

It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

Code Commissioner Correction: This section was amended in 1991 by Ch. 592, L. 1991, to increase the cost of a general Class B-11 license to $245 and the cost of a resident-sponsored and outfitter-sponsored license to $250, effective March 1, 1994. The 1995 Legislature amended this section to reflect pricing of the outfitter-sponsored license according to the variable pricing format of Ch. 459, L. 1995, without changing the price of the general or resident-sponsored license, but amended an earlier version of this section. The prices of the general license and the resident-sponsored license have been corrected by the Code Commissioner to reflect the actual license prices set by Ch. 592, L. 1991.

1991 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 1992) In (1) increased nonresident combination deer license fee from $200 to $238 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $245 beginning March 1, 1994, or to $248 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $250 beginning March 1, 1994, for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter or to hunt with resident sponsor on sponsor's land.

(Version effective March 1, 1994) In (1) increased nonresident deer combination license fee from $175 to $220 or to $225 for applicants indicating intent to use services of licensed outfitter or to hunt with resident sponsor on sponsor's land. Amendments effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

Coordination Instruction: Section 11, Ch. 598, L. 1987, a coordination instruction, increased fee in (1) of temporary version from $175 to $200.

1999 Amendment: (Temporary version) Chapter 544 in (3) inserted second, third, fourth, and fifth sentences requiring department to issue licenses to applicant sponsored by resident owner of 640 or more acres if licenses sufficient, requiring issuance of licenses to second applicant for sponsor, requiring drawing for remaining resident-sponsored licenses, and requiring drawing when number of licenses insufficient and in sixth sentence decreased number of sponsorship certificates from 20 to 15 and after "year" deleted "prior to expiration of the moratorium established in 37-47-315, after which no more than 10 certificates of sponsorship may be submitted in any license year"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 29, 1999.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 6, Ch. 544, L. 1999, amended sec. 18, Ch. 459, L. 1995, by extending the termination date imposed by Ch. 459 to March 1, 2006.

1995 Amendments: Chapter 328 in (1), after "applicants", substituted "using" for "indicating their intent to use"; in (2), near beginning, substituted "resident-sponsored license" for "reserved license", after "affirmation" inserted "by the applicant", after "hunt with" deleted "a licensed outfitter or", after "name of the" deleted "licensed outfitter or", after "signed by a" deleted "licensed outfitter or", and at end substituted "the resident sponsor will" for "the outfitter or resident will"; in (2)(b) inserted reference to resident sponsor; in (2)(c), at end, inserted reference to Title 37, chapter 47; inserted (4) relating to outfitter-sponsored license; inserted (5) relating to substitute outfitter; adjusted subsection references; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 459 in temporary version in (1) substituted "a number" for "5,600", after "Class B-10" inserted "and Class B-11", and substituted "as determined under 87-1-268" for "and 2,000 Class B-11 licenses"; in (2)(b), pursuant to sec. 15(2), Ch. 459, L. 1995, a coordination section, substituted "the resident sponsor" for "the outfitter or resident"; in (3) inserted second sentence regarding limitation of submission of certificates of sponsorship; inserted (6) regarding limitation on deer hunting; inserted (7) regarding validity of permits or tags; in (8) inserted "outfitter-sponsored", after "remain unsold" deleted "on April 15", and substituted reference to 87-1-268 for "to nonresident applicants without restriction as to hunting with a licensed outfitter or resident sponsor"; in (9), after "subsection (1)", deleted "and all unsold reserved licenses available under subsection (4)"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment terminates October 1, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 459, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a cherished hunting heritage based on a deep knowledge of and respect for wildlife and the land; and

WHEREAS, private landowners provide wildlife habitat and hunting opportunities, the hunting public provides financial and political support for sound wildlife management, and the combined efforts of landowners and the hunting public have sustained Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, landowner/outfitter/sportsperson relations have become increasingly strained over the past several years, leading to increased polarization between the groups; and

WHEREAS, the 1993 Legislature addressed this problem through the passage of House Joint Resolution No. 24, which requested the Governor, through the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, to coordinate a sustained, ongoing, cooperative effort to address these issues by establishing statewide, regional, and local groups to develop mutually satisfactory solutions that would preserve Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage and encourage the continuance of a viable outfitting industry; and

WHEREAS, in response to that request, the Governor appointed the Advisory Council on Private Land/Public Wildlife, consisting of representatives of the affected groups, to study the issues in anticipation of legislation that reflects the mutual interests of landowners, outfitters, and the sporting community; and

WHEREAS, after considering extensive input and advice from individual private citizens, local working groups, agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in conservation, the Advisory Council by consensus developed recommendations for improving hunting access to private lands and for providing tangible benefits for landowners who allow access to their lands for hunting; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council has made efforts to break new ground philosophically in designing its recommendations, requiring that all interested parties be willing to accept change in order to benefit everyone who has an interest in Montana's hunting and wildlife heritage; and

WHEREAS, the Advisory Council finds it appropriate to present the following recommendations to the Legislature in the spirit of a cooperative and positive effort to enhance relations between landowners, outfitters, and sportspersons."

1995 Statement of Intent: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [sections 1 through 3] [87-1-265 through 87-1-267] grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement programs for hunter management and hunting access enhancement. It is intended that in addition to the statutory guidelines set out in those sections, any rules be adopted with the purpose of optimizing hunting opportunity and access while minimizing administrative costs in providing benefits to landowners who voluntarily participate in the programs. In addition, [section 6] [87-1-268] grants rulemaking authority to the fish, wildlife, and parks commission to implement the provisions of variable pricing for Class B-10 and Class B-11 outfitter-sponsored licenses. It is intended that the fish, wildlife, and parks commission use its licensing authority to adjust the price of those licenses as necessary and that any additional revenue generated by variable pricing be used to fund the hunting access enhancement program."

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

Saving Clause: Section 14, Ch. 459, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 216 in (1)(a) after "$54" and in (1)(b) after "$64" inserted "plus the resident hunting access enhancement fee in 87-2-202(3)(c)". Amendment effective March 1, 2002, and terminates March 1, 2006.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 216, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Private Land/Public Wildlife Advisory Council is charged with the responsibility to make suggestions for funding, modification, or improvement of the hunting access enhancement program; and

WHEREAS, although the hunting access enhancement program has enjoyed considerable success to date in providing greater opportunities for Montana hunters, the Private Land/Public

Wildlife Advisory Council recognizes the potential to increase hunting access through expansion of the program; and

WHEREAS, increasing the size of the current program through a once-a-season hunting access enhancement fee on resident and most nonresident hunters would provide revenue to allow greater landowner incentives, improve hunting access to private and public lands, improve program management and services, increase upland bird hunting opportunities, and provide for future increased program costs because of inflation."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 533 in (1) after "who" substituted "is" for "will be" and after "older" substituted "or who will turn 12 years old before or during" for "before September 15 of"; in (1)(a) and (1)(b) after "holder" inserted "who is 12 years of age or older"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2000.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (2), after "department", substituted "may" for "shall"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 263 in (1)(a) of March 1, 1996, version, after "$54", deleted "beginning March 1, 1992, and $64 beginning March 1, 1994, shall be entitled to"; in version effective March 1, 2006, substituted "$54" for "$64"; in both versions: in (1)(a) and (2) substituted "combination sports license" for "sportsman's license"; in (1)(a), after "A-5", deleted "A-6"; inserted (1)(b) regarding combination sports license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996.

The effect of the amendment was to render the March 1, 1996, version and the March 1, 2006, version identical. Accordingly, the Code Commissioner has not separately published the version effective March 1, 2006.

Extension of Termination Date: Section 1, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. Section 2, Ch. 241, L. 1993, amended sec. 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 2006. The extension of the termination date made by Ch. 241, L. 1993, was rendered meaningless by the amendments made by Ch. 263, L. 1995.

1991 Amendment: (Version effective March 1, 1992) Increased sportsman's license fee from $45.50 to $54 beginning March 1, 1992, and to $64 beginning March 1, 1994.

(Version effective March 1, 1996) Increased sportsman's license fee from $38.50 to $64. Amendments effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

Extension of Termination Date: Section 3, Ch. 319, L. 1991, amended sec. 12, Ch. 598, L. 1987, to provide that the wildlife habitat acquisition program terminates March 1, 1996. Amendment effective April 2, 1991.

1989 Amendment: Changed "$45" to "$45.50". Amendment effective July 1, 1989. Section 9, Ch. 601, L. 1989, amended sec. 8, Ch. 636, L. 1987, to increase the fee from "$38" to "$38.50" after March 1, 1994.

Applicability: Section 11, Ch. 601, L. 1989, provided that this section applies to licenses for fishing seasons that begin on or after March 1, 1990.

1987 Amendments: Chapter 598 increased fee from $36 to $45 from March 1, 1988, to March 1, 1994.

Chapter 636 increased fee from $36 to $38.

1985 Amendment: Increased license fee from $35 to $36 effective March 1, 1986.

87-2-722. Auction of mountain sheep license.

Compiler's Comments

1993 Amendment: Chapter 349 in last sentence of (2), after "report", deleted "to each legislature concerning" and after "proceeds" inserted "to the office of budget and program planning as a part of the information required by 17-7-111".

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 282 (Ch. 414, L. 1985) provided: "House Bill No. 282 requires a statement of intent because section 1 [87-2-722] authorizes the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to establish rules for the use of the license to be auctioned and for the conduct of the auction.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission, in drafting rules, shall consult with other states such as Wyoming, Utah, and Nevada which have similar legislation. The commission shall strive to maximize the revenue generated by the auction, and to that end shall select the method of auction which it perceives will best attain that objective.

Because revenue from the auction of the license is not predictable, it is the intent of the legislature that the department shall use such money only for special projects related to mountain sheep research, management, and habitat improvement, and such funds may not be budgeted or used in place of funds regularly appropriated by the legislature for mountain sheep related purposes."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 349 deleted third sentence of (2) that read: "The department shall, as provided in 5-11-210, report to each legislature concerning the use or investment of auction proceeds."

1991 Amendment: In last sentence inserted reference to 5-11-210. Amendment effective March 20, 1991.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 174, L. 1987, provided: "This bill requires a statement of intent because section 1 [87-2-724] authorizes the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to establish rules for the use of the license to be auctioned and for the conduct of the auction.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission, in drafting rules, shall consult with any other states which have similar legislation. The commission shall strive to maximize revenue generated by the auction and for that purpose shall select the method of auction which it determines will best attain that objective.

Because revenue from the auction of the license is not predictable, it is the intent of the legislature that the department shall use such money only for special projects related to moose research, management, and habitat improvement, and such funds may not be budgeted or used in place of funds regularly appropriated by the legislature for moose-related purposes."

87-2-730. Special wild buffalo license — regulation.

Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 604, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature intends that the provisions of the special wild buffalo or bison license be administered and implemented by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, after consultation with the Department of Livestock, regarding the management of wild buffalo or bison that have been designated as a species in need of disease control."

Effective Date: Section 6, Ch. 604, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] is effective on passage and approval." Approved May 9, 2003.

Part 8

Exceptions to License Requirements

Part Case Notes

Constitutionality: The disparity in the treatment of residents and nonresidents under 87-2-505 is not an unconstitutional discrimination because it infringes upon no fundamental rights and therefore does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses; nor is the right to hunt for sport a privilege or immunity of citizens of the several states that Montana is required to grant equally to residents and nonresidents under Art. IV, sec. 2, U.S. Const. Mont. Outfitters Action Group v. Fish & Game Comm'n, 417 F. Supp. 1005 (D.C. Mont. 1976), affirmed in *Baldwin v. Compiler's Comments

1999 Amendment: Chapter 35 inserted (3) allowing a legion of valor member to fish with a conservation license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 35, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legion of Valor is composed of recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Army Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross, and the Air Force Cross; and

WHEREAS, members of the Legion of Valor have bravely served their country above and beyond the call of duty; and

WHEREAS, there are approximately 800 members of the Legion of Valor, 5 of whom reside in Montana; and

WHEREAS, pursuant to Article II, section 35, of the Montana Constitution, special considerations that the Legislature may give the five Montana Legion of Valor members should be extended to their distinguished out-of-state colleagues; and

WHEREAS, the people of Montana can show their appreciation to these medal recipients by allowing resident and nonresident Legion of Valor members to fish with a conservation license issued by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks."

1983 Amendment: In (2), changed "65" to "62" in two places and before "one-half" deleted "no more than".

1981 Amendment: Deleted "for a fee of $1" after "by the department" at the end of the first sentence of (1); added (2) providing discounted fee for persons over 65.

87-2-802. Veterans in VA hospitals and residents of state institutions and long-term care facilities, nursing care facilities, assisted living facilities, and community homes for persons with disabilities.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 54 in (2) near beginning after "facilities and" substituted "assisted living" for "personal-care"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 491 in (1) in first sentence near middle after "residents of all" deleted "correctional facilities and", after "under the jurisdiction of" deleted "the department of corrections and", and after "health and human services" deleted "except the Montana state prison at Deer Lodge or the Montana women's prison". Amendment effective April 27, 1999.

Saving Clause: Section 24, Ch. 491, L. 1999, was a saving clause.

1997 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 77 inserted (2) requiring the Department to allow supervised residents of licensed long-term care facilities, nursing care facilities, personal care facilities, and community homes for persons with disabilities to fish without a license upon annual application by facility managers or directors; and made minor changes in style.

Chapter 189 near middle of first sentence of (1), after "all", inserted "correctional facilities and" and near end substituted "Montana women's prison, may" for "women's correctional system, will be entitled to".

Style changes in the chapters were slightly different. In each case, the codifier chose the more appropriate.

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 77, L. 1997, provided: "[Section 1] [87-2-802] applies to license years beginning March 1, 1998."

1995 Amendment: Chapter 546 near middle of first sentence substituted "department of corrections and the department of public health and human services" for "department of corrections and human services" and after "Deer Lodge" inserted "or the women's correctional system"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Saving Clause: Section 571, Ch. 546, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendment — Instructions to Code Commissioner: The Code Commissioner changed "department of institutions" to "department of corrections and human services", pursuant to sec. 1, Ch. 262, L. 1991, directing the Code Commissioner to make the change wherever necessary in the Montana Code Annotated. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

87-2-803. Persons with disabilities — definitions.

Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendment: Chapter 248 throughout section substituted "permitholder" for "person with a disability"; in (1) in first sentence after "game birds" inserted "not including turkeys" and inserted third sentence concerning certified disabled hunter hunting from vehicle in subsequent years; in (3) substituted first sentence concerning hunter being certified as disabled for "A resident or nonresident person with a disability who is certified as disabled by the department and who is not residing in an institution may carry a permit on a form prescribed by the department. A person with a disability who is issued a permit under this subsection is entitled to have the department stamp the permit with "Permission to Hunt From a Vehicle" if the person establishes to the satisfaction of the department that the person has substantially impaired mobility" and at end of second sentence substituted "subsection (8)" for "this subsection"; in (4) in first sentence after "permit" substituted "to hunt from a vehicle, referred to in this subsection as a permitholder" for "as required in subsection (3), upon which is stamped "Permission to Hunt From a Vehicle"", at beginning of third sentence substituted "permitholder" for "person with a disability who hunts as authorized in this subsection", and at end of last sentence inserted "or as prescribed by the department"; in (7) deleted definitions of permanently physically handicapped person and substantially impaired mobility that read: "(b) "permanently physically handicapped person" means a disabled person as defined in subsection (7)(a) except for a person with a disability that is due to mental retardation or mental illness;

(c) "substantially impaired mobility" means, with respect to a disabled person, that the person is nonambulatory or virtually unable to move on foot. The board or boards of review established pursuant to subsection (3) shall resolve any disputes regarding whether a person meets the criteria for having substantially impaired mobility"; inserted (8) establishing conditions for receiving a permit to hunt from a vehicle; inserted (9) concerning certification by physician; inserted (10) concerning review of eligibility by voluntary board; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 382 in (1) inserted last sentence allowing refund for fishing license or game bird license for person disabled during license year; in (2) inserted last sentence allowing refund for deer license or elk license for person disabled during license year; in (3) at end of second sentence substituted "that the person has substantially impaired mobility" for "that the person is nonambulatory and has a permanent physical disability or that the person's mobility is substantially impaired" and inserted last two sentences granting rulemaking authority for establishment of review boards to resolve disputes; in (4) in three places substituted "person with a disability" for "hunter with a disability"; in (5)(a) substituted "experiencing blindness" for "suffering from blindness"; inserted (5)(b) allowing issuance of deer and elk licenses to persons experiencing blindness and requiring blind hunter to be accompanied by companion; inserted (6) requiring adoption of rules regarding companions and companions as designated shooters; in (7) inserted (a) defining disabled person or person with disability, inserted (b) defining permanently physically handicapped person, and inserted (c) defining substantially impaired mobility; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1997 Amendments: Chapter 42 in (5) substituted "certified by the department as suffering from blindness, as defined in 53-7-301" for "certified by the department as a blind individual, as defined in 53-7-301"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 12, 1997.

Chapter 472 throughout section substituted references to persons with disabilities for references to disabled persons; near end of (3) substituted "nonambulatory and has a permanent physical disability" for "permanently physically handicapped and nonambulatory"; in (4), in last sentence, substituted "persons with disabilities" for "the handicapped"; and made minor changes in style.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in (4), near end of first sentence after "motorists or", deleted "may hunt by shooting a firearm from within a self-propelled or drawn vehicle" and in fourth sentence, after "hunter by", deleted "pursuing" and after "hunting" deleted "taking, shooting, or killing"; in (5), in second sentence after "fish", deleted "with hook and line or rod"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Severability: Section 37, Ch. 417, L. 1995, was a severability clause.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 49 at beginning of (3) substituted "A resident or nonresident disabled person who is certified as disabled by the department and who is not residing in an institution may" for "Such disabled persons shall"; in (4) inserted fourth sentence allowing assistance in taking a game animal by a hunting companion of disabled hunter; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective February 18, 1993.

1989 Amendment: Inserted (5) providing for a lifetime fishing license for the blind. Amendment effective February 24, 1989.

1985 Amendment: In (3) inserted second sentence allowing nonambulatory persons to hunt from a vehicle; and inserted (4) relating to hunting by nonambulatory persons from a vehicle.

1983 Amendment: In (1), after "entitled to" substituted "fish and to hunt game birds with only a conservation license" for "fish without a license" and after "certified as disabled", substituted "as prescribed by departmental rule" for "by a medical doctor licensed to practice medicine in Montana"; substituted (2) (see 1983 Session Law) for former (2), which read: "Disability is defined as a physical or mental condition that prevents a person from doing any substantial gainful work that is expected to last for the rest of his life."

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 402 (Ch. 169, L. 1983), first adopted by the House Fish and Game Committee, read: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it delegates rulemaking authority to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks. Section 2 of the bill [amending 87-2-803] authorizes the department to make rules concerning disabled persons and exemptions to fishing and game bird license requirements.

The legislature contemplates that the rules should address the following subjects as well as others:

- (1) A definition of "disabled" as it applies to persons meeting license requirements for fishing and hunting game birds and qualifying for the one-half fee deer and elk licenses;
- (2) Documents that would, of themselves, be adequate certification of disability."

2003 Amendment — Composite Section: Chapter 50 in (3)(a) inserted last sentence concerning free first-time youth combination sports license; in (3)(e) in first and second sentences inserted reference to granting free youth combination sports license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2003.

Chapter 228 in fourth sentence in (1) after "B-4" inserted "or B-5"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 3, 2003.

2001 Amendment: Chapter 49 in (3)(e) inserted first sentence authorizing certain youth to use youth combination sports license and near beginning of second sentence after "A person who" deleted "is 18 years of age or older who" and after "combination sports license" inserted "purchased after the person reaches 18 years of age"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 16, 2001.

Termination Provision Repealed: Section 2, Ch. 49, L. 2001, repealed sec. 4, Ch. 568, L. 1999, which terminated the amendments to this section February 28, 2002. Effective March 16, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 568 in (1) inserted second sentence allowing resident minors 15 years of age to hunt migratory game birds with only a conservation license; inserted (3) establishing provisions of the youth combination sports license; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 2000, and terminates February 28, 2002.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 568, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana's youth should be encouraged to take advantage of Montana's abundant outdoor recreational opportunities; and

WHEREAS, a person who learns early in life to fish and hunt responsibly and ethically is likely to continue that behavior throughout the person's life; and

WHEREAS, Montana's fishing and hunting heritage will be preserved for future generations as more youth are introduced to those sports; and

WHEREAS, providing an affordable combination license that allows a young person to fish and hunt upland game birds, deer, and elk will be an effective way to cultivate an appreciation for the state's wildlife resources among Montana's youth."

1985 Amendment: At beginning of (1) inserted "Resident"; and in (2) after "Class", deleted "A-1".

1983 Amendments: Chapter 169, in first sentence, substituted present language allowing minors 12 through 14 years old to fish and hunt birds with a conservation license for "Minors under 15 years of age may fish for and take fish during the open season without a license."; inserted second sentence of (1) allowing residents under 12 years of age to fish without a license; and in (2), substituted final clause after "A-5 licenses at" for "$2 per license".

Chapter 239, in (1), deleted "B-3" after "Class B".

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1), in third sentence, substituted reference to March 1 for reference to April 1; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1983 Amendment: In (1), at end of first sentence substituted "or other security as required by department rule" for "of $1,000 or in an amount equal to the value of the licenses, permits, and certificates received for distribution, the amount to be fixed at the discretion of the director".

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 434 (Ch. 534, L. 1983), which amended this section, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants rulemaking authority to the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to adopt rules to set deadlines for license receipts according to different classes of license agents and setting guidelines for allowing alternative forms of security for small volume license agents.

Section 2 of this bill [amending 87-2-903] proposes to allow the director of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to set deadlines for the license receipts according to different classes of license agents. The intent of this bill is to allow the director the flexibility to recognize that there are widely disparate kinds of license agents. In some sparsely populated areas, the license receipts for a given year are so few that the current monthly accounting requirement may be unrealistic. On the other hand, in heavily populated areas some license agents have extremely high monthly receipts, necessitating that the money be transferred promptly, on a monthly basis, to the Department. The Department contemplates rules that would have deadlines grounded in population base and historical demand in an area.

Section 1 of this bill [amending 87-2-902] proposes to change the security requirements for license agents. Currently, the law requires a minimum bond of $1,000. In reality, no bonding company gives a bond for only $1,000. The current industry standard is a minimum of $5,000. Many of the small license agents may carry a total inventory of licenses far below $5,000. In those instances, where the license agent does not stand to make a great deal of money on the license agency, the $5,000 bonding requirement may be unduly burdensome. The proposed amendment would allow the director to adjust the bonding requirement to the particular circumstance of a given license agent. For instance, a license agent with a large inventory would be obliged to provide a bond. A license agent with an inventory of less than $1,000 may be obliged to provide some other kind of security to ensure performance under the law. The Department anticipates promulgating rules that would allow alternative forms of security other than a bond for the small volume license agent."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 427 in (7) substituted "charged under 15-1-216" for "charged on late corporation license tax payments under 15-31-510". Amendment effective January 1, 2000.

Applicability: Section 57, Ch. 427, L. 1999, provided that this section applies to all tax periods beginning after December 31, 1999.

1997 Amendment: Chapter 187 in (1), after "services rendered", substituted "a commission of 50 cents for each transaction" for "the sum of 50 cents for each license, permit, or certificate issued" and deleted second sentence that read: "Each license agent shall submit to the department all duplicates of each class of licenses sold and shall accompany the duplicate licenses with all money received for the sale of the licenses, less the appropriate fee"; inserted (2) through (4) setting out additional conditions applicable to license agents; in (6), after "term", substituted "transaction" for "license", after "includes" inserted "the sale of", and before "certificate" substituted "or" for "and"; in (7), after "15-31-510", deleted "(2)"; and inserted (8) allowing the adoption of rules. Amendment effective March 1, 1998.

1997 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 187, L. 1997, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-2-105(7) and 87-2-903(8) grant rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks regarding standards applicable to license agents."

It is intended that the rules adopted pursuant to 87-2-105(7) address the methods by which a license agent determines proof of competency in hunter safety, particularly the competency of nonresidents who apply for a Montana hunting license. It is intended that the rules recognize that a person who takes a hunter safety course from a department-authorized instructor will be considered competent for licensing purposes.

It is intended that rules adopted pursuant to 87-2-903(8) address compensation, system installation fees, and duties of license agents."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 92 in (1), in first sentence after "sum of", deleted "40 cents for the 1992 license year"; in (3), near end of first sentence, substituted "15-31-510(2)" for "15-31-502"; and made minor changes in style.

Applicability: Section 4(1), Ch. 92, L. 1993, provided: "[This act] applies to tax years beginning after December 31, 1993."

Rulemaking Authority: Section 4(2), Ch. 92, L. 1993, provided: "The department of revenue may institute rulemaking under Title 2, chapter 4, to implement [this act] prior to October 1, 1993, but the rules may not be effective prior to October 1, 1993."

1991 Amendment: In first sentence of (1) increased sum for services from 30 cents to 40 cents for 1992 license year and to 50 cents thereafter and at end of second sentence, after "licenses less", substituted "the appropriate fee" for "a fee of 30 cents for each license sold". Amendment effective March 1, 1992.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 592, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, an increase in Montana hunting and fishing license fees is necessary to raise revenue in order for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to meet an anticipated revenue shortfall."

1983 Amendment: In (1), in second sentence deleted "On or before the 10th day of each month" at the beginning and "during the preceding month" following "licenses sold", and inserted third sentence relating to classification of license agents and submission of license money; and inserted (3) relating to late submission of license money.

1983 Statement of Intent: See statement of intent attached to HB 434 (Ch. 534, L. 1983), set out in compiler's comments under 87-2-902.

Media Coverage of Search Involving Alleged Wildlife Violation Outside Scope of Warrant — Open Fields Doctrine and Invited Informer Doctrine Inapplicable: Federal agents who suspected 2004 Annotations to the MCA a wildlife violation searched the Bergers' ranch pursuant to a search warrant and to a written contract with two national broadcasting networks authorizing the filming and recording of the search for broadcast on environmental television shows. After Berger was convicted of one misdemeanor count of improper use of a pesticide, he sued both the networks and the federal agents for violations of constitutional rights. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court held that activities conducted pursuant to the search were not authorized by the open fields doctrine, which allows law enforcement officers to obtain evidence while on privately owned open fields, because Berger had a reasonable expectation of privacy with regard to outbuildings that were photographed and because that doctrine does not authorize trespass by third parties. Further, the invited informer doctrine, which allows the use of informers with recording devices to obtain information as part of a good faith government investigation, did not apply in this instance because the recording of Berger's conversations was used to assist commercial television, not to further law enforcement objectives. Pursuant to the joint action test, the networks were considered to be acting under color of law and, as such, were liable for damages as government actors for contractually engaging in a search enterprise that only the government could lawfully institute for the mutual benefit of both private and governmental interests in publicity. The case was reversed for further consideration of Berger's state claims of trespass and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Berger v. Hanlon, 129 F3d 505 (9th Cir. 1997).

Part 1 General Provisions

Part Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble to Ch. 272, L. 1999, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana's rivers are drawing people to the state to fish, float, and camp at an accelerating rate; and

WHEREAS, although the increasing popularity of Montana is beneficial to the state's economy, steps must be taken to ensure that escalating recreational use of natural resources does not degrade the resource, taint the experience, or threaten private property rights; and

WHEREAS, with the unparalleled scenery and the abundance of fish, osprey, bald eagles, deer, and other wildlife sustained by its waters, the Blackfoot River in western Montana offers recreationists a unique, pristine outdoor experience; and

WHEREAS, the same attributes that bring floaters, campers, and anglers to the banks of the Blackfoot River to visit have attracted Montana families to live, work, and recreate for over a hundred years; and

WHEREAS, increased use of the river has led to an increase in the frequency and intensity of conflicts among the landowner, the commercial outfitter, and the private recreationist, each of whom has a legitimate and legal interest in the Blackfoot River; and

WHEREAS, cooperation between private property owners and recreationists to resolve conflict along the Blackfoot River is not unprecedented; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature finds it appropriate and timely to direct the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to lead a comprehensive study of the Blackfoot River and its capacity to sustain recreational use, while ensuring that private property and water rights are retained with minimal conflict."

Blackfoot River Study: Section 1, Ch. 272, L. 1999, provided: "Blackfoot River study. (1) The department of fish, wildlife, and parks shall undertake a comprehensive study of the Blackfoot River, which may include ongoing department studies as well as findings derived from the draft Blackfoot River Recreation Management Direction of 1999.

(2) The study must address:

(a) the growing popularity of the Blackfoot River and ways to mitigate conflict among landowners, outfitters, and private recreationists;

(b) ways to protect the integrity of the river's resources, while continuing to accommodate recreational use;

- (c) the amount and scope of use by recreationists that the river is capable of sustaining;
- (d) easement, right-of-way, access, and trespass concerns between private landowners and public users of the river;
- (e) the impact that heavy recreational use has on the river's fish, wildlife, streambanks, and water quality; and
- (f) any other issue that the department determines needs to be examined in order to complete the study.

(3) During the course of the study, the department may enlist the assistance of the governor's consensus council, created pursuant to executive order, to organize discussions among all interested parties.

(4) The department shall report its findings and conclusions to the 57th legislature. The report must include but is not limited to:

(a) a suggested appropriate role for the department and the fish, wildlife, and parks commission in mitigating and mediating conflicts between recreationists and private landowners;

(b) the amount and type of use that is taking place on the river and how that use is changing from the historical recreational use of the river;

(c) the amount of use that the river is capable of sustaining before significant resource degradation occurs;

(d) a description of the amount, nature, and location of conflicts occurring on the river that have warranted intervention;

(e) the steps taken to ensure that landowners, outfitters, and members of the public were afforded the opportunity to comment and participate in the study; and

(f) suggested legislation or department rules, if either are warranted, to alleviate conflict, preserve the integrity of the resource, protect private property rights, and ensure continued high-quality fishing, camping, and floating for commercial and private recreational users."

87-3-101. General restrictions.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 417 in introductory clause substituted "hunt or attempt to hunt" for "take, capture, shoot, kill, or attempt to take, capture, shoot, or kill"; and in (3), after "jacklight", inserted "spotlight", after "snare" inserted exception parenthetical, after "lick" inserted "or bait", and deleted "nor may any such set gun, jacklight or other artificial light, trap, snare, salt lick, or other device to entrap or entice game animals or game birds be used, made, or set". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1987 Amendment: Near end of (2) changed "61-1-201" to "61-1-202".

1985 Amendments: Chapter 214 in (2) after "from", inserted "or across" and after "highway" inserted "or the shoulder, berm, or borrow-pit right-of-way of any public highway, as defined in 61-1-201".

Chapter 416 at beginning of section inserted exception clause.

Case Notes

Road Hunter Pleading Ignorance: The defendant argued that the state did not prove that he knew road hunting was illegal or that he knew it was not hunting season. The Supreme Court ruled that ignorance of the law is no excuse. St. v. Lynn, 243 M 430, 795 P2d 429, 47 St. Rep. 1288 (1990).

Shooting From Public Highway or Its Shoulder: The defendant argued that the state had not proved that he had fired at game from a public highway. The Supreme Court stated that the elements of an offense can be proved by circumstantial evidence, including in the case before it the fact that casings of the same brand as those used by the defendant were found beside the road. St. v. Lynn, 243 M 430, 795 P2d 429, 47 St. Rep. 1288 (1990).

Court Not to Imply Mental State Requirement: The Supreme Court will not imply a mental state in a statute prohibiting spotlighting while hunting when that statute (87-3-122, now repealed) does not include a mental state. To do so would arbitrarily make some persons guilty of an offense, while excepting others committing the offense. St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55, 42 St. Rep. 1186 (1985).

Invalid Classification: The classification created by 87-3-122's (now repealed) exemption from its coverage of landowners, lessees, or their agents is not rationally related to the state interest involved, that is, protection of its wildlife. Section 87-3-122 (now repealed) allowed exceptions that would permit arbitrary and irrational enforcement by law enforcement officers and was a nullity. It was inadequate to serve the legislative purpose of prohibiting the use of artificial light with the intent to hunt for animals. St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55, 42 St. Rep. 1186 (1985).

Validity of Statute Under Which Defendant Not Charged: In ruling 87-3-122 (repealed, 1991) inadequate to serve its legislative purpose and a violation of equal protection, the Supreme Court stated that 87-3-101 correctly prohibits spotlighting in connection with hunting. St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55, 42 St. Rep. 1186 (1985).

2001 Amendment: Chapter 275 in (3) and (4) in introductory clause at end inserted "purposely or knowingly"; in (6) inserted second, third, and fourth sentences regarding forfeiture of licenses and privileges and surrender of licenses; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 20, 2001.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 263 in (1), after "death of", deleted "a black or brown bear or"; in (3), after "except", deleted "grizzly, black, and brown bear and"; inserted (5) regarding bear meat; in (6) substituted "may" for "shall"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 1, 1996.

1991 Amendment: Inserted (1) and (2) regarding waste of bear or mountain lion; substituted (3) regarding waste of animals other than bear or mountain lion for former language (see 1989 MCA for text); inserted (4) regarding waste of animal suitable for food; inserted (5) providing a penalty for waste of game; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

Case Notes

Crime of Waste of Game as Absolute Liability Offense: Defendant contended that because the offense of wasting game meat is punishable by a fine in excess of $500, the offense may not be classed as an absolute liability offense. However, the second element of 45-2-104, wherein a clear legislative purpose validates the imposition of absolute liability, was indicated by the obvious statutory intent to preserve game resources for the benefit of the public and by the recognition of the state's duty to protect public wildlife resources. The trial court did not err in failing to instruct the jury on criminal intent. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

Forfeiture of Game Properly Applied in Case of Waste of Mountain Goat: Defendant was convicted of wasting game contrary to the provisions of this section. He contended that it was improper to impose a penalty of forfeiture of the head, cape, and horns of the mountain goat he killed legally. Having failed to comply with the requirement that he not waste the meat, defendant was subject to the game warden's authority under 87-1-506 to seize any parts of the animal. Imposition of forfeiture was not contrary to law. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

No Arbitrary Exceptions in Game Waste Statute: Unlike the spotlighting statute considered in St. v. Austin, 217 M 265, 704 P2d 55 (1985), this section does not contain exceptions that would permit arbitrary and irrational enforcement sufficient to render the statute unconstitutional. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

Statute Not Vague or Overbroad: Defendant contended that this section was unconstitutionally vague because it did not clearly set forth the prohibited conduct. The Supreme Court disagreed, holding that the statute did not fail to give a person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what was prohibited so that person could act accordingly. Defendant's contention that this section was overbroad, in that it could be construed to prohibit otherwise legal activities of a hunter or taxidermist who removed the head, horns, and cape at any time, was also disaffirmed. The court noted that it is not the removal of the specified body parts that is illegal, but rather the removal of only those parts without using the remainder of the animal. St. v. Huebner, 252 M 184, 827 P2d 1260, 49 St. Rep. 210 (1992).

III, 1889 Mont. Const. (now sec. 3 and 12, 1972 Mont. Const.), of the right to enjoy and defend one's property; held, under the facts presented, that legal justification may always be interposed as a defense by a person charged with killing a wild animal contrary to law, and that the general law on the right to use force, 49-1-103, must be construed in pari materia with this section when found inoperative, otherwise this section would be unconstitutional as denying an inalienable right. Commission Empowered to Lengthen Hunting Season: A temporary order restraining the State Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) from putting into effect its order lengthening the hunting season on elk in a certain locality, thus modifying the law on fixing of seasons, was improper since under section 26-104, R.C.M. 1947, declaring prior to amendment that the statutes governing "such subjects" should continue in force and effect except as altered or modified by the rules and regulations of the Commission, the Legislature so empowered the Commission, amounting to modification of existing statutes. *State ex rel. 1981 Amendment: Divided section into three subsections; added (4) providing a felony penalty; and made minor changes in phraseology.

Case Notes

Sale of Eagle Parts — Federal Violation Notwithstanding Claims of Religious Use: Frank and William Hugs admitted active involvement in purchasing and selling eagles and eagle parts but claimed that they did so for religious purposes. Following an undercover investigation, they were convicted of a violation of the federal Bald and Golden Eagle Protection Act (BGEPA), 16 U.S.C. 668(a), which prohibits the taking of eagle parts for religious purposes unless the person has obtained the proper federal permit. The Huges claimed that the BGEPA infringed on their constitutional guarantee of free exercise of religion and that actions of the undercover agent were so outrageous as to warrant dismissal of the prosecution. The Huges could challenge only the facial validity of the BGEPA, not the operation of the underlying administrative scheme, because they did not possess a permit and never applied for one. On appeal, it was held that the statute and permit system, while imposing a substantial burden on the practice of religion by restricting the ability of adherents to obtain and possess eagles and eagle parts, nevertheless provided the least restrictive means of conserving eagles while permitting access to eagles and eagle parts for religious purposes. Further, the undercover agent's conduct fell short of the level of outrageousness required to invalidate a prosecution under the due process clause. Judgment was affirmed. U.S. v. Hugs, 109 F3d 1375 (9th Cir. 1997).

Authority of Tribal Warden to Detain and Turn Nontribal Member Over to State Game Warden: Horseman was detained by a tribal warden and turned over to a state game warden, who had requested that Horseman be detained for possessing an illegally killed game animal. Horseman argued that he had been unlawfully extradited. The Supreme Court held that Horseman, although Indian, was not a member of the tribe on whose reservation he had been detained and that under Duro v. Reina, 495 US 676 (1990), the tribal game warden had the authority to detain a nontribal member and turn the person over to state authorities. St. v. Horseman, 263 M 87, 866 P2d 1110, 50 St. Rep. 1720 (1993).

No Treaty Hunting Rights Off Reservation: Horseman was charged with possessing unlawfully killed game. He argued that an 1855 treaty gave him the right to hunt on traditional tribal hunting grounds located outside the reservation. The Supreme Court held that the treaty Horseman based his argument on had only been for 99 years and had expired in 1954. St. v. Horseman, 263 M 87, 866 P2d 1110, 50 St. Rep. 1720 (1993).

Tribal Members Subject to State Hunting Laws Off Reservation: Horseman argued that he could not be charged with possession of unlawfully killed game because, as a tribal member, he was not subject to state game laws. The Supreme Court held that the game had been killed off the reservation and that the state may assume jurisdiction in disputes concerning Indians that arise outside the reservation. St. v. Horseman, 263 M 87, 866 P2d 1110, 50 St. Rep. 1720 (1993).

Market Value of Deer Taken in Violation of Lacey Act: The prohibition in the Lacey Act against offering guide services for the illegal taking of wildlife does not involve the "sale" of game in the traditional sense. Rather, the commodity being sold is the opportunity to illegally hunt game with the assistance of a guide. In determining the market value of illegally taken deer, the fine imposed under Montana law for illegal taking did not establish market value, nor was that value established by the value of the deer if sold in open market. Rather, the market value is the amount that hunters were willing to pay for the guide's services. U.S. v. Atkinson, 966 F2d 1270 (9th Cir. 1992).

Trafficking as Misdemeanor by Classification: Regardless of the statement in this section, prior to 1991 amendment, that trafficking in game animals is a felony, because the jail sentence for a trafficking violation does not exceed 1 year, under classification rules provided by the Legislature prior to 1991, trafficking may not be considered a felony. St. v. Gibbs, 244 M 251, 797 P2d 928, 47 St. Rep. 1584 (1990).

Application of Federal Lacey Act to Outfitting and Guiding — Statute of Limitations on Charges of Conspiracy: While a prosecution under the federal Lacey Act, 16 U.S.C. 3371, et seq., which prohibits transportation or acquisition in interstate commerce of wildlife in violation of state laws, may not properly be had for the substantive acts of selling guiding services and hunting permits, a prosecution can be maintained for conspiracies to violate the Act while providing outfitting and guiding services, such as arranging for out-of-state hunters to use elk licenses and permits belonging to other hunters, knowing that any elk taken would be transported out of state. The Act applied when evidence was sufficient to establish the involvement of defendant, a hunting guide and outfitter, in a conspiracy to transport elk in interstate commerce in violation of Montana law. Further, the 5-year "catchall" statute of limitations set out in 18 U.S.C. 3282 applied to charges of conspiring to violate the Act. U.S. v. Thomas, 887 F2d 1341 (9th Cir. 1989), distinguishing U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Provision of Guiding Service Not an Offer to Sell Wildlife Prohibited by Federal Law: The alleged provision of guiding services to an unlicensed hunter does not constitute an illegal sale or offer to sell wildlife under the federal Lacey Act (16 U.S.C. 3372, 3373). U.S. v. Stenberg, 803 F2d 422 (9th Cir. 1986).

Felony Offense Versus Misdemeanor Offense — Jury Instruction: Hankins was convicted of trafficking in the unlawfully obtained body parts of a protected species in violation of this section. On appeal, Hankins argued that the court's jury instructions failed to distinguish between the felony and the misdemeanor offenses under this section. When read together, however, the jury instructions clearly drew a distinction between the felony offense charged and the lesser included misdemeanor offense. St. v. Hankins, 209 M 365, 680 P2d 958, 41 St. Rep. 762 (1984). See also St. v. Gibbs, 244 M 251, 797 P2d 928, 47 St. Rep. 1584 (1990).

Trafficking — Jury Instruction: It is not reversible error to give a jury instruction defining "trafficking" that is taken directly from this section. St. v. Hankins, 209 M 365, 680 P2d 958, 41 St. Rep. 762 (1984).

Case Notes

Three-Year Statute of Limitations Reasonable for Prosecution of Misdemeanor Fish and Game Violations — Equal Protection and Due Process Not Violated: Defendant was charged with five misdemeanor fish and game and outfitter violations that occurred nearly 2 years earlier. Although misdemeanor violations must generally be charged within 1 year, 45-1-205(5) and (6) allow charges for misdemeanor fish and game crimes to be brought within 3 years of violation. Defendant contended that the extended statute of limitations for charging fish and game crimes violated equal protection and due process guarantees. The District Court reviewed the legislative history of 45-1-205(5) and (6) and concluded that the extended statute of limitations served a reasonable relation to the proper legislative purpose of protecting wildlife and that in order to effectively enforce fish and game laws, additional time to discover and investigate fish and game violations was warranted. The Supreme Court agreed. A separate class of misdemeanors for fish and game violations did not violate equal protection because all persons who commit such crimes are in a similarly situated class and subject to the same treatment. Further, because fish and game and outfitter violations sometimes require investigation over several hunting seasons and involve perpetrators who reside out of state, an extended statute of limitations is a reasonable exercise of the state's legitimate police power in preserving wildlife and does not violate substantive due process. St. v. Egdorf, 2003 MT 264, 317 M 436, 77 P3d 517 (2003).

Authority of Game Warden to Approach Boat to Promote Safety — Particularized Suspicion Unnecessary: Initially concerned for the safety of the occupants of a seemingly unoccupied watercraft, a game warden looked into the live well of Boyer's boat and in the process found unlawfully killed game fish. Boyer contended that the warden had initiated an investigatory stop without the requisite particularized suspicion of wrongdoing, as required in 46-5-401, and that the evidence was therefore unlawfully seized. The Supreme Court disagreed. The warden was acting within his express authority to enforce outdoor recreation laws, including the safety of persons and property connected with the use of watercraft, and thus the warden's approach of Boyer's boat was lawful. St. v. Boyer, 2002 MT 33, 308 M 276, 42 P3d 771 (2002).

Unlawful Possession: Section 87-1-506 has reference only to what the Legislature denounced as unlawful possession under this section and for which the accused could be prosecuted for unlawful possession. Shipman v. Todd, 131 M 365, 310 P2d 300 (1957).

Private Ownership of Wildlife: Under section 26-401, R.C.M. 1947 (now repealed), prohibiting the killing of beaver except as therein provided, and under 87-3-112, making possession of certain wild animals or parts thereof prima facie evidence that the possessor killed the same, private ownership of beaver pelts was not a matter of common right but could be acquired only by compliance with the restrictions, and then such ownership was qualified. Rosenfeld v. Jakways, 67 M 558, 216 P 776 (1923).

Case Notes

Market Value of Deer Taken in Violation of Lacey Act: The prohibition in the Lacey Act against offering guide services for the illegal taking of wildlife does not involve the "sale" of game in the traditional sense. Rather, the commodity being sold is the opportunity to illegally hunt game with the assistance of a guide. In determining the market value of illegally taken deer, the fine imposed under Montana law for illegal taking did not establish market value, nor was that value established by the value of the deer if sold in open market. Rather, the market value is the amount that hunters were willing to pay for the guide's services. U.S. v. Atkinson, 966 F2d 1270 (9th Cir. 1992).

Case Notes

Admission of Evidence of Prior Game Farm (now Alternative Livestock Ranch) Acts Proper: The District Court did not err in admitting evidence of prior game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) acts and in limiting references to those acts and not to any subsequent convictions since the earlier case was still pending on appeal because: (1) the prior acts were sufficiently similar, although not identical, to those for which defendant was presently charged; (2) the acts, although occurring 3 years prior, were not so remote as to be inadmissible because of the similarity of the acts; and (3) the state's purpose in introducing the evidence was to establish absence of mistake or accident regarding defendant's possession of unlawfully taken wildlife. St. v. Brogan, 272 M 156, 900 P2d 284, 52 St. Rep. 636 (1995). See also St. v. Matt, 249 M 136, 814 P2d 52 (1991), and St. v. Romero, 261 M 221, 861 P2d 929 (1993).

Statute Not Unconstitutionally Vague: Brogan challenged the constitutionality of this section as being void for vagueness because it does not sufficiently define "constructive possession" and thus does not give a reasonable person notice of what conduct is proscribed and because no specific intent to possess unlawfully taken wildlife is required. Applying St. v. Crisp, 249 M 199, 814 P2d 981 (1991), the Supreme Court held that by incorporating the intent element of purposely and knowingly, which are statutorily defined terms, into the definition of the offense of possession of unlawfully taken wildlife, the Legislature has given fair warning of the mental state that is an element of the offense. Further, although the term "constructive possession" is not defined by statute, it has been defined in St. v. Meader, 184 M 32, 601 P2d 386 (1979), to mean that the goods are not in actual, physical possession but that the person charged with possession has dominion and control over the goods. Thus, this section is not unconstitutionally vague by virtue of the mental state element of the offense or the absence of a statutory definition of "constructive possession". St. v. Brogan, 272 M 156, 900 P2d 284, 52 St. Rep. 636 (1995). Meader was followed, as to constructive possession of a firearm, in St. v. Caekaert, 1999 MT 147, 295 M 42, 983 P2d 332, 56 St. Rep. 583 (1999).

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 346, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants rulemaking duties to the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] with regard to the awarding of prizes for the taking of protected fish in state waters. It is the intent of the legislature that the commission adopt rules that address an approval process for the conditions or operations of fishing tournaments, derbies, or contests in order to protect and preserve the fish resources in the state from potentially harmful practices or results of such events.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission adopt rules that are designed to prevent adverse impacts on the fish resources. To accomplish the purpose, the commission may adopt rules that include but are not limited to:

- (1) the duties of the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to recommend approval or disapproval of a tournament, derby, or contest or its conditions, based on sound wildlife conservation criteria;
- (2) reporting requirements for the rules and conditions of a tournament, derby, or contest that awards a prize for the taking of fish;
- (3) purse or participation limits for such events;
- (4) time limits for reporting such events to obtain commission approval or disapproval; and
- (5) details of the approval process, including any appeal process.

Notwithstanding the general rulemaking areas listed, it is the intent of the legislature to permit the commission to adopt rules that allow the commission enough flexibility to consider the merits of each tournament, derby, or contest on a case-by-case basis."

Coordination Instruction: Section 3(2)(a), Ch. 540, L. 1995, provided: "If Senate Bill No. 312 is passed and approved and if it transfers to the department of livestock primary management of publicly owned wild buffalo or bison that enter Montana on private or public land, then: (a) [section 1 of this act] [amending 87-3-130] is amended to read" (see 1995 Session Law for text). Senate Bill No. 312 was approved April 10, 1995, as Ch. 346, L. 1995; therefore, the coordinated version of 87-3-130 in sec. 3, Ch. 540, L. 1995, has been appropriately codified.

It is intended that this authority be permissive rather than mandatory in order to allow but not require the commission to address any need for restrictions or limitations on archery equipment, with adequate opportunity for public hearing and comment. The legislature is aware that this rulemaking power is expressed in broad and general language; however, this is necessary because bow hunting technology is an emerging field for which detailed and precise standards have not yet been fully developed. The legislature recognizes that the commission has the power to determine the extent and nature of hunting and fishing privileges and that the commission's expertise makes it the proper forum for addressing the need for archery equipment regulation."

Defendant Without Standing to Challenge Constitutionality of Hunter Harassment Law on Basis of Vagueness: Lilburn alleged that the hunter harassment law is unconstitutionally vague because it leaves several key terms undefined so that there is no statutory guidance to law enforcement officers or the public as to what type of conduct is prohibited. The Supreme Court held that Lilburn's conduct in standing between a hunter and a bison clearly was conduct that disturbed the hunter in the taking of game and that since Lilburn's conduct is clearly prohibited, he did not have standing to raise a facial vagueness challenge. *St. v. Hunter Harassment Law Not Violation of Free Speech Rights or Overbroad: Lilburn challenged the hunter harassment law on the basis that its prohibition of "dissuading" a hunter from taking a wild animal is content-based and designed to prevent the message contained in the dissuading language. The Supreme Court held that the Legislature did not use the term "dissuade" in isolation and that, reading the statute as a whole, it is clear that the conduct proscribed is the "disturbance" of a hunter engaged in a lawful activity. The Supreme Court also held that the law is not overbroad and that, to the extent that the statute might reach constitutionally protected expression, whatever overbreadth might exist should be cured on a case-by-case analysis of the fact situations. *St. v. WHEREAS, it is common courtesy to ask permission before entering private property; and

WHEREAS, increased communication normally leads to less confrontation; and

WHEREAS, with increased hunting pressure placed on private land, it is essential to maintain good rapport between landowners and hunters."

Attorney General's Opinions

Hunting of Specific Animal — Violation if Other Animal Hunted: A landowner may refuse permission entirely or give limited permission to hunt at certain times, in certain areas, or for certain kinds of animals. A hunter given explicit permission to hunt only for a specific kind of big game animal who exceeds the permission by hunting another kind of animal may be charged under this section with failure to obtain the landowner's permission. 41 A.G. Op. 65 (1986).

Hunting Trespass Not Repealed: Montana's criminal trespass statutes, 45-6-201 and 45-6-203, do not repeal or affect 87-3-304, which makes it unlawful to hunt big game animals on private property without permission, because the statutes do not relate to the same conduct. 37 A.G. Op. 144 (1978).

Not Incumbent Upon Agent to Procure or Possess License: When defendant had been convicted in Justice Court of buying furs for a fur dealer without a license, a misdemeanor, and again found guilty in District Court on appeal, the complaint did not state a public offense since under this section as amended in 1941 it was not incumbent upon the agent to procure or possess a license for buying furs but rather upon the fur dealer to procure a license for himself and his agent. *St. v. Title 12, chapter 6, subchapter 15, ARM Game farms.

Part Case Notes

Use of New Licensing Procedures Not Retroactive Application of Law and Not Violation of Department's Internal Policy: The Wallaces argued that the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks had violated the law by retroactively applying license approval criteria for game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) approval to them when they had filed their license application prior to 1993 legislative changes to the licensing law. The Wallaces also argued that the Department had not followed its own internal policies that required it to act on the application within 60 days of receipt. The Supreme Court held that the Department had correctly applied the new licensing criteria because a license is a privilege, not a vested right, the Department is required to comply with the law circumscribing its powers, and as a general rule, an agency is required to make its decisions on the law as it exists at the time that the decision is made, despite the fact that the law may have changed. The Supreme Court also held that the 60-day requirement to approve or disapprove a license application had been a statutory requirement under the previous law and had ceased to be a requirement when the amendments to the law became effective. Wallace v. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, 269 M 364, 889 P2d 817, 52 St. Rep. 30 (1995). See also Harlem v. St. Highway Comm'n, 149 M 281, 425 P2d 718 (1967), and Saint Vincent Hosp. v. Blue Cross, 261 M 56, 862 P2d 6 (1993).

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Wild Game Animals — Removal: When the fence of a game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) permittee encloses native wild big game animals, these animals remain the property of the state and may be hunted and taken only in compliance with state law. The state has no responsibility to remove the wild game animals from the enclosure. 38 A.G. Op. 68 (1980). Note: Portions of this opinion have been obviated by Ch. 570, L. 1983.

Game Harvesting — Game Ranch: The Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) does not have the authority to regulate the hunting and killing of privately owned game through the imposition of licensing requirements on individual hunters or open and closed seasons. 36 A.G. Op. 112 (1976).

1991 Amendment: At end of (2) inserted language concerning compliance with laws and rules relating to marketing, inspection, transportation, and health.

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or translocation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

1991 Amendment: Inserted (3) concerning marking game farm animals to facilitate identification for inspection, transportation, reporting, and taxation purposes; and at beginning of (5) inserted exception clause concerning importation permits and health certificates.

Case Notes

Enforcement of Fee Shooting Ban Improperly Enjoined — No Challenge to Constitutionality of Initiative Measure No. 143: In November 2000, voters enacted Initiative Measure No. 143, which included a ban on fee shooting of animals on alternative livestock ranches. Spoklie was granted a preliminary injunction prohibiting the state from interfering with the sale of alternative livestock to third persons, even if the third persons subsequently shot the animals at the alternative livestock ranch. The state and intervenors moved to dissolve the injunction, but the motion was denied. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. Spoklie clearly considered the right of third persons to harvest elk at an alternative livestock ranch to be an important part of the consideration received in exchange for fees paid, but the fee shooting arrangement is exactly what is prohibited by this section, as amended by the initiative. The preliminary injunction interfered with the state's enforcement of this section, a statute enacted for the public benefit, and was therefore prohibited under 27-19-103. Further, Spoklie's argument that an injunction was proper upon a showing of irreparable harm, as stated in dicta in The New Club Carlin, Inc. v. Billings, 237 M 194, 772 P2d 303 (1989), was also misplaced. As set out in State ex rel. Freebourn v. District Court, 85 M 439, 279 P 234 (1929), courts are prohibited from issuing injunctions to prevent the execution of a public statute by officers of the law for the public benefit. The only exception is when a statute or ordinance is unconstitutional or otherwise invalid and when, in the attempt to enforce it, there is a direct invasion of property rights resulting in irreparable injury. Spoklie neither alleged nor demonstrated that Initiative Measure No. 143 or this section was unconstitutional; therefore, the District Court erred as a matter of law when it enjoined the state's execution of this section. The order denying the motion to dissolve the injunction was reversed. Spoklie v. Dept. of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, 2002 MT 228, 311 M 427, 56 P3d 349 (2002).

Purpose of Alternative Livestock Transfer Regulations — Quarantine Exception to Commerce Clause Applicable: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for release into the wild. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks requested and received an injunction prohibiting any transfer of elk to tribal lands, and the Wallaces appealed, asserting that the injunction violated Art. I, sec. 8, clause 3, of the U.S. Constitution, known as the commerce clause. The Wallaces contended that prohibiting the transfer of alternative livestock to a recipient that is not licensed by the state constituted extraterritorial application of Montana's regulatory scheme to foreign nations, other states, and Indian nations in violation of federal law. The Supreme Court found that this case falls within the quarantine exception to the traditional commerce clause analysis. The quarantine exception recognizes that states may have a local interest in protecting public safety as a competing value when reviewing state burdens on interstate commerce. With the alarming spread of serious wildlife diseases throughout the country, the state has a compelling interest to enact regulations to ensure that alternative livestock cannot simply roam into Montana and threaten native populations. Because elk released on the Crow Indian Reservation could migrate back into Montana, the restrictions regarding transfer of alternative livestock in this section fall squarely within the quarantine exception to the commerce clause. Thus, the permanent injunction was affirmed. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002). See also Bowman v. Chicago & NW. Ry. Co., 125 US 465 (1888).

Appropriateness of Intervention in Action Challenging Enforcement of Ballot Initiative: Two sporting groups sought to intervene in an action challenging the enforcement of a ballot initiative that prohibited the shooting of alternative livestock for a fee. The District Court denied the motion, and the groups appealed. After accepting supervisory control, the Supreme Court noted that an application for intervention as a matter of right must satisfy each of the following factors: (1) timeliness; (2) interest in the subject matter of the litigation; (3) a showing that protection of the interest may be impaired by disposition of the action; and (4) a showing that the interest is not adequately represented by an existing party. In the present case, timeliness was not disputed. Regarding the second factor, the Supreme Court cited Idaho Farm Bureau Fed'n v. Babbitt, 58 F3d 1392 (9th Cir. 1995), for the proposition that a public interest group is entitled as a matter of right to intervene in an action challenging the legality of a measure that the group has supported. The District Court did not address the third factor because it determined that the groups had no legally protectable interest in the litigation. However, the Supreme Court found that an adverse decision in the suit would impair the groups' interest in the management and protection of Montana's game animals, so the third factor was met. Finally, the District Court determined that the groups failed to demonstrate that the Attorney General, on behalf of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks, would not zealously defend the groups' position in the suit. The Supreme Court concluded that the groups that actively drafted and supported the initiative may be in the best position to defend their interpretation of the resulting legislation and may not have been adequately represented by the Department. Thus, all four factors were met, and the Supreme Court ordered the District Court to permit the groups to intervene in the case. Sportsmen for I-143 v. District Court, 2002 MT 18, 308 M 189, 40 P3d 400 (2002).

Attorney General's Opinions

Wild Game Animals — Removal: When the fence of a game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) permittee encloses native wild big game animals, these animals remain the property of the state and may be hunted and taken only in compliance with state law. The state has no responsibility to remove the wild game animals from the enclosure. 38 A.G. Op. 68 (1980). Note: Portions of this opinion have been obviated by Ch. 570, L. 1983. (See also 1999 amendment.)

Game Harvesting — Game Ranch: The Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) does not have the authority to regulate the hunting and killing of privately owned game through the imposition of licensing requirements on individual hunters or open and closed seasons. 36 A.G. Op. 112 (1976).

1999 Amendment: Chapter 574 throughout section substituted references to alternative livestock for references to game farm animals; in (1) in first sentence substituted reference to alternative livestock ranch for reference to game farm, after "licensee shall" deleted "contact the department of livestock to", after "inspection" inserted "of the alternative livestock, which inspection must be completed", and at end after "agent" deleted "for all game farm animals, except carnivores and omnivores", deleted former second sentence that read: "In the case of carnivores and omnivores, the game farm licensee shall contact the department to request an inspection by a department official", and in third sentence after "dead" substituted "alternative livestock" for "game farm animals, except carnivores and omnivores"; in (2)(a) after "subsection (1)" deleted "except inspection of carnivores and omnivores"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 503 in (1), near middle of first sentence, substituted "designated agent" for "stock inspector" and substituted third sentence concerning reporting of dead game farm animals for former third sentence that read: "This section applies to all game farm animals, whether alive or dead"; substituted (2) concerning inspection of game farm animals under subsection (1) and certificate of inspection for former (2) that read: "(2)(a) Inspection under subsection (1) must include examination of the game farm animal and all marks, tags, and tattoos to identify ownership prior to issuance of a certificate of inspection.

(b) A certificate of inspection must be made in triplicate and must specify:

(i) the date of inspection;

- (ii) the place of origin and destination of the shipment;
 - (iii) the name and address of the owner of the game farm animals and of the purchaser or transferee;
 - (iv) the number, species, age, and sex of game farm animals transported or disposed of;
 - (v) ear tag numbers and tattoos on each animal; and
 - (vi) any other information that the department of livestock may require.
- (c) A copy of the certificate must be:
- (i) retained by the inspector;
 - (ii) furnished by the inspector to the owner or shipper of the game farm animals, to accompany the animals to their destination;
 - (iii) filed by the inspector with the department of livestock within 5 days of inspection; and
 - (iv) provided by the department of livestock to the department within 10 days of inspection";
- and in (3), after "quarantine", inserted "or issue a hold order on". Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 315 substituted (1) regarding inspection of game farm animals for former language that read: "Whenever the licensee of a licensed game farm sells or disposes of one or more game farm animals, he shall, at the same time, deliver to the recipient or otherwise cause to accompany each game farm animal or animals an invoice or bill of sale signed by the licensee or his agent stating the number of the game farm license, the date of acquisition or disposition, the species, the age, sex, and class of game animals disposed of, and the name and address of the transferee. This invoice or bill of sale, along with any required health certifications, authorizes transportation of the game farm animal or animals being sold, transferred, or disposed of"; and substituted (2) regarding inspection criteria for former language that read: "Within 10 days after movement or sale, the licensee or his agent shall mail postpaid a duplicate of the invoice or bill of sale to the department of livestock and the department." Amendment effective April 12, 1993.

1991 Amendment: In (1), near middle of first sentence before "disposition", inserted "acquisition or" and before "disposed" substituted "age, sex, and class of game animals" for "number" and in second sentence, after "bill of sale", inserted "along with any required health certifications"; at beginning of (2) substituted "Within 10 days after movement or sale" for "Within a reasonable time after disposition"; inserted (3) concerning Department of Livestock quarantining game farm animals pending inspection and concerning notification to Department of Livestock by Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks of importation or transportation of game farm animal with wildlife disease; and made minor changes in style.

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 2004 Annotations to the MCA

500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1995 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 503, L. 1995, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to clarify rulemaking authority of the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the department of livestock with regard to the administration and regulation of game farms [now alternative livestock ranches]. It is intended that rules promulgated pursuant to Title 87, chapter 4, part 4, be adopted in accordance with the Montana Negotiated Rulemaking Act, Title 2, chapter 5, part 1.

(1) It is intended that the department of fish, wildlife, and parks have primary authority with regard to rules governing:

- (a) game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] licensure;
- (b) reporting requirements;
- (c) exterior fencing requirements;
- (d) classification of species the importation of which may present a threat to the state's wildlife population;
- (e) general enforcement of game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] licensing violations; and
- (f) the definition of "reasonable time" in the context of 87-4-419(2), which must reflect specific seasonal issues related to breeding and disease.

(2) It is intended that the department of livestock have primary authority with regard to rules governing:

- (a) transportation and identification of game farm animals [now alternative livestock];
- (b) health inspection and game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] quarantines, including interior facilities; and
- (c) importation restrictions on exotic species.

(3) It is intended that the department of livestock's rules address the issue of immediate depopulation of game farm animals [now alternative livestock] that test positive for tuberculosis.

(4) It is intended that both the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the department of livestock consider the feasibility of using DNA as an additional method of identification of game farm animals [now alternative livestock].

(5) It is intended that the game farm advisory council [now alternative livestock advisory council] advise both the department of fish, wildlife, and parks and the department of livestock regarding the administration of game farm [now alternative livestock ranch] operations, which may include input into the rules adopted pursuant to [this act].

(6) It is the intent of the legislature that in adopting rules pursuant to 87-4-426(6) [now repealed], the department of fish, wildlife, and parks provide for a timely and simplified process for minor amendments to an existing license. This may include, when appropriate, a categorical exclusion under the provisions of Title 75, chapter 1, part 1."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 315 at end of (1) inserted "and to coordinate regulation of game farms with the department of livestock"; in (2), after "ungulates", substituted "requirements for facilities" for "fencing requirements", after "reporting" inserted "and recordkeeping", after "importation" inserted "restrictions on importation", and at end deleted "and game farm shooting licenses"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 12, 1993.

1983 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 448 (Ch. 570, L. 1983) provided: "This bill requires the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to make rules for game animal farms under section 17 [87-4-422], game bird farms under section 32 [87-4-913], and fur farms under section 47 [87-4-1012]. It is the intent of the Legislature that these rules address procedural items necessary for a timely and efficient processing of applications and licenses and provide the information necessary for administration of the criteria provided in those sections. It is intended that the license fees to be set by the Department be in an amount commensurate with the costs of processing the applications and administering the provisions of the act."

Case Notes

Revocation of License — Statute Not Retroactive — Revocation Not Violation of Double Jeopardy: Revocation of a license under a 1993 statute for prior convictions did not deprive a game farm (now alternative livestock ranch) operator of a vested right or attach additional disabilities to the prior convictions. This section serves a remedial purpose and is not a punitive or penal statute. The Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks' revocation of the license was not punishment and did not violate double jeopardy rights. Chapter 68 in (3)(a) of temporary version inserted second through fifth sentences defining Intake fishing access site and clarifying paddlefish and roe that are acceptable for donation to the program. Amendment effective March 13, 1991.

1989 Amendment: In (1), near beginning, inserted reference to subsection (3); and inserted (3) providing rules and procedure for donation of paddlefish roe to nonprofit corporation for use in caviar production and designating how profits are to be used (see 1989 Session Law for text). Amendment effective July 1, 1989, and terminates June 30, 1993.

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 409, L. 1989, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-4-601(3) grants rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks to implement the paddlefish roe donation program. The legislature intends that the priority in implementing the provisions of this bill be on maintaining the paddlefish fishery. At a minimum, it is intended that the rules address the following:

- (1) a process for the selection of a Montana nonprofit corporation to accept roe donations and to process and market the paddlefish roe;
- (2) recordkeeping required of the selected corporation and commercial buyers to assure proper administration of the program;
- (3) a process for development of recommendations and review of projects in expending funds raised through the paddlefish roe program;
- (4) a provision that the total number of paddlefish taken in the Yellowstone River Basin may not exceed 3,500 in any year; and
- (5) any other topics necessary for administration of the program."

1999 Amendment: Chapter 108 in first sentence in (1) and in (2)(a) after reference to artificial lake or pond inserted reference to private fish pond; in (2)(a) substituted current definition of artificial lake or pond or private fish pond for former text that read: "does not include a natural pond or body of water, including streams and rivers, created by natural means or any portion of the streambed or lakebed of a natural pond or body of water. It includes only bodies of water created by artificial means or diversion of water that do not exceed 500 acres of surface area"; inserted (2)(b) excluding certain water from definition of artificial lake or pond or private fish pond; inserted (3) requiring applicant to provide verification regarding game fish or fish species in instream private fish pond; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective March 18, 1999.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 425 in (1), in second sentence after "pond with", substituted "fish" for "fry"; in (2), after "water", inserted "including streams and rivers"; inserted (5) concerning request for inspection to determine presence of disease or illegal introduction of species and notice of intent to enter; inserted (6) concerning action taken because of disease or illegal introduction, including emergency action; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 425, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, whirling disease was recently discovered in the world famous fishery of the upper Madison River and is the leading suspect for the 90% reduction in the numbers of wild rainbow trout in those waters; and

WHEREAS, Governor Racicot, in a recent communication to concerned parties, stated, "There is genuine reason to believe whirling disease is the worst disease threat our wild trout have ever faced"; and

WHEREAS, Governor Racicot has further stated that it is essential for the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks to mobilize an unprecedented effort to research and combat this disease; and

WHEREAS, the wild trout fisheries in Montana provide in excess of $125 million in annual benefits to the state's economy; and

WHEREAS, the wild trout fisheries provide inestimable recreational pleasures for the citizens of the state; and

WHEREAS, there is significant potential for whirling disease to spread to other blue ribbon trout waters of the state; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks currently lacks both the authority and the staffing to combat a similar spread of disease; and

WHEREAS, whirling disease primarily results from the introduction of infected hatchery or wild fish; and

WHEREAS, the illegal introduction and movement of fish pose a serious threat to Montana's wild fisheries, including native fisheries; and

WHEREAS, many landowners with fish ponds and hatcheries need reassurance that their fish are disease-free."

1989 Amendment: In (1), in third sentence after "pond", inserted "and otherwise condition the license", in fourth sentence, after "this state", inserted "or violate the conditions of his license", after "will" inserted "submit an annual", after "report" inserted "on transactions", after "director" deleted reference to quantity of fish, eggs, and spawn taken, and deleted former fifth and sixth sentences regarding requirement for annual oath, requirement for record of species and pounds of fish, eggs, and fry sold, date of transaction, and purchaser; inserted (3) authorizing Department to condition license to require device to prevent escape of fish; inserted (4) requiring licensed seller to keep and file annually a record of species and quantities sold or purchased, date of sale or purchase, purchaser's or seller's name, and transfer locations; and made minor changes in style.

CHAPTER 5 WILDLIFE PROTECTION

Chapter Case Notes

Media Coverage of Search Involving Alleged Wildlife Violation Outside Scope of Warrant — Open Fields Doctrine and Invited Informer Doctrine Inapplicable: Federal agents who suspected a wildlife violation searched the Bergers' ranch pursuant to a search warrant and to a written contract with two national broadcasting networks authorizing the filming and recording of the search for broadcast on environmental television shows. After Berger was convicted of one misdemeanor count of improper use of a pesticide, he sued both the networks and the federal agents for violations of constitutional rights. On appeal, the Ninth Circuit Court held that activities conducted pursuant to the search were not authorized by the open fields doctrine, which allows law enforcement officers to obtain evidence while on privately owned open fields, because Berger had a reasonable expectation of privacy with regard to outbuildings that were photographed and because that doctrine does not authorize trespass by third parties. Further, the invited informer doctrine, which allows the use of informers with recording devices to obtain information as part of a good faith government investigation, did not apply in this instance because the recording of Berger's conversations was used to assist commercial television, not to further law enforcement objectives. Pursuant to the joint action test, the networks were considered to be acting under color of law and, as such, were liable for damages as government actors for contractually engaging in a search enterprise that only the government could lawfully institute for the mutual benefit of both private and governmental interests in publicity. The case was reversed for further consideration of Berger's state claims of trespass and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Berger v. Hanlon, 129 F3d 505 (9th Cir. 1997).

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 301 inserted definition of commercial purposes; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Chapter 521 in definition of endangered species in (d) substituted "artificial factors" for "man-made factors"; in definition of management in first sentence substituted "conserving populations of wildlife consistent with other uses of land and habitat" for "increasing the number of individuals within species and populations of wildlife up to the optimum carrying capacity of their habitat and maintaining such levels"; in second sentence after "improvement" inserted "control", and in third sentence after "periodic" deleted "or total"; in definition of nongame wildlife inserted third sentence providing that prairie dogs are nongame wildlife that may be managed, controlled, and regulated, inserted fourth sentence concerning management and control by counties and departments of agriculture and natural resources and conservation if consistent with approved management plan, and inserted fifth sentence prohibiting interpretation of law to limit landowner's control of prairie dog concentrations on private lands; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001, and terminates October 1, 2007.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 301, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, the Legislature finds it desirable to regulate or manage the collection, harvest, possession, or transportation of nongame wildlife for commercial purposes."

The preamble attached to Ch. 521, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, Montana has a responsibility to ensure that a viable prairie dog population is maintained in the state for the long term, as well as to ensure the long-term existence of species associated with prairie dogs; and

WHEREAS, the Montana Prairie Dog Working Group is developing a conservation plan for prairie dogs in Montana to provide for management of populations and habitats in order to ensure both the long-term existence of prairie dogs and the control of prairie dogs to protect existing land uses; and

WHEREAS, the only existing statutory authority for prairie dog management is to control them as rodents under Title 7, chapter 22, part 22, MCA, and as vertebrate pests under section 80-7-1101, MCA; and

WHEREAS, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) has found that the black-tailed prairie dog is warranted for listing under the federal Endangered Species Act (ESA) over an 11-state area that includes Montana, but that listing of this species is precluded at the present time because other candidate species have a higher priority for listing; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS finding is based in part on the inadequacy of regulatory mechanisms that Montana and other states currently possess to ensure maintenance of viable prairie dog populations for the long term; and

WHEREAS, Montana and 10 other states have entered into an agreement to jointly develop management plans that address the needs of the species across virtually its entire range, thus improving the status of the black-tailed prairie dog to the point that it can be removed from consideration for listing under the ESA; and

WHEREAS, the USFWS will review the status of the black-tailed prairie dog on an annual basis; and

WHEREAS, it is desirable to enable the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks and the Department of Agriculture to implement management actions contained in Montana's prairie dog conservation plan while specifically protecting the current ability of landowners to manage prairie dogs on their lands; and

WHEREAS, it is desirable to facilitate long-term conservation of prairie dogs according to the conservation plan for prairie dogs in Montana while simultaneously reducing the likelihood that the black-tailed prairie dog will be listed under the ESA."

1983 Amendment: Inserted (1) defining account; and in second sentence of (4) after "habitat" deleted "acquisition and".

2003 Amendment: Chapter 361 inserted (1) relating to constitutional obligations and legislative intent; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2003.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "WHEREAS, Article II, section 3, of the Montana Constitution enumerates certain inalienable individual rights, including the right to a clean and healthful environment, the right of pursuing life's basic necessities, the right of enjoying and defending an individual's life and liberty, the right of acquiring, possessing, and protecting property, and the right of seeking individual safety, health, and happiness in all lawful ways; and

WHEREAS, the constitutionally enumerated rights are by their very nature bound to result in competing interests in specific fact situations; and

WHEREAS, Article IX, section 1, of the Montana Constitution provides that the state and each person shall maintain and improve a clean and healthful environment in Montana for present and future generations and directs the Legislature to provide for the administration and enforcement of this duty and also directs the Legislature to provide adequate remedies for the protection of the environmental life support system from degradation and to provide adequate remedies to prevent unreasonable depletion and degradation of natural resources; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature has reviewed the intent of the framers of the 1972 Montana Constitution as evidenced in the verbatim transcripts of the constitutional convention; and

WHEREAS, there is no indication that one enumerated inalienable right is intended to supersede other inalienable rights, including the right to use property in all lawful means; and

WHEREAS, the Legislature, mindful of its constitutional obligation to provide for the administration and enforcement of the constitution, has enacted a comprehensive set of laws to accomplish the goals of the constitution, including the Montana Clean Indoor Air Act of 1979, Title 50, chapter 40, part 1, MCA; the Montana Environmental Policy Act, Title 75, chapter 1, parts 1 through 3, MCA; the Clean Air Act of Montana, Title 75, chapter 2, parts 1 through 4, MCA; water quality laws, Title 75, chapter 5, MCA; The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975, Title 75, chapter 7, part 1, MCA; The Montana Solid Waste Management Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 2, MCA; The Montana Hazardous Waste Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 4, MCA; the Comprehensive Environmental Cleanup and Responsibility Act, Title 75, chapter 10, part 7, MCA; the Montana Megalandfill Siting Act, sections 75-10-901 through 75-10-945, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Installer and Inspector Licensing and Permitting Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 2, MCA; the Montana Underground Storage Tank Act, Title 75, chapter 11, part 5, MCA; the Montana Major Facility Siting Act, Title 75, chapter 20, MCA; the Open-Space Land and Voluntary Conservation Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 6, MCA; the Environmental Control Easement Act, Title 76, chapter 7, MCA; The Strip and Underground Mine Siting Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 1, MCA; The Montana Strip and Underground Mine Reclamation Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 2, MCA; The Opencut Mining Act, Title 82, chapter 4, part 4, MCA; and The Nongame and Endangered Species Conservation Act, Title 87, chapter 5, part 1, MCA."

Severability: Section 39, Ch. 361, L. 2003, was a severability clause.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 41, Ch. 361, L. 2003, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to actions for judicial review or other causes of action challenging the issuance of a permit, petition for review, amendment, license, arbitration, action, certificate, or inspection that are pending but not yet decided on or after [the effective date of this act]." 1991 Amendment: At end of (2), after "account", deleted "except as provided in subsection (5)"; deleted former (5) that read: "(5) The department of revenue may deduct from collections an amount not to exceed $1 for each tax checkoff contribution for administering the voluntary checkoff program"; and made minor change in style.

1987 Amendment: In (2), at end, changed reference to subsection (6) to reference to subsection (5); deleted former (5) and (6) that read: "(5) Money derived from tax checkoff contributions to the account will replace license fee funding for nongame wildlife programs after June 30, 1985, and may not be used to replace money that would otherwise be appropriated for nongame wildlife programs.

(6) The department of revenue may deduct from collections an amount not to exceed $7,884 in fiscal year 1986 and $7,884 in fiscal year 1987 for administering the voluntary checkoff program. The department is authorized to spend the amounts and hire necessary personnel and shall provide an itemized accounting to the legislative finance committee of the cost of administering the checkoff program during fiscal years 1986 and 1987"; and inserted (5) based on contingency described below.

Contingency Authorization: Section 5, Ch. 589, L. 1987, provided: "The authorization for deduction of administrative costs for the department of revenue in 87-5-121(5) of this act is contingent on passage and approval by the 50th legislature of legislation to require a similar deduction for administrative costs for all voluntary income tax checkoff programs authorized by law." (This contingency did not occur.)

1985 Amendment: In (2) in middle, inserted "and all interest earned by the fund before being expended under this section"; and in (6) in first sentence, after "exceed", substituted "$7,884 in fiscal year 1986 and $7,884 in fiscal year 1987" for "$6,638 in fiscal year 1984 and $4,238 in fiscal year 1985", in middle of second sentence substituted "legislative finance committee" for "49th legislature" and at end, after "fiscal years", substituted "1986 and 1987" for "1984 and 1985".

1983 Amendment: In (1), substituted "state special revenue fund" for "earmarked revenue fund".

Applicability: Section 7, Ch. 627, L. 1983, provided: "(1) This act applies to tax returns which by law are required to be filed after January 1, 1984.

Vagueness: Where defendant was convicted of illegally possessing and transporting falcons, after having fraudulently obtained a permit to possess and transport falcons, conviction under 87-5-206(4) (repealed, 1991) and this section was sustained despite defendant's contention that the sections were unconstitutionally vague because they did not clearly prohibit possession or transportation with a fraudulently obtained permit. U.S. v. Doyle, 786 F2d 1440 (1986), certiorari denied, 479 US 984, 93 L Ed 2d 576, 107 S Ct 572 (1986).

87-5-204. License and rules for falconry and raptors.Compiler's Comments

1991 Amendment: In (1), near beginning of first sentence, substituted "commission shall" for "department may", near middle, after "possession", inserted "by residents and nonresidents, selling or transfer of possession", at end, after "falconry", inserted "and set license qualifications and fees", and inserted second sentence requiring conformance with federal law; deleted former (2) and (3) that read: "(2) The fee for a falconry license is $3 a year or any part of a year. A license expires April 30 each year.

(3) A license may not be issued to a person under the age of 12 years"; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 243, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-5-204 and 87-5-210 require the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to adopt rules regarding certain aspects of the use and breeding of raptors and the sport of falconry. Because the regulation of raptors and the sport of falconry are in large part regulated by federal law and because detailed and precise standards are rapidly changing, the rules must comply with federal law and regulations as adopted or amended from time to time. The legislature recognizes that the commission has the power to determine the extent and nature of measures that control wildlife in Montana and that the commission's expertise makes it the proper forum for addressing the regulation of raptors and the sport of falconry. At a minimum, the rules must address:

(1) the regulation of raptors and restrictions on taking, possessing, and selling raptors, including:

- (a) the number of raptors that may legally be possessed;
- (b) appropriate times and areas for trapping raptors and removing of raptors from the nest;

- (c) notification requirements regarding transfer of ownership;
 - (d) permitting requirements regarding sale and transportation of raptors; and
 - (e) possession of and hunting with raptors by nonresidents;
 - (2) licenses and rules for falconry and the allowable uses of raptors in the sport of falconry, including:
 - (a) appropriate falconry license fees;
 - (b) age requirements regarding issuance of falconry licenses;
 - (c) the necessity of possessing other valid game licenses when practicing falconry; and
 - (d) the transfer and revocation of falconry licenses; and
 - (3) the regulation of captive breeding of raptors, including:
 - (a) appropriate breeding permit fees;
 - (b) transferability and revocation of breeding permits; and
 - (c) any other aspects of captive breeding considered appropriate by the commission."
- 1987 Amendment:* In (4), in second sentence, inserted "upland" before "game" and following "license" inserted "or waterfowl stamp, as appropriate".
- 1983 Amendment:* In last sentence of (1), inserted exception clause.

1991 Amendment: In (1) substituted first sentence regarding practice of falconry by federally licensed nonresidents for former first sentence that read: "Nonresidents who are working, attending schools, or otherwise living temporarily in the state of Montana may obtain a Montana falconry license and bring raptors, legally acquired in other states or countries, into the state of Montana"; inserted (2) disallowing raptor capture in Montana by nonresidents; and made minor change in style.

1991 Amendment: In (1), near end of first sentence after "part", inserted "and with rules adopted by the commission" and inserted second sentence regarding adoption of permit qualifications and fees by rule; deleted former (2) that read: "(2) The fee for a captive breeding permit is $20 a year"; at end of (2) substituted "commission" for "department"; in (3), near beginning of first sentence, substituted "commission shall" for "department may", after "rules" substituted "regarding" for "for the keeping of records on, the trapping, taking, possession, propagation, and release of, and the sale of progeny of", and inserted second sentence requiring conformance with federal law.

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 243, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because 87-5-204 and 87-5-210 require the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] to adopt rules regarding certain aspects of the use and breeding of raptors and the sport of falconry. 1987 Amendment: In (4) inserted "and the sale of progeny of" and made minor changes in grammar.

Report on Sale of Progeny of Raptors — 51st Legislature: Section 3, Ch. 532, L. 1987, read: "The department [of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks] shall report to the 51st legislature the results of the program regulating the sale of the progeny of raptors, including but not limited to the numbers of birds sold, a description of the enforcement efforts undertaken, and the cost of the program to the department."

Codification Without Instruction: This section was enacted without a codification instruction. The apparent intent was that it become an integral part of Title 87, chapter 5, part 2, and the Code Commissioner has codified it accordingly.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 94 (Ch. 297, L. 1983), first adopted by the House Fish and Game Committee, read: "House Bill No. 94 requires a statement of intent because the proposed amendments [to the bill enacting this section] would provide the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks with the authority to pass regulations on the taking and keeping of raptors for captive breeding purposes."

The reason for the Department to pass regulations controlling captive breeding is to avoid abuses which could endanger the birds captured or in some cases to protect species which are already rare or unusual in Montana. Accordingly, regulations may be adopted which would regulate the kinds of raptors which may be captured, the methods used to capture birds, the facilities in which the birds are kept and bred, the times of capture, the kinds of records to be kept regarding the bird, and the qualifications of the people requesting a captive breeding permit."

Part 5

Stream Protection

Part Attorney General's Opinions

Application of Part to Government Projects Including Highway Contractor Discretionary Work Bridges: This part was enacted to regulate projects undertaken by governmental entities, and the Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975 (Title 75, ch. 7, part 7) was enacted to control projects not subject to this part. Because highway projects are governmental undertakings, all activities in such a project that may impact upon a stream are within the jurisdiction of the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks under this part, including activities such as temporary work bridges erected at a private contractor's discretion and not reflected on the Department of Highways' (now Department of Transportation's) construction plans. 40 A.G. Op. 71 (1984).

Application of Streambed Act: The Legislature did not intend to regulate any federally constructed projects under The Natural Streambed and Land Preservation Act of 1975. However, the mere location of a nonfederal project on federal land does not preempt state regulation under the Act. The Act is applicable to private projects on state lands, but state or local projects are regulated by the Fish and Game Commission (now Fish, Wildlife, and Parks Commission) under applicable statutes. As to Indian reservations, the Act does not apply to projects constructed by Indians within the reservations, but projects constructed by non-Indians on non-Indian land within a reservation may be regulated by the state if it does not interfere with tribal self-government. 37 A.G. Op. 15 (1977).

Federal Dominance as to Fisheries and Dams: Federal Power Commission v. Oregon, 349 US 435, 99 L Ed 1215, 75 S Ct 832 (1955), evidenced that the federal government can disregard the wishes of a state concerning its fisheries wherever it believes that the interests of the nation are best served by permitting a dam to be built, and this applies even where the waters are nonnavigable, provided only that the powersite is on reserved lands of the United States. 1997 Amendment: Chapter 393 throughout section, in four places, substituted "fish, wildlife, and parks" for "fish and wildlife"; in (2)(a) inserted "including neighborhood watch programs"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 28, 1997.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 209 (Ch. 305, L. 1985) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it [87-5-605] grants rulemaking authority to the department of fish, wildlife, and parks for the purpose of administering the fish and game crimestoppers program.

It is contemplated that the department establish rules for instituting an award program, including criteria to be used in determining who will receive the rewards and the amount of the rewards in order to guarantee that the rewards be granted through a reasonable and consistent procedure.

It is also contemplated that the department draft rules for guaranteeing the confidentiality of persons providing crime-related information. The rules must comply with the constitutional right to know and the right of privacy; confidentiality will be maintained only when the demand of individual privacy clearly exceeds the merits of public disclosure.

To facilitate the transmitting of crime-related information from the public to the department, the department would establish a toll-free telephone number throughout the state. This toll-free number should be publicized statewide on the radio and in the press."

87-5-701. Purpose.Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 536 in first sentence near beginning after "plant species" substituted "livestock, horticultural, forestry, and agricultural production and health and human safety" for "agricultural production of Montana", after "necessary to" substituted "regulate" for "provide for the control of", and at end inserted language concerning importation, transplantation, possession, and sale; in second sentence after "unknown" deleted "to the well-being of native wildlife and plant species and to agricultural production", after the first "introduction of wildlife" substituted "and exotic wildlife into Montana" for "into natural habitats", after "necessitate the" substituted "regulation" for "prohibition", after the second "introduction of wildlife" substituted "and regulation of the importation, transplantation, possession, and sale of exotic wildlife" for "into natural habitats", and near end inserted references to importation, possession, and sale; in third sentence near beginning after "importation" deleted "for introduction or the", after "transplantation" inserted "possession, sale", and near end substituted "wildlife or exotic wildlife" for "the introduced or transplanted population"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2004.

87-5-702. Definitions.Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 536 inserted definitions of controlled exotic wildlife, domestic animal, exotic wildlife, native wildlife, noncontrolled exotic wildlife, possession, and prohibited exotic wildlife; in definition of feral after "appearance" deleted "in a natural habitat", after "animal" inserted "and any offspring", and after "escaped" substituted "captivity" for "domestication"; in definition of importation after "act of" substituted remainder of definition relating to bringing or shipping into the state for "bringing into the state any wildlife"; in definition of introduction in two places inserted "from captivity" and near end substituted "the wild within" for "natural habitats of"; deleted definition of natural habitat that read: "'Natural habitat' means any area in which the introduction of wildlife species may result in an uncontrolled, naturally reproducing population of that species becoming established"; in definition of transplantation after "into" deleted "natural habitats in"; in definition of wildlife in (a) after "egg" inserted "sperm, embryo" and inserted (b) excluding domestic animals; and made minor changes in style. 2003 Amendment: Chapter 536 inserted (3) concerning implementing 87-5-705 through 87-5-709 and operation of classification review committee; and inserted (4) concerning adoption of rules for authorization permit and amnesty. Amendment effective January 1, 2004.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 770 (Ch. 624, L. 1985) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because section 10 [87-5-704] grants rulemaking authority to both the fish and game commission [now fish, wildlife, and parks commission] and the department of fish, wildlife, and parks. Section 10 [87-5-704] specifies what sections each entity may implement.

It is the intent of the legislature that the department adopt detailed rules pertaining to the procedure for accepting and processing applications for permission to import for introduction, introduce, or transplant wildlife. The department should address information such as names of applicants, species of wildlife, source of obtaining wildlife, purpose for introducing or transplanting, benefit to the public, potential for harm, and processing fee.

It is the intent of the legislature that the commission review proposals for the introduction or transplantation of wildlife species in the state on a case-by-case basis. It is also the intent of the legislature that the department develop a plan for those applications approved by the commission to assure that the population can be controlled if unforeseen harm should occur."

Case Notes

Transfer of Alternative Livestock to Unlicensed Tribal Lands Illegal: The Wallaces, licensed alternative livestock ranchers, sought to reduce the size of their elk herd by transferring about 500 elk to the Crow Indian Reservation for subsequent release into the wild. The elk had been certified as free of tuberculosis, brucellosis, and elk-red deer hybridization by the Department of Livestock (DOL). Despite notification by the Department of Fish, Wildlife, and Parks (DFWP) that such an act violated state law, the Wallaces transferred 68 elk to the tribe. DFWP requested and received a permanent injunction prohibiting any further transfer of elk to the tribe, and the Wallaces appealed, questioning DFWP jurisdiction. The Supreme Court noted that DFWP has a statutory basis for its jurisdiction over the Wallaces as licensees. Based on DFWP jurisdiction over exterior fencing, and the Department's knowledge that the elk would not be contained behind a game-proof fence upon delivery to the tribe, DFWP had statutory authority to seek the permanent injunction to prevent the transfer. Also, the introduction or transplantation of any wildlife into the wild, including game farm elk, requires the approval of DFWP. Further, 87-4-414 provides that alternative livestock may be kept only on a licensed alternative livestock ranch, and because the tribe is not a licensed facility under Montana law, neither DFWP nor DOL had authority to permit the transfer. The Wallaces knew that the elk were destined for an unlicensed location where they would be released into the wild and could migrate back into Montana, so the transfer violated the Wallaces' duty as licensees to act in accordance with law, and the District Court correctly enjoined the transportation of the elk. Hagener v. Wallace, 2002 MT 109, 309 M 473, 47 P3d 847 (2002).

87-5-712. Authority for commission to control importation, possession, or sale of certain wildlife species and exotic wildlife.Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 536 in introductory clause in first sentence after "hearing" inserted language relating to classification review committee, after "species" substituted "or exotic wildlife that may not be imported, possessed, or sold as pets" for "prohibited from importation", and at end inserted "for any other reason" and at beginning of second sentence inserted clause concerning placement of wildlife species or exotic wildlife on list and after "finds" deleted "based on scientific investigation"; in (1) at beginning substituted "exotic wildlife" for "species, because of behavioral traits or other biological considerations"; in (2) after "released" substituted "from captivity, the exotic wildlife" for "into natural habitat"; inserted (3) concerning risk posed by exotic wildlife; and made minor changes in style. 87-5-716. Consultation with departments of agriculture, public health and human services, and livestock.

Compiler's Comments

2003 Amendment: Chapter 536 near beginning inserted reference to department of public health and human services, after "wildlife species" inserted "and exotic wildlife", and at end inserted language relating to risk to human health or safety; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective January 1, 2004.

87-5-721. Penalty — license and permit revocation and denial.

Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 344 in (2)(a), in first sentence, substituted "an offense" for "a misdemeanor" and substituted "$5,000 and imprisonment for up to 1 year" for "$1,000 or imprisonment for not more than 6 months, or both" and inserted second and third sentences allowing sentencing court to consider community service in lieu of imprisonment and prohibiting the sentencing court from deferring or suspending $500 of the fine amount.

1993 Amendment: Chapter 223 in (2)(a), after "$500", substituted language concerning $1,000 fine or imprisonment for "and may be fined up to the amount necessary to eliminate or mitigate the effects of the violation"; inserted (2)(b) regarding civil liability and damages; and made minor changes in style.

1991 Amendment: At beginning of (1) inserted exception clause; and inserted (2) relating to penalty for illegal importation, introduction, or transplantation of fish.

Case Notes

Fish and Game Restitution Not Within Jurisdiction of Justice Court: The Justice Court imposed a $515 fine, suspended fishing privileges, and ordered restitution in an amount necessary to mitigate the effects of the violation to be paid by a plaintiff who had intentionally introduced fish into Lake Mary Ronan. On appeal, the Supreme Court vacated the conviction and sentence, holding that the potentially limitless fine that could be imposed to mitigate the effects of a violation of the fish and game statute is inconsistent with the statute that grants Justices' Courts jurisdiction over violations of fish and game statutes that are punishable by a fine not exceeding $1,000. Moseley v. Lake County Justice Court, 256 M 206, 845 P2d 732, 50 St. Rep. 28 (1993).

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the United States. It is argued that a knowledge of the past is essential for a proper understanding of the present. The author then proceeds to discuss the various factors which have shaped the development of the United States, including the influence of the British, the Spanish, and the French. The author also discusses the role of the American people in the development of the country, and the importance of the American Revolution. The paper concludes by discussing the future of the United States, and the author's hopes for the country.

Amendment effective April 21, 2001.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 348, L. 2001, provided: "WHEREAS, agricultural land is increasingly being taken out of production for development and becoming unavailable for production of food; and

WHEREAS, farmers and ranchers are often forced to sell their land to generate sufficient income to retire; and 1985 Amendment: Inserted (5) referring to federal community development block grant program.

1981 Amendment: Substituted "department of commerce" for "department of community affairs" in the section introductory clause.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 230, L. 1985, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it authorizes the department of commerce to adopt administrative rules necessary to administer the federal community development block grant (CDBG) program.

The purpose of this bill is to formalize within the context of the Montana Administrative Procedure Act the department's promulgation of policies, guidelines, ranking criteria, and requirements governing the CDBG program which the department has administered since it was authorized to do so by the November 1981 special session of the legislature. It is not the intention of this bill, however, to add unnecessarily to the cost or complexity of administering the program.

Currently the department's requirements for the program are contained in the publications described below:

1. The Montana Community Development Block Grant Program Application Guidelines describe the policies governing the program, the threshold requirements for CDBG applicants, and the procedure and criteria for evaluating applications.

2. The Montana Community Development Block Grant Program — Grant Administration Manual describes the administrative procedures for local project start up, environmental review of project activities, procurement of goods and services, financial management, protection of civil rights, assuring fair wages for labor, and acquisition of property and relocation of persons displaced thereby. It also discusses special administrative considerations peculiar to public facilities, housing rehabilitation, and economic development projects.

3. The Montana Community Development Block Grant Program — Requirements Notebook is a compilation of the federal and state statutes, regulations, and other standards which govern the CDBG program but which have been promulgated by agencies other than the department.

Because the conversion of these three lengthy publications to a rule format and their inclusion in the Montana Administrative Register or the Administrative Rules of Montana would be unduly cumbersome, expensive, and inexpedient, the legislature contemplates that the rules promulgated pursuant to this bill would be adopted by reference to the publications themselves as is authorized by section 2-4-307, MCA."

2003 Amendment: Chapter 351 in (1)(a) substituted definition of certified regional development corporation for former definition of certified community lead organization that read: "Certified community lead organization" means the entity that has been endorsed by resolution of a local governing body or a tribal government, as defined in 90-6-701(3)(e), and that meets and maintains requirements for certification established by the department"; inserted (1)(b) defining council; inserted (1)(d) defining treasure community; in (2) at end of first sentence substituted "up to 12 certified regional development corporations" for "the certified communities program" and deleted former last sentence and former (2)(a) through (2)(c) that read: "The department shall distribute the funds in the following manner:

- (a) 91% to certified community lead organizations, in the form of assistance grants;
- (b) 8% to the department for administration of the certified communities program; and
- (c) 1% to the department for certification assistance for noncertified communities. If there are no requests for certification assistance, the 1% allocation may be used by the department for administration of the certified communities program"; in (3) near beginning of first sentence after "certified" substituted "regional development corporation will be made based on rules adopted by the department for the state matching funds program" for "community lead organization is based on an annual per capita payment for the area served by the organization, according to its population in the last completed federal census. The grant may not exceed $75,000 and may not be less than $3,000 a year" and inserted last sentence and (3)(a) through (3)(d) outlining rules for distribution of funds; in (4) in introductory clause after "certified" substituted "regional development corporation" for "community lead organization"; in (4)(a) after "designated as the" substituted "certified regional development corporation by the department" for "lead organization by the local governing body"; inserted (4)(d) requiring the corporation to administer the treasure community designation; inserted (4)(e) requiring the corporation to encourage and organize full participation in regional economic development activities, meetings, projects, and planning by the treasure communities in the region; in (4)(f) after "shall" substituted "deliver services and resources to the citizens, businesses, and treasure communities throughout the region" for "participate in regional meetings of certified communities"; in (5) near middle after "certified" inserted "regional development corporations and the treasure" and after "communities" inserted "in the region"; deleted former (6) that read: "(6) The department shall use its portion of the proceeds to:

- (a) administer the certified communities program;
- (b) assist noncertified communities in seeking certification; and
- (c) organize and conduct regional meetings of certified communities"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 16, 2003.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 268 in (1) in definition of certified community lead organization inserted "or a tribal government, as defined in 90-6-701(3)(e)". Amendment effective October 1, 1999.

Appropriation of Oil Overcharge Money for State Programs: Chapter 49, L. 1999, appropriated certain oil overcharge money to various state programs as an implementation of the policy stated in this section. The text of Ch. 49 provided: "Section 1. Policy. [Sections 1 through 13] [not codified] implement the policy stated in 90-4-210.

Section 2. Definitions. As used in [sections 1 through 13] [not codified], the following definitions apply:

(1) "Carryover" means unspent oil overcharge funds previously appropriated and incorporated into an approved program plan for one of the federal energy conservation programs, but not included in unspent project funds as defined in subsection (8).

(2) "Cities service payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the consent agreement between cities service oil and gas and the U.S. department of energy, as affirmed by the federal energy regulatory commission, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(3) "Diamond shamrock payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the southern district of Ohio eastern division in civil action No. C2-84-1432 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(4) "Exxon payments" means the oil overcharge payments made by the Exxon corporation to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia in civil action No. 78-1035 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(5) "Getty oil payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of disbursement issued in civil action No. 77-347 (MMS) in the U.S. district court for the district of Delaware and any interest accrued on the payments.

(6) "Stripper well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the district of Kansas, Cause No. M.D.L. 378, and any interest accrued on the payments. The term also includes but is not limited to cities service payments, as defined in subsection (2), Getty oil payments, as defined in subsection (5), Texaco payments, as defined in subsection (7), and any unspent project funds, as defined in subsection (8).

(7) "Texaco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the Texaco final consent order, 53 Fed. Reg. 32929, August 29, 1988, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(8) "Unspent project funds" means stripper well payments that were not expended or otherwise legally obligated during the 1999 biennium but were appropriated for the 1999 biennium in Chapter 526, Laws of 1997, in:

- (a) section 4;
- (b) section 5;
- (c) section 6;
- (d) section 7;
- (e) section 8;
- (f) section 9;
- (g) section 10;
- (h) section 11;
- (i) section 12; and
- (j) section 13.

Section 3. Deposit of oil overcharge revenue. All funds from stripper well and Exxon payments must be deposited by the state treasurer in the federal special revenue fund. All interest earned on any of these funds or payments also must be deposited in the federal special revenue fund.

Section 4. Matching funds for low-income energy assistance — appropriation. (1) There is appropriated $300,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for the purpose described in subsection (2) and under the restrictions contained in subsection (3).

(2) The department of public health and human services shall match private contributions to energy share, inc. to be used to address home heating emergencies encountered by households with incomes between 0% and 150% of federal poverty guidelines who are not eligible for federal low-income energy assistance or who have not received federal low-income energy assistance in the current program year. All of the funds appropriated to the department for this purpose under subsection (1) must be used for clients' emergency energy needs.

(3) In the event a combination of the oil overcharge funds appropriated in subsection (1) and universal system benefits funds designated to energy share, inc. exceeds $400,000 in fiscal year 2000 or in fiscal year 2001, the excess amount must be subtracted from the appropriation of oil overcharge funds provided in subsection (1) for that fiscal year and a like amount shall be added to the oil overcharge funds appropriated in [section 5] [not codified] for low-income home weatherization, except that the biennial appropriation for low-income home weatherization provided in [section 5] [not codified] shall not exceed under any condition.

Section 5. Low-income home weatherization — appropriation. There is appropriated $500,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 6. Affordable, efficient housing plan book — appropriation. There is appropriated $40,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to assist in the preparation, production, and distribution of a plan book containing affordable, energy-efficient house designs developed in cooperation with the Montana building industries association, the department of commerce, local building code officials, and other entities.

Section 7. Food bank network transportation — appropriation. There is appropriated $15,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in assisting the Montana food bank network with coordinated energy-efficient transportation of food to drop sites and local food banks statewide.

Section 8. Transportation to nutrition sites — appropriation. There is appropriated $11,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for grants to the area agencies on aging to provide transportation for seniors to nutrition sites. The area agencies on aging shall apply to the department of public health and human services for these funds.

Section 9. Low-income weatherization — appropriation. In addition to the appropriations in [sections 4 and 5] [not codified], there is appropriated $200,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 10. Montana public and private organizations becoming consortium partners — appropriation. There is appropriated $50,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to provide a grant to the national center for appropriate technology to initiate the formation of a Montana advanced transportation technologies consortium focusing on vehicles traditionally powered by two-stroke engines. The national center for appropriate technology will integrate its transportation technology development services with other western regional consortium and national programs, as recommended by the western governors' association and the western interstate energy board, to provide specialized business assistance, to attract development financing and production capital, and to promote regional industrial growth for the clean transportation technologies fostered by the consortium.

Section 11. Carryover — reappropriations. There is reappropriated $28,000 from the stripper well payments, $51,000 from the Exxon payments, and $66,000 from the diamond shamrock payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to fund the state energy program administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 420. There is reappropriated up to $40,000 of stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund at the department of administration to help establish a refueling infrastructure that will support the use of ethanol-fueled vehicles.

Section 12. Conditions applied to appropriations. (1) The appropriations made in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] are biennial appropriations. One-half of the total amount appropriated to each program in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] is appropriated in fiscal year 2000, and the remainder is appropriated in fiscal year 2001. As biennial appropriations, the unexpended funds appropriated in fiscal year 2000 may be carried forward within each program to fiscal year 2001, subject to the specific conditions governing each appropriation.

(2) The appropriations in [section 11] [not codified] are limited to available funds. Expenditures of carryover funds for the state energy program may not exceed the actual amount of unspent funds available at the department of environmental quality. Total expenditures of stripper well funds to help establish a refueling infrastructure that will support the use of ethanol-fueled vehicles may not exceed $70,000 for

Section 13. Appropriations prioritized. (1) The appropriations in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] are approved in order of priority as they appear in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified], with the appropriation in [section 4] [not codified] having the highest priority and the appropriation in [section 10] [not codified] having the lowest priority. If the U.S. department of energy does not approve one or more of the programs that are funded by [sections 4 through 10] [not codified], any stripper well payments that are not used to fund the higher priority program must be provided to the lower-ranked program up to the amounts appropriated in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified].

(2) If stripper well payments are insufficient to fully fund the appropriations made in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified], allocations to the lowest ranking program must be reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. If the deficiency is in excess of the appropriation to the lowest ranking program, the next lowest ranking program must have its appropriation reduced until the deficiency is eliminated and so forth as the programs are prioritized. These priorities must be applied to one-half of the total amount appropriated in [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] for fiscal year 2000 and to the remaining appropriation for fiscal year 2001.

(3) In order to provide continuity for the programs when establishing the appropriations for each fiscal year of the 2001 biennium, anticipated stripper well payments that will be received under terms of the stripper well agreement during the biennium may be considered as available to fund the activities.

(4) The expenditure of money appropriated by [sections 4 through 10] [not codified] may not exceed the amount of the stripper well payments available in the biennium."

Coordination. Section 14, Ch. 49, L. 1999, provided: "If House Bill No. 12 is passed and approved, the stripper well payments appropriated in House Bill No. 12 have a higher priority than any appropriation of stripper well payments in [sections 4 through 11] [not codified]." House Bill No. 12 was approved as Ch. 50, L. 1999.

Effective Date. Section 15, Ch. 49, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] is effective July 1, 1999."

Appropriation of Oil Overcharge Money for State Programs: Chapter 526, L. 1997, appropriated certain oil overcharge money to various state programs as an implementation of the policy stated in this section. The text of Ch. 526 provided:

"Section 1. Policy. [Sections 1 through 15] [not codified] implement the policy stated in 90-4-210.

Section 2. Definitions. As used in [sections 1 through 15] [not codified], the following definitions apply:

(1) "Amoco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the decision and order of the U.S. department of energy in Case No. HQF-0588 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(2) "Carryover" means unspent oil overcharge funds previously appropriated and incorporated into an approved program plan for one of the federal energy conservation programs, but not included in unspent project funds as defined in subsection (9).

(3) "Cities service payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the consent agreement between cities service oil and gas and the U.S. department of energy, as affirmed by the federal energy regulatory commission, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(4) "Diamond shamrock payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the southern district of Ohio eastern division in Civil Action No. C2-84-1432 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(5) "Exxon payments" means the oil overcharge payments made by the Exxon corporation to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia in Civil Action No. 78-1035 and any interest accrued on the payments.

(6) "Getty oil payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of disbursement issued in Civil Action

No. 77-347 (MMS) in the U.S. district court for the district of Delaware and any interest accrued on the payments.

(7) "Stripper well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the district of Kansas, Cause No. M.D.L. 378, and any interest accrued on the payments. The term also includes but is not limited to cities service payments, as defined in subsection (3), getty oil payments, as defined in subsection (6), texaco payments, as defined in subsection (8), and any unspent project funds, as defined in subsection (9).

(8) "Texaco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the texaco final consent order, 53 Fed. Reg. 32929, August 29, 1988, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(9) "Unspent project funds" means stripper well payments that were not expended or otherwise legally obligated during the 1997 biennium but were appropriated for the 1997 biennium in Chapter 63, Laws of 1995, in:

- (a) section 4;
- (b) section 5;
- (c) section 6;
- (d) section 7; and
- (e) section 8.

Section 3. Deposit of oil overcharge revenue. All funds from stripper well, amoco, and Exxon payments must be deposited by the state treasurer in the federal special revenue fund. All interest earned on any of these funds or payments also must be deposited in the federal special revenue fund.

Section 4. Matching funds for low-income energy assistance — appropriation. (1) There is appropriated $180,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for the purpose described in subsection (2).

(2) The department of public health and human services shall use the funds appropriated in subsection (1) to match private contributions to energy share, inc., to be used to provide emergency energy assistance to residents with incomes between 125% and 150% of poverty guidelines who are not eligible for federal low-income energy assistance. All of the funds appropriated to the department for this purpose under subsection (1) must be used for clients' fuel bills or other emergency energy needs.

Section 5. Low-income home weatherization — appropriation. There is appropriated $230,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 6. Recommissioning state-owned buildings — appropriation. (1) There is appropriated $80,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to identify and implement low-cost maintenance activities and modifications to equipment and procedures that will enable state building systems to operate at their designed efficiencies, reducing energy consumption in buildings by 5% to 10%.

(2) Although the aggregate energy cost savings realized from this program could be significant, the amount of savings realized by individual agencies is not likely to be substantial. Therefore, it is the intent of the legislature that agencies be allowed to keep and use any energy cost savings realized as an incentive to participate in this program. The department of environmental quality shall report the amount of savings to the 1999 legislature, at which time this policy may be reevaluated.

Section 7. Infrastructure to support purchase and use of ethanol-fueled vehicles — appropriation. There is appropriated $70,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to help establish a refueling infrastructure that will support the use of ethanol-fueled (E-85) vehicles. A one-time investment of oil overcharge dollars will be used to leverage private sector funds to provide pilot alternative refueling stations to supply alternative-fueled vehicles.

Section 8. Reduce petroleum use in Yellowstone region — appropriation. There is appropriated $25,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to promote expanded use of alternative fuels within Yellowstone park and neighboring Montana communities.

Section 9. Small business and tribal environmental compliance loan fund program — appropriation. There is appropriated $180,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to provide a grant to the department of commerce microbusiness finance program to offer loans to small businesses and tribal communities for pollution control equipment, petroleum-based chemical product substitution, equipment replacement, pollution prevention, energy conservation, and waste minimization.

Section 10. Recycling for mercury-containing lamps — appropriation. There is appropriated $36,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to reduce disposal costs and enhance energy savings from lighting retrofits by providing equipment and training to establish a self-sustaining lamp recycling program.

Section 11. Low-income home weatherization — appropriation. There is appropriated another $295,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in the home weatherization program created in 90-4-201.

Section 12. Food bank network transportation — appropriation. There is appropriated $5,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of public health and human services for use in assisting the Montana food bank network with coordinated energy-efficient transportation of food to drop sites and local food banks statewide.

Section 13. Carryover — reappropriations. There is reappropriated $25,000 from the stripper well payments, $50,000 from the Exxon payments, $57,000 from the diamond shamrock payments, and $1,500 from the Amoco payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality to fund the state energy program administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 420.

Section 14. Conditions applied to appropriations. (1) The appropriations made in [sections 4 through 13] [not codified] are biennial appropriations.

(2) One-half of the total amount appropriated to each program in [sections 4 through 13] [not codified] is appropriated in fiscal year 1998 and the remainder is appropriated in fiscal year 1999. As biennial appropriations, the unexpended funds appropriated in fiscal year 1998 may be carried forward within each program to fiscal year 1999.

(3) The appropriations in [section 13] [not codified] are limited to available funds. Expenditures of carryover funds may not exceed the actual amount of unspent funds available.

Section 15. Appropriations prioritized. (1) The appropriations in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified] are approved in order of priority as they appear in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified], with the appropriation in [section 4] [not codified] having the highest priority and the appropriation in [section 12] [not codified] having the lowest priority. If the U.S. department of energy does not approve one or more of the programs that are funded by [sections 4 through 12] [not codified], any stripper well payments that are not used to fund the higher-priority program must be provided to the lower-ranked program up to the amounts appropriated in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified].

(2) If stripper well payments are insufficient to fully fund the appropriations made in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified], allocations to the lowest-ranking program must be reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. If the deficiency is in excess of the appropriation to the lowest-ranking program, the next lowest-ranking program must have its appropriation reduced until the deficiency is eliminated and so forth as the programs are prioritized. These priorities must be applied to one-half of the total amount appropriated in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified] for fiscal year 1998 and to the remaining appropriation for fiscal year 1999.

(3) In order to provide continuity for the programs when establishing the appropriations for each fiscal year of the 1999 biennium, anticipated stripper well payments that will be received under terms of the stripper well agreement during the biennium may be considered as available to fund the activities.

(4) The expenditure of money appropriated by [sections 4 through 12] [not codified] may not exceed the amount of the stripper well payments available in the biennium.

Coordination: Section 16, Ch. 526, provided: "If House Bill No. 12 is passed and approved, the stripper well payments appropriated in House Bill No. 12 have a higher priority than any appropriation of stripper well payments in [sections 4 through 12] [not codified]." House Bill No. 12 was approved as Ch. 81, L. 1997.

Effective date: Section 17, Ch. 526, L. 1997, provided: "[This act] is effective July 1, 1997."

Policy: Section 1, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "[Sections 1 through 10] [not codified] implement the policy stated in 90-4-210."

Definitions: Section 2, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "As used in [sections 1 through 10] [not codified], the following definitions apply:

(1) "Amoco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the decision and order of the U.S. department of energy in Case No. HQF-0588 and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(2) "Carryover" means unspent oil overcharge funds previously appropriated and incorporated into an approved program plan for one of the federal energy conservation programs, but not included in unspent project funds as defined in subsection (9).

(3) "Cities service payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the consent agreement between cities service oil and gas and the U.S. department of energy, as affirmed by the federal energy regulatory commission, and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(4) "Diamond shamrock payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the southern district of Ohio eastern division in Civil Action No. C2-84-1432 and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(5) "Exxon payments" means the oil overcharge payments made by the Exxon corporation to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of the U.S. district court for the District of Columbia in Civil Action No. 78-1035 and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(6) "Getty oil payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the order of disbursement issued in Civil Action No. 77-347 (MMS) in the U.S. district court for the district of Delaware and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(7) "Stripper well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in the U.S. district court for the district of Kansas, Cause No. M.D.L. 378, and includes any interest accrued on the payments. The term also includes but is not limited to cities service payments, as defined in subsection (3), Getty oil payments, as defined in subsection (6), Texaco payments, as defined in subsection (8), and any unspent project funds, as defined in subsection (9).

(8) "Texaco payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the Texaco final consent order, 53 Fed. Reg. 32929, August 29, 1988, and includes any interest accrued on the payments.

(9) "Unspent project funds" means stripper well payments that were not expended or otherwise legally obligated during the 1995 biennium but that were appropriated for the 1995 biennium in Chapter 496, Laws of 1993, in:

- (a) section 5(1);
- (b) section 6;
- (c) section 7;
- (d) section 8; and
- (e) section 9.

(10) "Warner payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the U.S. treasury for distribution to the state of Montana pursuant to the Warner amendment (section 155 of P.L. 97-377) and includes any interest accrued on the payments."

Deposit of Oil Overcharge Revenue: Section 3, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "All funds from stripper well, Amoco, Warner, and Exxon payments must be deposited by the state treasurer in the federal special revenue fund. All interest earned on any of these funds or payments must also be deposited in the federal special revenue fund."

Matching Funds for Low-Income Energy Assistance — Appropriation: Section 4, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "(1) There is appropriated $50,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of social and rehabilitation services [functions now transferred to department of public health and human services] for the purpose described in subsection (2).

(2) The department of social and rehabilitation services [functions now transferred to department of public health and human services] shall match private contributions to energy share, inc., to be used to assist persons not eligible for federal low-income energy assistance whose income is less than 150% of the federal poverty threshold published by the U.S. bureau of the census in the most recent edition of its publication, Poverty in the United States. All of the funds appropriated to the department for this purpose under subsection (1) must be used for clients' fuel bills or other energy needs."

Petroleum Substitutes From Agricultural Products — Appropriation: Section 5, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "There is appropriated $10,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to foster expanded use of alternative transportation fuels derived from agricultural products that may reduce petroleum consumption, produce environmental benefits to Montana, and result in potential new cash crops for Montana farmers. Money expended under this appropriation must be matched at least dollar for dollar with private or federal revenue, or both."

Institutional Conservation Program — Appropriation: Section 6, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "There is appropriated $200,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to fund the institutional conservation program for schools and hospitals administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 455."

Northern Montana College Tractor Resource Center (Now Montana State University-Northern) — Appropriation: Section 7, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "There is appropriated $125,000 from the stripper well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to northern Montana college [now Montana state university-northern] to support the ongoing activities of the northern Montana college [now Montana state university-northern] tractor resource center."

Carryover — Reappropriations: Section 8, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "(1) There is reappropriated $20,000 from the stripper well payments, $5,000 from the Exxon payments, $60,000 from the diamond shamrock payments, and $1,500 from the Amoco payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to fund the state energy conservation program administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 420.

(2) There is reappropriated $100,000 from the stripper well payments, $5,000 from the Exxon payments, and $800 from the Warner payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation to fund the institutional conservation program for schools and hospitals administered by the department pursuant to 10 CFR 455."

Conditions Applied to Appropriations: Section 9, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "The appropriations made in [sections 4 through 8] [not codified] are biennial appropriations.

(1) One-half of the total amount appropriated to each program in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] is appropriated in fiscal year 1996, and the remainder is appropriated in fiscal year 1997. As biennial appropriations, the unexpended funds appropriated in fiscal year 1996 may be carried forward within each program to fiscal year 1997.

(2) The appropriations in [section 8] [not codified] are limited to available funds. Expenditures of carryover funds may not exceed the actual amount of unspent funds available."

Appropriations Prioritized: Section 10, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The appropriations in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] are approved in order of priority as they appear in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified]. If the U.S. department of energy does not approve one or more of the programs that are funded by [sections 4 through 7] [not codified], any stripper well payments that are not used to fund the higher priority program must be provided to the lower ranked program up to the amounts appropriated in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified].

(2) If stripper well payments are insufficient to fully fund the appropriations made in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified], allocations to the lowest ranking program must be reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. If the deficiency is in excess of the appropriation to the lowest ranking program, the next lowest ranking program must have its appropriation reduced until the deficiency is eliminated. These priorities must be applied to one-half of the total amount appropriated in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] for fiscal year 1996 and to the remaining appropriation for fiscal year 1997.

(3) In order to provide continuity for the programs when establishing the appropriations for each fiscal year of the 1997 biennium, anticipated stripper well payments that will be received under terms of the stripper well agreements during the biennium may be considered as available to fund the activities.

(4) The expenditure of money appropriated by [sections 4 through 7] [not codified] may not exceed the amount of the stripper well payments available in the biennium."

Coordination Instruction: Section 11, Ch. 63, L. 1995, provided: "If House Bill No. 12 is passed and approved, the stripper well payments appropriated in House Bill No. 12 have a higher priority than any appropriation of stripper well payments in [sections 4 through 7] [not codified]." House Bill No. 12 was passed and approved as Ch. 61, L. 1995.

Policy Restated: Section 1, Ch. 597, L. 1989, was a policy statement on distribution of oil overcharge money. Although not enacted as an amendment to 90-4-210, the text was essentially identical and was not codified. See 1989 Session Law for text of the statement.

Deposit of Oil Overcharge Revenue: Section 3, Ch. 597, L. 1989, provided that all funds from stripper well payments must be deposited in the federal special revenue fund and also required the deposit of all interest in the federal special revenue fund.

Temporary Authorization of Bonds — 1990-91 Biennium: Section 10, Ch. 473, L. 1989, provided: “(1) At the request of the department, the board may issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not exceeding $3 million to provide money for the 1990-91 biennium energy conservation program. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account. Any premium and accrued interest must be deposited to the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds and to pay costs of the energy conservation program, including the funding of the 1990-91 biennium energy conservation projects approved by the legislature. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. Such proceeds must be available to the department and may be used for the purposes authorized in [sections 1 through 8] [Title 90, ch. 4, part 6] without further budgetary authorization.”

Stripper-Well Payments — Reappropriation — Definition — Priority: Section 3, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: “(1) There is reappropriated from the stripper-well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of environmental quality $100,000 to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607. The original appropriation was contained in section 9, Chapter 597, Laws of 1989. The reappropriation is a biennial appropriation.

(2) (a) “Stripper-well payments” means the oil overcharge payments made to the United States treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in Cause No. M.D.L. 378, United States district court for the district of Kansas, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(b) The term does not include stripper-well payments that have been expended or legally obligated or that have been incorporated into any of the existing federal energy programs as the result of prior appropriations by the legislature.

(3) The stripper-well payments reappropriated in this section have a higher priority than any other appropriation of stripper-well payments for fiscal years 2000 and 2001.” Effective July 1, 1999.

Appropriations of Bond Proceeds: Section 4, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: “There is appropriated from bond proceeds authorized by Chapter 571, Laws of 1991, Chapter 350, Laws of 1993, Chapter 61, Laws of 1995, Chapter 81, Laws of 1997, and [section 6] [not codified], $450,000 to the department of environmental quality to fulfill duties under 90-4-605 and 90-4-607. This appropriation is a biennial appropriation.” Effective July 1, 1999.

Approval of Energy Conservation Projects — Definition: Section 5, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: “(1) Pursuant to Title 90, chapter 4, part 6, the legislature approves the following energy conservation projects for fiscal years 2000 and 2001.

University of Montana
Science Complex, Missoula
Montana State University
Cowan Hall Remodel, Havre
Special Education Building, Billings
Department of Administration
Justice Building
Department of Transportation
Signal Light Retrofit Project
University of Montana

Grizzly Pool
 Department of Military Affairs
 Maintenance Shop Building, Helena

(2) In addition to the energy conservation projects listed in subsection (1), the department of environmental quality may expend funds appropriated under [section 6] [not codified] to respond to lost energy saving opportunities. This includes coordination of energy improvement projects with the long-range building program's capital improvement projects.

(3) For purposes of this section, a "lost energy saving opportunity" means an opportunity to improve energy use that would provide significant energy and cost savings to the state and that will be technically infeasible or uneconomical if the department of environmental quality is delayed in providing the necessary funds until specific legislative approval can be obtained.

(4) If the costs of the projects authorized in subsections (1) and (2) are substantially below the bond amount authorized in [section 6] [not codified], the department of environmental quality may fund projects that otherwise would be proposed as part of the state building energy conservation package for fiscal years 2002 and 2003." Effective July 1, 1999.

Bond Authorization — Appropriation of Bond Proceeds: Section 6, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3 million for fiscal years 2000 and 2001 for the projects approved in [section 5] [not codified] and to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607, as provided in [section 4] [not codified]. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds, to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607, and to fund the projects approved in [section 5] [not codified]. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of environmental quality and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization." Effective July 1, 1999.

Requirements for Approval of State Debt: Section 7, Ch. 50, L. 1999, provided: "Because [section 6] [not codified] authorizes the creation of state debt, Article VIII, section 8, of the Montana constitution requires a vote of two-thirds of the members of each house of the legislature for enactment of [section 6] [not codified]."

Stripper-Well Payments — Reappropriation — Definition — Priority: Section 1, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "(1) There is reappropriated from the stripper-well payments contained in the federal special revenue fund to the department of natural resources and conservation $100,000 to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607. The original appropriation was contained in section 9, Chapter 597, Laws of 1989. The reappropriation is a biennial appropriation.

(2) (a) "Stripper-well payments" means the oil overcharge payments made to the United States treasury for distribution to the state of Montana as the result of the final settlement agreement in Cause No. M.D.L. 378, United States district court for the district of Kansas, and any interest accrued on the payments.

(b) The term does not include stripper-well payments that have been expended or legally obligated or have been incorporated into any of the existing federal energy programs as the result of prior appropriations by the legislature.

(3) The stripper-well payments reappropriated in this section have a higher priority than any other appropriation of stripper-well payments for fiscal years 1996 and 1997." Effective July 1, 1995.

Approval of Energy Conservation Projects — Definition: Section 3, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "(1) Pursuant to Title 90, chapter 4, part 6, the legislature approves the following energy conservation projects for fiscal years 1996 and 1997:

FACILITIES
 Montana Tech of the University of Montana
 Mining Geology Building
 Heating Plant Building
 Montana State University at Billings
 College of Technology Building
 Physical Education Building
 University of Montana at Missoula

College of Technology Building
Department of Corrections and Human Services [functions now transferred to Department of Public Health and Human Services]
Veterans' Home, Columbia Falls
Department of Military Affairs
Kalispell National Guard Armory
Helena National Guard Headquarters
Department of Administration
Scott Hart Building
State Capitol
Office of Public Instruction Building
Mitchell Building Heating System
Montana State University-Northern

(2) In addition to the energy conservation projects listed in subsection (1), the department of natural resources and conservation may expend funds appropriated under [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] to respond to lost energy saving opportunities.

(3) For purposes of this section, a "lost energy saving opportunity" means an opportunity to improve energy use that would provide significant energy and cost savings to the state and that will be technically infeasible or uneconomical if the department is delayed in providing the necessary funds until specific legislative approval can be obtained.

(4) If the costs of the projects authorized in subsections (1) and (2) are substantially below the bond amount authorized in [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment], the department of natural resources and conservation may fund projects that otherwise would be proposed as part of the state building energy conservation package for fiscal years 1998 and 1999.

(5) The retrofit of Montana state university-northern must be conducted as a pilot project, using performance contracting. Montana state university-northern shall use state general obligation bonds authorized under [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] to fund energy efficiency improvements in campus buildings used for instructional purposes. Montana state university-northern may provide financing other than state general obligation bonds for energy efficiency improvements in buildings supported by student fees and revenue. Whenever state general obligation bonds are used, resulting energy cost savings must be transferred to the energy conservation program account as provided in 90-4-614. If funding other than state general obligation bonds is used for improvements in buildings supported by student fees and revenue, a performance contract must be developed jointly by Montana state university-northern, the department of natural resources and conservation, and the department of administration and any resulting energy cost savings in these buildings in excess of debt service and program costs must remain with the auxiliary services at Montana state university-northern." Effective July 1, 1995.

Bond Authorization — Appropriation of Bond Proceeds: Section 4, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $5.5 million for fiscal years 1996 and 1997 for the projects approved in [section 3] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] and to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607 as provided in [section 2] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment]. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. Proceeds of bonds deposited in the energy conservation program account may be used to pay the costs of issuing the bonds, to fulfill duties authorized by 90-4-605 and 90-4-607, and to fund the projects approved in [section 3] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment]. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of natural resources and conservation and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization." Effective July 1, 1995.

Requirements for Approval of State Debt: Section 6, Ch. 61, L. 1995, provided: "Because [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment] authorizes the creation of a state debt, a vote of two-thirds of the members of each house is required for enactment of [section 4] [not codified, see 1995 compiler's comment]." Effective July 1, 1995.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 350, L. 1993, provided: "WHEREAS, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, established the state building energy conservation program; and

WHEREAS, recommended projects for the state building energy conservation program for fiscal years 1994 and 1995 have been analyzed and are submitted to the Legislature as required by Title 90, chapter 4, part 6."

Temporary Bond Authorization — 1994-95 Biennium: Section 4, Ch. 350, L. 1993, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3 million for the energy conservation and lighting retrofit projects approved in [section 3] [not codified, see 1993 compiler's comment] for fiscal years 1994 and 1995. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. The bonds must be issued as provided by Title 17, chapter 5, part 8.

(2) The proceeds of the bonds, other than any premiums and accrued interest received, must be deposited in the energy conservation program account established by 90-4-612. Premiums and accrued interest must be deposited in the debt service fund established in 17-2-102. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of natural resources and conservation and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization."

1991 Amendment: At end, deleted "This money is statutorily appropriated as provided in 17-7-502". Amendment effective April 23, 1991.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 571, L. 1991, provided: "WHEREAS, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, established the state building energy conservation program and authorized the issuance of up to $3 million of general obligation bonds to provide money for the state building energy conservation program for fiscal years 1990-91; and

WHEREAS, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation determined that the issuance of the bonds was not necessary during fiscal years 1990-91 and that portions of the projects identified in section 9, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, were either funded from other sources or not in the state's best interest at the time; and

WHEREAS, recommended projects for the state building energy conservation program for fiscal years 1992-93 have been identified as required by Title 90, chapter 4, part 6."

Temporary Bond Authorization — 1992-93 Biennium: Section 3, Ch. 571, L. 1991, provided: "(1) The board of examiners may, pursuant to 90-4-611, issue and sell bonds of the state in an aggregate principal amount not to exceed $3 million for fiscal years 1992-93. The bonds are general obligations for which the full faith and credit and taxing powers of the state are pledged for payment of the principal and interest on the bonds. For purposes of 17-5-803 and 17-5-804, the energy conservation program account constitutes a capital projects account. The bond proceeds must be available to the department of natural resources and conservation and may be used for the purposes authorized in this section without further budgetary authorization."

Withdrawal of Authorization for Previously Authorized Bonds: Section 6, Ch. 571, L. 1991, provided: "The authorization granted by section 10, Chapter 473, Laws of 1989, for the issuance of up to $3 million in bonds to provide money for fiscal years 1990-91 energy conservation program is withdrawn."

90-4-614. Appropriation of energy cost savings.

Part 10State Energy Policy — Goal and Development Process*90-4-1001. State energy policy goal statement.*Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 311 inserted (2)(c) promoting as a state policy the adoption and implementation of a state transportation energy policy and an alternative fuels policy.

Preamble: The preamble attached to Ch. 311, L. 1995, provided: "WHEREAS, in section 90-4-1003, MCA, the Legislature adopted a process for the incremental development of a comprehensive state energy policy; and

WHEREAS, under the provisions of that statute, the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation recommended to the Environmental Quality Council the development of a transportation energy policy as one component of a comprehensive state energy policy; and

WHEREAS, the Environmental Quality Council assigned a broad-based working group of stakeholders in the issues relating to development of a transportation energy policy to use a collaborative, consensus process to develop that policy; and

WHEREAS, these stakeholders included the Montana Department of Transportation, members of the Montana Highway Commission [now Transportation Commission], the Department of Natural Resources and Conservation, representatives of state and local governments, highway users, railroad interests, utilities, commercial transportation interests, environmental groups, agricultural producers, bicycle and pedestrian interests, transportation planners, and representatives of petroleum producers; and

WHEREAS, the collaborative working group met regularly over an 8-month period to develop the following transportation energy policy goal statement and to recommend a specific component of a transportation energy policy on alternative fuels, along with implementing guidelines."

2003 Amendment: Chapter 405 in definition of project near end substituted "15-6-225" for "90-4-102". Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 353 inserted definition of family services providers; in definition of project near end inserted "family services provider facilities"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Chapter 541 inserted definition of electric energy generation facility; in definition of project near end after "higher education facilities" substituted "electric energy generation facilities" for "small-scale hydroelectric production facilities with a capacity of 50 megawatts or less"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 1, 2001.

Chapter 591 in definition of project near end before "hydroelectric production" deleted "small-scale" (amendment rendered void by Ch. 541) and inserted second to last clause concerning production of energy using alternative renewable energy sources. Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

Severability: Section 28, Ch. 591, L. 2001, was a severability clause.

1995 Amendment — Phrase Change: Section 21, Ch. 255, L. 1995, directed the Code Commissioner to change references in the MCA to a person who is developmentally disabled or to a developmentally disabled person to a person with developmental disabilities. The change was not to be made to the phrase "seriously developmentally disabled". In this section, the Code Commissioner has made the change in (8).

1993 Amendment: Chapter 254 near middle of definition of project inserted "community-based facilities for individuals who are developmentally disabled as defined in 53-20-102"; and made minor changes in style.

1986 Amendment: Inserted definitions of higher education facilities and institution of higher education; and near end of definition of project after "medical facilities" inserted "higher education facilities".

1981 Amendments: Chapter 318 in definition of project inserted "small-scale hydroelectric production facilities with a capacity of 50 megawatts or less".

Chapter 376 inserted definition of bonds.

90-5-102. General municipal and county powers.

Compiler's Comments

Composite Section: This section was amended by Ch. 51 and Ch. 656, L. 1979, and a composite section was prepared by the Code Commissioner, 1979. Chapter 51 was a Code Commissioner bill and was not intended to make substantive changes in the law. Therefore, a conflict of language in subsection (2) between Ch. 51 and Ch. 656 has been resolved in favor of the language in Ch. 656.

Case Notes

Judicial Review: When project was entirely within county, court would not consider hypothetical conflict between 7-1-2101 and provision in this section allowing project partially outside county. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

Constitutionality: Provision for issuance of revenue bonds under this part does not violate Art. XIII, sec. 1, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), since it is done for a public purpose, despite the fact that certain individual associations or corporations may benefit from the legislation. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

Attorney General's Opinions

Community College District Statutory Borrowing Authority: A community college district may enter into an agreement with a city whereby the city would loan the district the proceeds from the sale of an industrial development revenue bond and the district would repay the loan from college revenues. A district may also enter into a promissory note loan agreement with a private lender whereby the district would repay the loan from college revenues. A college district election is not required to approve these construction project financing arrangements; however, a city is required to hold a public hearing prior to issuing industrial development revenue bonds. A district is subject to the election requirement in 20-6-603 when acquiring or constructing sites or buildings. 42 A.G. Op. 78 (1988).

County Revenue Bonds to Finance Community College District Construction: Flathead Valley Community College District may use funds that Flathead County raised by issuing revenue bonds for school construction either by borrowing the funds from the county or by leasing the buildings constructed by the county, subject to applicable school law. 42 A.G. Op. 29 (1987).

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds need not be considered in applying the interest limitation of 17-5-102. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Sale of Bonds of Less Than Face Value: The sale of industrial revenue bonds issued pursuant to Title 90, ch. 5, part 1, at a price less than the face value of the bonds does not violate 17-5-102 if the yield of the bonds exceeds 9%. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

90-5-103. Limited obligation bonds — form and contents — sale — negotiability — filing.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 423 in (2) extended term of payment of bonds from 30 years to 40 years; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 13, 1995.

Applicability: Section 53, Ch. 423, L. 1995, provided: "[This act] applies to bonds issued under the provisions of [this act] after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 13, 1995.

1981 Amendment: Inserted (5) referring to filing of bonds with Securities Commissioner.

Case Notes

Constitutionality: This section does not violate Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.), since it provides for revenue bonds and does not create debt or liability within the meaning of Art. XIII, sec. 5, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 10, 1972 Mont. Const.). Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds need not be considered in applying the interest limitation of 17-5-102. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Sale of Bonds of Less Than Face Value: The sale of industrial revenue bonds issued pursuant to Title 90, ch. 5, part 1, at a price less than the face value of the bonds does not violate 17-5-102 if the yield of the bonds exceeds 9%. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

Compiler's Comments

1981 Amendment: In the first sentence of (1), inserted "to pay the costs of acquiring or improving a project" after "or county"; inserted "or user of the project" after "borrower" near the middle of (1); inserted "to pay the costs of acquiring or improving a project" after "issue the bonds" in the last sentence of (1); and inserted (2) referring to refunding bonds.

Attorney General's Opinions

Revenue Bonds: A community college district may enter into an agreement whereby the city would loan the district the proceeds from the sale of an industrial development revenue bond and the district would repay the loan from college revenues. However, a city is required to hold a public hearing under this section. 42 A.G. Op. 78 (1988).

Attorney General's Opinions

Payment Directly to Purchaser Not Considered Interest: A payment made directly to the purchaser of industrial development revenue bonds by the user-beneficiary of the bond proceeds from the user-beneficiary's own funds need not be considered in applying the interest limitation of 17-5-102. 38 A.G. Op. 78 (1980).

90-5-107. Refunding of bonds.

Compiler's Comments

1981 Amendment: Inserted "including without limitation short-term bonds issued in anticipation of the issuance of long-term bonds" after "any time outstanding" in the first sentence of (1); deleted "unpaid" after "together with any" near the middle of (1); deleted "and 90-5-104" after "90-5-103" near the end of (2); inserted (3) referring to use of principal proceeds from refunding bonds; inserted (4) referring to investment of trust fund money; and inserted (5) referring to limitation on duration of deposit in trust for the retirement of certain bonds.

Erroneous Reference: The compiler has substituted the reference to 90-5-106(1) for an apparently erroneous reference to "subsection (5)" in the first subsection.

90-5-110. Taxation of projects.

Compiler's Comments

1983 Amendment: In (2), substituted "warrant for distraint" for "distress warrant".

Case Notes

Constitutionality: This section does not violate provisions of Art. XII, sec. 2, 1889 Mont. Const. (now Art. VIII, sec. 5, 1972 Mont. Const.), against taxing property of county or municipality, since county or municipality has only trust as opposed to beneficial interest, and taxation is based on use of property. Fickes v. Missoula County, 155 M 258, 470 P2d 287 (1970).

90-5-112. Economic development levy.Compiler's Comments

2001 Amendments — Composite Section: Chapter 495 in (1)(a) at end substituted "as provided in 15-10-425" for "voting in a city, county, or town election". Amendment effective October 1, 2001.

Chapter 574 in (1) in first sentence after "levy" substituted "a tax upon the taxable value of all taxable property in the city, county, or town" for "up to 1 mill upon the taxable value of all the property in the city, county, or town subject to taxation"; at end of (1)(a) substituted "as provided in 15-10-425" for "voting in a city, county, or town election"; and deleted former (4) that read: "(4) A tax authorized by a vote of the electorate, as provided in subsection (1)(a), may be levied for a period not to exceed 6 years." Amendment effective July 1, 2001.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 584 at beginning of (1) inserted reference to 15-10-420; at end of (4) after "years" deleted "and is not subject to the provisions of Title 15, chapter 10, part 4"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective May 10, 1999.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 175, Ch. 584, L. 1999, provided that this section applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to tax years beginning after December 31, 1998.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 279 in (4) increased from 5 years to 6 years the time in which an economic development levy is effective. Amendment effective March 29, 1995.

Applicability: Section 2, Ch. 279, L. 1995, provided: "[Section 1] [90-5-112] applies to all levies approved by the electorate after [the effective date of this act] [effective March 29, 1995]."

1993 Amendment: Chapter 386 substituted (1) authorizing 1-mill economic development levy by public vote or vote of governing body for former (1) that read: "Upon an affirmative vote of a majority of the qualified voters voting in a city, county, or town on the question of whether the governing body may levy a tax for economic development, the governing body of that city, county, or town is authorized to levy in any one election up to 1 mill upon the taxable value of all the property in the county, city, or town subject to taxation for the purpose of economic development for a period not to exceed 5 years"; and at beginning of (4) substituted language authorizing tax with a public vote for "The authorization to levy up to 1 mill for the purpose of economic development, as provided in subsection (1)".

1991 Amendment: At end of (4), after "part 4", deleted "if voter authorization for the levy occurred prior to December 31, 1990". Amendment effective April 16, 1991.

1989 Special Session Amendment: Inserted (4) exempting economic development levy from property tax freeze if approval by voters occurs prior to December 31, 1990. Amendment effective July 11, 1989.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 10 at beginning inserted "Upon request by an employee group or organization" and after "department of commerce shall" deleted former (1) through (4) that read: "(1) compile, organize, and make available to the public a library of resources on the subject of employee ownership and participatory management;

(2) research the role of employee ownership in successful state and local economic development programs of other states;

(3) provide public education on the beneficial aspects of employee-owned enterprises;

(4) conduct seminars, workshops, and conferences to increase awareness of the benefits found to be common to employee-owned enterprises. At least one seminar must be held annually for public officials dealing with economic development, business assistance, and business financing programs"; and made minor changes in style. 2003 Amendment: Chapter 89 in (4) in third sentence after "annual" inserted "or semiannual"; at end of first sentence in (5) increased total amount of outstanding notes and bonds from $975 million to $1.5 billion; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective October 1, 2003.

1985 Amendment: In (5) near beginning, after "outstanding at", substituted "any time" for "any one time"; raised limit from $675 million to $975 million, and inserted last sentence making issue price of bonds sold at discount countable against statutory ceiling.

1983 Amendment: In (4), inserted second to last sentence referring to tax status of bond interest payments; and in (5), deleted former last two sentences, which read: "The rate of interest on bonds or notes issued by the board may not exceed an interest rate equal to 1% less than the interest rate established from time to time by the U.S. department of housing and urban development (HUD), federal housing administration (FHA). The interest rate shall be determined for each issue of bonds or notes according to the HUD/FHA rate in effect 30 days prior to the sale of the bonds or notes."

1981 Amendments: Chapter 53, in (5), substituted language tying interest rate limitation to HUD rate for "9% per annum".

Chapter 64 increased the bond debt limit in (5) from $375 million to $675 million.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to SB 91 (Ch. 64, L. 1981) provided: "A statement of intent was requested for this bill by the Senate Committee on Business and Industry.

It is the intent of the legislature that SB 91 not conflict with SB 90 [Ch. 53, L. 1981]. The bills are not in apparent conflict but both amend section 90-6-111. Both bills are effective on passage and approval. It is the intent of the legislature that should both SB 90 and SB 91 be enacted into law, section 90-6-111 should read as follows:

"90-6-111. Bonds and notes. (1) The board may by resolution, from time to time, issue negotiable notes and bonds in a principal amount as the board determines necessary to provide sufficient funds for achieving any of its purposes, including the payment of interest on notes and bonds of the board, establishment of reserves to secure the notes and bonds, including the reserve funds created under 90-6-119, and all other expenditures of the board incident to and necessary or convenient to carry out this part.

(2) The board may by resolution, from time to time, issue notes to renew notes and bonds to pay notes, including interest, and whenever it deems refunding expedient, refund any bonds by the issuance of new bonds, whether the bonds to be refunded have or have not matured, and issue bonds partly to refund bonds outstanding and partly for any of its other purposes.

(3) Except as otherwise expressly provided by resolution of the board, every issue of its notes and bonds shall be obligations of the board payable out of any revenues, assets, or moneys of the board, subject only to agreements with the holders of particular notes or bonds pledging particular revenues, assets, or moneys.

(4) The notes and bonds shall be authorized by resolutions of the board, shall bear a date, and shall mature at times as the resolutions provide. A note shall not mature more than 10 years and a bond shall not mature more than 50 years from the date of its issue. The bonds may be issued as serial bonds payable in annual installments or as term bonds or as a combination thereof. The notes and bonds shall bear interest at a rate, or rates, be in denominations, be in a form, either coupon or registered, carry registration privileges, be executed in a manner, be payable in a medium of payment, at places within or without the state, and be subject to terms of redemption as provided in resolutions. The notes and bonds of the board may be sold at public or private sale at such prices, which may be above or below par, as are determined by the board.

(5) The total amount of notes and bonds outstanding at any one time, except notes or bonds as to which the board's obligation has been satisfied and discharged by refunding or for which reserve for payment or other means of payment have been otherwise provided, may not exceed $675 million. The rate of interest on bonds or notes issued by the board may not exceed an interest rate equal to 1% less than the interest rate established from time to time by the U.S. department of housing and urban development (HUD), federal housing administration (FHA). The interest rate shall be determined for each issue of bonds or notes according to the HUD/FHA rate in effect 30 days prior to the sale of the bonds or notes."

Part Compiler's Comments

1981 Appropriations Act — Bona Fide Local Effort — Grants: Section 19, HB 500 (1981), provided in part: "Coal impact grants may be granted to local government units only to remedy a situation resulting from coal development. The local government unit must be making a bona fide local effort to provide for its own needs through normal financing channels (taxes, service fees, or bonds)." Because HB 500 was an appropriations bill for the biennium ending June 30, 1983, the above-quoted language is likely to have direct authoritative application only to that period.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 509 before "support" deleted "invest a portion of the tax revenue from the coal mines in a permanent fund, the income from which shall be used for the"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Attorney General's Opinions

Definition of "Local Governmental Unit": Counties, incorporated cities and towns, school districts, and consolidated governments are the only "local governmental units" under this section and chapter. 36 A.G. Op. 74 (1976), overruled by 37 A.G. Op. 22 (1977).

90-6-202. Account established.Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 509 deleted (1) that read: "(1) There is within the state special revenue fund a local impact account. Moneys are payable into this account under 15-35-108. The state treasurer shall draw warrants from this account upon order of the coal board"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1989 Special Session Amendment: Deleted former (3) establishing the education trust fund account. Amendment effective August 11, 1989, and applies retroactively to July 1, 1989.

1987 Amendment: In (1), at end of first sentence after "local impact", deleted "and education trust fund"; and inserted (3) referring to education trust fund account.

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 662, L. 1987, was a severability section.

1983 Amendment: Substituted "state special revenue fund" for "earmarked revenue fund" in two places.

1981 Amendment: Changed internal reference to board.

90-6-205. Coal board — general powers.Compiler's Comments

1997 Amendment: Chapter 204 deleted former (4) that read: "(4) consider applications for loans from available funds for periods and interest rates to be determined by the board"; in (4), in introductory clause after "grants", deleted "and loans"; in (4)(a), after "development", inserted "or a major decline in coal mining or in the operation of coal-using energy complexes" and near end, after "consequence of", inserted "an increase or decrease in" and after "coal development" inserted "or in the consumption of coal by a coal-using energy complex"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1995 Amendment: Chapter 509 in (3), (4), and (5) substituted "available funds" for "the local impact account"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

1991 Amendment: Substituted references to Department of Transportation for references to Department of Highways. Amendment effective July 1, 1991.

1987 Amendment: In (3) and (4), after "local impact", deleted "and education trust fund"; in (5), after "90-6-207", substituted "from the local impact account" for "not to exceed in any one year seven-elevenths and after June 30, 1979, seven-fifteenths of the revenue paid into the local impact and education trust fund account"; and deleted former (5)(c) that read: "(c) provided that as used in this subsection (5), 'revenue paid' does not include interest income from the account reinvested in the account in trust for the public schools and the university system. Grants and loans may be from current allocations only, and no part of the principal or income of the trust referred to in 90-6-211 may be used for this purpose. The money derived from loan repayments, including the interest thereon, must be deposited to the credit of the local impact fund referred to in 90-6-202."

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 662, L. 1987, was a severability section.

1986 Amendments: Chapter 5 in (5) at end of introductory clause of temporary version inserted "less the appropriation provided in section 1, Chapter 5, Special Laws of June 1986".

Chapter 19 in (5) in introductory clause of temporary version substituted "after June 30, 1987, the board may not exceed in any one year seven-fifteenths of the revenue paid into the local impact and education trust fund account. The board may award grants and loans" for "(5) award grants and loans, subject to 90-6-207, not to exceed in any one year seven-elevenths and after June 30, 1979, and before July 1, 1985, seven-fifteenths and after June 30, 1985, 23.08% of the revenue paid into the local impact and education trust fund account, less the appropriation provided in section 1, Chapter 733, Laws of 1985".

Effective Dates: Chapter 5 was effective June 30, 1986.

Chapter 19 was effective July 10, 1986, and applies to coal mined after April 1, 1986.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 619 inserted (5)(b) referring to loans to Department of Highways; and at beginning of (5)(c), made minor changes in phraseology due to subsection rearrangement.

Chapter 715 in (5) of temporary version near beginning inserted "and before July 1, 1985" and inserted "and after June 30, 1985, 23.08%". Amendment effective May 10, 1985, applicable to coal mined on or after April 1, 1985, and terminates July 1, 1987 (secs. 4 and 5, Ch. 715, L. 1985).

Chapter 733 in (5) of temporary version near beginning of first sentence, inserted "less the appropriation provided in section 1, Chapter 733, Laws of 1985". Amendment terminates July 1, 1986 (sec. 4, Ch. 733, L. 1985).

1983 Amendments: Chapter 250 enacted (6) referring to grant to a local government unit to pay credit for prepaid property taxes.

Chapter 690 made the following changes: inserted (4) referring to requiring local government unit to increase its bonded indebtedness; in opening clause of (5), after "grants" inserted "and loans"; in (5) inserted references to federally recognized Indian tribes and governing bodies thereof; and inserted last two sentences of (5) requiring grants and loans to be from current allocations only and referring to credit of loan repayments.

Oversight Subcommittee Bill: SB 186 (Ch. 690, L. 1983), which amended this section to allow Coal Board loans, was introduced by request of the Coal Tax Oversight Subcommittee. See committee report, Montana Legislative Council, November 1982.

Attorney General's Opinions

Limitation on Appropriation: The legislative interpretation of 90-6-205, as established by past appropriations, suggests that the Legislature intended to limit the Coal Board appropriations to 7/15 of the income projected to the local impact and education trust fund in each fiscal year and not up to 7/15 of the entire aggregate amount in the trust fund. 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983), prior to 1987 amendments.

Governmental Service or Facility: The city of Billings and Yellowstone County proposed to purchase and renovate a building for use by a nonprofit corporation providing treatment for alcohol and drug-related problems. The city proposed to issue industrial revenue bonds (IRBs) to fund a portion of the project, and the county sought a grant from the Montana Coal Board. Under the proposal, title to the building would vest in the nonprofit corporation once the IRBs have been retired. The questions presented were whether: (1) the building in question is a "governmental facility"; (2) a city or county has the power to expend funds for a building the title to which will eventually vest in a private corporation; and (3) contracting with a private corporation is a legitimate means of providing a governmental service. In the opinion of the Attorney General, a local government unit with self-government powers and counties with general government powers are authorized to provide alcohol and drug abuse treatment services under Title 53, ch. 24. Local governments may contract with nonprofit corporations for the provision of such services. A program of alcohol and drug abuse treatment services provided by contract with a private nonprofit corporation is a "governmental service or facility" under 90-6-205 for the purpose of determining eligibility for coal impact assistance. 39 A.G. Op. 31 (1981).

Eligibility for Coal Impact Grants: "Local governmental units" eligible to receive impact grants from the Coal Board under 90-6-205 and 90-6-206 include counties, incorporated cities and towns, consolidated local governments, school districts, and any other statutorily created governmental unit or district empowered to exercise delegated sovereign powers over a defined geographical region of the state, viz., county water and sewer districts, rural improvement districts which include areas of more than one county and have separate governing bodies (counties may apply for grants to pay for rural improvement district expenses), and special improvement districts within cities, towns, and consolidated units. Opinion No. 74, Volume 36, of the Official Opinions of the Attorney General is overruled except that portion excluding Indian tribes from impact grant eligibility. 37 A.G. 1997 Amendment: Chapter 204 throughout section, in three places, inserted reference to increase or decrease in coal development and reference to consumption of coal by a coal-using energy complex; in (1), after "grants", deleted "and loans"; in (2) substituted "the year of application for assistance" for "coal development in that area or 1970, whichever is later, which impacts the local government units applying for assistance"; in (3) substituted "the year of application for assistance" for "coal development in that area or 1970, whichever is later"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1997.

1983 Amendment: At beginning after "Grants" inserted "and loans".

1993 Amendment: Chapter 503 in (1)(b)(i) and (1)(d)(i) substituted "300,000 tons" for "1 million tons"; in (1)(b)(i), at end after "year", inserted "and that the department of commerce determines will commence production within 2 years"; in (1)(b)(ii), at beginning, substituted "the department of commerce has determined that" for "or that will increase", after "mine" inserted "will increase", after "year and" deleted "for which the department of commerce determines", and after "production" deleted "authorized by the permit"; in (1)(b)(ii) and (1)(b)(iv), before "years", reduced time from 3 years to 2 years; inserted (1)(b)(iii) requiring Department to annually designate each county and all local governmental units within each county in which a newly constructed railroad serves a new, existing, or expanding coal mine; in (1)(b)(iv), before "steam-generating" and "coal-burning", inserted "new"; in (1)(c) increased distance from 50 miles to 100 miles and at end inserted reference to subsection (1)(b)(iv); substituted (3) relating to awarding grants and loans for former (3) that read: "(3) Except as provided in 90-6-205(5)(b), the coal board shall, subject to the appropriations of the legislature, award at least 50% of all grants awarded to governmental units and state agencies for meeting the needs caused by coal development each year to these designated governmental units"; inserted (7) relating to impact grant designation; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1993.

1987 Amendment: In (6), after "local impact", deleted "and educational trust fund", after "this part" deleted "subject to the limitations imposed by 90-6-211", and at end, after "local impact", deleted "or for transfer to a permanent trust for education".

Severability: Section 13, Ch. 662, L. 1987, was a severability section.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 462 in (1)(a) at beginning, changed references to government entities from plural to singular and made corresponding change in predicate; and inserted (1)(b) through (2) referring to designation of counties and local governmental units.

Chapter 619 in (3) at beginning inserted "Except as provided in 90-6-205(5)(b)".

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), inserted "annually"; after "counties," inserted "incorporated cities and"; in middle of first sentence, substituted "as a result of the impact of coal development a net increase" for "an increase"; at end of first sentence, substituted "over one of the 3-year periods specified in subsection (2)" for "during any 3 years since 1972 as a result of the impact of coal development"; and inserted (2) listing five 3-year periods.

Attorney General's Opinions

Reversion of Coal Board Funds: The provision of 17-7-304, requiring the reversion of unexpended and unencumbered portions of appropriations at the close of the fiscal year, applies to the appropriations to the Coal Board from the local impact and education trust fund. The Legislature appropriates money to the Coal Board as a discretionary matter under 90-6-207. There is no constitutional impediment to the reversion of the funds, nor is there any indication of legislative intent to except the Coal Board grant money from the operation of 17-7-304. The Board must follow the legislatively created financial requirements. 40 A.G. Op. 4 (1983), prior to 1987 amendments.

Effective Date — Retroactive Applicability: Section 23, Ch. 672, L. 1989, provided: “[This act] is effective on passage and approval [approved May 16, 1989] and applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1988.”

1983 Amendments — Composite: Chapter 489, in (1)(b), inserted “and administration of this part”.

Chapter 619, in (1)(b), inserted “and determinations”; inserted (1)(d) referring to grants and loans made from hard-rock mining impact trust account of the version effective July 1, 1985; and in (1)(f) inserted “90-6-321 and 90-6-322”.

The Code Commissioner has arranged the amendments to (1)(b) for grammatical sequence.

The amendments made by Ch. 619 are effective July 1, 1985.

1983 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 472 (Ch. 489, L. 1983) provided: “A statement of intent is required for this bill because it expands the rulemaking authority of the hard-rock mining impact board.

(1) The legislature intends, under Section 2 [which amended this section], that the hard-rock mining impact board be authorized to adopt rules under the Montana Administrative Procedure Act that will facilitate and effectuate its role as a Quasi-Judicial Board responsible for administering the Hard-Rock Mining Impact Act. The rules must ensure that implementation of the act is consistent with the purpose of mitigating local government impacts that may result from the commencement of large-scale hard-rock mineral developments in this state.

(2) The legislature intends that the board adopt rules for implementing Section 3 [which amended 90-6-307] by establishing criteria that the board will use when making decisions on whether or not to grant a requested 30-day extension to an impact review period.

(3) The legislature further intends that the board adopt rules implementing Section 5 [which enacted 90-6-311] that provide:

(a) a procedure for conducting hearings on objections to proposed impact plan amendments that is consistent with the Montana Administrative Procedure Act; and

(b) a list of factors that will be used to determine the validity of objections to the proposed impact plan amendments.

The rulemaking authority granted in this bill is intended to supersede the existing authority that the hard-rock mining impact board has pursuant to Chapter 617, Laws of 1981.”

1981 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 718 (Ch. 617, L. 1981) provided: "A statement of intent is required for HB 718 because [90-6-305] grants rulemaking authority to the hard-rock mining impact board.

The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the board governing its proceedings be procedural in nature.

(1) The legislature intends that the board may adopt forms for notice required by the board and to be given by the board.

(2) The board is intended to act as a "referee" in hearing disputes between local government units and large-scale mineral developers over the impact plan submitted to the board under the provisions of [90-6-307]. The hearings are subject to Montana Administrative Procedure Act and any rules adopted by the board governing the hearings must be consistent with that act.

(3) The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the board governing the awarding of grants shall be consistent with the criteria set out in [90-6-306] [now repealed]."

Title 8, chapter 104, ARM Hard-Rock Mining Impact Board.

90-6-307. Impact plan to be submitted.

Compiler's Comments

1995 Amendment: Chapter 418 in (11) and (14) substituted "department of environmental quality" for "department of state lands"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective July 1, 1995.

Transition: Section 499, Ch. 418, L. 1995, provided: "The provisions of 2-15-131 through 2-15-137 apply to [this act]."

Saving Clause: Section 503, Ch. 418, L. 1995, was a saving clause.

1991 Amendment: In (2), in middle of first sentence, after "industrial" substituted "local government facility" for "educational". Amendment effective March 29, 1991.

1987 Amendment: In (1), at end of introductory material, substituted reference to the mineral developer and the affected local government units ensuring contents of impact plan for "The impact plan shall include"; inserted (4) requiring public hearing on impact plan; inserted (5) allowing objection by affected local government unit not identified in impact plan; in (6), in fourth sentence, substituted "the impact plan is approved without any review by the board" for "the impact plan shall be approved by the board" and inserted last sentence referring to alteration of approved plan; and in (13) substituted "subsections (5) and (6)" for "subsection (4)".

1987 Amendment of Rule: Rule 8.104.203A, ARM, was amended by sec. 6, Ch. 311, L. 1987.

1987 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 311, L. 1987, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill in order to clarify the role of the hard-rock mining impact board. The amendments to section 3 of this bill [90-6-307] are designed to ensure that the board is not involved in reviewing the plan unless objections are filed under 90-6-307 or amendments are sought under 90-6-311.

The amendment of Rule 8.104.203A, Administrative Rules of Montana, does not indicate a legislative intent to define population changes associated with a mineral development. This matter should be determined by the mineral developer and the affected local governments. The amendment further indicates that the legislature desires that the hard-rock mining impact board should not influence this determination by enacting rules on matters that should be the product of discussions between the mineral developer and the affected local governments, except when the board is required to address impact plan concerns during the objections and amendment processes.

This bill also attempts to stress the cooperation role of the mineral developer and the affected local governments in formulating the impact plan. The impact plan, as a result, should reflect the concerns and agreements among these entities. Furthermore, to ensure public involvement in the planning process, a mandatory public hearing is required."

Applicability: Sections 8 and 9, Ch. 311, L. 1987, provided that the amendments made by that chapter were effective on passage and approval (approved March 31, 1987) and apply to all impact plans submitted after that date.

1985 Amendments: Chapter 24 near end of (10) after "hard-rock mining impact" changed "fund" to "account".

Chapter 582 in (1)(c) after "services" deleted "including but not limited to police and fire protection, sewage, water treatment, schools, road construction and upkeep, education, and medical care"; in (2) in first sentence inserted "as identified in the impact plan" and inserted second sentence referring to other revenue sources and funding mechanisms; in first sentence of (3) substituted "the end" for "commencement"; in (5) in second sentence substituted language referring to extension of 30-day period for “If within 30 days the local government unit and the developer cannot resolve the objection”, and in third sentence inserted “If the objections are not resolved”; in (7) substituted “guarantee” for “guaranty”, and substituted “meet the increased costs of public services and facilities as specified” for “make all the payments to the board required”; in (8) substituted reference to payment to a local government unit or the Board and deposit and verification of payments for “The board shall deposit all payments received from the developer into the hard-rock mining impact account established by 90-6-304”; in (9) substituted “guarantee” for “guaranty”, and after “payment” deleted “of each required payment”; in (10) inserted “if the hard-rock mining impact account is used to deliver payments to the local government unit”; in (11) inserted “or 90-6-311(3)”; inserted (12) referring to waiver of impact plan requirement; and inserted (13) referring to certification of compliance and failure to comply.

1983 Amendment: In (1), in first sentence substituted “After” for “When” and made minor change in sentence structure, and inserted second sentence referring to cooperation to eliminate duplication of effort in data collection; inserted (3) referring to financial assistance to prepare for and evaluate the impact plan; in (4), inserted second and third sentences referring to extension of 90-day period and in last sentence inserted “or any extension thereof”; in (5) near beginning substituted “within 10 days” for “promptly”; and in (11), in first sentence inserted “and it results in some remedial order by the board or court of competent jurisdiction”, and near end inserted “administrative or judicial”.

In (11) the Code Commissioner corrected subsection reference from “(3)” to “(4)” which was apparently overlooked when new (3) was inserted and former (3) renumbered as (4). Only (4) relates to filing of objection.

Case Notes

Issue Not Raised Before Agency Not Allowed to Be Raised on Judicial Review: Lincoln County argued in District Court that Sanders County had not objected to an impact plan before the Hard-Rock Mining Board and therefore had no standing to appeal the Board’s decision in District Court. The Supreme Court held that Lincoln County had not argued that Sanders County was without standing when the issue was before the agency; therefore, Lincoln County could not raise the standing issue for the first time in District Court. Lincoln County v. Sanders County, 261 M 344, 862 P2d 1133, 50 St. Rep. 1352 (1993), followed in Hilands Golf Club v. Ashmore, 2002 MT 8, 308 M 111, 39 P3d 697 (2002).

Mining Board’s Amendment of Mine’s Allocation of Taxes Not Beyond Its Authority: Lincoln County argued that the Hard-Rock Mining Board had exceeded its authority in amending Noranda’s tax allocation plan because it allocated an additional amount of the taxes to Sanders County, which was not anticipated to be negatively impacted by an influx of workers. The Supreme Court ruled that the Board could modify tax allocation plans for any affected county not just counties impacted by an influx of workers and that the Board had not acted unreasonably in amending the plan on the basis that after 5 years, the majority of increased property valuation would be in Lincoln County and not Sanders County where the ore body was located. Lincoln County v. Sanders County, 261 M 344, 862 P2d 1133, 50 St. Rep. 1352 (1993).

Name Change — Short Form Amendment: Section 55(1), Ch. 633, L. 1993, directed the Code Commissioner to change the term “foundation program”, when it refers to equalization aid for schools, to “BASE funding program” in this section.

1989 Special Session Amendment: In (1), after “university levy” inserted “established under 20-25-423” and after “foundation program” substituted “established in 20-9-331 and 20-9-333” for “of 45 mills”; and made minor changes in phraseology. Amendment effective August 11, 1989, and applies retroactively to July 1, 1989.

1985 Amendment: In (1) at end of first sentence substituted “as specified in the impact plan” for “in an amount equal to at least three times the estimated property tax due the year the large-scale mineral development facility commences operation” and in last sentence increased mills from 40 to 45; and in (5) after “shall provide for”, substituted reference to tax credit and limitations thereon for “repayment according to the following procedure:

- (a) In each year after the commencement of mining, the local government shall:

(i) divide its budget by the average mill levy of its jurisdiction during the 3 years immediately preceding commencement of mining operations, to arrive at a taxable valuation needed to fund its budget using the average 3-year mill levy;

(ii) reduce the taxable valuation of property of a person who prepaid property taxes by the excess, if any, of the total taxable value of the taxing jurisdiction including the person's property over the taxable value determined under subsection (5)(a)(i), but in no case by an amount greater than the taxable value of the person's property.

(b) The reduction in taxable value, if any, determined under subsection (5)(a)(ii) times the average mill levy used in subsection (5)(a)(i) equals the property tax prepayment credit allowed for the taxable year for that local government unit. Any local government unit not receiving a payment shall not be affected by this section, and no reduction in value shall be used in the computation of taxes due that unit of local government. In no event shall the credit allowed under this part extend more than 10 years beyond the date the prepayment is made under this section.

(c) The procedure established under subsection (5)(a) shall continue from year to year until the total credit allowed the person who prepaid property taxes equals the total property taxes prepaid.

1983 Amendment: Near beginning of (1), substituted "governing body" for "board of county commissioners"; and in (3), substituted "through an appropriate financial institution" for "with appropriate bank guarantees".

90-6-310. Local government facility impact bonds.

1999 Amendment: Chapter 464 at beginning of (1) deleted "If the board determines that", after "located" substituted "must be allocated" for "is not affected by the development and if this determination is shown on the impact plan", and after "proceeds" deleted "must be allocated to that local government unit" and deleted second sentence that read: "This provision is intended to establish a minimum allocation for the units and does not prohibit proof by a unit that actual direct impacts would exceed 20% of the total impacts of the development"; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 22, 1999.

1991 Amendment: Inserted (1) requiring that if Board determines that local government unit in which ore body or mineral deposit being mined is located is not affected by development as shown on impact plan, 20% of total increase in taxable valuation of proceeds must be allocated to local government unit and providing that provision does not prohibit proof by unit that impacts would exceed 20% of total developmental impacts; at beginning of (2) substituted "remaining" for "total"; in (3) and (4), at beginning before "increase", deleted "total" and after "valuation" inserted "equal to that subject to subsection (2)"; and inserted (5) authorizing modification of distribution formula by approved or amended impact plan if needed to ensure reasonable correspondence between costs of mineral development and allocation of taxable valuation from development.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 3, Ch. 760, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to all large-scale mineral developments required to comply with 90-6-307 that did not have an impact plan approved pursuant to 90-6-307, as of December 31, 1990."

1989 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 178, L. 1989, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants the board of housing authority to adopt rules to secure, implement, and administer a reverse annuity mortgage loan program to be utilized by elderly Montanans. The legislature intends that the rules adopted by the board recognize the necessity for some elderly Montanans to draw income for essential living expenses and other purposes from the equity accumulated in their single-family homes during their lifetimes while continuing to enjoy the shelter and security afforded by those residences. The rules must afford the elderly homeowner monthly payments over 10 years, as provided in the loan agreement, under terms that assure life tenancy and the right to repay the loan balance at any time. The rules must be consistent with other statutory or regulatory provisions requiring sufficient security for a loan provided by the board. Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 721 (Ch. 703, L. 1983) provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it grants the Health Facility Authority the power to adopt rules to administer this chapter. The Legislature intends that these rules include:

- (1) procedural rules to govern the Authority;
- (2) procedures for assessing applications;
- (3) the establishment of fees to be charged by health institutions [before amendment by Ch. 477, L. 1997] using the procedures of the authority; and
- (4) procedures for determining the eligibility of a facility.

The legislature declares that the purpose of this bill is health care cost containment [before amendment by Ch. 477, L. 1997]. By making this bonding authority available, the legislature intends that health care costs will be contained by reducing the costs of facilities and equipment so that these savings may be passed on to consumers."

Amendment effective April 21, 1999.

Applicability: Section 19, Ch. 410, L. 1999, provided: "[This act] applies to any capital company or small business investment capital company operating prior to or on or organized after [the effective date of this act]." Effective April 21, 1999.

1991 Amendments: Chapter 263 in definitions of capital base and certified Montana capital company inserted reference to a certified Montana small business investment capital company; and inserted definition of qualified Montana small business investment capital company. Amendment effective March 29, 1991.

Chapter 467 in definition of qualified investment, in (a)(i)(D) after "generation", inserted "or the manufacture of low emission wood or biomass combustion devices". Amendment effective April 17, 1991.

Chapter 576 throughout section substituted "department" for "board"; deleted definition of Board; inserted definition of Department; in definition of qualified investment inserted provision concerning initial requirements for a qualified investment and inserted (c) concerning financing of a non-Montana business; and made minor changes in style. Amendment effective April 23, 1991.

Retroactive Applicability: Section 20, Ch. 263, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies retroactively, within the meaning of 1-2-109, to events occurring after December 31, 1990."

1991 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 467, L. 1991, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because it is anticipated that rulemaking proceedings will be required for implementation."

Montana currently has nine communities that exceed the state and federal ambient air quality standards for particulate matter smaller than 10 microns in diameter (PM-10) and two communities that exceed carbon monoxide standards. Several other communities have PM-10 concentrations approaching the ambient standards.

It is the intention of the legislature that the tax credit available for the cost of purchasing and installing a low emission wood or biomass combustion device be restricted to only the most efficient devices available on the market. While replacing older wood stoves with newer low-emission wood stoves may reduce ambient levels of PM-10, carbon monoxide, and other pollutants, the legislature finds that the current tax incentives do not encourage the improvements in efficiency and reductions in pollutants that will be required in the future to improve air quality.

While it restricts the availability of these tax incentives, the legislature finds it appropriate to increase the amount of the incentive available for those devices that qualify. This action is intended to stimulate the availability of the more efficient devices and further promote their use. Changes are also being made, as appropriate, to preserve the application of other incentives to the installation and production of these devices."

Applicability: Section 5, Ch. 467, L. 1991, provided: "[This act] applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1991, and before January 1, 1996."

1989 Amendment: At end of definition of capital base deleted "and additions to net worth caused by increases in retained earnings".

1987 Amendments: Chapter 370 in portion of definition of qualified investment referring to nonfossil forms of energy generation deleted reference to subsection (5) of 15-32-102.

Chapter 581 substituted definition of Board for "the Montana economic development board provided for in 2-15-1805".

Chapter 583 in definition of capital base, after "equity capital", deleted "or net worth" and inserted remainder of subsection defining capital base; in portion of definition of qualified investment referring to a debt or equity financing, after "financing of", deleted "or a purchase and leaseback financing of"; and inserted portion of definition of qualified investment referring to businesses outside Montana.

Saving Clause: Section 6, Ch. 583, L. 1987, was a saving clause.

1983 Amendment: Section 18(1), Ch. 554, L. 1983, substituted references to the Montana Economic Development Board for references to the Department of Commerce.

1991 Amendment: Substituted "department" for "board". Amendment effective April 23, 1991.

1983 Amendment: Section 18(1), Ch. 554, L. 1983, substituted reference to the Montana Economic Development Board for reference to the Department of Commerce.

Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to HB 685 (Ch. 554, L. 1983) provided: "A Statement of Intent is required for House Bill 685 because it grants rulemaking authority to the Department of Commerce to implement the act."

It is the intention of the legislature that the tax credits herein provided be applied only in the case of properly qualified investments. It is therefore the intention of the legislature that the department of commerce, in making rules to define a small business, use whatever means necessary to arrive at a definition of small business which takes into account the unique nature of Montana small business. It is similarly the intention of the legislature that in the development of rules for certification and qualification of capital companies, the department [board] shall take into account the capital needs of the state based upon such information made available to it on its own initiative and through such hearings as are necessary to achieve the purposes of the act. It is further the intention of the legislature that in determining such rules as are necessary to carry out the examination functions of the act, the department [board] shall take into account commonly accepted principles of financial institution examinations currently in use in the examination of banks and other such institutions. It is further the intention of the legislature that the rules authorized in the act be adopted in a timely fashion."

1993 Statement of Intent: The statement of intent attached to Ch. 534, L. 1993, provided: "A statement of intent is required for this bill because [section 5] [90-14-105] authorizes the office of community service to adopt rules relating to the Montana community service corps."

It is the intent of the legislature that a variety of opportunities be developed, enhanced, and coordinated that maximize the resources and abilities of citizens of Montana to renew the ethic of civic involvement and responsibility by:

- (1) encouraging Montanans, regardless of age, income, or ability, to engage in full-time or part-time service;
- (2) involving youth in programs that benefit the state and improve their own lives;
- (3) enabling young adults to make a sustained commitment to service; and
- (4) involving participants in activities to help meet human, educational, environmental, service, and public safety needs that would not otherwise be performed by paid workers.

It is also the intent of the legislature that the rules address the following:

- (1) procedures for recruitment and involvement in service;
- (2) procedures for review and approval of volunteer or work experience projects;
- (3) a service code of conduct and grievance procedure;
- (4) standards and procedures to evaluate and report on the performance of participants and projects;
- (5) training guidelines for service leaders and participants;
- (6) requirements necessary to ensure cooperation and compliance with any federal programs or requirements related to national public service legislation; and
- (7) other requirements necessary to accomplish the purposes of the Montana community, conservation, and volunteer service corps."

CHAPTER 15 NATURAL RESOURCE INFORMATION SYSTEM

Chapter Compiler's Comments

Preamble: The preamble attached to HB 785 (Ch. 650, L. 1983) provided: "WHEREAS, various departments of state government, including the Departments of Natural Resources and Conservation; Fish, Wildlife, and Parks; State Lands [functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality]; Health and Environmental Sciences [functions now transferred to Department of Environmental Quality]; and Agriculture and various branches of the university system independently collect natural resource information for different purposes, using manual and automated methods; and

WHEREAS, although ideally there should be an integrated natural resource information system, such a sophisticated system would be extremely costly because of the unique and distinctly different requirements of each department; and

WHEREAS, efforts should be made to expedite the development of separate but compatible systems and to catalog this data and make it available for department and statewide use; and

WHEREAS, a natural heritage program begins by developing a classification system to conceptually organize the elements of natural diversity in the state, and this classification serves as a framework for categorizing natural landscape information to facilitate comparison of similar elements and recognize dissimilar elements; and

WHEREAS, 33 states have already developed programs to collect and manage information on their natural heritage, and the methods used by those state programs are available to Montana; and

WHEREAS, the classification system embodied in the natural heritage program should be a working one that retains the flexibility to be changed as need dictates so that new categories may be added or preexisting categories subdivided and, within classes, elements may be added or deleted as new information becomes available; and

WHEREAS, a natural heritage program is needed to eliminate costly duplication and enhance the efficiency of natural resource data collection and to provide a valuable source of that information for state government, industry, and other groups.

THEREFORE, the State of Montana, as a first step in developing a natural resource information system establishes a Montana Natural Heritage Program."
